

M
366.05
CY
v.27

Christian Cynosure.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mass

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 1 CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,272.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Adieu, Sunset Club. .. 8
Vol. XXVII 8
Somebody is Mistaken.. 8
The N. C. A. and the Churches 8
Sunset Club Discussion. 8
Religious Influence of the Lodge System..... 8
School Days Begin 9
Personal Mention..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Secret Societies in Politics 2
The Isles of Greece..... 2
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 5
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
REFORM NEWS:
The Willamette Valley; From the Land of Fire 5
LITERATURE 6
Bits of Lodgery..... 7
SELECTED:
The Coming American (Poetry) 2
A Strange Secret Society..... 3
Permanent Coxeyism... 3
Mrs. Debs Explains..... 3
Small Colleges Best..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
Masonic Management among Oregon Churches; A Street car Testimony..... 6
N. C. A 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FLY'S NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 13

It is the lodge that sets up barriers between man and supposed good; there are none between humble and contrite hearts and the majesty of heaven. Prayer is the only password at its gate. It is the Christian's

"Watchword at the gates of death;
He enters heaven with prayer."

The air of New York is full of righteous indignation against the great secret political society of the city, Tammany Hall. A mass meeting was held in Madison Square Garden last Thursday to inaugurate a citizens movement against the Columbian Order. An address was adopted and a committee of 100 appointed to co-operate with all anti Tammany parties and organizations. These gentlemen have our right hand. But let them begin their reform by getting the beam of Freemasonry out of their eyes.

The massacre of six colored men near Memphis, for the alleged crime of barn-burning, was reported last week. The whole plot has been discovered and several of the leaders in the infamous deed are in jail. The Commercial of Memphis gives some account of the murdered men. They were farmers and working men, one of them a Union veteran, and another sick. All left wives and children, twenty seven of the latter. The Commercial's report shows a deliberate and devilish conspiracy in which the officers of the law were deeply implicated.

Samuel J. Kirkwood, the noble "war" governor of Iowa, was buried last week with honors worthy of a patriot and statesman. He was the trusted friend of Lincoln, the contemporary of Grimes, and the counselor of Garfield. The whole State did honor to his memory. There was no ostentation, no booming of cannon, or blaring of brass bands. All were invited to join the procession but no organization of any sort, not even the Grand Army, marched as a body. The simplicity and dignity of the occasion was an impressive lesson for young Americans who rush into the lodge to make sure they can have a "big funeral."

The Grand Army of the Republic is listed in popular phrase as a "patriotic order." It is a fair question to ask by what possible right it is called "patriotic" when year after year it celebrates with a flagrant violation of the Sabbath-day. There is nothing more patent and demonstrable than the conjunction of despotism and the European Sabbath, and that American institutions cannot long exist with the disregard of that day. The papers report the arrival in Pittsburgh last Sabbath of 25 000 visitors connected with the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps. This single characteristic shows how closely this order is allied to the secret lodge system.

The appeals, demands and even imprecations of capital on one hand and of labor on the other have sometimes put the church in a quandary. Rev. L. A. Banks, author of "White Slaves," a volume on social questions, very forcibly illustrates this situation in the last chapter of the book. "I believe," he says, "in Jesus Christ. To my mind, Christianity stands to-day very much as it did nearly two thousand years ago, when Jesus hung on the cross between two thieves. The anarchy which, atheistic and reckless, would destroy all law and all property, is one of the thieves, and the devotee of the gold god of our time, who clutches his money-bags and says, 'I have a right to get all the money I can, and do with it what I please,' is the other thief. Christianity stands between them; her mission is to change them both, and bring them with a regenerated purpose into brotherhood and fellowship."

The Union Pacific road means to forestall the Populist Labor Union alliance in politics. Its bulletin of last Wednesday says that, "On account of personal strife engendered by partisanship" all employes are asked to refrain from active participation in politics, and candidates are requested to resign. Until lately the railway labor organizations were forbidden by constitution from discussing politics or religion in their lodge rooms. During 1892 and 1893, it is said, nearly every such constitution was changed, so that political action is practically advised, and the American Railway Union on the failure of the Debs boycott has openly taken to the Populist conventions. The action of the road is therefore a just protest against secret societies in politics, which we hope other employers will also oppose with reasonable and patriotic motives. Such political action is more likely to be injurious to the poor man than the well-to-do.

Many Protestants wish to believe that Romanists are sincere in opposing the saloon. No doubt the late Watterson-Satolli decision was received with extravagant praise by many temperance enthusiasts. The orders of these prelates were not carefully read. A place for explanation is generally provided in such decrees. The Catholic Columbian of Columbus, O., understood to speak for Bishop Watterson, fills such a place with these remarks: "Bishop Watterson has pronounced no condemnation of the liquor business. That fact was distinctly stated by him in his March letter..... All that Bishop Watterson has decided is that, for their own honor and dignity, as well as for their influence and usefulness, our diocesan Catholic societies shall have no affiliation in any way with the saloon; and the only liquor traffic that comes in for any direct condemnation in his letter is that which is conducted in a forbidden and disedifying manner, to the persons engaged in which sort of business priests are directed to refuse the sacraments."

Frank Cushing, who is arranging an exhibit of the New Mexican tribes in the National Museum at Washington, was made a Freemason before he went among the Zuni and was adopted by their torturing and debasing rites as member of their tribe. In his public reports of the Zuni religious and initiatory rites he several times called attention to the similarity of these sun-worshiping ceremonies to those of Freemasonry with which he was already familiar. He had passed the Masonic "new birth" in the shock of enlightenment and had entered on the so called "new life" of the lodge. But now he is reported as saying of the Zuni initiation, "It was a life in a new atmosphere in the dawn of humanity." He found among the Pueblos something Masonry has not thus proving that all "which the soul of man can desire" is not to be found before the altars of the pagan Hiram. Masons who are ambitious to complete the full course of lodge ceremonies we advise to take this last sublime degree of Zuni. The principal part of it is red pepper.

The gentlemen who propose to overthrow Tammany have an immense task. That order controls all the city offices, and the New York city government has on its rolls 15,000 salaried employes and expends $89,000,000 a year. This is more money and patronage than is dispensed by the State governments of one-half of the States in the Union. The average salary of State governors does not amount to $5,000 a year. The governors of only three States receive as much as $10,000 a year salary, but in New York city there are 139 offices that pay $5,000 a year and more, and forty-one of these pay yearly salaries of $10,000 and more. The most lowly ward heeler, writes a correspondent of the Record, may hope to become an $8,000-a-year police justice if he labors faithfully in Tammany's interests, or he may become a coroner and receive $5,000 a year for "sitting" on an occasional corpse. Notwithstanding, let the New York reformers be of good cheer. In 1859 the slave power dominated the country, seized free men and made them slaves, stole arsenals, forts and government property by the ten million; but where was it five years later? Men look upon the enormous growth of lodgery and say to the opposition Remember the bull and the locomotive! But the locomotive may blow up before it strikes the spunky antagonist.

WHEATON COLLEGE LIBRARY

SECRET SOCIETIES IN POLITICS.

THE ARGUMENT FROM HISTORY.

(Address prepared for the Sunset Club discussion by the Editor of the Christian Cynosure.)

Secret societies have been in politics ever since Semiramirites used the secret religious society of the mysteries to secure her throne. She passed them on to Egypt, Phœnecia, Greece and Rome until Theodosius suppressed them A. D. 400. They are likely to be in politics so long as there are any politics, just as men will be drinking themselves drunk, picking pockets and cutting throats so long as there are human passions and a devil to play on them.

Secret societies are in politics not for patriotism, for justice, for peace, for good order; but for partiality, favoritism, intrigue, murder; for the breaking down of the true bond of citizenship; of the oath to God, which is the safeguard of our courts; and of true brotherhood between man and man. This has been their record, from the Assassins of the eleventh century and the Vehme Gericht of the Rhine Provinces to the Farmers' Alliance, the A. P. A., the Clan-na-Gael and Tammany.

The principle and practice of all have been condemned by the wisest and best-loved of our great Americans. Gen. Grant, in his Memoirs (Vol. 1., p. 213), in confessing his folly in joining the Know-nothings, says:

"All secret oath-bound political parties are dangerous to any nation, no matter how pure or how patriotic the motives or principles which bring them together."

So Washington in that familiar sentence in his Farewell Address, beginning—

"All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle (i. e., the duty of every individual to obey the established government) and of fatal tendency."

We know what Washington meant, for Alexander Hamilton, who assisted him in the preparation of the Address, quoted this passage as a condemnation of such secret societies as Tammany, then just established by the keen, unscrupulous, ambitious Burr as a "benevolent" organization under the name "Columbian Order." (R. Hume in Harper's Magazine, April, 1872)

Secret societies are in politics but not for the good of men.

But for the Internationale, the Invincibles, the Fenians, the Clan-na-Gael and the Jesuit, Ireland might to-day be enjoying a peaceful home rule. But for the Nihilists, Russia would to-day be under a liberal constitutional government. (See Kennan in the Century for Nov., 1887, p. 63)

But for the White Leagues the Ku-klux, Knights of the White Camelia, the Rifle Brigades and the score of orders that have infested and embittered society in the South, that part of our beloved country might now be prosperous, and not likely to lose a large percentage of its ablest working population. Read, if you would know the effect of secret societies in politics, the famous dispatch of General Sheridan on the White League of Louisiana, made to President Grant in January, 1875, urging that either he should issue a special proclamation declaring this political secret society a gang of bandits, or else that Congress should pass an act declaring them such so that they might be arrested, tried and punished as murderers. But this society, called by Sheridan "banditti," hob nobbed with the Knight Templar Conclave met in New Orleans only a few weeks before. These Knight Templars, many of them from the North, many of them of the Republican party, and some of them Union veterans from the fierce war of the Rebellion,—these Knight Templars published resolutions endorsing the White League as composed of good citizens and gentlemen! The League even appealed from the terrible indictment of General Sheridan, sent by President Grant to suppress the murders and rioting in New Orleans, to the Knight Templar Masons throughout the Union for a good character!

Read, too, in the Congressional inquiry into Louisiana elections how the paternal relations of the Masonic lodges to the secret political society of the Knights of the White Camelia is proved. I hardly need mention the infamous "Ku-klux Klan," a secret society of young Confederates, organized after the war in a little Tennessee town, which became a fearful power to overawe and control by midnight murder the elections in several Southern States. It is in evidence that the disguises of this band of assassins were kept in Masonic lodges.

The secretaries, Nicolay and Hay, of Abraham Lincoln, in their great life history of our "martyred President," tell us that years before the war, the Blue Lodges of Missouri were plotting in their dark chambers of secrecy to make Kansas a slave State. The "Border Ruffianism" of these lodges is a blot on the pages of American history. It is a dark and damning crime against human freedom.

Such has been the bitter experience of the South with the secret lodge in politics. Ours at the North, though not so bitter and bloody, has been no less striking.

Mark the history of the Columbian Order, better known as Tammany, in the politics of the city and State of New York, and of late years in the nation. To that order that State and city charges its millions of debt and its floods of corruption. It has sent prize-fighters to Congress to make our laws; and its dictation has more than once nearly succeeded in giving us a President.

The American Protective Association, which to night proposes to give us Presidents or something worse, is not so much an A. P. A. as an A. P. E. What is the principle of its formation? The history of that order, as published in one of its organs, tells us when those eight men, its founders, met in Clinton, Iowa, seven years ago, "one of the first steps was to take very solemn oaths and obligations to keep secret the crystalization and formation of their ideas." "They were acquainted with the secret operations in their own city. They adopted the secret methods of the Jesuits and met in profound solitude." What, gentlemen, but blight and curse and ruin can follow the success of such a political organization? Intelligent, conscientious and loyal Americans would have found some other means to combat the evils, and remedy the abuses with which it alarms the public ear. To borrow of the Jesuits the tools to fight Jesuitry, is like fighting the devil with fire. The Know-nothing movement proves its folly. One such experience should be enough for our nation.

I have referred to Freemasonry in Southern politics. Its hand is concealed with us. But again and again we find the proof that the theory of the European lodges is quietly the practice among our own. In July, 1882, the third Congress of the Eastern Masonic lodges was held in Nancy, France. The chairman of one of its committees reported that certain societies in Strasburg and in Nancy, the banking houses lately established in Paris and "the Educational League all over France." were gotten up in Masonic "workshops." He continued:

"When under the inspiration of a lodge, a nucleus of Masons, with the help of all friendly 'profanes,' have thus established a society of any kind, they should not leave its direction in the hands of the 'profanes.' On the contrary they should strive to retain, for the managing committee of the society formed by them, a nucleus of Masons to be as it were, its mainspring of action, and who, keeping in their hands the direction of the society, shall continue to further it to hold it abreast of Masonic aspirations! What will not be the power of Freemasonry over the profane world when around each lodge there shall exist a net-work of societies, the members of which, ten or fifteen times more numerous than the Masons themselves, shall receive from the Masons their inspiration and their object, and unite their efforts with ours for the good work we have in view! This net-work once established, must be seduously fostered by a nucleus of young Masons, so that the youth of the schools be directly under Masonic influence!"

Such is the control proposed by European Freemasons over the social and political interests of their fellow citizens. If any such measures are provided for us, they are not made public by proclamation but by an adroit manipulation whose agencies are kept out of sight, and are therefore more dangerous.

The indisputable record of history proves my proposition that the secret society in politics is an Ishmaelite and an anarchist. No matter what end it seeks; those it serves are partiality, favoriteism, intrigue, murder, treason. It is disloyal to country, to humanity and to God.

No matter what the temples, altars or shrines; if not Christ's, they are Satan's. Sun, moon, stars, all natural forces; brute beasts, creeping things; wood, stone, metals, carved and shaped; kings, priests; and human monsters and familiar spirits; titled and sainted and worshiped, have all, in turn, been used by these invisible foes (devils), rivals and antagonists of God, to hide their hateful presence under, and so get near enough to men to attract their worship, mesmerize their natures, weaken their understandings, confuse their intellects, inflame their passions, sear their consciences, harden their hearts, wean them from God and goodness, and bring them to hell, their final and hateful abode.

—JONATHAN BLANCHARD, in "Sermons and Addresses."

THE COMING AMERICAN.

There is music I know that is hopeful and blithe
In the swing of the sickle, the sweep of the scythe,
In the lisp of the foreplane, the smith's anvil peal,
In the roar of the mill and the clash of its wheel;
There's a music that's timed to the rhythmical heat
Of the quickstep of fate in the thunderous street:
There's a music that's played by the breeze and the gale
In the creak of the mast and the flap of the sail;
And there's something that smacks of an epical strain
In the clank of the engine, the sweep of the train.
This music, though mixed with the toiler's tired moan,
And mingled with heart-break too deep for a groan,
Is wrought out at length in an anthem sublime
That fills without discord the wise ear of time.
But this is but prelude Fate's orchestra plays
To the strains that shall come in the fullness of days;
For the age-lengthened rhythm beat out by the fates
In the building of cities, the founding of states,
In the earthquake of war, in its thunder and groans,
In the battles of kings and the crumbling of thrones,
Is but prelude that's written by Destiny's pen
To herald an epoch of masterful men.
In that day we shall worship, by wisdom made whole,
Not greatness of bulk, but perfection of soul,
And the thought-millionaires with our full acclaim then
Will be wreathed and anointed the leaders of men.

—S. W. Foss.

THE ISLES OF GREECE.

WHAT IS BEING DONE FOR THEIR REDEMPTION FROM SUPERSTITION.

(From the missionaries at Andros.)

BATSE, ANDROS, Greece, July 25, 1894

Editor Cynosure,

DEAR BROTHER:—For awhile during the bad weather in the winter we were not situated so as to have any public meetings anywhere; but in February we had two open air meetings and later on we began having them regularly every Sabbath. We had good audiences and they were as quiet and attentive as could be found in America.

On the 18th of May we learned that an enemy had accused me to the Synod and that they had brought suit against me for preaching the doctrines of the Evangelical church and condemning the doctrines of the Greek church. They accuse me even of teaching temperance and speaking against the use of tobacco and they say that if I succeed in this it will be a great damage to the government because the consumers of tobacco and liquor have to pay taxes to the government. They accuse me that I put on such a nice smile and use such nice language when I treat patients and that besides I do not take any money for medicine.

But notwithstanding the knowledge of this suit we went over as usual the next Sabbath and took our old stand and preached to them. The street was full and I mentioned that there is a suit against me and for aught I know I may be put in prison but I am ready. They listened very quietly. The second Sabbath we went again and had another good audience and God was with me and the Word was preached with great power; but at the last, some enemy sent a drunken set with music into our midst and interrupted us for a time; but we waited until they went away and then sang our closing hymn and came home. Since then we have held a meeting every Sabbath afternoon in our new mission building. They are principally attended by the children.

A few weeks ago an examination took place here in Batse in regard to my case and the result was sent to the Holy Synod and they will decide whether it must go to the court in Syra. If it does it may be very expensive, and if there are too many found willing to tell lies against me, I might be put in prison.

Now I must tell you about my missionary trip to Naxos. My time was given especially to the preaching of the Gospel and to the distribution of Bibles. I spent the Sabbath in Naxos and held three meetings. In the morning a discussion took place at the hotel about the Evangelical and the Greek religions. In the afternoon in the street in front of the house where I was lodging

I had a talk on temperance and I read to them a little tract on drinking, called the Universal Bank of Destruction. The women got so interested that they made me to promise them that I would send them some when I get some printed.

In the evening in Naxos I had a meeting in the street again. I spoke of the condition of the people and how sin prevails, stealing and drinking, lying and swearing, and they were glad to hear me. Some came around me and others sat on the high walls and looked down. It was a food of which they had never tasted before. It seems that the people are hungry to hear the Gospel, but there is no one to preach to them. The island is full of sin, revenge, stealing and killing. For the least disappointment a man may come and kill your ox or your horse. Some of the villages contain professional thieves. It is as though they cannot get along without stealing. It is a very large island, a little larger than Andros, may be, and it is very productive. It is called the Sicily of the Cyclades. The conditions of that island may be compared with the second verse of the missionary hymn:

"What though the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's isle,
Though every prospect pleases
And only man is vile;
In vain with lavish kindness
The gifts of God are strown;
The heathen in his blindness
Bows down to wood and stone."

It is very strange to see an island so productive of every kind of fruit and to see people so wicked; every day in the courts and fighting with one another all the time, they are so revengeful.

This island has been a burden on my heart for some time. A voice seemed calling me all the time to go to Naxos. So my desire was at last granted; but I could not go very far. I went through a few villages and spent in the city three days, and when I get money I expect to go again. At least three months must be spent there. There are about fifty villages and each village needs three or more days according to the desire of the people. I hope to take Mrs. Zaraphonithes with me next time.

In Syra I gave around some Bibles. Something wonderful was done in Syra with a man, a shoemaker. I heard him swear and I asked him if he thought that he could do better things by swearing. After talking with him for half an hour or more I left him. The same day after a few hours, I was passing by there and he called me in again and said that since he heard me talk something had so stirred his heart and shook him up like an electric shock that he had decided never to swear again. I told him that he must look to God for strength. To swear in Greece is to blaspheme the name of God and Christ and the communion and all the sacred things.

The wife of a hotel man in Syra and her sister had received a Testament from me and they got so interested that they did not go to church at all that Sunday, but read the Testament all day. I had had talks with them at different times when I have been in Syra, and finally this time they screamed out, "What is the difference between us? we want to be like you." I went on therefore to tell them and we got along all right till we came to the worship of the Virgin Mary; there they resisted. I told them that nowhere in the Bible are we told to worship any one but God. I told them that I would pray for them so that God would make this thing clear to them.

They live in Mikono, the second island from Andros, opposite Syra. They invited me take my wife with me and go there and preach to the people, for they will go there soon, and as there there is no hotel there they will take us to their own house.

I came home from this trip very much stirred up, and we had a most delightful and stirring prayer-meeting that same evening, July 20, here in our own house. On Sabbath it was announced that a preacher had come and that he would preach in the Greek church. Our enemies represented me to him as a false teacher and a deceiver, and so he spoke very hard against me and warned the mothers to be very careful and not send their children to our meetings. It seems that there is a severe persecution all around, for we are attacked from every direction; but we trust that it will work out for the glory of God.

August 9 I had expected to make also a trip to Lavrion, which is the place where we take the cars to go to Athens, but I was not feeling at all well and so I came with my family up to Kataklow to our mountain home, where, God willing, we will spend the summer, and our desire is to reach some of the villages lying near here.

Yours with Christian love,

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES.

A STRANGE SECRET SOCIETY.

LODGE OATHS A REFUGE FROM BROKEN MARRIAGE VOWS

(From the Washington News, Aug. 27)

A number of Pythians and their friends from New York city, who are staying at Chamberlain's and the Arlington, have so interested some of their Washingtonian friends in another society or club of which they are fellow-members that steps have been taken for the establishment of a similar organization here. The club of which these gentlemen are members is unique, being the only one of its kind in existence, so far as is known. It is comparatively new, having been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York only about two years ago. It is called the "Society of Divorced and Discarded Husbands," and has for its objects the promotion of social intercourse among its members, the amelioration of their dejected condition after having become eligible to membership, by being divorced or discarded by their wives, and the enjoyment of such sports and pastimes as are calculated to drive away dull care.

The New York club is composed of actors, lawyers, statesmen, doctors, artists, journalists and a few brokers, merchants and one ex-clergyman, who holds the office of chaplain. The membership is not confined to the professions, although the mother club is mainly composed of, and all its officers are, professional gentlemen.

Some gentlemen who spend most of their time in Washington have concluded that there is a sufficient number of men eligible to membership in this city to form a branch club here, and yesterday afternoon was spent in drafting a constitution and by-laws suitable to the Washington branch of the organization. Chamberlain's Hotel will be the meeting place and headquarters of the society here until the members can obtain and furnish a clubhouse. The badge of the society is a pretty enameled gold button in the shape of a heart. The device, artistically worked out in colored enamel, is that of a stylishly dressed lady and gentleman, one on either half of the heart, which is broken in two. The figures are placed back to back and appear to be walking away from, and each looking back at, the other with a scowl. A ribbon or garter underneath the broken heart has the motto, "We never speak as we pass by."

The qualifications for membership are that the applicant be a gentleman who has been divorced from legal marital bonds or who has been deserted by a common-law wife. The fees and dues are intentionally made heavy in order that the society may be somewhat exclusive. There are some secrets, which are communicated only to those who have satisfactorily passed the initiation or first degree. One of the vows administered with the second degree is said to be prohibitive of ever entering the married estate again, according to legal form. The lectures administered to the candidates are to the effect that the marriage laws, as they at present exist in Christian countries, are an utter and absolute failure. Debates and discussions on metaphysical and psychological subjects are held at stated intervals, and papers are contributed from time to time by the members, nearly all of which pertain to the pseudonym of marital felicity.

The New York club numbers about forty members now, the latest addition being Lillian Russell's last husband. Two of her rejected spouses are members of the club and mutually console and congratulate each other. The Society of Divorced and Discarded Husbands is a secret organization, the members of which are known only to each other and some of their most intimate friends. When the society goes into club session it is called off from labor to refreshment, when intimate bachelor friends may be introduced, but no married men are permitted to enjoy any of the festivities of the club. The Washington society will be formed on the same lines, with a few minor deviations from some of the rules. Married Pythians say that membership in the two organizations is incompatible, but the members of the S. D. D. H. maintain that there is nothing in the requirements of either society to prevent a person belonging to the other if possessed of the necessary qualifications.

PERMANENT COXEYISM.

(From the Farm, Field and Fireside.)

If it is true, and we believe that it is, that "there are always dangerous floating elements of our population which it would be folly to encourage by allowing them to form into bands under the pretense of marching to Washington," then is it not equally dangerous to allow another class, and that a very numerous one, too, that does not float on the surface but in a deep under-current, to form into oath-bound secret organizations, every member of which is sworn to obey the orders of the organization to which he or she belongs? Could the present condition of affairs have been possible if no such organization were in existence? Why are factories being closed for the want of coal? Why are railroads hampered from the same cause, and even whole cities likely to be deprived of water supplies because of the want of fuel to operate their pumps, when there are thousands of coal miners willing and anxious to work if their oaths, always bad, did not stand in the way of their doing so. We do not object to organizations or combinations to oppose lordly capitalists or greedy corporations, but we do oppose those organizations, for whatever purpose, that do their work in the dark and require oaths from each member to abide by their orders at whatever cost to himself or damage to the public. In our experience of many years we have found it to be the case always that persons are more likely to be influenced by their oaths to do wrong than to do right. Is it not in our times very much as it was in the days of the prophet Hosea that "By swearing and lying and killing and stealing and committing adultery they break out and blood toucheth blood?" See also Jeremiah 23: 10—J. P. HIESTER.

In the ideal Christian community when every man shall look to the well-being of his neighbor no less than to his own selfish interests, oath bound societies will probably be done away with. We would be glad to see the day.

MRS. DEBS EXPLAINS.

(The Christian Standard, Cincinnati.)

Mrs. Debs says of her husband, the ex-strike agitator: "He doesn't go to any church at all. He's an infidel. We are a family of infidels, every one of us. Col. Robert Ingersoll, whom we all know and admire, is our only pope." This explains many things. Mrs. Debs need say nothing more. We are ready to credit the declaration of the United States Marshal in charge of the deputies at Chicago during the riots, that the leaders of the strike hoped for and expected to precipitate a social revolution. No man who holds such views as Mrs. Debs attributes to her husband can be trusted to direct any great movement.

"I do not expect my argument to have any effect," said Mr. Reed, of Maine, addressing the Democratic side of the House at the close of the tariff discussion, "but you are like the heathen who have listened to the missionaries: you have no chance of redemption." Mr. Reed is an unbeliever. Educated for the Lutheran ministry, long ago he swung away from the faith and became a free thinker. He is generally cautious, but this utterance has the appearance of a fling at the Christian religion. He must be wiser if he has any thought of the White House. The people of this country are not likely to look with any degree of favor upon the elevation of one to its highest honors who may be out of sympathy with its highest faith. The man that Mrs. Debs recognizes as the pope of the Debs family was turned down on account of this peculiar disorder which affects his heart and brain. The microbe of unbelief is a deadly one to any man's aspirations in a Christian country. It is the microbe of disorder, of despair. The bodies of two suicides were found last week in Central Park, New York, a young man and a young woman, who had evidently died together, with the statement upon their persons, "We died in perfect health, and with clear minds. We are both free thinkers and in the man's pocket was a newspaper clipping with Robert Ingersoll's recent letter on the ri to commit suicide. Every anarchist is an infidel, though every infidel may not be an anarchist. Santo died in the faith of Ingersoll. Ravachol had no higher deity. Let a man beware of the deadly bacillus of unbelief.

SMALL COLLEGES BEST.

THEIR ADVANTAGES OVER THE LARGE INSTITUTIONS.

(From a paper read by Rev, George W. Smith, D. D., before the Board of Trade of Hartford, Conn.)

It is claimed that certain special advantages belong to a small college on account of its numerical smallness. Let me instance a few in a general way.

1. In a small community every student is known, and his individual tastes, disposition and ability are considered as they cannot be considered in a great aggregation.

2. There is security against the influence of ..cious students, who are more readily detected nd eliminated than where they can be hidden in crowd.

3. A man makes more friends among the stu..ents in a small college than in a large one. He ..ay know them all. But in a great number this ..s impossible, and students divide up into cliques on the money line, on the social line, the lazy line, the line of boon companionship, etc., just as they drift together and associate in a great city.

4. In every department of instruction better work can be done. On this point I speak from gratifying intelligence from graduate and professional school, into which I have followed our young men for some years past. There they sit side by side with the honor men of Harvard, Yale and Princeton, and they lower their flag to none. At first, they said, they were a little apprehensive because they were impressed by the cool assumption of superiority, especially on the part of those who proved to be indifferent scholars; but the greater accuracy and thoroughness in their training soon put them at their ease, and in some cases made them a little vain—perhaps pardonably so. The have a way of taking scholarships and fellowships at Johns Hopkins, Harvard and Columbia that I have not the heart to discourage. A few years ago I inquired at Harvard into the working of the elective system of studies. I was informed that at first the different professors were anxious to have their work chosen by a large number of students, and to make their departments popular. Soon, however, they began to prefer a small number, and discouraged many applicants, as they found that to do the best work the number must be limited. In other words, they wanted to establish the conditions which exist in small colleges.

A student in the neighboring university told me that the instruction in the lower classes had been of little value because there were so many in his sections that he was not called upon oftener than once in ten days and sometimes not once in three weeks; and that the instructors were mostly graduates of but few years' standing and but little experience. But the elective work of later years was better, because they were divided up into small groups under competent men. His may have been an exceptional case—let us hope it was—but it brings out certain possibilities of the instruction in a large college.

Returning, now, to the question before us, if education in its broad and comprehensive sense is the aim of a college, the institution should not be so large as to shut out the student from the personal influence of, and personal contact with, the permanent officers and professors, who hold their superior positions because of their personal character and attainments. In education personal influence is the chief factor. President Garfield's idea of a college was, we are told, "a boy on one end of a log and Dr. Hopkins on the other." A gentleman, a graduate of a great university, who had just roared himself hoarse over a victory by the college football team, told me that his son was not enjoying the advantages at that college which he had had in his day. It was too large. His son scarcely met the professors till he was far on in his course, and few of the instructors of the lower classes were skillful, or cared to do more than use their places as a stepping-stone to the various professions to which they looked forward.

Without disparagement to any of the races which are co-operating in the magnificent work of creating a nation of unprecedented greatness, we may claim preference in our public institutions for English models. Now, there are two great historical educational centres in England—Oxford and Cambridge. The University of Oxford does its educational work mostly through colleges which are confederated under its general administration. An Oxford man gets his degree from the university; the educational work is done under a severe system of discipline, in some college whence he goes up for an examination before the university. We find there the combined advantages of a large academic body and a small college.

The "Oxford Calendar" of 1893–4 shows the total number of undergraduates at Oxford to be 3,232, of whom 244 are non-collegiate, leaving 2,988 in 21 colleges and 5 halls. The average number in each college or hall is, then, 115. That is, the majority of colleges and halls named in the Oxford Calendar for 1894–4, many of them several centuries old, have fewer students than Trinity College, Hartford.

Is an Oxford scholar usually regarded as insufficiently educated? If so, let us look at the other great educational center, Cambridge. Here we find 2,912 undergraduates, of whom 107 are non-collegiate, leaving 2,805 to be divided among 17 colleges and 2 halls, making an average for each a fraction less than 148. But this does not tell the whole story. For the education of these young gentlemen, who altogether would hardly make, numerically, what we think to be a first-class college in the United States, the number of professors, fellows and tutors is outrageously extravagant according to our notions, and the large number of residents, or graduates, of lecturers, preachers, or what not, of private tutors and of world-renowned specialists, would make the hair of an economically inclined American stand on end. And yet the high-class Englishman does not think it too much, as he has a notion that to convert money into superior men is the best use you can make of it. If time permitted I think it could be shown that England's growth in power and dominion has coincided with her academic development.

In a university where the business is instruction, you may have 5,000 or 10,000 students, if you will; but in a college where the business is education, we are admonished by the law of nature, which gives to parents (who are the chief educators of the world) but a small number of children, that the members of an educational community should not be too large. One of our most famous educators has said in effect, "Students are at college not simply to learn this or that bit of knowledge, or this or that piece of scholarship, but to learn to recognize and appreciate the loving, large-hearted natures of great and influential men; to become loyal and true and high-minded, to gain high ideals of honor, truth and beauty; to gain life friendships; to gain character that will stand the test of trial and strengthen with prosperity." This can be done in a community large enough for interactions, and yet not large enough to absorb or extinguish the individual.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

An object lesson.—The death of ex Gov. Banks —Mrs. Celia Thaxter.—The origin of the Atlantic Monthly —Women tipplers.—Matters antiquarian.

Boston has her pigeons as well as Venice, and can show her visitors quite as pretty and unique a sight as can be witnessed in the famous city of the Doges, occurring daily opposite Music Hall. Punctually as if they knew and remembered their dinner hour they come flocking down for the largess of grain thrown them by a friendly hack-driver who never forgets his feathered proteges, rain or shine. The doves evidently regard him as their patron saint, lighting on his hand, shoulders or head, with the most fearless confidence. It is an object lesson that must be worth a great deal to the society with the long name. Six species of waterfowl have been introduced into the Back Bay Fens, adding much to their attractions. They have an odd companion in a little homeless Maltese cat, which with that unfailing instinct for making herself comfortable, characteristic of felina domestica wherever found, coils herself up comfortably every night among the ducks and goes to sleep. They behave in the most friendly manner to their singular protege, but curiously enough, will charge on a strange cat with all their power of beak and wings, till she is glad to seek safety in flight. Sometimes flocks of wild geese and ducks on their journey southward will alight in these secluded marshes and hobnob with their tamer kindred, giving wonderful accounts no doubt of their summer's stay on those wild northern shores,—land of mystery and solitude, with its scanty harvests of birch and lichen that no man reaps, its nameless wild flowers never plucked for bridal or bier.

The death of ex Gov. Banks removes one of Massachusetts best known and most honored sons. He was a poor boy, and the story of his early struggle with poverty was delightfully told thirty years ago by Rev. Wm. M. Thayer in one of the most successful of his many popular juvenile books, entitled, "The Bobbin Boy; or how Nat got his learning." It was in every library, and doubtless inspired many a young heart with its lesson of noble endeavor and brave victory over adverse circumstances. His long public career gave him many opportunities to enrich himself, but to his credit he died poor. His home was a fine old colonial building in his native city of Waltham where he had worked as a Bobbin boy. His wife was a very charming woman, like her distinguished husband poor and of obscure origin, but like him also making the most of her limited advantages. She was witty, tactful and kindly, with a power of graceful adaptation to all the requirements of her high social position that made her a very popular governor's wife. She had withal no mercy for shoddy pretense, and was never ashamed of her former life as a factory girl. One of her companions married a man of wealth, but unlike Mrs. Banks, considered the fact that she had once worked in a cotton mill as a mortifying episode, never on any account to be referred to. The severe shock to her pride may be imagined when in a company where she and Mrs. Banks were present, some past event happened to be alluded to, and the latter remarked with the coolest sang froid, "Oh, I remember; it happened when you and I, Mrs. P., were girls, and worked in the factory together."

The death of Mrs. Celia Thaxter has silenced New England's sweetest and most popular songstress since Lucy Larcom. She was a woman of fair and gracious presence, crowned with waves of beautiful snow-white hair, shunning crowds but delighting in the companionship of her circle, fit though few, of chosen friends. She had her wish, to die and be buried on her own green island of Appledore within sight and sound of the sea which had been the grand inspirer of her Muse. Her's was a dreamy, ideal girlhood, resembling in some respects Elizabeth Barrett Browning's. Even then her chief delight, as it was in maturer years, was her garden that

> "Blossomed by the summer sea
> A tiny space of tangled bloom
> Wherein so many flowers found room
> A miracle it seemed to be."

All the exquisite word pictures which abound in her poems were painted against a background of the sea—the shining, magical sea; and it is well that having sung her cradle-song, it should sound the requiem over her grave who loved it so passionately in all its phases, of calm and storm; of quiet loveliness, or fiercest fury and wildest grandeur.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes has just passed his 85th milestone. Since the passing of Whittier, a peculiar interest attaches to every birthday of the venerable "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." Like the sybilline leaves they are more precious as they grow fewer. He, as an essayist, and Mrs. Stowe with her "Minister's Wooing," made the success of the Atlantic Monthly, whose founder and projector, Francis H. Underwood, has just passed away. With a far-sightedness that was like an inspiration, he conceived the idea of starting a magazine which should strengthen the Free Soil party by uniting with one periodical for a channel that galaxy of distinguished writers at the North who were all committed to the anti-slavery movement. The instant success of the Atlantic, though it was started on the heels of the great panic" of '57, is something as unique in literature as its origin.

The no-screen law in Boston has caused many of the saloons to put up a sign, stating that "women will not be served with drinks." This is calculated to waken thought, and confirm a fact painful to believe, that drinking among women is on a steady increase; and not alone among foreigners, or the lowest class of the city's population, but with women of wealth and fashion. The happy middle class as a rule escapes the curse, but proofs that this is not always so are sadly evident. What shall the end be?

It will be a pleasure to antiquarians to know that the ancient records preserved in the archives of the State House, and dating from 1628 to 1686, have recently been restored through a process which not only brings out the writing more distinctly, but makes them proof against the further ravages of time. They can now be handled without fear of injury. The first page of the records relates to the outfitting of the vessels destined for New England which bore to her shores Gov. Winthrop and the three hundred families which founded Boston and the Massachusetts Colony. Two hundred perished the first winter! Surely we of this generation know little of the sorrows and hardships of those who went before us.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

A business barometer—The Pueblo Indian exhibit and Frank Cushing—Garfield's pastor—The S. S. army—The K. of P. army also.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 5, 1894.

That the state of the business of the Treasury department is an unfailing indicator of the state of the business of the country has for many years been accepted as an uncontrovertable fact in Washington. For that reason the business of the Treasury department, which has for some weeks past shown large and increasing receipts of cash, has been highly gratifying, not only to the administration but to everybody, because it indicates that the tide has turned and that the business of the country, so long in a depressed condition, is once more steadily improving. Secretary Carlisle is very much pleased at the present condition of the Treasury as well as with the prospect for a continued increase in the cash receipts. It is all the more pleasing to him because although hoped for it was not expected. In round numbers the receipts of the Treasury for July and August of this year exceed the receipts for the same months last year by $25,000,000. Three or four months ago another issue of bonds was regarded as almost a certainty. Yesterday Secretary Carlisle said he felt confident that all obligations could be met without another issue of bonds.

About the time Congress reassembles lovers of ethnology will find a rare treat arranged for them in a large hall of the National Museum, consisting of all the material pertaining to the history of the Pueblos and allied tribes of Indians which the Smithsonian Institution has been accumulating for years, so arranged as to give even the casual visitor a comprehensive idea of the manners and customs of the aborigines, their trades, sports, religion and pastimes, by a series of striking object lessons. No such historical lesson has ever been prepared as that which these plans propose and it is now merely a question of arranging the material, all of which is on hand. This is being done under the personal supervision of Mr. Frank H. Cushing, whose remarkable experiences during a six years' residence with these Indians are well known through Mr. Cushing's lectures and newspaper and magazine articles to need any detailed notice here. Suffice it to say that Mr. Cushing learned their language, was adopted into a tribe, and made a thorough study of their modes and methods, besides collecting a vast amount of oral information from the older Indians concerning the doings of their ancestors. Of his life among the Indians Mr. Cushing says, "I look back on my life among the Pueblos as a thing that can never be repeated, and that I would not forego for all the misery that went with it, for it was life in a new atmosphere, in the dawn of humanity."

Rev. F. D. Power celebrated last Sunday the nineteenth anniversary of his pastorate of the Garfield Memorial church, preaching a most edifying sermon from Acts 9: 31. Washington has a number of ministers who are greater pulpit orators than Mr. Power, many who have a finer education, but none who show a more willing disposition, not only in working for his own church and congregation, but also in working in every branch of moral reform, and few, if any, of our ministers are more useful members of the community than he.

"This morning nine millions of children, under the instruction of a million teachers, gathered in the Sunday-schools of America alone." I wonder if this extract from last Sunday's sermon of Rev. M. Ross Fishburn will make every person who reads it think as I did, of the grandeur and magnitude of the work that is being done by Christianity.

The Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias is still in session here and will be for the rest of this week and probably longer. The question of shutting out those connected with the liquor traffic has not been decided. Members of the Supreme Lodge who are opposed to the reform are trying to get action postponed until next year.

*

REFORM NEWS.

THE WILLAMETTE VALLEY.

GOOD CROPS, LOW PRICES AND PLENTY OF GOOD REFORMATION WORK IN THIS FAMED OREGON VALLEY.

This valley is now crowned with abundant harvest. Wheat, oats, barley, hops, potatoes, hay, vegetables and fruits, are abundant. Prices are so very low as to render it exceedingly discouraging to farmers. Indeed, there seems to be very little money circulating here just now. The people are resuming the old-time custom of "dickering" for everthing. A very well-to-do farmer told me last week that he is building a barn and will not agree to pay out one cent in cash for material or labor. The carpenter takes a buggy and harness, a cow and calf, and the balance in wheat. He furnishes wheat for the lumber, butter and eggs for hardware, and so it goes.

I simply give this case as a sample of how money is "tied up" here in the West. We are feeling the hard times here. The people, however, are not disheartened, but as hopeful as any one can be under these circumstances.

I spoke two nights at Canby, and cordially invited the people to the convention Sept. 26th, 27th. I hope good was done by these discourses. Eternity alone will tell.

I next went to Abiqua, where I spoke two nights. The congregations were not large, but fair. It is an exceedingly busy time. Rev. J. G. Mosher lives at this point, and is an old wheel-horse on the line of our reform as it relates to secret orders. He is detained at home by an afflicted daughter, and is thus prevented from again taking the field and preaching as before. He is the man who was instrumental in getting me to Oregon.

On the second night the congregation was larger. Rev. L. J. White, a Baptist minister from Scott's Mills, was present, made the opening prayer, and prayed fervently God's blessing on our work. He is a true reformer, as is also his noble wife and sister-in-law, who accompanied him. They most cordially invited me to Scott's Mills to lecture, which I hope to do in the near future.

Father Adair, an old-time reformer, signed for the paper, as did also C. W. Armstrong, a former Portland friend and neighbor.

Next I went to Otterbein church, near West Portland Park. Here I had been pastor for three years, helping to build both the parsonage and the church. I was much pleased to return and speak to them on these great reform questions. I had very fair audiences, and splendid attention. Some thought the truth a little tough, and came near using the familiar argument, "Get mad at what you can't answer;" but their judgment prevailed, and they kept sweet all the way.

From here I visited the Free Methodist camp meeting at Tremont near Portland, where I advertised our convention and work, and received great encouragement.

I returned and attended prayer meeting at Otterbein, and conducted it by request. Rev. Palmer, the pastor, and all his members are in sympathy with our work. While at Portland I got out a thousand programs of our coming convention.

I next went to Woodburn, where I made out my report for the month. This is a summary: Anti-secrecy lectures during the month, 9; others, 13. Cynosure subscriptions, 15; cash receipts for same, $6.00. Collections, $8 95; e penses, $18 40

Another month is gone. I have done what could to open blind eyes, and advance the R deemer's kingdom. I am now at Macleay, w I am to speak three times; then on to Providence, Waterloo, Sodaville, Lents Greshem.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

FROM THE LAND OF FIRE.

A TESTIMONY OUT OF THE FURNACE AGAINST THE SIN OF LODGE WORSHIP —A BEAUTIFUL SCHOOL SERVICE.

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 4, 1894.

For several days this city has been enveloped with dense smoke from the forest fires, the mournful howl of the Duluth "fog horn regular intervals of thirty seconds, with tha others at a distance, have been heard day night. Last night a light shower of rain c to our relief, and this morning a sun is shi in a clear sky.

It is said that there are about one thous refugees in this city who have fled from neighboring towns burned in the forest fi And the country which a few days ago was oc pied with farms and thriving villages is n strewn with hundreds of dead bodies of m burned to death in the fires.

God says: "I caused it to rain upon one city and caused it not to rain upon another city; on piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupo it rained not withered. So two or three cities wandered into one city to drink water; but they were not satisfied: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord." "I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning; yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord. Therefore thus will I do unto thee, O Israel: and because I will do thus unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel."

Last evening the same newspaper that printed the desolations that God has just made in this part of the earth, announced a meeting for the practice of demon-worship—"work in the first degree." That is to say, certain pastors of this city, who make it their boast that they are Freemasons and Odd-fellows, were to be followed by a man being sworn under no less a penalty than that of being put to death in a lawless manner if he did not forever prove himself to be a liar in the service of the devil.

Does God utter it in irony, when he says to these pastors and people, "Prepare to meet thy God?" They put Christ to shame in the lodges, and turn the truth of God into a lie; yet they make a hobbyhorse of the name of Christ in the churches to get the honor and support of the people.

The lurid smoke seen over this city on last Saturday afternoon from the burning cities must be but a faint image of what Jesus described as a "lake of fire and brimstone," in which all idolaters and all liars experience the second death—the death that never dies. The Christian poet, Montgomery, aptly says:

> "Oh, what eternal horrors hang > Around the second death."

I spoke last evening in the Norwegian Lutheran church on lodge demonology, and am to speak to night in the Swedish Lutheran church, and on Thursday evening in another Lutheran church. The pastors of the American churches seem to be either demon-worshipers in the lodge or dumb dogs that dare not bark. Some one exclaims, "O America, America, thou hast forgotten thy God!"

I have just attended the opening exercises of the Duluth high school. It is a magnificent building, accommodating 1,500 pupils. It overlooks the business portion of the city and the lake. The opening exercises consisted in reading the 139th Psalm, repeating in concert the Lord's Prayer, and singing the hymn, 'Onward Christian Soldiers." It is gratifying to know that God is recognized by reading his Word in this public school unpolluted and without being turned into a lie by lodge folly, and uncorrupted demon-worship of the Romish church.

W. FENTON.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

CORRESPONDENCE.

MASONIC MANAGEMENT AMONG OREGON CHURCHES.

The sermon at the camp meeting in which the Commandments and Christ's Sermon on the Mt were made to circumscribe the Christian life, was a pretty close fit to the circumstances surrounding the M. E. church in Ballard. The Seattle District conference had just been held in Ballard, presided over by Rev. T. B. Ford, D.D., a 32-degree Mason, whose morals are more or less represented by those of Senator Breckenridge of Kentucky. I have known him since 1872. The Arkansas conference was organized in Little Rock by Bishop Bowman in the spring of 1873. I had succeeded Ford at Pine Bluff the year before and was present. There were three presiding elders, W. H. Gillam, R. W. Hammett and T. B. Ford. Gillam was an opium-eater and drunkard; Hammett a sober man, but an inveterate smoker, and Ford a moral nondescript. The church organized by Ford at Pine Bluff was a fraud; there was no chance to get a congregation, nor a suitable place of worship; and no support. So I left and ultimately went to Fort Smith and taught in the public schools. Before conference I resigned and went to the conference at Little Rock.

It transpired that a young man whose missionary appropriation had been withheld by Hammett, and who would not compromise the case, was threatened by Ford and Gillam with expulsion from the ministry if he arrested Hammett's character. Whereupon I took up the case and arrested Hammett's character myself. I did not then understand the mysteries of Freemasonry as I do now; so I was amazed when I found that the Bishop ruled in their favor when they objected to the arrest on the ground that I would not join the newly organized conference, to do which would be to place myself in their hands.

In 1878, while traveling with Bishop Bowman and others from Bombay to Madras, to attend the South India Conference, the Bishop related the following incident. He said, "You recollect Bro. Farmer of the Arkansas conference?" I replied that I did.

"Well," said he, "Gillam, Ford and Hammett got up a conspiracy to get him out of the conference. They forged letters against him from charges which he had served; then got a resolution through conference to admit letters as testimony. I of course knew it was a violation of the Discipline, but I allowed them to proceed with their schemes. After they had succeeded and were about to proceed with their case against Farmer, I said to them, 'Now, gentlemen, this resolution just suits me.' And pulling a handful of letters from each breast pocket, I said, 'I have enough of this kind of testimony to put every presiding elder out of the ministry and out of the church.' And," said he, "I put Gillam and Hammett out."

"And left Ford in?" said I. "Yes."

"Well," said I, "you left the biggest scoundrel of all of them in."

Now this same Ford has been shielded in his infamy for the last twenty years. He is a man of remarkable ingenuity in some respects. For instance, being desirous of the title of D.D., and having no literary nor theological acquirements entitling him to the degree, he saw his opportunity to secure it by a species of Masonic ecclesiastical strategy. In 1884, while attending the Arkansas conference, I met G. W. Gray, D.D., for the first time since I knew him in 1856 in the Iowa Wesleyan University. He was president of Little Rock University of the M. E. church. Bro. Wiley presided at the conference and a nephew of his was a professor in the University. There was a conspiracy brewing to drive Dr. Gray out of the institution, and it was being engineered by Ford in the interests of the Bishop's nephew, Prof. Lewis; and I shall always think that Dr. Rush, secretary of the Southern Educational Society, was a party to it. So far as I can learn the whole outfit at Cincinnati always has been Masonic and these were all from there. Ford succeeded in annoying Gray by lying about a lecture which he had delivered until Gray resigned. So I regard the title of D.D. worn by this man, as a reward for a crime and an adornment of ignorance.

His administration on Seattle district has been highly Masonic and harmonizes well with the system of morals inculcated in the lodge. Several of the most competent preachers on his district have gone to the Congregational church, and one of the very best men he had he forced out of his charge in the middle of the year. The second last change in Seattle out of which this man (not a secret society man) was forced by Ford has been filled by another Ford, a cousin of the P. E, who came here from Idaho via Baker City, where he posed as an evangelist but left an unsavory reputation behind him. Another charge in the city had the ministrations of a drunken preacher by the name of McMullen; while the suburb Kirkland had one Rev. McKune for their Masonic shepherd, until he got so bad that Dr. Ford had to find him another parish.

Further deponent saith not at present, but as the Puget Sound annual conference is to meet shortly, there may be some interesting developments worth noting. M. H. NICHOLS.

A STREET-CAR TESTIMONY.

In a Chicago street-car a mother with a fine baby entered and crowded into a seat. I remarked to my neighbor, "That's a fine child." He looked, agreed with me, and a short talk began. A child is a good teacher if we would take its lessons as Christ taught them; and so training in time for eternity became the point.

We were strangers to each other, but he frankly continued. He was not a church member, but went to churches, chiefly to Congregationalist and Baptist. He was also a member of two lodges, and believed in the Ten Commandments.

"But," said I "the law only condemns men; so if you are only there you are still a sinner, and not yet a Christian."

That seemed to startle him a little as a strange statement. But he was a lodge member, and so I also arraigned even his Freemasonry, which he defended as of a truly Christian character. This I denied, and quoted Lev. 5: 4, to show that its very first requirement was an oath forbidden by the law, and of course included in the command of Christ, "Swear not" such oaths. The civil oath requires a witness to tell the truth he knows in order to promote public justice. The lodge oath requires one to conceal something unknown till after he thus binds himself. The civil oath has the divine sanction; the lodge oath has not, and never had; therefore, Satan is its authority. However, it was the Gospel as superior to the law that was the principal point in our conversation, and I quoted Rom. 8: 2 as we very cordially parted,—"That the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus makes free from the law of sin and death." Three thousand were slain at the giving of the law (Exodus 32: 28), and three thousand were saved by the first Gospel sermon after the Resurrection of Christ (Acts 2: 41). Their baptism was their first action of confession of faith in the risen Christ, and how appropriate it is that it should be in the form of that "doctrine" without which all else would be in vain. (1 Cor. 15: 17.) T. H. AULDSCOT.

LITERATURE.

TRYING THE SPIRITS: an examination of Modern Spiritualism. By H. L. Hastings, editor of the Christian, Boston. Price 10 cents. This is one number of the Anti-Infidel Library issued from the Scriptural Tract Repository, Boston, of which Dr. A. T. Pierson says he knows nothing better in the language with which to meet current scepticism. There are few writers more skillful in probing the hidden sophistries of unbelief than Dr. Hastings, and he has conferred a benefit on the Christian public in this pamphlet. He shows that people and communities have been amazingly imposed upon by other men; why not then by evil spirits. The divinely appointed test of prophecy (Isa. 41: 21–23) is well argued. Another test is suggested by the question, "What have spirits done?" In half a century our civilization has been almost transformed by the inventions of men by use of steam and electricity. The author continues:

"But according to the theory of Spiritualists there are a hundred times as many disembodied spirits about us as there are men in the flesh. Among them are all the poets, authors, orators, musicians and inventors of past ages. They know all they ever knew when they were in the flesh, and have been learning a great deal more since; and with their added powers and extended experience they should be able to do what mortals have never done before. They have had free access to the public mind and public press, with no end of mediums ready to receive their communications, and thousands and thousands of inquirers who have anxiously questioned them, and earnestly desired to obtain information from them. They have had tables and slates and pens and pencils and banjos and pianos and cabinets and bells and violins and guitars; and what have we to show for it all? Their business in this world has been to instruct men, to help them, to make them wiser and better. They have talked and rapped, they have tipped and rattled, they have fiddled and scribbled, they have materialized and dematerialized, they have entranced and exhibited; they have told us many things which we knew before; many things which we did not know yet; and many other things which it was no matter whether we knew or not; but when we come to real instruction, reliable information, or profitable and valuable knowledge, Spiritualism is as barren as Sahara, as empty as a hollow gourd."

Perhaps no other article in the September number of the Review of Reviews will attract more attention than one entitled "The Declaration of the German Bimetallists." The recent Imperial Silver Commission was composed of distinguished monetary experts and financiers. Some half dozen of the ablest of these gentlemen united in a report favorable to international bimetallism and the full restoration of silver, and gave in a very succinct way the arguments in favor of the restoration of the white metal. This document has not been seen in the English language, and it is now translated for the Review by President E. Benjamin Andrews, of Brown University, whose opinions are undoubtedly quite in accord with those which were reached by the German gentlemen who concurred in making this report. "Political Japan and Its Leaders," by Mr. C. Meriwether, a Johns Hopkins graduate who spent some years as a professor in a government institution in Japan, is an account of the conditions which have brought Japan to a domestic and foreign crisis, the result of which is the existing war with China. Mr. Meriwether gives us clear accounts of the most significant party and military leaders. Under the title of "The Work of the Fifty-third Congress," the Review furnishes a record of the legislation of the past year, and devotes several pages of fine print to the actual tariff schedules, placing the McKinley rates and the new rates side by side. This is a service that will be particularly appreciated during the pending campaigns.

The Century for September contains two entertaining papers adapted to the season for the re-opening of the schools, the first being an account of "School Excursions in Germany," by Dr. J. M. Rice, author of the volume, "The Public-School System of the United States." This paper includes a record of an excursion of this kind in which Dr. Rice participated, and has the advantage of being the first article on the subject printed in America, where the idea of school excursions has already taken root, and promises to spread. The other paper is on "Playgrounds for City Schools," and is written by Jacob A. Riis, whose studies in New York tenement-house life are well known. An important paper, which will be in the nature of a revelation to many readers, is the article by Joseph B. Bishop, entitled "The Price of Peace," in which is set forth the wide-spread system of blackmail practiced by legislative strikers upon the New York business community.

Youthful readers will be attracted in the St. Nicholas for September by the stories of adventure. The wreck of the "Markham" is a true story of the Nantucket Shoals. The narrative is put into the mouth of a brawny life-saving station-keeper, who, with his crew, rescued the shipwrecked mariners after a terrible experience of twenty-six hours in an open boat. W. T. Hornaday, the naturalist, tells of the habits of that wonderful monster, the walrus: how it gets its food in the frozen north, and how it is hunted by the hardy Eskimo. "Two Schoolhouses and a Shipwreck," by Isabel Marbury, is a bit of history that should not be forgotten. The crew of the American bark "Cashmere," which was wrecked near the Japanese island of Tanega-Shima, were most hospitably treated by the kind-hearted natives. Congress voted them a sum of money, with which the school-houses Miss Marbury describes were erected.

The Preacher's Magazine for September commends itself for the variety and excellence of its contents. The ever excellent discourses of Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, which have formed a distinctive feature of this live magazine, are continued. "Where Thou Dwellest," in this number, is full of apt teachings. A layman's sermon, by Mr. John C. Havemeyer, widely known as a devoted laymen, on the theme, "Seen and Unseen," is attractive and profitable. The Homiletics are of much fullness and force. "God's Favors," by Rev. F. N. Trotter, and "A Tentmaker's Metaphor," by the Rev. Charles Cross, are among the articles. A new department is a series of "Outlines of Prayer-meeting Talks."

BITS OF LODGERY.

An exchange says that "A lodge in Idaho has inaugurated the scheme of holding the funeral ceremony over non-attendants on the supposition that they are dead. It keeps it busy most of the time."

The Ancient Order of United Workmen at their last Supreme Lodge session amended their constitution so as to positively prohibit the reinstatement of a suspended or expelled member, if he has passed the age of 45 years.

Oronhyatekha, a Mohawk Indian who lives in Toronto, draws $10,000 a year as a supreme officer of the order of Foresters in Canada, and has an income as a practicing physician. He has a high and mighty name also among the Good Templars.

The first annual convention of ladies of the Maccabees, will be held in Norwalk, O., Sept. 28, to form a State organization and to elect officers. There are 35,000 members of the Knights of the Maccabees in the country embracing 100 local hives.

The conclave of colored Knights of Pythias meeting in Indianapolis, Ind., voted in favor of uniting the four separate bodies, each claiming to be the central body of colored knights, into one. This action was greeted with loud cheers. The organization, it is said, now has 15,000 members.

The twenty-ninth triennial convention of the General Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of America met in Topeka, Kansas, Aug. 22. Charters were granted to councils at Denver, Salt Lake City, Trinidad, Durango, Akron, Canon City, Spokane, Seattle, Pueblo, Muskogee, McAlester, and other points.

Governor McKinley like old dog Tray sometimes gets in bad company. The cornerstone of a new armory was laid at Kinton, O., Aug. 31. Governor McKinley and staff participated in the parade, which was composed of several bodies of military, the uniformed Knights of Pythias, Knights of St. John, Odd-fellows, G. A. R. and U. V. U. The cornerstone laying ceremonies were conducted by grand officers of the Grand Lodge F. and A. M., of Ohio. Governor McKinley made a brief address. In the evening the governor and staff and grand officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of the State were tendered a public reception

Ayer's Hair Vigor tones up the weak hair-roots, stimulates the vessels and tissues which supply the hair with nutrition, strengthens the hair itself, and adds the oil which keeps the shafts soft, lustrous, and silky. The most popular and valuable toilet preparation in the world.

Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers does its work thoroughly, coloring a uniform brown or black, which, when dry, will neither rub, wash off, nor soil linen.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

DOCTOR'S BILLS SAVED.

Mineral Point, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio.
DR. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

J. SMITH, ESQ.

Dear Sir—I am glad to say that the use of your "Golden Medical Discovery" has saved me many doctors' bills, as I have for the past eleven years, whenever needed, been using it for the erysipelas and also for chronic diarrhea, and am glad to say that it has never failed. I have also recommended it to many of my neighbors, as it is a medicine worth recommending.
JOSEPH SMITH.

PIERCE Guarantees a CURE

OR MONEY RETURNED.

The "Discovery" purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, thereby invigorating the system and building up wholesome flesh when reduced by wasting diseases.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

A UNIQUE PICTURE.

There was much interest in the N. C. A. Chart used at the World's Fair last year by Rev. J. P. Stoddard in illustrating various facts in Freemasonry.

There has been a demand for copies of it by those who saw it at the World's Fair, and who wish to use it in explaining to their neighbors different phases of the lodge question.

Hence the N. C. A has had a photo-zinc-etching made, size 18x20 inches, which shows the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scotch Rite, etc., and their relation one to another.

There are also seen some of the initiatory scenes in the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason. This chart can be used to illustrate the system of secret societies in a variety of ways. It will be especially helpful to local lecturers and pastors of churches in explaining to people the ceremonies, oaths, prayers, religion, etc, of the lodge. The Chart is on heavy book paper, and will be sent postpaid, at your risk, for six two-cent postage stamps; or sent at our risk by registered mail for ten two-cent postage stamps.

Framed and hung upon the wall it will make a novel and attractive picture for the homes of the readers of the Cynosure.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Bianchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjobiom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1894.

THE PACIFIC COAST ANNIVERSARY.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of moral reform will be held Sept. 26th and 27th, 1894, at Philomath, Benton county, Oregon. All persons and communities interested in our reform work should be represented.

WM. DILLON, President. P. B. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

CORRECT in reading the second line, page 2, a printer's error. Read thus: "Secret societies have been in politics ever since Semiramis used the secret religious rites of the mysteries to secure her throne."

WORK FOR TO DAY.—The time for prompt, energetic action, and if need be, of self-denial, for a good cause is NOW, if ever it is to be. Have you, dear friendly reader, made any effort yet to enlarge the Cynosure list? Can you not speak to a neighbor and get a new subscription or encourage a renewal. Just now a few words from each of a few thousand friends of the N. C. A. would give a mighty uplift to the reform.

ADIEU, SUNSET CLUB, we may say in this number. It has given us entertainment, information, conviction. The facts given this week are worth often recalling.—Bro. Zaraphonithes and his interesting family have many friends in this country, who are always glad to hear what God is doing through their agency in Greece. Read their letter.—The extravagances of lodgery are seen in the clip from the Washington News.—Something worth studying appears on the timely topic of our colleges; and there is a good story, too, for the young people on the seductive influence of college secrecy.—The correspondence is, as always, a notable part of our paper, never to be overlooked or read carelessly.

VOLUME XXVII.—This number begins it. The Cynosure has been condemned for an alleged illiberal spirit. It ought rather because of overmodest conservatism. It has been a lamp and a pitcher.

IT MUST BE A TRUMPET

It has argued, persuaded, besought. It has had sympathy for the tried, comfort for the persecuted. But there ought to be a little righteous war along with the rest. Brethren of the reform, you ask for a readable paper. This is promised, with God's help. But you must pray and labor with us for a paper that shall

FILL ITS PLACE IN OUR GREAT MOVEMENT.

The Holy Spirit, now our Immanuel, will be pleased with nothing less.

SOMEBODY IS MISTAKEN.—The late exposure of Knights of Labor deception and dishonor in these columns should have taught the loved and honored leader of the W. C. T. U. that God is not well pleased when his people go down into the Egypt of lodgery for help. But one of our exchanges (a religious paper) publishes this note:

> "Miss Francis Willard, it is reported, is about to play a new role in the temperance problem. Of course everybody knows that she has long since left Christian temperance in the background and made prominent 'political temperance.' Now she says, 'It is social conditions which make men drunkards, and our organizations too frequently neglect to make allowance for that fact. In my opinion we shall be obliged to become the champions of the trades unions, and work with might and main to better the industrial condition of wage-earners before the vice of drunkenness can be attacked.' And the labor unions will never be helped thereby, and the W. C. T. U. will sink still lower. It once did noble work in Christian lines; but the organization is Christian no longer."

Our brother editor is mistaken in his estimate of the piety of the W. C. T. U. An unwise measure does not de-Christianize that noble society. We hope it is also a mistaken report made of Miss Willard. If it is not, she is surely repeating one of the great mistakes of her life. Why should she turn to a secret union to help workingmen when she can find twice the number of that class in Christian churches. A Christian union cannot innocently strike hands with organizations that turn aside from Christ.

THE N. C. A. AND THE CHURCHES.

Fall meetings have begun in all the denominations. Have we nothing to do but to say, God bless you all, brethren, and give you a good time at conference, or presbytery or association? Sometimes we almost fear, when we sit and hear prolix and prosy addresses and essays in which some good brother is relieving his own mind without getting a single valuable idea into the head of anyone else,—we fear lest the devil add his benediction also.

It will please God to hear a sound of war in his camp. This should be the time "when kings go forth to battle." The enemy of the church of God was never more active, more cunning, more full of "devices" of which we should be aware.

The founders and leaders of our Association conceived it to be their first duty to awaken the churches to see the meaning, the object, the power of the "device" of the secret lodge. There has been some success; but it has been measurable,—quite so. In some churches the discussion has brought hearts to the touch-stone of the truth: and Christ is the truth, and he was and is still revealed "for the falling and rising up of many in Israel." So when men come to him in one of his great world-saving truths, some fall, some rise; some reject, some embrace; some shrink from the buffeting of Satan that follows; some rise superior to it and triumph over it. So it has been with some denominations like the United Brethren. Such failures are no discouragement. They are to be expected. They were prophesied. They prove that we do not testify in vain. But we may testify and assert principles till doomsday and accomplish nothing, if we do not move on when God opens a way. Good people will believe that the lodge is an evil, but will be indifferent to its blighting effect. As the Iowa United Presbyterian Synod declares:

> The Christian reform movements of the day find much sympathy among our people. There is not, however, that active, earnest and hearty support of them that we would like to see. As one brother says, "our people are generally on the right side of reforms;" but as another one expresses it, they support them "with very little enthusiasm," or, as another report states, a few are in earnest; the rest sympathize with all well-directed efforts.

But how shall the churches be reached, NOW? The spirit of Jonathan Blanchard burned in him to visit the church gatherings and plead with them for the love of Christ to stand for a separation from the lodge. The Association appointed him some four years ago to do this, if he could at his own charges. But expense and age prevented. Rev. Alexander Thomson, long the efficient chairman of our Board, urged again and again that we must reach the churches or we practically labor in vain. We have made a beginning, but the few steps taken seem only to show the length of the way.

The Association at last annual meeting took action looking toward a good work. First they added to the constitution this clause:

> All persons chosen by churches, or church assemblies, cooperating with the Association, and from State auxiliary associations, as their representatives to its meetings, such delegations being limited to one from each body, shall have full privileges of membership during the period for which they are elected.

We understand this to mean that the work of the N. C. A. is the work of the churches. We invite them to take it up. Another measure adopted at that meeting looked to more aggressive work. It is this:

> That there be procured from all church assemblies opposing secret societies a memorial to the general bodies representing the Baptist, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, or other denominations noncommittal, or in sympathy with the lodges, presenting to the latter the urgency of this reform, and the fact that the false worships of the lodge will destroy the true worship of the Christian church, unless overcome by the truth, as Pastor Fisch of Paris prophesied.
>
> The details of this plan are suggested as follows: (1) That the Board of Directors prepare such a memorial and secure its adoption by all church assemblies possible. (2) That there be secured, also, wherever possible, a delegation from such assemblies to present this memorial to those bodies to whom it is addressed. (3) That the Board secure such presentation, either by such church delegations, or by its own agents, or by both,

This, of course, means a year's work to secure action in many meetings. Something can be done this fall by brethren who read this action of the N. C A. At conference, or presbytery, or other meeting a representative can be appointed.

Then the Board will welcome suggestions. Let us have a hundred letters for publication approving or disapproving or criticising the plan suggested; or presenting some form of memorial. "With good advice make war." Let us help one another in this glorious cause. There are able men enough in sympathy with the reform to bring it to a victorious issue in a year, if their energies and enthusiasm and work were combined. We are not hindered by the Lord in this matter, brethren, but by our own indifference and unbelief. Let us up and be doing.

THE SUNSET CLUB DISCUSSION.

The close of this remarkable debate was in a whirl of applause. Not a man present that evening will forget the enthusiasm that burst into loud cheers as President Blanchard ceased speaking. He had accomplished a most difficult task. The representative of the A. P. A. felt very lonely. The strong denunciation of Postmaster Hesing overbore all sympathy with the anti Romanist movement. Mr. Hesing's candid opposition to all secret societies was unexpected and most welcome to the speakers from Wheaton and their friends. But in spite of this fact, and the natural temptation to let Romanism alone after he had arraigned the Masonic lodge in just but scathing terms, President Blanchard was true to the truth, and, courteously but with just severity, showed why every American must suspect and fear Rome. The champion of the A. P. A. said nothing which met the case so justly. The crowd was swayed. They felt the throb of patriotism. They saw freedom's flag. Its folds floated free from the entangling embrace of priest or lodge-master. Cheers rang through the hall, and the dispersing throng began chanting, "What's the matter with Wheaton?" "She's all right!" It was a triumphant hour.

If these remarks would have been more suitable for last number, let it suffice that they now recall the close of the printed report, and connect that with the remarks which were ready to be made by several gentlemen present but were unspoken for want of time. One of these appears this week. Others, though conditionally promised, may never be written because of pressing professional duties. The Sunset Club has just chosen a new secretary-manager. He will do honor to his administration, make popular his organization, and do the public a service, by arranging another like discussion.

THE RELIGIOUS INFLUENCE OF THE LODGE SYSTEM.

It should ever be borne in mind that the fatal defect in lodge religion, and in its practical influence over the mind of the initiated, is not in any positively false doctrine, or any defect in ethical instruction, though such instruction is always far short of the fullness of Gospel requirement, but rather in the failure to teach Christ and to secure his transforming power over the mind and heart. In other words, it never changes the natural man, but leaves him subject to all those evil influences that dwell in and proceed out of the heart of man. "For out of the heart come forth evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, railings." Matt. 15: 19, 20.

This is true of all religions that do not make Christ the great central thought, and insist on the transforming power of his grace. The example of Saul of Tarsus is an admirable illustration. From the very constitution of his mind he was eminently earnest and conscientious. His doctrinal and ethical training had been most excellent. To an admirably cultivated mind there was conjoined a deeply religious spirit. And yet he was the persecutor of the church and the implacable enemy of the Holy One and of his saints.

When he came to know Christ he was completely transformed, not only in his relations to God, but in his attitude towards his fellow men. In his own expressive language, he was "a new creature; old things had passed away, and all things had become new, and all things were of God." 2 Cor. 5: 17, 18. "What things," says he, "were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Yea, doubtless I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things....that I may know him and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death." Phil. 3: 8–10.

Perhaps never in the history of the world was there such a wonderful transformation of character, or such a manifestation of heroic philanthropy. No mere ethical instruction could ever have effected such a change, nor can it ever make any man to be what God requires, holy in heart and life.

Concede all that is claimed for any or all of the secret orders, and they come infinitely short of the Gospel of Christ; and since they largely tend to satisfy the soul with the poor, human substitute for salvation, and to draw away the mind from the "more excellent way," they are essentially hurtful to the well-being of mankind.

SCHOOL DAYS BEGIN.

One hundred thousand young men and women in our American colleges and twelve million children in our public schools will begin another year of work during the first three weeks of September. The era of a revival of business begins about the same time—a significant conjunction; although the latter, important as it is, does not compare in its infinite consequences to opening of schools and colleges. The greatest thing in the world may be man, but "the greatest thing in man is mind."

It may be too late to influence a choice among the hundreds of institutions, but we reprint on another page part of a valuable paper on the advantages of small colleges over the greater. It is worth a careful reading from all who have any near relation, or expect to have, with any institution for higher education.

There is a most instructive study in school statistics. In round numbers there are 100,000 college students; in colleges for women exclusively there are some 30,000 more; and in academies and preparatory schools nearly 150,000 more. The income of the male and female colleges is much over ten million dollars, and for the secondary institutions two and one half million more. These figures are probably much below the fact, as the United States reports are always some two years behind present date, and of late each passing year has reported millions added to the treasuries of a few institutions. The Yale, Harvard and Chicago universities and Columbia College have each a yearly income of nearly or quite $1,000,000. The figures are sufficiently accurate, however, to show what a tremendous power popular and higher education has become in America. The days of the widow's mite have long passed with a score of our great institutions, and the gift of a volume or a peck of corn is an item of curious history in the records of Yale and Harvard.

The support of colleges is a study by itself. Many, no doubt, suppose that the $20, $30, $60 or $100 tuition annually collected from each student is sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of salaries and incidentals. But this idea is a great mistake. President Coulter of Lake Forest University, near this city, puts together some figures which will make penurious parents stare and perhaps blush with shame. He finds that the average annual expense borne by institutions for each student, over and above receipts for tuition, are a heavy bill. Thus the amount at Columbia College, New York, is $1,400; at Wisconsin University, it is $400; at Yale, $231; at Harvard, $305; at Wooster, O., under President Scovil, it is $50; at Beloit, Wis., $105; at Lake Forest itself $92. The average cost to the institution of the equipment for each student varies in the same institutions thus: Wooster, $350; Lake Forest, $678; Beloit, $700; Yale, $1,500; Harvard, $2,705; Wisconsin University, $2,800; Columbia, $4,530. It would be an instructive table if these statistics could be gathered from a score or more institutions like Monmouth, Geneva, Wheaton, Greenville, Northwestern, Tarkio, Gates, Olivet, whose riches are rather faith and character, than libraries, buildings and endowment funds.

The above figures show that the student who has a natural pride in being even with the world and paying all college bills is yet a large dependent on charity, and a great debtor to his college. And it is worth remark that in proportion to the size of the institution this debt increases, and in the small colleges it is more nearly extinguished.

—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-fellows meets this year Sept. 17, at Lookout Mountain, Tennessee. Would that the whole organization could have a lookout from the Mount of God: that is, could look upon human life as he does. They would, if reasonable men, then abhor the social and religious mockery they call Odd-fellowship.

—Some of the papers that are kindly sent to our office spell Cynosure with the letters E-X-C-H-A-N-G-E when quoting from our columns. Perhaps this is not bad morals, but it is not good English, and it is very bad Greek.

—The Reformed Presbyterian Advocate, representing the General Synod branch of that church, sends as supplemental to the September number a handsome picture of the fine new church in Pittsburgh. It is built of Ohio sandstone, with ample accommodations for Sabbath-school and other church work.

—A "non-sectarian" temperance day celebration is preparing for this city Oct. 10. The great Auditorium is engaged and the speakers announced are Bishop Patterson of Columbus, O., who has made so much trouble in the Roman Catholic environs, Miss Willard, John G. Wooley, and possibly Dr. Henson and Bishop Kane.

—The Cleveland Leader boasts, "The saloon has ceased to cut a figure in the politics of this commonwealth. The Republican party took up that qustion and settled it." The Evangelical Messenger of the same city replies that if this is true "it is because the saloon has all the politics its own way." The saloon and the two great parties have lain down together in peace, because the saloon has swallowed them both."

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Dr. George F. Pentecost is taking a vacation rest in this country.

—Rev. W. M. Howie of the Third United Presbyterian church, Chicago, and of the N. C. A. Board, has been called to Wisconsin by the illness of his son.

—Dr. C. E. Mandeville, of the Englewood M. E. church in this city, lately delivered seven lectures at Ocean Grove on the "Seven Churches" of the Revelation.

—Dr. Edward Beecher, the eldest of the celebrated Beecher family, is yet living. He celebrated his 91st birthday on August 27. But live as long as he may, he will never regret the report he wrote for the Illinois Congregational Association in 1866 condemning secret societies.

—A telegram from Omaha on the 5th says that Rev. J. J. Kennedy, president of Amity College, College Springs, Iowa, had been missing from his home for a week. He had gone to Omaha for a day and had not since been seen and had left no word to indicate further absence. His friends feared foul treatment, but no further word has appeared.

—John M. Scroggie, one of the most devoted and hard-working of Scottish evangelists, died August 1st last. He was invited to this country last year by Mr. Moody to assist in the great evangelical meetings in connection with the World's Fair. He also spent a week in Wheaton in a similar work, and was much esteemed by all good people.

—Rev. J. A. Cosby, the young and earnest pastor of the new United Presbyterian church in West Aurora in this State, lately preached on the relation of the strike to religion. He believed the laboring men and capitalists were equally guilty of the commission of acts of anarchy, and that the saloon was the school that was instrumental in teaching and promoting the anarchy that now affects the nation.

—Lindholm, the leader of the Knights of Labor in this city, having published a resolution of his order endorsing a certain political ticket, W. C. Pomeroy, of the American Federation of Labor Unions, replies that "the Knights of Labor have now no influence with labor organizations. There are just about enough of them left to hold a meeting and adopt a resolution. During the strike Sovereign came here and announced he was going to call out the K. of L. He called them out but they did not come. Why? Simply because the organization is not in existence in Chicago."

—Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society, has endeared himself to New England reformers by his earnest testimony against secretism. He was lately in Antwerp attending a peace congress held there from August 29 to September 1, having sailed from New York on the 15th ult. At the close of the Congress at Antwerp he intended to go to The Hague in Holland in order to be present at the meeting of the Interparliamentary Peace Conference which convenes there on the 3d of September and continues for three days. He purposes while on the Continent, in addition to looking in on the Exposition at Antwerp, to make a visit to Brussels and the battlefield of Waterloo.

The Christianity of this day falls fearfully short of the Christianity of the immediate followers of our Lord. Then, the meaning of a Christian was that he took the cross and followed Christ; that he counted not his life dear to him in the service of God and man; that he trod the world under his feet. Now, we ask leave of the world how far we shall follow Christ. What wrong or abuse is there which the bulk of the people may think essential to their prosperity, and may defend with outcry and menace, before which the Christianity of this age will not bow? We need a new John, who, with the untamed and solemn energy of the wilderness, shall cry out among us, "Repent." We need that the Crucified should speak to us with a more startling voice, "He that forsaketh not all things and followeth not me, cannot be my disciple." We need that the all-sympathizing spirit of Christianity should cease to bow to the spirit of the world. We need that, under a deep sense of want and woe, the church should cry out, "Thy kingdom come," and with holy importunity should bring down new strength, and life, and love from heaven.—William Ellery Channing.

"The Blue Degrees are but the outer court of the Temple. Part of the symbols are displayed there to the initiate, but he is intentionally misled by false interpretations. It is not intended that he shall understand them, but it is intended that he shall imagine that he does understand them. Their true explanation is reserved for the Princes of Masonry."—Albert Pike, Grand Commander of the Supreme Council, Sovereign Grand Inspectors-General, in "Morals and Dogma," page 819.

HON. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Speech in the Senate: "Secret societies, sir? Before I would place my hand between the hands of other men, in a secret lodge, order, class or council, and bending on my knee before them, enter into combination with them for any object, personal or political, good or bad, I would pray to God that that hand and that knee might be paralyzed, and that I might become an object of pity and even the mockery of my fellow men. Swear, sir! I, a man, an American citizen, a Christian, swear to submit myself to the guidance and direction of other men, surrendering my own judgment to their judgments, and my own conscience to their keeping! No. No, sir. I know quite well the fallibility of my own judgment, and my liability to fall into error and temptation. But my life has been spent in breaking the bonds of the slavery of men. I, therefore, know too well the danger of confiding power to irresponsible hands, to make myself a willing slave."

THANKS TO WASHINGTON.—Edward Livingston was the General Grand High Priest of the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States and the great Masonic champion of his day, and Andrew Jackson was also a high Mason. In view of Washington's non-affiliation and his farewell address there can be little doubt that General Jackson and Edward Livingston considered Washington a seceded Mason. The following is an article published in 1830 in the Pennsylvania Intelligencer, which is an evidence of striking import:

"Who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington?—When General Washington retired to private life, Congress passed resolutions giving thanks to this great man. Only three men were found in Congress at that day, that voted against these resolutions. One of these three is now dead, and we do not wish to disturb his ashes. The grave should cover the foibles of all men. But there are two men now alive, whose names are on the journals of Congress, denying the poor pittance of a vote of thanks to Gen. Washington. We ask who these two men are.

"We have asked this question without expecting an answer from those to whom it is addressed. But there is no reason why our readers should not be gratified with the fact. Let the journals of Congress reply—'They are Andrew Jackson and Edward Livingston!!'"

THE HOME.

A SONG FOR TO-DAY.

Groweth the morning from gray to gold;
Up, my heart, and greet the sun!
Yesterday's cares are a tale that is told,
Yesterday's tasks are a work that is done;
Yesterday's failures are all forgot,
Buried beneath the billows of sleep;
Yesterday's burdens are as they were not,—
Lay them low in the soundless deep.

Share thy crust and ask no dole,
Offer the cup thou wouldst never drain;
Only he who saveth his soul
Loseth all that he fain would gain.
Smile with him who has gained his day;
Smile the gladder, if at thy cost;
It was his to win and thine to aspire,
It is his to-day who loved the most.

Pluck the flower that blooms at thy door;
Cherish the love that the day may send;
Cometh an hour when all thy store
Vainly were offered for flower or friend.
Gratefully take what life offereth,
Looking to heaven nor seeking reward.
So shalt thou find, come life, come death,
Earth and the sky are in sweet accord.

—Louise Manning Hodgkins.

FACE TO FACE.

A STORY FOR THE BEGINNING OF SCHOOL DAYS.

"How are you coming out, Stanley?"

Two school boys met in a secluded part of the grounds, one with a face of eager, anxious inquiry, the other with an expression of suppressed dismay.

"Just as I expected. I'm to be expelled!"

"And for no fault of your own!"

"So I've said."

Edward turned a shade paler.

"Did you tell the faculty how it was with you?"

"I told them all I could. I told them I wasn't in the affair."

"And you couldn't, any way you could fix it, explain matters a little?"

"I can't, because there's a pledge out. It's all my own fault, of course. I ought not to have allowed myself to be drawn into any such doings."

"But when you—say you backed out before the frolic came off—"

"That doesn't seem to have helped me any—except so far as the satisfaction to myself in having had no hand in it. And they'll believe me at home. But," Stanley set his lips together as if in keenest pain, "you don't know what this is going to be to them there, Ed. Just as I was so near college. They'll never get over it— and I never shall."

"Where's Bert Rande?"

"Gone somewhere out to the Pacific coast to see his sick father, so I heard. But why do you ask about Bert Rande?"

"Oh, nothing special," said Edward, turning a little to hide a flush on his face as Stanley gave him a keen glance of inquiry.

The two parted, Edward probably with a heavier heart than that carried by the boy who was to be expelled.

"How can I get out of it?" he groaned to himself. "There's only one way. And if I take that way it means being expelled myself. Of course I've got to do it, sooner or later. I ought not to let Stanley lie under that suspicion for another hour. But—how can I!"

Some of the boys in the Rutherford Preparatory School had gotten themselves into what they called "a very bad kettle of fish." The peculiarities of a raw country youth had tempted a few of the more unruly of the boys into giving him a hazing. None of them had intended anything more than a rare fright for the "greeny," but the fun, once begun, had progressed far beyond the original plan, with the result of injuries to the poor young fellow which brought the whole matter to light. A pity that youth of this generation, with whom belongs the privilege of triumphantly pushing forward the wheels of advancing civilization, should prefer to use their God-given strength in giving them a backward shove!

All the perpetrators of the outrage were expelled. Stanley Ford's name had not at first appeared, but further development seemed to implicate him. The hazers had placed themselves under strong pledges to secrecy. All had worn masks, and under severe questioning maintained that they could not distinguish one from another of the party.

"If only Bert Rande were here!" said Edward Stone to himself in the course of his miserable musings upon the most undesirable position in which he found himself. "But it might take weeks to hear from him. And in the meantime Stanley will be disgraced. Bert could testify that Stanley was not with them. Of course he could go that far without breaking the pledge of secrecy. Bert's the only one that could set the matter right—except myself. And, Edward Stone," (he drew himself proudly to his full height and gazed in stern questioning as if his unhappy self stood before him,) "you don't mean, I hope, that you are going to let a companion suffer under a wrongful accusation when it is in your power to clear him?"

The heroic spirit lasted for the few minutes in which he was taking rapid footsteps toward the main school building, to weaken with lagging paces as its stone columns came into sight.

"How my mother will feel about it! And I intended to keep such a clean record. I—needn't go to Dr. Harmon to-day. Perhaps something may come out yet to get Stanley off. Something might. Stranger things have happened."

It is not at all likely that many generous-hearted, high-spirited school boys have found themselves so cruelly torn between conflicting emotions as was our hero in lying down that night with the weight of his secret upon him, believing that his morning courage would be equal to the pressing demand. But the morning brought him a letter telling of two or three friends from a distance who wished him to spend the day with them in the city twenty miles from the school.

"I must go. If I tell, of course I shall not be let off. I'll go—and make a clean breast the moment I get back. I'll have a good time before the crash comes."

He took a back stairway to avoid the possibility of meeting Stanley Ford, as, armed with the permission of one of the teachers, he made his way from the building for his short excursion, his cheeks flushing with shame at the distant sound of the voice of the boy he was wronging. How earnestly he now wished that he had made frank confession with his first knowledge that Stanley was implicated—how fully he realized that every moment, every hour, since had added to the burden of wrong!

He made a vigorous effort to throw off his depression, and an hour later took his seat in an elevator in the building in which he expected to meet his friends, with a mind bent on the anticipated enjoyments of the day.

"I told you second floor," he presently said, turning to the elevator boy as they passed it.

The two were the only occupants. To Edward's surprise he was answered only by a cry of dismay from the boy, who was jerking frantically at the rope. The cab refused to obey the check and Edward could perceive that its upward motion was quickening. Scarcely had he fully realized this when the boy, having apparently watched for the third-story door, threw it open and flung himself out, receiving as he did so a severe blow from the jamb.

Any one who has been placed in sudden peril may imagine the feelings with which Edward in in his turn grasped the check rope. Still the machinery refused to obey, and he faced alone the terrible possibilities to which he was exposed.

What were they? The swift, swifter upward rush—the collision with the roof, the crushing and splintering—then what?

The boy's white lips opened, but whether with words or cry he could not have told. All the words or cries which could be uttered in years, he thought, could not express the thoughts which came crowding into those few moments—of the home which would be darkened by the catastrophe to that death-trap in which he was helplessly imprisoned—of the mother whose eyes might not again be gladdened by the coming of a bright anxiously-longed-for face. Thought pressing thought of the past, of things which might have been done; of opportunities wasted, of injury done—

Yes, amid all, the sharpest sting of intolerable anguish lay in the remembrance of the wrong he had not righted—of the boy who lay under an unjust suspicion which only he could lift fro him. It would mar his prospects, shadow h boyhood, unjustly, and yet here was the ugly s cret, locked up with him, going to be dashed wi him upon the pittiless wood and iron of the gre building. He had delayed and delayed and no the opportunity might never be granted him.

And with all this his eye had never dimmed, his hand trembled as he watched for his possib chance of escape. The smaller boy had escape so too might he.

The fourth floor had been passed before he h fully taken in his only hope of safety. As t fifth swiftly came in sight he took a close look it, fixing clearly in his mind the position of t knob. He might fail in attempting to do wh the boy had done, but in either case it could on be death.

As the knob came in sight he reach up and, quickly flinging back the doo sprang out. The cab was by this time goi with such speed that he barely escaped bei caught between its flooring and the top of t door. As he fell heavily to the floor the crash the cab against the roof resounded through t lofty building.

It was out of the darkness into light, and t hum of voices raised in alarm and astonishme greeted Edward's unceremonious entrance in large office. He struck upon his head, and for few moments lost consciousness.

"One of my boys!"

Doctor Harmon turned in blank surprise as recognized the unexpected visitor. Edward h known that his principal had gone into town th morning but had had little thought of such meeting.

On first regaining consciousness Edward gaz confusedly about him, then with a sudden brig ening of his eyes attempted to spring up.

"Doctor Harmon! Oh, sir, you are the ve person I want to see. I have so much to say you. It is about Stanley Ford—"

"Wait a little," said the Doctor, laying up him a kindly restraining hand. "You need a tle quiet just now. We'll talk by and by."

"But, Doctor, if you'll believe me—I must s it now—this minute. I thought it could wa but I'll never think again that anything th ought to be done at once can wait. It's abo that night—the night of the hazing—"

Doctor Harmon, seeing that the boy could rest until his mind was unburdened, and wit very reasonable objection to the affairs of his sch being discussed in public, contrived to restr Edward's eagerness until he could be removed a private room.

"Never mind the bump on my head," he s as he took his place on a lounge. "I don't th anything in the world will ever hurt me as it to think my hateful secret was going to be loc up in that—ah!" He turned pale again but sisted on going on.

"I was one of the hazing party. Yes, sir—y look surprised. You didn't think I was one the sort that would go in for such things. I been worse. I've been letting another fel bear the blame that belonged to me. I do want you to think I meant to keep it up, fo didn't—I was only putting it off hoping that some way Stanley Ford might get off without inculpating myself. I meant to tell you—indee did, sir."

"Of course I know that," said Dr. Harmon soothing tone, anxious to allay the boy's exc ment. "And now that you have told me the gist of the thing we will deter further talk."

"No, sir," persisted Edward, "I want to ge clear off my mind. If you know how it feels —think you may never get a chance to tell—" face whitened again as he motioned in the di tion of the elevator shaft. "It was this way was walking through the grounds late that ni and I came upon two persons talking in one the thickets. I thought it was some of the tea ers or janitors, and as it was after hours I di want to be seen, so I stopped short. Pre soon I found out that it was Stanley Ford Bert Rande, and that there was some kind caper up. Stanley was saying that he had m up his mind not to go on with it, and Bert trying to persuade him to. Stanley held and after a few moments we heard a voice both of them cleared out. Stanley had drop his mask and some kind of a rig they used to guise the upper part of their bodies, and t lay there in the bushes. I don't know what evil spirit could have put it into my head, but it suddenly flashed upon me that here was a chance of a frolic without any danger of being found out. So I went into it. I saw Stanley's study lamp lighted as I crossed to where the hazers were to meet. Now you know. You didn't think it of me. I didn't think it of myself. I beg your pardon, sir."

"My pardon is easily given," said Doctor Harmon, taking Edward's hand as he sank back on the pillow.

"Of course I know that I stand exactly where you thought Stanley did—and that my offense is far worse."

Doctor Harmon took a few turns up and down the room in deep thought. There was no doubt that the boy before him deserved to be fully as severely dealt with as any of the youthful delinquents. But he had just come through such an almost unprecedented experience. How could he retain a sense of even his justly outraged dignity as head of the school towards one who had within a few moments stood face to face with a horrible death?

All his impulses were on the side of fullest mercy. But he could defer the expression of it. It would be salutary to allow the culprit to endure for a few hours the belief that his conduct was to meet with its just deserts. But the flushed face and closed eyes brought uppermost the injuries which might have been received. The doctor who had been summoned must soon be there. A mind set at rest would surely be the best aid to speedy recovery.

"I do not say," the doctor sat down and again took Edward's hand in a kindly clasp, "that you are less deserving of punishment than the others, but—it has pleased the gracious Lord just now to spare your life, and I would like to add to his great mercy my small forgiveness. As it has never been suspected that you took part in the outrage, I may, without apparent injustice, overlook your fault. So keep quiet. I will let your friends know you cannot join them."

"And Stanley?" asked Edward, after warm expressions of thanks for the generous clemency.

"I will return home on the next train and tell him at once that I am convinced of his innocence, also announcing to the school that facts have been made known which completely exonerate him."—Sidney Dayre.

TEMPERANCE.

MORALS IN POLITICS.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN INDIANA MAKES THE SALOONIST TREMBLE.

(From the Chicago Record.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 29.—A movement in politics that is giving the managers of the old political parties a good deal of concern was put under way here to-day, when between 300 and 400 men met in reponse to the call sent out from this city for a mass-meeting of persons who were willing to pledge themselves to act independently in politics. A few men were drawn to the meeting out of curiosity, but most of those present were representatives of church organizations. Among the organizations represented were the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Epworth League, Baptist Young People's Union, Young Men's Christian Association, Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Knights of Father Mathew. There were quite a number of Prohibitionists who occupied seats well up in front.

The meeting was called to order by Timothy Nicholson of Richmond, one of the leaders in the Quaker church in Indiana. Eli F. Ritter of Indianapolis was elected permanent chairman.

ADDRESS TO THE VOTERS.

The meeting, through a committee composed of Timothy Nicholson of Richmond, Solon L. Goode, John H. Furness and Pleasant Bond, of Indianapolis, and Z. T. Sweeney of Columbus, submitted an address to the voters of Indiana, which was adopted. The address says in part:

"The saloon-keepers and liquor dealers in Indiana have formed themselves into an organization and announced their intention to control in their interest the election of officers, legislation and judicial action. This organization, by the unstinted use of money, united action of its members and corrupting schemes in politics, has secured an appalling influence. It is the friend of vice. It seeks to maintain and promote the saloon business, with all its attendant evils, a business so disastrous in its effects upon society that the Christian and civilized sentiment of the whole land should be arrayed against it.

"The Supreme court of the United States for more than forty years, at divers times, has recognized the dangerous character and disastrous work of this business, and finally has declared that the statistics of every State show a greater amount of crime and misery attributable to ardent spirits obtained in these retail liquor saloons than to any other source.

"If the saloon business is what it is declared to be by the highest judicial authority, and every intelligent person knows it is, then the fact is established that it is the greatest evil that disturbs, distresses and burdens society.

FIRST CONCERN OF GOOD GOVERNMENT.

"The first and chief concern of good government should be to promote the public welfare by providing relief from the greatest evil and burden upon society. Gambling resorts and lawlessness have had such influence in political affairs and the discharge of official duty that these vices stalk at noonday. Social evils and impurity have been tolerated until they claim public consent. Anarchism has been encouraged by the dalliance of political demagogues.

"The corrupting influences of corporations and trusts are matters of national disgrace. Upon many other questions of great importance party leadership has become a mere agency through which to defeat the best interests of the whole people.

"The same standard of morality must be maintained in politics as in other affairs. It must be established that the oath of office is a solemn thing not to be disregarded. Laws must be enforced by officers elected for that purpose and better laws for the protection of society must be enacted. Political leaders and candidates must understand that intelligent and law-abiding citizens are no longer to be deceived by duplicity nor controlled by mere partisan demands.

"Young men of integrity and moral principles in politics must be encouraged. Candidates who are honest and capable must be elected and political adventurers and schemers must be defeated regardless of mere partisan demands and party affiliations.

"The Saloon-Keepers' association must be defeated and driven out of politics. The good citizenship of Indiana must be aroused and combined, and must stand together to put away these evil things from among us.

FREE LANCES IN POLITICS.

"It is not our purpose to antagonize nor aid any political party or candidate as such, but to promote and protect society and public interests regardless of consequences to any party or candidate. In accordance with the foregoing expressions and for the accomplishment of the interests therein contemplated we recommend that this meeting perfect a State organization to be designated as 'The Indiana Good-Citizenship League'; that the president and secretary of the State organizations of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Epworth league, Baptist Young People's union, two persons to be selected by the Knights of Father Mathew and five men to be selected by this meeting shall constitute a State central committee and serve for one year, with power to elect their own officers and to carry out the purpose herein contemplated; that the local organizations of the societies herein named shall organize a committee in the same order as said central committee herein provided for in the various counties of the State, or upon any plan for the organization of said counties which may be established by the said central committee.

WILL LOOK UP CANDIDATES' RECORDS.

"It shall be the duty of the State central committee to ascertain, for the benefit of the members of the league, the character, the reliability and sentiments of the nominees on all the tickets for State office and for Congress. It shall be the duty of the county central committee to ascertain, for the benefit of the members of the league in such counties, the character and reliability and sentiments of the nominees on all the tickets for the legislature and offices in said county."

BIBLE LESSON.

QUARTERLY TEMPERANCE LESSON.

LESSON XIII.—Third Quarter, 1894, Sept. 23.

SUBJECT.—Daniel's Abstinence.—Dan. 1:8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself.—Dan. 1:8.

OUTLINE FOR DAILY STUDY.

Sabbath. P. M.—Read Daniel 1. Meditate upon golden text. Observe Daniel's purpose, not to defile himself. Intemperance when its course is run is utterly defiling, not alone to the body, but to the soul—to the man himself.

Monday.—Read Daniel 2:1-23. Daniel the friend of God. Meditate upon v. 23 Christian Temperance—abstaining from wrong and doing right to please our God, will result in securing his favor in every thing.

Tuesday.—Read Daniel 2:25-49. Daniel honored by the king. Meditate upon v. 47. See Bible Dictionary on Daniel, Book of Daniel, Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon, etc.

Wednesday.—Read Daniel 3:13-30. Faithful amid fiery trials. Meditate upon vs. 17, 18. Arrange topical analysis for study of the lesson. e. g., (1) A Noble Purpose. (2) A Severe Test. (3) A Great Reward.

Thursday—Read Dan. 4:1-18. Nebuchadnezzar's dream. Meditate upon v. 2. Consult Lesson Helps for facts and suggestions on the lesson.

Friday.—Read Dan. 4:19-37. The dream interpreted. Meditate upon v. 27. Consult Lesson Helps for teaching points.

Saturday.—Read Dan. 5:1-31. Belshazzar's drunken and impious feast. Meditate upon v. 3; observe that "wine drinking" led this reckless young king to defy the God of heaven. Review and revise your teaching plan, select illustrations, write out questions.

Sabbath A. M.—Read the lesson. Meditate upon v. 17. Contrast the character of Daniel and Belshazzar: one a temperate, godly young man, the other intemperate and ungodly; one the recipient of God's favor and blessings, the other of condemnation and judgment.—The Trumpet Call.

We have here the case of a young man taken from his home, carried away among strangers, placed in the midst of customs entirely different from those under which he has been trained. Yet he is loyal to his principles; is not afraid to avow them; forms an earnest purpose to resist anything which may defile him or do violence to his cherished convictions.

Convictions should be the same at home or abroad. He whose life is one thing at home and another thing away from home is an unsafe man. His life is not regulated by principle but by the opinion of the society in which he moves. He blows hot or cold according to the crowd he is in.

Some people who would not be seen entering a saloon or attending a theater when at home take the opportunity when "they go to the city" to frequent these places, for the reason no one knows them there, and no one will be misled by their example. Any one who acts thus must despise himself as a hypocrite. A man's inner life is his real life. What God thinks of him and what he thinks of himself. A man who is double-faced is mocked by his own conscience.

Let it be remembered that it is the duty every man owes to himself that he allow himself to be led into no conduct which shall defile him. He must cultivate an earnest purpose to resist all such tendencies.

Temperance means not merely total abstinence from drink, but also abstinence from a style of living which merely panders to appetite, and brutalizes the nature.

History, observation and experience demonstrate the wisdom of a life of temperance. Intemperance enfeebles the body, clouds the mind, coarsens the tastes, deadens the affections, dulls the moral nature, and drags the soul downward.

The men who are fit to stand before kings are those who steadily keep their bodies as temples of the Holy Spirit.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"Have you a boy to spare? The saloon must have boys or it must shut up shop. Can't you furnish it one? It is a great factory, and unless it can get about 2,000,000 from each generation for raw material some of these factories must close out, and its operatives must be thrown on the cold world, and the public revenue will dwindle. 'Wanted—2,000,000 boys' is the notice. One family out of every five must contribute a boy to keep up the supply. Will you help? Which of your boys will it be? The Minotaur of Crete had to have a trireme full of fair maidens each year; but the Minotaur of America demands a city full of boys and girls each year. Are you a father? Have you contributed a boy? If not, some other family has had to give more than its share. Are you not selfish, voting to keep the saloon open to grind up boys, and then doing nothing to keep up the supply?"—Presbyterian.

Illustration.—"Total abstinence brings many physical advantages." Vs. 14-16. Before I became an abstainer I suffered from fainting fits. I even fainted in the pulpit, and my life was a burden. My physician came from London and said, "If you do not drink you will die." I said, "Very well, doctor, then I'll die." My health rapidly improved. I met this physician three days ago and he said, "You utterly surprise me. Let me tell you if there was no such thing as alcohol I would have to put up my shutters."—Canon Wilberforce in Illustrated Notes.

Thoughts.—Like Moses, Daniel chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season (see ch. 9). He who is to interpret divine revelations must not feed on the dainties, nor drink from the intoxicating cup of the world. This made him as dear a name to his countrymen as Noah and Job, who also stood alone in their piety among a perverse generation. (Ezek. 14:14; 28:3) —J. F. and Brown. The youth who dodges a moral question for the sake of winning the admiration of immoral associates blunders as greatly as he sins. Worldly people, young and old, expect the young men and women who have been religiously trained to act religiously. If Christians prove unfaithful, they may be smiled upon, and even applauded, but the world always has contempt for the moral coward. The man who does right in the face of popular opposition may be hounded and persecuted, but he will be respected. The earliest version of our popular song, "Yield not to tempation," gave the second line as follows, "For weakness is sin." Some intensely orthodox editor has changed it, and congregations now sing, "For yielding is sin," which is undoubtedly better; nevertheless the first version was not altogether wrong.—Illustrative Notes.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Rev. R. J. Miller, D.D., is now editor of the Christian Union Herald. He formerly conducted the Repository, the monthly magazine of the United Presbyterian church.

—Dr. H. K. Carroll of the New York Independent says that the M. E. church collected in 1893, for ministerial salaries and the current expenses of its congregations, $13,940,832. This was more than any other denomination.

—The Free Methodist General Conference meets this year at Greenville, Ill., in a tent. The only collegiate institution connected with the denomination is located at this point. It is in charge of Rev. W. T. Hogg, one of the superintendents of the church.

—The sons of Lutheran pastors are not averse to following in their fathers' footsteps. Nearly 500 of the 2,500 students for the ministry are pastors' sons. It is a fact worthy of notice that 30 per cent of these 2,500 students are the sons of university men, while only 4 per cent of the Roman Catholic students for the priesthood belong to educated families.

—Protestant Germany is represented in the work of foreign missions by sixteen societies, occupying 429 central stations, employing 658 German missionaries, 113 native pastors, educating 60,000 children, in 1,250 schools, preaching the Gospel to 266,000 baptized Gentiles (18,700 were baptized in 1892), and to millions of pagans, training 292 students for field work, and receiving and spending $900,000.

—Rev. Homer C. Stuntz, missionary of Naini Tal, India, writes to a friend in this country: "No mission field in any land or in any church has been so wonderfully fruitful since the days of the apostles, with the same kind of real spiritual fruitfulness. And we are just beginning. The next fifty years will tell wondrous things. The hard hand of necessity is sweeping away many old methods and old hindrances, and we are face to face with such an increase in numbers as calls for administrative and evangelistic abilities of the first order."

—The Berlin Missionary Society has over 11,000 church members in South and East Africa, and the French Protestant Missions in Basalaland have 8,000 children in school. The Zulu Mission of the American Board is in prosperous condition. A traveler, after passing up and down the Nile, said that one can scarcely enter a single town or village without finding a well-constructed schoolhouse where the Arabs are taught, and they are proud to say that their education began in the American Mission schools. The Bible has been translated into 66 African dialects.

—Bishop J. M. Thoburn is well known in all India and especially in ecclesiastical and mission circles and among reformers. He has spent more than thirty-five years in India as missionary, presiding elder and bishop. After ten years' work among the Hindoos and Mohammedans, early in the '70s he surrendered his salary and began work among the Europeans and Eurasians of Calcutta. His preaching soon attracted attention and he built up the largest congregations of Europeans and Eurasians in India, and the tabernacle which was erected under his leadership has the largest seating capacity of any like building in southern Asia.

Please renew your subscription now.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF AUGUST, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ON SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SEN POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The

PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M M.D , Professor of Physiol gy and Nervous Diseases i Rush Medical College, Ch cago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A M., M. D., Surgeon in Chi of Emergency and Germa Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M M. D., Secretary Chicag Polyclinic and Surgeon Po ter Memorial Free Hospita Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A M., M. D., Specialist in Ob stetrics and Diseases of Wo men and children.

——o——

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

——o——

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOL USE.

——o——

Recommended by thou ands of well-known Phys cians; every disease know is treated in plain, simpl language, and all the pr scriptions are written in E glish, with no scientifi terms or abbreviations.

——o——

Contains 1157 page Weight 6 pounds. Size 9 by 7 inches. English Sil Cloth Binding, Marble Edge Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind eve published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay o one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vit organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and compar tive sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and co from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insect and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the abov described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (th postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Talk of uniting Columbian University to the University of Chicago has been revived by the death of Dr. Welling of the former.

The bureau of immigration has forwarded to the several commissioners of immigration at the various ports of the United States detailed descriptions of twenty-six anarchists recently expelled from France and believed to be en route to the United States.

CHICAGO.

Agents of the United States department of labor are in the city gathering statistics relating to strikes and lockouts. The commissioner of labor, under instructions from Congress, has ordered an investigation of all labor troubles from Jan. 1, 1887, up to and including the Pullman strike and the Debs boycott.

Almost an inch of rainfall was added to the big record of the week in a half-hour Sunday night, making a total of little less than eight inches of water that has fallen in one week.

The Pullmán strike was formally declared at an end Thursday afternoon. Delegates from ten out of the eighteen local unions of the American Railway Union by a vote of seven to three decided they were no longer strikers.

FIRES AND DISASTERS.

The bodies of twenty-three Chippewa Indians lie upon the baked sands between Pokegama, Minn., and Opstead, a small settlement on the eastern shores of Lac Mille Lacs.

Lightning Friday evening struck Haish's hardware store, starting a fire which destroyed the entire business portion of Malta, Ill. The loss will be between $40,000 and $50,000.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances for the Lodge Lamp:

Rev R R Whittier, A Friend (by H H H), J Shaw, W C M Smith, H E Hunter, D Koup, R Ingram Mrs A E H Doyon, T Hodge, Mrs H M Whittemore, F M Salisbury, Rev Jos Forbes, A Muller Jr, P C Housel, L M Samson, J A Conant, L White, Mr Biederman Dr J W Vance, Mrs C Kennedy, W A Barnet, I A Sommer, H M Woodford, Rev P B Williams, Rev. S F Porter, Dr W McClelland, I W Murray, Mrs J M Utley, Rev H A Day, C K Green, O C Blanchard, J C Heywood, M Whipple, Prof E Whipple, W R Morley, O N Carnahan, O C M Bates, Eld R Smith, Mrs Mary Carnes, Rev W Wishart, Mrs M M Ames, Rev O T Lee, W O Percival, Mrs M M Bingham, Wm C Bissell, Mrs J R Johnson.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	54	@	55¼
Winter No. 2	52	@	54
Corn—No. 2	57	@	57½
Oats—No. 2	30¼	@	32¾
Rye—No. 2	46⅛	@	47¼
Bran per ton	12 00	@	13 50
Hay—Timothy	8 50	@	10 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	23½
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	15	@	16
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 30
Flax	1 26	@	1 28
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	8 55
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	75	@	85
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½	@	06½
Lumber—Common		15	50
Wool (unwashed)	10	@	21
Cattle—Choice to extra	4 85	@	6 00
Common to good	2 00	@	4 65
Hogs	3 75	@	6 65
Sheep	1 50	@	3 60

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	58⅝		59⅞
Corn No 2	65		65½
Oats	35	@	41
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	14½	@	18½
Butter	13	@	24
Wool	19	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25	@	5 25
Hogs	2 75		5 72
Sheep	2 00	@	3 25

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

231 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2 50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree. This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The characteristic claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a hook for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney by attempting to bring Keith to justice brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charge against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Vance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscence of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent publication of initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Preshyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Dawnlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

WHAT OUR GRANDMOTHERS DIDN'T KNOW.

"Don't read it to me; I don't want to ever hear of another kind of germ," said an elderly woman of positive opinions. "I don't believe in them. Our grandmothers didn't know anything about them, and they were a great deal happier and lived just as long as the people who boil their drinking water, and Pasteurize their milk, and who won't eat pork. Why, they tell me that there are whole churches full of people who won't go to the communion table now for fear of contagion from the cup of blessing. Just as if the Lord would poison the cup he offered to his children at his own table. My minister says if we give up the old way we may as well give up our religion. He says it is only the 'so-called scientists' that got up the scare, and that they haven't proved as much as they expected to. Why, I went to the meeting of the Sanitary League with Cousin James's wife when I was in Washington last winter, and one of those scientists who has something to do with the Bureau of Animal Industry—I suppose that's the bureau where they invent new germs—said there might be a parasite in every food we had for dinner, from the soup to the salad. I just wrote down the names of some of them, they were so queer. The one that sometimes gets into the soup is a small beetle that he called the 'blaps mucro nata, that will not injure you, but inside the little creature there is a thing called an 'organism' that grows into a worm from two to four inches long. Then on the bread, if the cook has not perfectly clean hands, there might, he said, be deposited the eggs of pin-worms, common parasites in human beings, or the bread-box might be left open and the bread be contaminated with a parasite left by mice, known as the megastoma intestinale. A parasite that might be found in fresh water fish, and make mischief if the fish is served before cooked sufficiently, is the germ of the tape-worm, the largest parasite found in man; but this one the scientists said is rare in America. Then he pictured the terrors that might abide in a drink of water, and those found in underdone meats, even in beef, but more deadly in the trychinæ of pork. The salads are all right at any rate, I thought; but no, he had provided a tiny animal that he called 'the common liver fluke' for them, a parasite that is sometimes found on the leaves of plants that are not thoroughly washed before sending them to the table. This parasite is more common to sheep and cattle than to men, and has killed large numbers of them. Eating became a very interesting and serious business at Cousin James's house for a while after hearing that lecture, and though I don't believe in germs, I was glad that Elizabeth, his wife, should be reminded that you run risks when you think it beneath you to go into your kitchen and leave everything about the preparation of your food entirely to ignorant servants."—Evening Post.

THE SECRET OF A LONG LIFE.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is as sweet as the bloom of her youth. You wonder how that came about; you wonder how it is her life has been such a long and happy one. Here are some of the reasons:

She knew how to forget disagreeable things.

She kept her nerves well in hand and inflicted them on no one.

She believed in the goodness of her own children and that of her neighbors.

She cultivated a good digestion.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant words.

She did not expect too much of her friends.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She retained her illusions; and did not believe that all the world was wicked and unkind.

She relieved the miserable, and sympathized with the sorrowful.

She made the best of everything,

She did whatever came to her cheerfully and well.

She did unto others as she would be done by; and now that old age has come to her, and there is a halo of white hair about her head, she is loved and considered.

This is the secret of a long life and a happy one.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Kathleen had been put out to service, and Mrs. Berry liked the rosy face of the young Irish girl. One day Kathleen was sent on an errand to town. She was longer than usual, and Mrs. Berry stood on the porch as she came through the field. Kathleen was happy, and Mrs. Berry observed: "Why, Kathleen, what a rosy, happy face to-day. You look as if the dew had kissed you." Kathleen dropped her eyes and murmured: "Indade, mum, but that wasn't his name."—Boston Budget.

For Tired Mothers

Mrs. G. W. Warnock

"I feel very thankful for what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I have taken three bottles and the medicine has made a great change. I was All Run Down from trouble and overwork, and had other complaints common to my sex at my age, 44 years. Now since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I am much stronger and am gaining in flesh. I would advise all overworked, tired, weak mothers to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to build them up." MRS. G. W. WARNOCK, Beverly, Nebraska. Remember,

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an expositlon, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Three Home Seeker's Excursions.

To all parts of the West and Northwest via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway at practically half rates. Round trip tickets, good for return passage within twenty days from date of sale, will be sold on September 11 and 25 and October 9, 1894.

For further information apply to the nearest coupon ticket agent or address G. H. Heafford, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

FARM FOR SALE.

A quarter section in Kearney county, Nebraska,

WILL BE SOLD AT A BARGAIN.

Description: Southwest quarter of Section 31, Township 8, North, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian.

ONLY $500 CASH FOR 160 ACRES.

Large bodies of cattle have ranged over and been herded on this and adjacent land. It is pretty well covered with grass. The soil as a whole is quite sandy, especially on the hills; the little valleys have the best soil.

It is near two railroad towns. Lowell is within two miles, and Hartwell is about five miles distant. All taxes are paid to date. Must be sold soon if possible. Address, W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ills.

LODGE LAMP

a monthly of choice articles on the SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM, which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.

Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD. Pres.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

 Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.

L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.

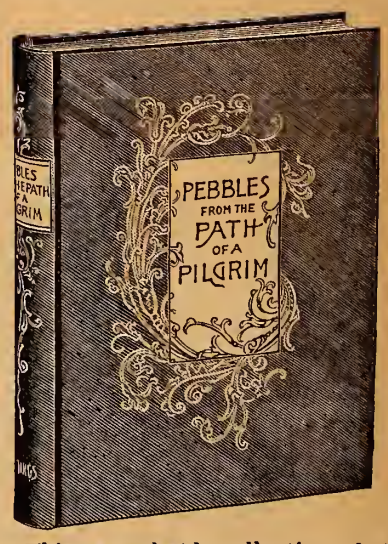
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING



Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

HILLS AND DRILLS.

Mt. Ayr, Iowa, Aug. 24, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—In "Farm Notes" I see Professor Kent tells us of "Hills or Drills." It is seldom I take up my pen in reply to college professors, but his statements are different from my experience. He made his observations through the car window and the car in motion. I have made my observation in different seasons and from the planting to the storing. This may account for the difference in our statements.

Professor Kent says he counted twenty-seven fields of corn in drills and but one came up to the standard of best fields in hill. He says the drill corn was very uneven. The stalks in hills seemed to be of mutual protection to one another. The drill rows were fringed with grass and weeds. The children were out hoeing down the grass and cutting up the hard ridge. This may all be true. The Professor saw the plowman coming along jerking his horses. This may be true. But are you sure this plowman was jerking his horses because the corn was in drills and not in hills? Are you sure of this, Professor, or may he not have been one of the jerky kind of plowmen. I tell you there is lots of them. Some of them are stragglers from those industrial armies, and to simply plow does not give them exercise enough. Hence that extra amount of jerking.

And now, Professor, I will give you some of my experience. Two years ago last spring the weather was extremely wet, in short, we had a wet season. We planted our corn in drills, or rather in hills one way; three hills to one round of planter wheel, two to three kernels in a hill, planted after the land was thoroughly prepared, or as much so as could be done when the land was wet. We let all alone until the corn was all up, then gave it a thorough harrowing, The boy thought we had covered up a good share of it, and what we had not covered up was torn up as he supposed. In four or five days the corn was all right. Then we started in with what we call a spring-toothed cultivator with quite small shovels; plowed close up to the corn, not too deep, and in four or five days followed the cultivator with the harrow, and kept up this harrow and plow, one and then the other, about four days apart until the corn was too big to harrow, then gave it the finishing touch with the small top shovel cultivator, leaving the land as level as we could. We came out with clean corn and the yield far ahead of the average of the hills. Drills are a decided victory over hills. We aim to plant more than enough of seed, so that there may be some to spare, and if the harrow does not make it thin enough a good plowman can easily plow out a hill now and then, and then have enough left.

Now for this dry season the man failed to get as much seed corn on the land as we generally plant, but the drills are all right. I am not given much to telling big yarns, but I do believe we have as much real good sound corn on one acre as some that planted in hill (especially if it is thick, and that seems to be the case in most of fields) will have on forty acres. Some of the hill corn was so dried up it was cut and put in shock in July and not a bit of corn in the fodder. Our drilled corn, most of it, is nice and green, and the boy is gathering his seed corn,—large, nice ears, ten to eleven inches long, and we think it will make twenty-five bushels per acre of corn, not husks. Drills are far ahead of hills, wet or dry, with us. W. H. Layton.

UNIVERSITY FARM EXPERIMENTS.

Champaign, Ills, Aug. 25.—A bulletin has just been issued giving a report of experiments in oats culture on the University farm. The average yield of forty-eight plats was 62.3 bushels per acre, the largest yield being 75 and smallest 40.8 bushels an acre. The oats on each of twenty-four plats weighed over the standard of 32 pounds a bushel. Seventeen varieties were tested. Fifteen of these, twelve of which were selected from a much larger number because of good yield in former years, were grown on duplicate plats. While the land was apparently unusually uniform in quality the difference in yields of plats of the same variety was marked in a number of cases, in one being over twelve bushels to the acre. The best yielding varieties were Texas Rustproof, 74 bushels an acre; Texas Red, 68 2; New Dakota Gray, 67 3; Calgary Gray, 67 6; New Red Rustproof, 67.1; American Banner, 64.4; Green Mountain, 64 4; Pringle's Progress, 64 3. In trials of five years the best yielding varieties have stood in the following order: Pringle's Progress, Texas Rustproof, New Dakota Gray, New Red Rustproof, American Banner, Improved American. Calgary Gray has been grown two seasons. It ranked third among fifty-nine varieties in 1892. Three plats were sown with different mixtures of varieties and three with the product of different mixtures grown in 1892. Each mixture gave a slightly lower yield than the average or the varieties used in making mixtures. Two plats were drilled, the quantity of seed being less than where the seed was sown broadcast. The yield of each was much below the average. For the first time since the station was established in 1888 early sown oats were injured by the frost.

Hood's Made Her Strong.

I have always had bronchial trouble. I became weak and thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made me strong. Mrs. C. E. Cook, Geneva, Ohio.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER IN STRENGTH AND VALUE 20 PER CENT. ABOVE ITS NEAREST COMPETITOR.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various State and Industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the examination for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department of Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder, Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited at the Fair, the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent. greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent. above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

Contents:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
Wm. I. Phillips, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

AYER'S
Hair Vigor
Prevents BALDNESS
REMOVES DANDRUFF
AND Restores Color
TO Faded and Gray
HAIR
THE Best Dressing

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR FOR GROWTH AND COLOR

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, The Roman Catholic Practice of Auricular Confession. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A Warning to America. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the Secret Societies of France. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

THE GUIDING HAND;
—OR—
PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—Christian Cynosure.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—Earnest Christian.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—Methodist Recorder.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. Hulet.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. Givens.

"I am highly pleased with it."—James I. Council.

"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—Victor Charboin.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

No Baking Powder

Exhibited at the World's Columbian Fair

Tested So High

At the U. S. Gov't Examination

For Strength, Purity and Uniformity

As the Royal.

The official report shows ROYAL BAKING POWDER chemically pure and yielding 160 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder, which was greatly in excess of all others and more than 40 per cent. above the average.

Royal is the favorite in every kitchen and has a larger sale than all others combined.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

Bulletins from St. Cloud and Brainard say that the town of Princeton, a village of 500 inhabitants in Mille Lacs county, is in great danger and that Barnum, Carleton county, is surrounded by fire which is swept by such a terrific wind that the place has no chance of escape.

Later reports from the fire-swept district of northeastern Minnesota and northwestern Wisconsin indicate that the loss of life and destruction of property have not been exaggerated. While it is not possible to ascertain the exact number of lives lost it is certain that between 400 and 500 persons perished. The property loss will not fall short of $10,000,000. Dr. Cowan, coroner of Pine county, Minn., believes that the dead list in this county will reach 700. Reports come slowly from the searching parties.

All but two of the nineteen business houses in Shipman, Ill., were destroyed by fire as were a number of residences. The loss is $80,000.

Fire destroyed all but two stores and fifty dwellings in Dows City, Iowa, a town of 1,000 inhabitants.

A frightful disaster took place on the Fitchburg road Saturday evening in the Hoosac tunnel a short distance east of the central shaft. The accident was caused by a rear-end collision between east-bound freight trains. The tunnel was blockaded and two men killed outright and three were seriously injured.

A waterspout coming up suddenly near Guthrie, O. T., swelled Skeleton creek out of its banks, flooding the surrounding country for quite a distance. While trying to cross the stream at a point near here in a buggy the five occupants were thrown into the water and drowned.

At Barrington, 30 miles from Chicago, the St. Paul limited on the Northwestern road ran into a coal car which had blown off a switch in the heavy storm prevailing Sunday evening. The train was wrecked, the fireman killed and several badly injured.

COUNTRY.

Dr. Parkhurst is dissatisfied with the work of the New York police board in dismissing a few captains and wardmen. He says the commissioners are the arch-criminals.

It is believed charges of insidious opposition to the apostolic delegate have been brought against Archbishop Corrigan in Rome.

A reward of $2,000 has been offered for the finding, dead or alive, of Dr. W. A. Conklin, who is missing from Cassopolis, Mich. It is believed he was killed to prevent his testifying against a fellow practitioner.

The Liquor Dealers' National Association adjourned from St. Louis, Sep 7, to meet at Washington, D. C., next year.

Senator Jones, of Nevada, has withdrawn from the Republican party because of its attitude toward silver and will identify himself with the Populist.

Romish priests in the Nebraska diocese, in rebellion against the authority of Bishop Bonacum of Lincoln, sent a committee to Archbishop Satolli to secure relief from what they term the prelate's tyranny. This includes three-quarters of the priests of the diocese. The mission was a failure, Satolli refusing to interfere.

In the National Retail Liquor Dealers' Association at St. Louis resolutions were adopted declaring for personal liberty, and that a political party will never meet with our opposition so long as it does not surrender to our enemies.

The Union Pacific issued a notice to all employes to abstain from any participation in politics, the discussion of any subject tending to that direction being prohibited. All men not willing to keep out of politics are requested to resign.

Near Dykesville, La., just across the Arkansas State line, Clinton Thompson, a farmer, put poison in some of the finest melons of his patch to punish thieves. One morning his son Felix, a neighbor's son, and a man were found dead in the patch. The neighbor learned that Thompson had poisoned the melons, drew his revolver and shot him dead.

FOREIGN.

The consignment of California fruit which arrived at London, Sep. 7, reached market in a far better condition that the first or second shipments. The fruit was sold at auction. The total amount realized by the sale was over $10,000.

Four lives were lost in a fire that broke out in the House of David, St. Pierre, Canada. The violence of the wind carried the flames to the adjoining houses, three of which were consumed.

The British steamer Tannadice 1,400 tons, trading between Maritus and Bombay, put back with her boiler burst. Four of her crew were killed and several seriously injured by the explosion.

Forest fires are raging for several miles outside St. John, N. B. Already the damage has been great, and several villages are in danger. The loss to crops through Charlotte and St. John counties will be enormous.

The recent surrender by the American consul at Shanghai of two Japanese who were recently arrested accused of being spies and who had been under the protection of the United States, has created a panic among the Japanese in China. The latter believed themselves to be safe under the protection of the United States flag.

The sum of $750,000 has been agreed to by the Japanese government as reparation for the sinking of Capt. Galworthy's vessel, the Kow Shing, and compensation to those dependent upon the Europeans lost with her.

Ten persons were killed and twenty injured by the wreck of the Paris and Cologne express train Sunday. The accident happened at Apilly and was caused by a collision of the express train with a freight which was being shunted.

From

High Government Authority.

No authority of greater experience on food products exists than Dr. Henry A. Mott, of New York. Dr. Mott's wide experience as Government Chemist for the Indian Department, gave him exceptional opportunities to acquaint himself with the qualities and constituent parts of baking powders. He understands thoroughly the comparative value of every brand in the market, and has from time to time expressed his opinion thereof. On a recent careful re-examination and analysis he finds

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

superior to all others in strength, purity, and efficiency. Dr. Mott writes :—

"New York, March 20th, 1894.

I find Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder to be superior to all others, for the following reasons :—

1st. It liberates the greatest amount of leavening gas and is consequently more efficient.

2nd. The ingredients used in its preparation are of the purest character.

3rd. Its keeping qualities are excellent.

4th. On account of the purity of the materials and their relative proportions, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder must be considered the acme of perfection as regards wholesomeness and efficiency, and I say this having in mind certificates I have given several years ago respecting two other baking powders.

The reasons for the change in my opinion are based on the above facts and the new method adopted to prevent your baking powder from caking and deteriorating in strength.

HENRY A. MOTT, Ph. D., L. L. D."

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 2. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,273.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mar 96

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Society..... 8
Temperance Sermons... 8
Dr. Parkhurst, Tammany and the Lexow Committee 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Society (a poem)..... 2
Lawyers in Congress.... 2
Clearing the Heavens... 2
SELECTED:
What Shall the Pulpit Do?. 2
Faith and Liberty..... 3
Sectarian Appropriations and Tammany..... 3
Respect for Rulers..... 3
Silver and the Factories 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
LITERATURE 6
REFORM NEWS:
A New Point in Northwestern Pa.; Lighting Watchfires Again; No Peace for the Lodges.4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Life Insurance or Christian Benevolence: Thoughts are What a Man Thinks; Pith and Point..... 6
Schools and Colleges..... 6
Among the Lodges..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....13
FARM NOTES 14
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 13

Official returns from the State election in Arkansas, September 3d, had been received last Thursday from sixty counties. The vote on the saloon question is evidently a surprise to the politicians. A large number of counties have voted down the poison houses and it is estimated that three-fourths of the State will be free from the rum curse. The Populist party has made gains, but for the first time since they had the ballot, there is no black man in either branch of the legislature.

Dr. Parkhurst of New York is belabored on this side and that. One party urges that he shall run for mayor, believing that the sturdy courage he has shown in opening to sunlight the den of the Tammany tiger is needed to hunt that beast to the death. Another offers him a tempting bribe of some tens of thousands to lecture. But let no one call down this Nehemiah from the great work God has put upon him; rather let all godly people stand my him with sympathy and prayer.

Japan is not so busy with war that she cannot make treaties. One with Corea was reported last week and another with England on Monday. The former is to define the relations of the two countries, and secure concerted action for the removal of the Chinese from Corean territory. The other has been long sought for by Japan as a means of regulating foreign courts and foreign restrictions to trade. England seems to be first in these negotiations with Japan. Our government may now improve upon them.

The Knights of Pythias left Washington nursing several quarrels. The most important was the German question. The determination to allow no longer any rituals in the German language affects seriously some 13,000 members of the order who speak no other. They are graciously told to get out if they don't like it. The prize drill was a great attraction to the visiting members of the order. A prize of $500 was awarded an Indianapolis lodge by the judges and was then taken away, not because they did not perform well, but of some technical failure. The disappointed men threaten to take the case to the courts.

We vote for this motion! In the town hall of Ipswich, England, Hugh Price Hughes, the great London missionary, lately spoke of the perplexities of sectarianism, and the advantages of union among all Christians for social work. He put his proposition in the following original way. Let every one hold up both hands for it.—"Of course I know that our ecclesiastical and theological points of difference are so profound that we shall require the whole of eternity for their adequate discussion. Why, then, waste the present time? I move that the debate be adjourned till we reach eternity, and that we now unite our energies in the suppression of the liquor traffic."

Another migratory movement is afoot in the South. Birmingham, Alabama, is the headquarters of a society for the voluntary transfer of colored men to Liberia. It is said that a contract is made with a Philadelphia steamship company to transport 5,000 before November 1st, and 10,000 more before January next. This movement can hardly be regarded as more than a protest against the cruelties suffered by this patient people in some parts of the South. The "exodus" to Kansas of fourteen years ago will hardly be repeated toward western Africa. The distance, the difficulties, and the expense are too great, even if the climate, which few white men long endure, proves kindly to the black.

The temperance papers that boast of the Knights of Pythias are permitting their enthusiasm to run away with their sense. Was the action of the Supreme Lodge of the World last week to receive no more liquor-sellers made to condemn the liquor business or to glorify a secret society? If it had been the former the boast of the Supreme Chancellor would have been fulfilled. He recommended that the saloon-keeper be expelled and the order thus declare itself "a leader of reform." But the liquor-seller remains, and he will probably take advantage of the compromise and always remain. Honest reform would cut out the evil and condemn it as an evil without regard to the order. But when the only excuse for the action is the insurance risk and the bad odor given to the K. of P. lodges the whole business is confessedly insincere and misleading.

Breckenridge, the Knight Templar libertine, is beaten. The primary elections in the Ashland Congressional district, Kentucky, Saturday, resulted in favor of W. C. Owens. The contest has been long and bitterly personal, as might be expected when such a record as that of Breckenridge was boldly obtruded into the campaign. Ordinary honest people look upon confessed crime, of such extraordinary character as his, as enough to retire a man from public life. But the training of the lodge had apparently made this man conscienceless, and obtuse to those humanities, not to say those moral feelings, which should humiliate and restrain. Thank heaven, conscience is not all gone, even in politics. The Christian people of the district put party fealty aside when spotted with moral leprosy. Especially has the influence of Judge Morton and Prof. McGarvey of the Disciple church contributed to the result. Let it be a perpetual rebuke to any future attempt to give the gloss of popularity to libertinism.

Sin revives before the sinner dies to it. New York is uncapped, and Boston is ready for the same experience. Dr. Isaac J. Lansing, the well known lecturer against Rome and the secret power of Jesuitism, discussed the immorality of Boston at a meeting of the Evangelical Alliance last week. He urged that all good people encourage the reform of the Boston police force now begun. He said, moreover: "We need a revival on lines of conduct and life and law rather than of sentiment and doctrine. There is a deluge of immorality sweeping over this country. I have asked traveling men who know all the largest cities in the land, and from every one of them I have received the same answer, that in no city in this country is vice so open as in Boston." If so much can be said of Boston, what of Chicago with defiant gamblers and blacklegs robbing men and women at high noon on the public street? What, moreover, of New Orleans and San Francisco?

Fourteen years ago last week one of the most remarkable of conventions was held in Batavia, New York. It was the national meeting, called by the National Christian Association to discuss Freemasonry on the spot where the lodge claimed the right and used the power to execute its infamous and savage penalties upon an American citizen, guilty of no offence against the laws of heaven or of earth. That convention dedicated a splendid monument to William Morgan in the southwest corner of the old cemetery. There is to be another dedication in Batavia on the 15th of October. The Holland Land Company has erected a memorial which is to be a tribute to Robert Morris, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and a leading financier of the war of Independence. Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild has been invited to make the address of the occasion. Morris was one of the notable characters of the Revolutionary period. He was offered by President Washington the position of Secretary of the Treasury, but declined, recommending Alexander Hamilton, who was appointed. He afterward went into partnership with Gouverneur Morris and engaged in trade with the East Indies and China but failed in business, and spent some years in a debtor's cell in a Philadelphia jail. In this adversity he was befriended by Washington, and afterward with his wife was an honored guest at Mount Vernon.

A great many people know God with their hearts who don't know anything about theology with their heads.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

SCENE FIRST.

(Time, a warm evening in later summer. Present, Rev. Frank Policy and Mr. Mason.)

REV. MR. POLICY:—
The steaming earth is like a vapor bath
And makes a sweating system of us all;
But where the river sweeps around its curves
Beneath the shelter of its graceful elms.,
The air is cool, and thither I would walk.
Will you go with me?

MR. MASON:—
Yes, I will go; not only to escape
The dog-day heat oppressing us to-night,
But also for a reason of my own.
There is a subject we have never touched
In all the currents of our social life;
But friendly feeling for a kindred soul
Prompts me to break the silence and declare
The secret for your good.

REV. MR. POLICY:—
Why, every man is like a miller's hopper,
That should at all times be well filled with good;
And what is good for body or for soul
I'll open wide the door to let it in.
Here is a bank that overlooks the river,
A mossy bank, that's like a cushioned seat;
Here let us sit, while you to me unfold
The plan that leads to honor, power, or gold.

MR, MASON:—
Indeed, the hidden pathway I will show
Leads to all three, when he who treads the route
Has culture and intelligence to seize
The golden moment when the fruit is ripe,
And use the hands that then will do his will
To pluck it.
You see this charm that dangles at my chain?
This tells you that I live upon the square,
And claim allegiance to that noble band
That binds the earth in its fraternal clasp,
Where Jew and Turk and Buddhist all unite
With every Christian sect beneath the sun
In one great bond of harmony and peace,
Who walks with us has brothers everywhere;
Who walks with us can never stand alone;
Who has no field can get one, being with us;
Who has a field can keep it while he wills;
Who walks with us, if he has wit to lead,
Will never want an army to command.
The preacher who is ours shall have support
Of many a man who never recks his creed!
And though I am no Christian I profess
So strong attachment to you as a man
That I would call you brother. What say you?

REV. MR. POLICY:—
I will go with you: I have noticed oft
Your spirit of sweet concord, and the power
That binds you in a great harmonious whole;
Where every part its just protection knows,
Where all is law and order and control;
I would be one with you.

(To be continued.)

LAWYERS IN CONGRESS.

BY HENRY M. HUGUNIN.

The shrewdness of the legal profession has found a fine field for operation in our national legislation; but there exists a growing doubt whether the public interests have been as honestly and profitably served as if there had been less legal knowledge and more of common sense in the halls of Congress.

Hill's Political History of the United States contains a careful summary of the membership of each of the fifty-three congresses elected since the organization of the Federal government. In the first congress, 1789–1791, there were ninety-four members in both houses, of whom thirty-three, or more than one-third, were lawyers. In the second congress, 1791–1793, there were 102 members, of whom forty-three, or nearly one-half, were legal practitioners. The twenty-fifth congress in Van Buren's (Democratic) administration, had 317 members, and of these 140 were lawyers. The twenty-sixth congress in the Harrison-Fillmore (Whig) administration, had the same number of members, but 153 lawyers. Van Buren and Fillmore were also lawyers. And so it has gone on, until in the present (fifty-third) congress, consisting of 441 members, the lawyers number 283, or more than five-eighths of the membership. The fifty-second congress, in the Harrison-Republican administration, was even more severely afflicted by a broad wave of legalism, since out of its 420 members only seventy-two were not lawyers. Thus the total number of members (both houses) in all our fifty-three congresses exceed 7,000, out of a few more than 15,000 members all told.

The attorneys, therefore, seem to hold the balance of power in the legislative branch of our government. This is all wrong. We are not a nation of lawyers, nor should we be the victims of their machinations. The other honorable professions and trades largely outnumber our legal lights, yet they are not adequately—far less proportionately—represented in our greatest legislative body. No matter which of the two prominent political parties is in power, the lawyer is on top in our legislation. Our laws are subjected to his manipulation, and by him are so confused in their meaning that even the higher courts are befogged and clash in their decisions.

Many lawyers are sent to Congress in the direct interest of grasping money corporations, banks, railways, land syndicates and all the great monopolies, to quibble and muddle and outvote the representatives of the common people and the public welfare. Thus they well serve the purposes of those by whose money and influence they have been elected. It is time that we had a change. Such lawyers work only for those by whom they are employed and paid. For all they care, the public welfare may droop and die, if the selfish ends which they were chosen to promote are gained. It is through them, principally, that the capitalistic power continues to hold the reins of government.

CLEARING THE HEAVENS.

BY ELDER J. R. BAIRD.

In the second and sixth chapters of Ephesians, Satan is called "the prince of the power of the air," and evil spirits are described as being wicked spirits in heavenly places. Comparing these statements with the account of Satan presenting himself before the Lord in heaven, and uttering insinuations against Job, and again with the narrative of the lying spirit entering into the presence of the Lord, and declaring its intention of enticing Ahab to fall at Ramath Gilead (1 Kings 22), we cannot avoid the conclusion that Satan and his angels have mysterious access to the heavens, as well as to the earth, during this probationary dispensation. This conclusion is further confirmed by the incidental assertion made at the time of Satan's war with Michael, that "he accuses the brethren and people of Christ before God, day and night," (Rev. 12) obviously in just the same way as he accused Job. It is unquestionably stated in the epistles of Peter and Jude, that certain fallen angels, who were specially instrumental in causing the antedeluvian apostacy of mankind, have been already cast down to hell, and are at present reserved in chains of darkness unto the judgment of the great day. But they are obviously only a particular part of all the innumerable evil angels, legions of whom are even now restlessly going to and fro about this earth, under Satan's leadership, seeking whom they may devour.

This conclusion is maintained by Matthew Henry, Scott, Jameson, Faussett, and Brown, Beale, Birks, and Kitto and many other Bible scholars. Rev. T. R. Birks says:

"The view which has long been current in popular theology that the great adversary and his angels were instantly cast down from heaven into the lowest pit of hell, and there tormented with fiery judgments, is chiefly founded on two passages in the Word of God, in 2 Peter 2: 4; and Jude 6th. But these are very far from bearing the weight of so vast an inference. Angels in both cases are mentioned indefinitely; so that the words do not apply by necessary construction to all the angels who have sinned. And besides, while both passages evidently refer to the same event, the second, in its further mention of the cities of the plain, affirms the sin of these angels to have been some form of unnatural sin. Accordingly, in the early times of the church, they were most usually applied to the event in Gen. 6: 24, and viewed as a fuller statement of the sin of the sons of God, with its deserved punishment. This view of the meaning has been revived in modern times, and is supported by the simplest laws of criticism in one of the passages, while it agrees with all the other features of the sacred text. It will naturally follow that this was a second and not a first angelic apostasy; and, because of the unnaturalness of the crime and its more external and visible character, was visited with instant judgment."

Hence, although some fallen angels are at present bound in chains of darkness, many others are still with Satan, roaming at large through the aerial regions, and the deliverance and purification of these regions from their hateful and defiling presence will become necessary when Christ descends into the lower heavens, and gathers his saints, raised up and translated from the earth to meet him in the air.

Therefore Michael and his angels will then engage in a violent conflict with Satan and his legions, and drive them down altogether to the surface of the earth, and no longer allow them to rise above it. Eph. 2: 2 and 6:12.

The furious rage of Satan kindled by the natural working of his own secret agencies are the prime origin and secret mainspring of the great tribulation which soon begins to run its course.

Indiana, Pa.

WHAT SHALL THE PULPIT DO?

"FORM SECRET SOCIETIES" SAYS A WASHINGTON PREACHER.

(Lindley D. Clark, Washington, D. C., in the American Friend.)

Thousands of men and women in our larger cities, and many even in the rural districts, are engaged in an apparently ceaseless and almost hopeless contest with poverty: their whole measure of strength, physical and mental, is exhausted in the one effort to provide food, clothing and shelter for themselves and their dependents.

Ignorance, and that prejudiced and clannish feeling that only too easily springs up in the minds of the very poor against the well-to-do, have combined with the indifference and neglect of those who are at ease in Zion, to leave this great multitude largely without a knowledge of what the Gospel has to offer; and even where conscientious Christian efforts have been made in their behalf, received and inelastic modes of thought, unapt forms of expression and unskillful approach have often stood in the way of success.

If, then, false teachers arise among these toiling masses, speaking to them as fellows and equals, holding out promises of speedy relief and release from a practical bondage, is it any wonder that they make a struggle along the lines marked out for them by their leaders? And it is hardly less likely that many a thrifty artisan would conscientiously, even though mistakenly, cast in his lot with those who most felt the grievance, hoping thereby to attain more certainly and more speedily the end of a general amelioration. Thus we come quickly to a condition such as so recently prevailed over a large portion of our country.

In the meantime, from many a pulpit, Christian ministers have undertaken to traverse the ground of the difficulty, and to provide a fit solution; thereby acknowledging a responsibility as teachers, and claiming that in the Gospel or in truths derivable from it exists a remedy for this disease of the social and economic body. Some of these sermons, however, make little or no use of Scripture as foundation, and still less is it claimed for them that they are given directly by the Spirit.

On a recent Sabbath a prominent clergyman in this city, in speaking of the evils that threaten our country, mentioned Romanism as one, and under the headline, "Form Secret Societies," he is reported as expressing "his approval of societies as a safeguard against Catholic persistency, even though they were as secret as the confessional, and imposed obligations as absolute as the authority of the Pope."

Where in the Bible can warrant be found for such advice? Not in Christ's example, for "In secret spake I nothing;" neither in his teaching, "Walk while ye have the light; . . . . he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth."

I know of few things sadder in the one aspect or more revolting in another than that of a man whom Christ has made free, binding himself by horrible oaths and penalties to observe, "always to conceal and never to reveal" secrets as yet unknown. What can be a more absolute plunge into the darkness? For what other reason do "men love darkness rather than light" than for that given by the Saviour,—"because their deeds are evil"? Christ would have us "one in him." John speaks of a "fellowship" that comes by "walking in the light": this is the society Christ approves and calls us to, and to no secrecy and absolutism devised and imposed by man.

FAITH AND LIBERTY WITH LOCKED HANDS.

(Joseph Cook.)

The Statue of Liberty at the New York gates of the ocean and Statue of Faith on the Plymouth shore are sisters. I never pass through New York Harbor or visit Plymouth Rock without seeming to hear the two statues converse with each other. The Statue of Liberty I always hear repeating Webster's aspiration: "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable!" And the Statue of Faith replies: "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable; but these are possible only to a people whose God is the Lord." And to-day I hear both Liberty and Faith uttering in unison the words of Neal Dow, with which we all agree and which, God grant, the future may endorse: "We forbid the banns between rum, religion, and politics. But in the name of God and humanity, we proclaim a union, holy and indissoluble, of affection as well as of interest, between temperance, religion, and politics, of every party and every sect."

Rapt vigil keeping, day and night,
In panoply of grace and might,
Two stately sisters solemn stand
And guard a great and goodly land:
Fair Faith on Plymouth's sacred shore,
Where Pilgrim ghosts float evermore;
Tall Liberty, where Commerce waits
The tides of vast Atlantic gates.

With velvet feet, the years go by,
And Liberty, with torch on high,
Saith: "Give me freedom, or I die!"
But Faith points upward, with a sigh,
And answers: "Hallowed be His name
Who gives to every star its flame."
"My torch illumes land and sea:
I lead the sphere," saith Liberty.

"Who lights your torch?" fair Faith replies,
"Your hand with mine lift to the skies.
All torches lit from nether fire
In God's deep breathing must expire.
No torch not lighted at the stars
Can rule on land or ocean bars.
Join hands with me, tall Liberty,
And so shall we be one and free."

The sisters join their fateful hands
Above the seas and severed lands,
And woo the world to unity:
And God fills all the canopy:
The blue flames lit from nether fire
In Liberty's wild torch expire.
No winds can quench, no darkness mars
Her torch when lighted at the stars.

SECTARIAN APPROPRIATIONS AND TAMMANY.

The question of sectarian appropriations, which was lately before the Constitutional convention of New York, and which was so strenuously opposed by Joseph H. Choate and others, is attracting much attention and bringing out some pretty strong sentiment on this highly important and vital subject. Rev. Madison C. Peters of the Bloomingdale Reformed church New York city, said Sabbath evening, 9th inst.:

"One of the fundamentally supporting pillars of our American institutions is the absolute separation of church and state. The desperate fight in our Constitutional convention for the people's money for sectarian purposes is awakening people of the State to the Jesuit encroachment on our free institutions. The conspiracy is out.

"If it is right to divide the public funds for church 'charities,' why not also divide the public school money in the State and support denominational schools by public taxation? There is no difference in principle, and the Roman Catholics see the important bearing of this controversy about the State funds for sectarian charities on the far greater question of public funds for Roman Catholic parochial schools. They demand what they have no right to demand of an American State. If the Constitutional convention grants the demand as public money there will be absolutely no limit to their future demands.

"To refuse appropriations from the State fund for any sectarian purpose whatever is manifestly fair to all. But Rome demands special privileges and enforces its demands by boycott and threats of defeat for any party that refuses the traitorous demands. To oppose sectarian appropriations is not 'attacking Catholic charities,' but defending a time-honored American principle. The Roman Catholic idea of religious liberty is to permit the papists, without protest, to run our free institutions for the benefit of the churches. All who differ from them are bigots.

"Tammany Hall will no doubt make this matter of sectarian appropriations a political issue. The plan is to urge on a religious war, so as to make the people forget Tammany rascality. Tammany will set up the cry of bigotry and will pose as persecuted for righteousness sake. That the Democratic members of the convention voted unanimously in favor of sectarian appropriations, and that all the members voting as Americans were Republicans, is significant. If the leaders of the Democratic party will surrender our institutions to Rome they will drive out of their party more patriotic Democrats than did the slavery question. The papal church is at present using the Democratic party to gain its ends, but when nothing more can be gained by its pretended alliance it will with its heel grind that party in the dust."

RESPECT FOR RULERS.

The National Bar association, which is an entirely respectable and honorable body, held its annual meeting at Saratoga, N. Y., the other day. In the course of a formal address one of its ablest members said:

"Every observer of our political history during the last twenty years must have been struck with the change which has taken place in the attitude of our people toward the fundamental principles of our government. * * Respect for the result of elections seems to be disappearing, and political partisans are ready apparently to resort to any expedient to enable them to retain or to acquire power. There is to be heard every day adverse comment regarding Congress, State legislatures, and city aldermen and councilmen, and distrust of their acts is generally felt. For my present purpose I mention it as evidence that the leading members of the House of Representatives do not trust that body, and frame their rules accordingly. Loss of faith in the legislature is loss of faith in representative government, loss of faith in the people themselves, and this feeling really lies at the root of the change in public opinion on fundamental principles which I have noted. Bribery is made the excuse for anarchy. The danger against which we guard in constitutions, and which in conversation we recognize and deplore, is the danger that private interests can afford to pay for the privileges which they seek prices which the ordinary legislator cannot refuse.

"In many States certainly there has grown up an irresponsible body between the people and their representatives which undertakes to sell legislation and finds the business extremely profitable. When the legislature meets, each professional lobbyist has a body of members who will listen readily to his advice, and whose votes he can influence to a greater or less extent. Certain large corporations which are likely to be interested in legislation adopt the same methods of selecting representatives, and each has its cohort of disciplined supporters.

"The lobbyist also plays a prominent part in the selection of the speaker of the House, and pays well for it, the private or personal interests at stake being sometimes enormous, and the corruptible law-makers greatly profit by the transaction. Committee decisions are also affected by these evil agencies, and it is only after some designing bill is favorably reported that the public awakens to the danger of the situation. In Congress, too, investigations of alleged corruptions are notably fruitless. Not criminals alone, but men of wealth and standing for years have paid the officers of the law to neglect or to discharge their duty. Great corporations and private citizens have paid large sums to men of political influence in return for legislative favors or for insurance against hostile laws, while humble peddlers have paid for the permission to earn their living. In the greatest and richest city of our land, the government of laws has given place to a government of corruption and blackmail. New York has had virtue enough at least to begin reform, and has learned what honest men never sufficiently realize, how essentially and necessarily weak is any combination of scoundrels.

"The character of legislators must be raised, and bribery stripped of every cloak. Public opinion must be brought to recognize the truth that it is not the comparatively poor, weak, and often uneducated man who receives the bribe, but the strong, rich, and able man, who pays, at whose door lies the sin of corruption. The tempter is as bad as the man whom he tempts. If we cut off the fountain, the rivulet ceases to flow. It is the pocket from which the money comes at which we must strike if corruption is to be staid."

Talk like this is not pessimism. It is optimism, rather. There is health in the organism that detects its own morbific tendencies, and bravely moves toward a self-cure. One good element in our present general deprecation is the fact that the deprecation is general. People are coming to see the facts, and reforms are already in motion. Indeed, we must presently beware of the scamps who will audaciously seek good men's votes on the ground that "public affairs need cleansing." The conscienceless professional "reformer" is simply one other aspect of scampism. While we dearly love to be lectured about disrespect toward dignities who "bear the sword," we still insist that if public men would be respected, they must proceed to become respectable.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

SILVER AND THE FACTORIES.

"On one occasion Carey said to Secretary McCulloch, 'I hope never to see the premium on gold below 200. And with what answer,' continued Carey, 'do you suppose the Secretary astounded me? He said he would favor the continuance of a moderate premium, but he would rather it would not go over 75. Then,' said Carey, 'I knew that the poor man did not know what I was talking about. As if I cared whether the premium was 200 or 75! Money, to be good, must be like a good wife. First, there must be enough of her, and secondly, she must stay. Money that won't stay is always bad. And who ever knew gold to stay?'

"On another occasion, in the 'fifties, Carey was explaining to John Bright that unlesss the United States made its own iron and steel it could not build up those numerous centers of domestic commerce which it needed to insure the maximum of American civilization. 'Do I understand you to complain,' asked Bright, 'that we don't sell you our iron and steel cheap enough?' 'If,' said Carey, 'I had suddenly discovered that I had been talking to a pillar of stone, instead of a British statesman, I could not have been more thunderstruck.' What could be said to a man who confounded civilization with the price of iron, and thought the power to consume and produce it of no value."—From "Carey and Greeley," in the Social Economist for September.

By the last census there were in our schools 564,922 teachers. Of this number 238,397 were women. Whether women vote or not, here is a very great factor in the shaping of the national destiny. Once in a while a minister in the public prayer, Sunday morning, remembers the public school, its pupils and its teachers. Maybe it were well if he did this oftener.—Advance.

Something explicit ought to be done at once to obtain the freedom of the workingman in the North and the South. At present, freedom to work or to employ workmen does not exist. Besides, it is right to establish and maintain the right every man ought to have to work. And it is always best to do what is right, whatever may be the clamor against it. The fact should not be overlooked that when labor unions were imported into this country the workingman was free, was not oppressed, was doing very well. Under God, "righteousness exalted a nation."—Christian Intelligencer.

Bishop A. G. Haygood says with great force: "Liberty dies by the organization of secret oath-bound societies. There may be slavery without chattel ownership in republican governments. The will and life of 'John Smith—wage earner' are more under the control of his guild than his government. The will and life of 'Jonathan Smythe—capitalist' is less dominated by his government than by his 'trust' which he has joined, and to whose decrees he submits unhesitatingly, as a trained soldier responds to the word of his superior. . . . . Under these conditions freedom dies. The men of money have their czar—the Trust; the men of muscle theirs—the Union. They are alike serfs, call it what they may."

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Some ancient records —The result of taking a wife's advice.—What constitutes the Christian's cross —A New England cyclone.—A ride about Boston suburbs.

The ancient records of New England are replete with curious and interesting sidelights on the lives lived by our ancestors, their modes of thought, and the peculiar environments which made them what they were. I spent an afternoon recently over the reprints which the Historical Society has made of some of the most rare and curious. Among them was a short history of the Pequot war, written by Capt. John Underwood, and printed in 1638. It is a rare and curious document, some extracts from which may interest the readers of the Cynosure. He writes that in battle with the Indians he received an arrow through his coat-sleeve, a second against his helmet, and wisely observes, "If God in his providence had not moved the heart of my wife to persuade me to carry it along with me (which I was unwilling to do) I had been slain." In commenting on this narrow escape, he sagely says, and his words are to be recommended to all husbands at the present day, "Let no man despise the advice and counsel of his wife though she be a woman. It were strange to nature to think a man were bound to fulfill the humors of a woman what arms he should carry, but you see God will have it so that a woman should overcome a man. What with Delilah's flattery and with her mournful tears they must and will have their desire when the hand of God goes along in the matter." Even in those early times the germs of the woman's rights idea was discernable, this being one among the obnoxious doctrines advanced by the celebrated Mrs. Anne Hutchinson, for the doughty captain further writes, "Therefore, let the clamor be quenched that I daily hear in my ears that New England men usurp over their wives and keep them in servile subjection;" and urges that this precedent being "the example of a rude soldier" should satisfy the most skeptical on this score.

New England from the first period of its settlement was a theological battleground. It was founded by a race of men who had voluntarily exiled themselves for the truth's sake, and who felt that the general good of the state as well as their own eternal interests depended on keeping that truth pure from any admixture of error. Never were a people more true to a lofty ideal; never was one pursued with a more single-hearted aim, a more poetic fervor, a sublimer abnegation of the world, the flesh and the devil. Hence the bitterness and acrimony of those early religious differences, which is what our author probably had in mind when he wrote the following: "The chief cross that Christ had was that the word of his Father could not take place in the hearts of those to whom it was sent; and suffering for the truth of his Father, that was Christ's cross. And that is the cross, too, that Christians must expect, and that in the purest churches. And therefore why do you stand and admire at New England that there should be contentions here and differences there, and that for the truth of Christ? Do you not remember that the cross followed the church?" The bugbear of church division which frightens so many pastors and Christian workers when unpopular questions come up, was evidently not unknown at that early era.

In writing of the Pequot massacre he quotes the example of David and the Jews quite as piously as any apologist for slavery in ante-bellum times, and adds, "We had sufficient light from the Word of God for our proceedings."

The statistics found in these old volumes do not bear out the common idea that people live longer now when doctors are multiplied and rules for living hygienically and avoiding the dreaded bacilli which lie in wait to destroy us with every breath we breathe or morsel of food we taste, than in the days when sanitary science was less diffused. With a much smaller population, septuagenarians and nonagenarians seem not to have been uncommon.

If anybody has a bona fide likeness of King Philip in their possession, the State of Massachusetts will be glad to buy it at a generous price, as the commonwealth is going to change its seal. Hereafter it will represent a shield with a blue surface on which an Indian stands dressed in his shirt and moccasins, holding in his right hand a bow, and in his left an arrow, point downward. To get a design which will adequately represent the ideal Indian of Massasoit and King Philip's day is a difficult thing. The aborigines of Massachusetts have given their names to her rivers and mountains, but their living personalities—they themselves have vanished, like Macbeth's ghost, into thin air. Even the way they dressed is a disputed point. It is safe to say that the real Indian, as Eliot knew him, low, filthy, and savage in all his habits and instincts, bore but a faint resemblance to that ideal son of the forest for which Secretary Olin is vainly looking.

Fall River has an unenviable reputation at best, but if it is true, as the Herald states, that one of the State's political agents at a recent convention gave to a portion of the voters in that city twenty cents apiece with which to buy a drink of liquor, and thus win their votes for a certain Congressional nominee, our State politics are about as deep in the mud as they can be. When votes can be bought for twenty cents apiece, a true patriot in shame and discouragement feels almost like taking the standpoint of our good Covenanter brethren, and staying away from the polls altogether.

The excessive heat and dryness, and a long succession of days characterized by a dull and lifeless atmosphere, and the sun obscured by a smoky haze which gave to the landscape on Sunday, Sept. 2, that peculiar look observable during the yellow day in 1880, culminated at last in one of the fiercest electrical storms that ever struck New England. The fury of the cyclone was limited, however, to the western part, and about Boston only the cool and ideally perfect day which followed showed that some invisible influence had adjusted the meteorological balance.

It was on such a day recently that the writer enjoyed a charming drive through Boston's wonderful system of parks, taking in the Arnold Arboretum, the Back Bay Fenns, Franklin Park, and Forest Hill where amid beauty that is well nigh Paradisical "the dead lie at their rest." These make the Hub one of the most favored cities in this regard of any in the country. The Arboretum, by the way, belongs to Harvard, and is a fine place for botanizing, especially for getting acquainted with our own trees and shrubs from the most common to the rarest. Too many people are content to know nothing about the soil or flora of even their own township, while priding themselves on their knowledge of more distant subjects, much as Cambridge University has courses in French, German, Arabic, Bengali, Hindustani, Tamil, Marathi, and Burmese, but lacks one thing yet—an English lectureship! As the sun was slowly sinking over the Fenns, the circle of distant hills, the shimmering water, the different forms of shrub and tree, and shades of green alternating with the red berries of some autumnal shrub, made a picture that was unique in its beauty. This bit of primeval wilderness, so near the roaring Babel of a great city, must be a boon inestimable to the poorer classes. And as yet they are only in their infancy. Fifty years hence will make them one of the most beautiful as well as most extensive system of parks belonging to any city in the world.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

NO SALVATION IN THE G. A. R.

What a magnificent opportunity our public men have at gatherings like the Pittsburgh Grand Army encampment to impress high moral lessons on the popular mind! The memories of the war open up the way for inculcating most effectively the great principles of national righteousness. But so long as Sabbath desecration, the curse of secretism, and the desolating evils of the saloon are so closely linked with these encampments, there is little hope of any pronounced influence in connection with them for the moral uplifting of our country. The patriotism that effervesces in the violation of Sabbath laws and in the upbuilding of the saloon and the secret empire cannot prove the salvation of our land—Christian Reformer.

—In the decade 1880–90 no fewer than 24,000 persons, it is stated, left the Roman Catholic church in Germany and connected themselves with the Protestant, while during the same period, the Catholics won from the Protestants only 4,700. In all districts except Bavaria the converts from Roman Catholicism exceeded in number those from Protestantism.

REFORM NEWS.

A NEW POINT IN NORTHWESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

MINISTERS, MASONS AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY BEGIN TO TALK ABOUT THE LODGE.

CAMBRIDGEBORO, Pa., Sept. 11, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Rev. W. B. Stoddard has been here. Whether he was the cause or not I will not say, but shortly after he came we were blessed with a copious and much-needed shower. I will say that he was the cause of a storm of another kind whose mutterings and thunders commenced as soon as the lodgemen found out who he was and what was his business. It came to a climax when they heard what he had to say about the comparison of the Masonic religion and the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ. Things were fairly blue with the denials of the lodgemen. Mr. S. presented his thoughts in such a Christianlike, manly, logical, thorough, energetic, kind, earnest and convincing manner that it could but make a profound impression, not only upon the lodgemen, but upon those who had never made this matter a subject of much thought.

There was a fair audience and Mr. S. held them as though spell-bound; and while the lodgemen (who were out in force) may not be much benefited, I feel there is an impression left on the mind of the public that will bear fruit in causing them to investigate this subject, and perhaps may influence some to keep out of these things.

One of our ministers has belonged to the Masons and Odd-fellows for years; says he has never seen the least wrong thing in the lodges and thinks they are doing a work which the church neglects but ought to do. One of the other ministers had never investigated the subject, but has been shown a few of the anti-Christian things in lodge work and is greatly astonished that professing Christians can mix with such things; and as he is a thorough, fearless, working Christian, will no doubt (if after thorough examination he find secretism opposed to the religion of Jesus Christ) take a bold stand in opposition to them.

The other minister, who is an "old soldier of the Cross," an enthusiast in all reform work, and a thoroughly earnest Christian, expressed as abominable the allowing of profane, wicked men to officiate at the funeral of a brother lodgeman. I also found (through Mr. S. coming here) that one of our prominent business men, an earnest Christian, is thoroughly opposed to secretism. Several have expressed an interest in the matter; so that on the whole I think that Mr. S. may feel that his visit to our lodge-ridden town has been of great good.

Mr. Stoddard's manner impresses one with the idea that he is conscientious in this work, and is doing it because he believes he is in the right. Of course the lodgemen called him a liar, etc., etc., but knowing he has truth on his side, he seems to rather enjoy such things. He appears to have great capacity for withstanding the jibes and jeers of those who are troubled by his work. After his lecture there were cries of "Hang that preacher!" but nothing of that kind was attempted, and it might have been only boys.

The lodgemen were very attentive to the lecture and did nothing to annoy Mr. S. After the lecture one Mason sent another to Mr. S. to ask him where he got his authority for some of his statements.

Mr. S. answered: "From Mackey," etc.

The man said: "I have read those books and never found any such statements."

Mr. S. answered: "I will show you," and turned to get his books, but when he turned again the man was making for the door at a lively rate. Apparently he was anxious to avoid the knowledge offered.

One of our anti-lodgemen said to a Mason, that the only thing that would induce him to join the Masons would be that if he were going to be a robber or a horse-thief, he would then join them for the protection afforded such characters.

I was given quite a lecture this morning because of my position in this matter by a man who is high (or low) in a great many lodges. He told me that Masonry and Odd-fellowship did not pretend to be a religion, and that those men who made the statement that "Masonry or Odd-fellowship were all the religion they wanted," did not understand the matter at all. I made this reply: Suppose I should get up a remedy for the cure of consumption which worked very nicely in some cases, but every little while a case would take this medicine and it would kill him. Now this medicine was gotten up for a grand purpose, wasn't made to kill anyone, but occasionally does kill; would I be responsible if I still insisted upon giving it?

He had to admit that I would, but said that would not be a parallel case. When asked why, he changed the subject. I told him that I had one friend in the grave and one still alive who depended on Masonry for final salvation; and although they claim that Masonry don't teach any such thing, I claim that Masonry is responsible, because if there were no such thing as Masonry they would not be putting their trust in it. But there are none so blind as those who won't see.

The minister who belongs to the Masons and Odd-fellows began at once, as they always do, to compare the lodges with the church of Jesus Christ, and always to the detriment of the latter. How a minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ dares to do this I don't profess to explain.

A Mason said to me to-day that the church had bad men in it as well as the lodges. In my reply, I asked how long would a minister be allowed to occupy the pulpit if he got drunk, or was heard to use profane language. I also explained that the difference between the bad men in these positions in the lodges and the ministers of the Gospel was that these men were put into these positions by the lodge when they were known to be bad men, and were kept there although they got drunk or committed almost any crime.

Elder Stoddard got two subscriptions for the Cynosure; and, taking everything into consideration, I feel that a good work has been started and hope he will come back and give us another dose when this one has been thoroughly digested. I think some who heard the lecture will have to take a large quantity of spiritual and moral pepsin to help digest some of the hard things he gave them in his talk. Yours respectfully,

M. D. GRAY, M. D.

NO PEACE FOR THE LODGES.

THE OREGON AGENT DISTURBS THEIR QUIET, AND GOOD MEN HELP.

Nestled among the Waldo Hills is the little town of Macleay, in Marion county, Oregon. It is situated on the Springfield branch of the Southern Pacific railroad. It is surrounded by one of the finest farming countries in the great Willamette valley. It has two church houses, United Brethren (old constitution) and Baptists of the old line (or Hard Shell) order. There are a large number of German Baptists or Dunkards here. Macleay has also a beautiful public school building which is nearing completion.

Rev. D. L McLain is the pastor of the U. B. church, and Revs. Early and Ebersole of the German Baptists. Entertainment was very kindly given me by the families of Rev. McLain and Mr. Taylor. I spoke Saturday night, Sunday morning and evening, beside superintending the Sabbath-school. The congregations were not large, owing to the very busy season, but they were very attentive, and I trust that a good impression was made for the reform. Quite a number of delegates agree to attend the convention from here.

Of the Sabbath-school I have this to say: the young people take a fine interest in it, but there is great lack on the part of the older ones. It is called "the fatherless Sunday-school"—not a married man in it, and but three married ladies, including Mrs. McLain, the superintendent. May the Lord bless these noble women and their dear young people, and stir up the old men to help them in the good work.

On Sabbath morning, our dear brother Joseph Early, now superintendent of the Deaf Mute school at Salem, was present and assisted in the services. Rev. Ebersole was also present. In the evening Rev. McLain returned from his appointments in time to assist. With the anti-secrecy ministers and churches, Macleay ought to be a poor field for the lodges. I heard of but one Mason while there, and he kept clear of our meetings.

I next went to Scio, in Linn county, on the Santiam river, a little place of about five hundred people, two church houses, Methodist Episcopal, and Campbellites. I believe the Baptists and Presbyterians also have societies here. There are Masons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias and A. O. U. W. lodges. They have had three saloons, but two have "played out" on account of hard times.

I think it not the proper method of dispensing with them, to allow them to bring us to such a condition that our failure to patronize compels them to quit, but we should compel them by our votes, and fight to maintain it if necessary. The saloon business is unlawful from every standpoint of right and justice. No man should be allowed to send out mad men into our civilization.

Scio has a bank, electric lights, quite a number of good stores, and a splendid flouring mill, with two hotels and a number of shops. It is situated about two miles east of the crossing of the Southern Pacific and Oregon Pacific railroads, and has a dummy branch road connecting with the main lines.

When I arrived at Scio on the 3d I stepped into the Scio Hotel, intending to leave with them the small amount I had left in my pocket-book, and trust to Providence to get me to the next place. But on entering the first thing that met my gaze was a picture of Gen. Robert E. Lee and another of the square and compass. The combination was too much for me. I gathered my grip and overcoat and out I went. I found the family of brother Richardson, who took me in, and assured me a home while I stopped in Scio. Next, I went to the mill to hunt up brother Goins, through whom the appointment was arranged. While conversing with him a young man came hurriedly to tell me the folks where I had put up were suddenly called to their farm in the country to attend their threshing. Brother Goins immediately invited me to move down to his house, which I did, and found one of the very best homes I ever was in in all my life.

Brother and sister Goins are true salvationists. They have the genuine article. They have experienced it; they talk it; and they live it. Words cannot express my appreciation of their kindness to me. If his Satanic majesty had planned it to defeat me at this point, these good people greatly spoiled his arrangements. They have a fine home, well furnished. Bro. G. is one of the proprietors of the Scio mills, and has done as much if not more than any other man toward building up the town. Of course at present he is feeling the pressure of the extreme hard times. May the Lord greatly bless them!

I found this good brother opposed to all secret societies, except the A. O. U. W., which he joined about sixteen years ago, and since his conversion and sanctification he had not thought of any wrong connected with it; but when I began to show the points, he says, "I see it; I see it," and after he heard my lecture he says, "I must give it all up." Thank God for such men, who, when they see a wrong, are ready to forsake it at any cost. The Lord will abundantly bless him. His good wife says Amen to his decision.

I spoke here on the nights of the 4th and 5th in the M. E. church, to fair congregations considering the stormy weather and threshing and hop-picking season. My first address was on the saloon evil and was approved by several lodge men who promised to come and hear me the next night; but they must have forgotten that it was lodge night, or else some other important business hindered; or they perhaps thought they could see just as well by standing a little back. At any rate they made no appearance. However, a few lodge people were out, and the big mogul of the Masons got in in time to hear the last twenty minutes or more of my address. He winked and blinked equal to a toad in a hail storm. How wicked an institution must be when a little unveiling causes its votaries to squirm like that. My good brother Goins said, "That's the best lecture I ever heard, and it's just what we need here and elsewhere." I am now off for the next appointment.

I asked him this morning to look out for a team going out to Providence Baptist church where I am to speak to-night and to-morrow night. Some time during the forenoon he saw a man from there, and asked him if I could ride with him. He answered, "No; he is the man that's out abusing Masons, Odd-fellows, Grangers, etc. I won't haul him. Let the Clarks come in and get him. They are responsible for his coming here." The Clarks, of course, are old-time reformers of the Cynosure family. Bro. G. came in from the mill and told me, and then added, "Bro. W., give yourself no concern about it; we have horses and a buggy, and we will send you out in good time. So I am now off for the next appointment.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

LIGHTING WATCHFIRES AGAIN.

THE WASHINGTON AGENT REPORTS FROM VARIOUS PLACES IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

ON TRAIN FOR HARRISVILLE, Pa., Sept. 13, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—In response to an invitation from Dr. M. D. Gray I visited Cambridgeboro, Pa. The town has a population of 1,000, four churches and more lodges. There are but three pastors, the Baptists being without a pastor at present. Rev. Mr. Smith, Congregational, knew but little of the lodge, but was in a receptive condition. Rev. Grassie of the Presbyterian church referred to scenes at Masonic funerals as being abominable. Rev. Graham of the M. E. church belonged to the Masonic and several other lodges. He seemed very glad that he had been stripped, haltered, blindfolded and sworn not to tell the truth about Masonry. He praised the lodges for doing the work that the church ought to do, but failed.

There being no church open for an investigation of the lodge, the opera house was secured. There was a better attendance of the people at the lecture than friends expected.

This work was made possible by the kind contributions of Mrs. Gray and her son, the Doctor.

Cambridgeboro is becoming quite celebrated for its springs. Many notable cures are reported. The water contains many qualities that make it very helpful. On most systems it produces exhiliaration, followed by refreshing sleep. Thus the nerves are strengthened and the whole system toned up. From what I saw and heard while at Dr. Gray's spring, I concluded there is great merit in its water. Its popularity is manifest in the increased crowds coming from year to year.

Dr. Gray, Sr., who was the first to discover the medical qualities of the spring located on his farm, was a member of the Baptist church and an old-line Morgan Anti-mason. He did not hide his light under a bushel. His son follows in his footsteps in this regard. Though doubtless losing much in dollars and cents, he speaks out his convictions fearlessly. May the Lord abundantly reward him.

I stopped one night with Rev. J. P. Davis at New Bedford. Both he and Rev. Foster, pastor of the other church in town, assured me of their continued sympathy and a willingness to aid further in the work when I could return. The seed sown at the meetings there last winter had evidently taken root. Some had expressed themselves glad that they made the acquaintance of the Cynosure.

At New Castle the lodges were as numerous as ever. The number of those opposed to them seemed also to be on the increase. I made appointments for meetings in the F. M. and R. P. churches on Sabbath, Sept. 23. There may be a meeting in the 2d U. P. church also; Rev. McDowell will consult his session and report. I spoke in the 1st U. P. church some years since. Dr. Browne, the pastor, being an ex-soldier, was at the encampment at Pittsburgh. He will doubtless be glad to co-operate in the meetings arranged.

I have been in Mercer much of the time to-day. The county fair was in full blast. Not finding some that I wished to meet at their homes, I followed them to the fair ground. I judge by the exhibits that Mercer is a thrifty county. Rev. Gilkey of the 1st U. P. church, Mercer, subscribed for the Cynosure and will consult his session regarding a lecture. If the slow freight on which I travel does not meet with any mishap I shall, D. V., stop with Rev. A. B. Dickie to-night and work in his section for a time.

W. B. STODDARD.

As the flower is gnawed by frost, so every human heart is gnawed by faithlessness. And as surely, as irrevocably as the fruit bud falls before the east wind, so falls the power of the kindest human heart if you meet it with poison.—Ruskin.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LIFE INSURANCE OR CHRISTIAN BENEVOLENCE.

BROADVIEW, Manitoba.

An accomplished agent of the North American Life Association, during a recent business call, pointed out the short life of about 200 insurance societies and the consequent mourning of a bereaved host who had swallowed the insurance hook baited with cheap rates. His statements suggested to me to submit these questions to disinterested Christian men:

1. Why not let every man practically insure himself by making, saving and wisely using money so that by habits of industry, temperance, etc., and by avoiding expenditures that are only demanded by foolish customs, habits and pastimes, he may have money and the business education and other advantages that come to the man, his family and the community by spending or investing it largely where it is made?

2. May not the money of a people be more productively invested in securing healthful, stimulating and elevating environment for the body, mind and spirit of the family now, than by starving and stultifying the whole nature with a view to a financial feast, or pow-wow, at a later date?

3. Is not obedience to Christian doctrines the divinely-given preventive of poverty and want in general, and in special cases of need would not the practical recognition of the "brotherhood of man," by gratuitous and loving relief of his distress, without regard to denominational, national, caste or color lines, be a sufficient antidote? How strong would be the tendency to love, unity and good fellowship if this smooth-running and effective Gospel machinery of Christian benevolence were put in motion, and how cheap its administration as compared with its clumsy counterfeit and rival, life insurance, with its multitude of offices and its parasitical army of paid officials and agents?

One stock argument in favor of life insurance is that "Your policy secures wife and children from the greedy grasp of creditors." But the same may be said of property deeded over to them for a similar purpose. But surely our sense of justice that pronounces the latter dishonest must be strangely warped if it calls the former by a better name. Is not marriage a partnership for weal or woe, and ought not the co-equal partners to share equally the responsibilities of failure or fortune?

Whatever men of the world may do, ought not the subjects of the kingdom of heaven to be governed by the consolidated statutes of that kingdom as found in the New Testament?

Yours, (Rev.) S. O. IRVINE.

THOUGHTS ARE WHAT A MAN THINKS!

DEAR CYNOSURE:—What do you think of a notice handed me in a church on a Lord's day at close of worship? Here it is with slight omissions, etc.

COME! COME! COME!

Christian Citizenship Meeting in charge of the Independent Order of Good Templars at the popular Park church of blank, on a fixed day of Sept., '94.
Quartette and other good music.
Five able speakers on living issues:
Citizenship, Pledges, Duties, Temperance, and Popular Fallacies!

Surely there is no greater fallacy than to regard such a good Templar meeting as one which has any right to respect from either citizen or Christian!

Why? Because, 1st, our civil affairs should be attended to on week days, and be openly discussed and regulated; not by lodgites but by open constitutional meetings of the people, or by their freely chosen representatives; and 2d, Neither Good Templars, nor politicians, have any right whatever to regulate the laws or operations of the true of church of Christ as recorded in the New Testament. Christ's church has laws of its own, independent of all other authority than that of Christ himself as on record therein by precept and example.

No church and state connection is a fundamental principle of our civil Constitution on the one hand, and of churches under the New Testament or Christ on the other, especially on and from the day of Pentecost.

The reader should understand that as the church in which the above notice was distributed is American, and not a descendant of any of the established churches of Europe, so the proceeding should be regarded as a proof of the great laxity of American sentiment on the subject. But it is one which President Grant foretold would if continued cause such discontent as would be "settled NOT WITHOUT BLOOD." That warning has been unheeded and the evil has increased so that the churches are receiving about forty times the amount paid them in 1850, a practice as inconsistent with the Constitution as slavery was with liberty. Yours truly, T. H. INKS.

PITH AND POINT.

HE STANDS FOR GOD'S ORDER.

I have no place for secret societies. They are all about me, but I have nothing to do with them. I find the church of Christ all I want. The home and the church are the two God-ordained institutions. If man reaches up to the divine idea in these, human needs will be met and God honored. I stand by the divine plan.—REV. O. C. BEDFORD, Wataga, Ill.

THE N. C. A. AND THE COLORED CHURCHES.

I regard your Association as being the most true and faithful of the servants of our Heavenly Father who are working effectively to better the condition of all people in every good and needed way. The Negroes are well considered by you as being among those whose condition should be bettered, not because we are Negroes, but because we are human beings for whom our Saviour suffered and died.—Rev. L. H. SMITH, Harrison, Ga.

THIS WORK IS OF GOD.

The Cynosure has indeed been helpful to me and my household. Wife and children devote more time to its perusal than any other paper of our subscription, and we take about ten different papers. I am still in the field and am happy to say the Master has blessed his work as performed by his unworthy servant. The National Christian Association may well glorify God for the abundant evidence of his loving favor, his providences in its peculiar work; and oh, dear brethren, as I draw nearer and nearer to the grave and in full view of that most solemn of all moments, meeting Him to whom I must render my last account, I am more than ever convinced that this work is of God and he will eventually lead us to final victory. God speed the day when purged of her dross his church will return to apostolic love and simplicity, "worshiping the Lord in the beauty of holiness."—THOS. R. GRIFFIN, New Orleans, La.

LITERATURE.

The ILLUSTRATED APOCALYPSE, by Thomas William Greenwell, F. R. S.; published by the American Millennial Association, Boston. This is a complete series of cartoons explaining the past and future fulfillments of the Revelation, that wonder book of the ages. The author's endeavor is to make popular and comprehensible the visions of John, whose account of stupendous and superhuman transactions are a puzzle to the learned and an amazement to the ignorant. The work is helpfully done. We notice one omission, however, in the characters that have part in this grand drama of God's providential dealing with mankind. The "image of the beast," which Rev. Richard Horton has so ably shown to mean the secret lodge system, is not mentioned in the expositions of the volume. The author speaks very distinctly, however, of this system as part of the the great anti-Christian conspiracy. He says:

"There is a wide-spread consensus of opinion at the present time that the coming anti-Christian system will be evolved out of the various false teachings now existing: paganism in all its forms, theosophy, occultism, spiritualism, phallicism, solar-worship, pantheism, Buddhism, Babylonianism, Romanism, and secret brotherhoods and societies of all kinds. The modern outbreak of demonism indicates that providential restraints are being withdrawn as at the close of previous dispensations."

"Spirit Workings in Various Lands and Ages." By William Ramsey. The Scriptural Tract Repository, Boston, issue this as the twenty-third number of the "Anti-infidel Library." The author reviews the teaching of Holy Scripture respecting Satan and his first medium, the serpent of Eden. The New Testament record is especially important in this argument, since the fact of demoniac possession was remarkably developed in the time of our Lord. Of modern spiritualistic manifestations the author does not make so much use as if the scope of his work had been larger. He, however, gives an instance of very remarkable character which came under his personal observation in India in 1834. Other instances are quoted showing that often unlearned peoples, like the Hindoos, Mohammedans, believe that often devils possess the mind and will of people as in the days of Christ. This would be an interesting inquiry for some bold investigator in connection with the insane.

The Social Economist for September records its opinion that the Gorman tariff law will open our markets injuriously to foreign competition in jute, tin plates, woolens, clothing, cotton hosiery, iron and steel, salt and Canadian products. Its tendencies are to still further pound down our prices and wages, to increase the drain of gold, the hardships of the debtor class relatively to the creditor, and to prolong the condition of business prostration. Those who think the country is passing through an industrial crisis, due wholly to the economic ignorance and destructive bias and blunders of those in power, will find data confirming these impressions in the several articles entitled, "What of the Gorman Law?" "Probable Effects of Free Wool," and in the numerous editorial paragraphs touching on various phases of the new tariff law. "Carey and Greeley" is a lively and racy sketch of the recent leaders in the protectionist school, Henry C. Carey and Horace Greeley.

It is currently reported that a Chicago publisher sent for Mr. Stanley Waterloo and asked him whether he could have a book on the Coxey movement ready for the press in four days. Mr. Waterloo, being a well-equipped journalist, full of resources, and knowing not the word "fail," said he could. This was on Monday morning. The publisher said "Go ahead," and gave him carte blanche as to expenses. A staff of writers was organized, specialists were engaged for the historical part of the work, photographers took the field, type writers clicked day and night, and Mr. Waterloo himself hardly ate or slept. The result was that on Thursday night the "copy" for a book of over one hundred thousand words, with fifty illustrations, was in the hands of printers. This nearly equals the reputed exploit of William Beckford in writing "Vathek" at a single setting.

The Journal of Hygiene takes up in its current number such topics as the "Measurements of Children" with relation to their moral and intellectual character, methods of "Hardening the Constitution," "Woman and Natural Selection in Marriage," and the "Building of the Brain." The editorial notes are full of suggestions, hints, and facts that wise people quickly put to use.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

—"Let Him First be a Man," by W. H. Venable, LL. D. It is a plea for a broad and liberal culture, an education which develops manhood instead of narrow professionalism. Dr. Venable would have his teacher a trainer, not a mere machine for cramming the greatest amount of information into the pupil. He realizes that the scholar is more than a learning apparatus, and that we may have wise fools and criminals, if the moral nature is neglected.

—"The cost of gaining a college education is becoming greater every year. The Yale Review for August states that the average expenses of the last graduating class were $1,132 a year. The expenses at other colleges have increased, and soon a poor boy or girl will find it hard to gain a college education. It is true that many colleges afford aid to deserving students by scholarships, but this aid does not meet the additional expense."—Christian Secretary.

—Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts has accepted an invitation from Marietta College to repeat there the series of lectures on Christian Sociology, which will be first delivered at Princeton Seminary Oct. 1–5. The themes announced are: 1. Social Problems from the Standpoint of the Church; 2. Social Problems from the Standpoint of the Family; 3. Social Problems from the Standpoint of the School; 4. Social Problems from the Standpoint of the Shop; 5. Social Problems from the Standpoint of the State.

—Bishop Wadsworth of St. Andrew's, a masterly writer of English, says in his autobiography:

"So far as I have derived benefit from any one in the matter of composition, it has been from Cicero.

"I do not underrate the advantages of a combined study of authors, such as Addison, Swift, Bolingbroke, Johnson, Burke, Hume, Gibbon, Macauley, and I may add Horace Walpole; but I must repeat that I believe I got more good, not only in writing Latin, but for writing English, from reading Cicero and learning him by heart than from any other source."—Youth's Companion.

AMONG THE LODGES.

There is no limit to lodge folly. Here is one of the latest items from a Kansas City despatch, Sept. 10: The third annual convention of the order of Hoo-Hoo was welcomed to this city to-day by Mayor Davis. About 200 worshipers of the black cat are in attendance and more are coming on every train. The convention will be in session two or three days."

Terre Haute, Ind., is agog with the action of an official of the A. P. A. in turning over to a firm of lawyers, who are Catholics, the books and records of the local A. P. A. organization. The result is that by word of mouth nearly every one has been informed of the names of the members of the Know-nothing order. There has been surprise at some of the names given.

The thirteenth annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans opened in Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 20. The attendance was about 30 delegates and 300 members of the guard, the military branch. Questions of an insurance branch, a new ritual, a sick and funeral benefit and the absorption of the now nearly independent guard, the new organization to be termed the Military Order of Sons of Veterans, were considered. Reports showed a falling off in membership. The three degree ritual was approved and adopted. The age of eligibility was reduced from 21 years to 18. The regiments of the independent organization of the Sons of Veterans Guard were placed under the jurisdiction of the division commanderies. The guard as an independent national organization is done away with. Heretofore the only visitors allowed at meetings of the camps have been members of the Grand Army. It was decided to admit hereafter any honorably discharged Union soldier or sailor.

Two hundred years ago, as the tradition has it, Chinese Freemasonry was instituted. July 25, in the Chinese calendar, which corresponds with Aug. 25, is the anniversary. The festivities in Chicago took place in Sam Moy's Chinese restaurant at 319 Clark street. About 600 Chinese Freemasons were present. Several invited guests also sat down to the feast, but no Chinaman who was not a Mason was allowed to partake of the feast or join in the festivities. After disposing of the food and large quantities of rice wine the guests listened to speeches for a short time. The most impressive ceremony was the feeding of the dead. In a rear room a banquet had been prepared. The food was set on the floor on straw mats. There was a roast pig, bowls of rice, bird's nests and little platters filled with meat gravy. Joss sticks and pastilles thrust in pieces of watermelon rind were set among the dishes, and a line of colored candles two feet apart led from the street door to the banquet-room. These were to guide the spirits of the dead to the feast. A priest named Jug Ying seated on a mat chanted incantations over the food in a sepulchral voice. The other Chinamen sat cross-legged about the room, smoking cigarettes and drinking rice wine. If the ceremony had been fully carried out the food would have been taken to the cemetery, but the Chinamen seemed to think that the spirits could travel with less effort than they. When the priest ended his chant the food was devoured by the guests. Meanwhile a Chinese orchestra doled out lugubrious music. The festivities continued nearly all night and most of the Chinamen overestimated their capacity for rice wine.—Record.

Before going on a sea voyage or into the country, be sure and put a box of Ayer's Pills in your valise. You may have occasion to thank us for this hint. To relieve constipation, biliousness, and nausea, Ayer's Pills are the best in the world. They are also easy to take.

Thin or gray hair and bald heads, so displeasing to many people as marks of age, may be averted for a long time by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

THE WAY IS OPEN

to health and strength, if you're a nervous, delicate woman. The medicine to cure you, the tonic to build you up, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. You can depend upon it. The makers say it will help you, or cost you nothing. They guarantee it.

As a safe and certain remedy for woman's ailments, nothing can compare with the "Prescription." It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing, strengthening nervine, perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system.

It's a marvelous remedy for nervous and general debility, St. Vitus's Dance, Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, and all the nervous disorders due to functional derangements. It has often, by restoring the womanly functions, cured cases of Insanity.

PIERCE Guarantees a CURE

OR MONEY RETURNED.

Agents wanted.  Sylph

BICYCLES ON EASY PAYMENTS

New or 2nd hand; lowest prices, largest stock; makers & oldest dealers in U.S. We sell everywhere. Catalog free

ROUSE HAZARD & CO. 4 G St. Peoria, Ill.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair.

OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

A UNIQUE PICTURE.

There was much interest in the N. C. A. Chart used at the World's Fair last year by Rev. J. P. Stoddard in illustrating various facts in Freemasonry.

There has been a demand for copies of it by those who saw it at the World's Fair, and who wish to use it in explaining to their neighbors different phases of the lodge question.

Hence the N. C. A. has had a photo-zino-etching made, size 18x20 inches, which shows the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scotch Rite, etc., and their relation one to another.

There are also seen some of the initiatory scenes in the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason. This chart can be used to illustrate the system of secret societies in a variety of ways. It will be especially helpful to local lecturers and pastors of churches in explaining to people the ceremonies, oaths, prayers, religion, etc., of the lodge. The Chart is on heavy book paper, and will be sent postpaid, at your risk, for six two-cent postage stamps; or sent at our risk by registered mail for ten two-cent postage stamps.

Framed and hung upon the wall it will make a novel and attractive picture for the homes of the readers of the Cynosure.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

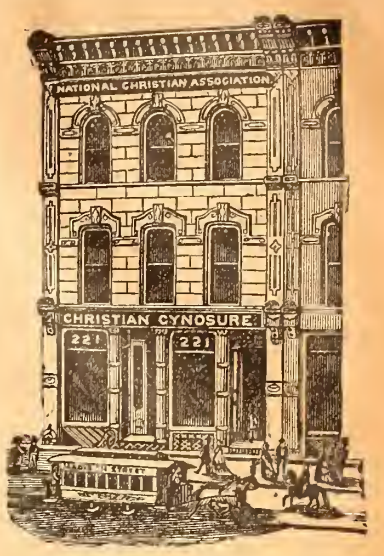
OTHER LECTURERS,

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft. Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.



Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Wi imantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1894.

THE PACIFIC COAST ANNIVERSARY.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of moral reform will be held Sept. 26th and 27th, 1894, at Philomath, Benton county, Oregon. All persons and communities interested in our reform work should be represented.

WM. DILLON, President. P. B. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

RAILROAD RATES TO PHILOMATH.—The Southern Pacific road will carry delegates and friends to and from the convention for one and one-third fare, and Oregon Pacific R. R. for one and one-half fare.

Delegates on the Yamhill division of the Southern Pacific R. R will purchase tickets to Monmouth and then from Independence to Corvallis. P. B. WILLIAMS.

NEW ENGLAND CONVENTION.

The annual mass convention of the New England Christian Association will (D. V.) be held during the second week in October, next, in Music Hall, Franklin, Mass. Programs of speakers and details will be given later when completed. Will friends in New England make a note of this date and arrange to attend in the fullness of the Spirit? J. P. STODDARD,

New England Secretary.

REPRESENTATIVES TO THE N. C. A.—The United Brethren Conference meeting last week at Coleta, Ill., was the first religious body to report a representative to sit in the next annual meeting of the National Christian Association. By our constitution such delegates have for the year of their appointment full powers of membership. Let us greet a score of such representatives at the next meeting in May, 1895. All State auxiliary associations and church assemblies in sympathy with the work are requested to appoint a representative.

TEMPERANCE SERMONS.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian church resolved:

"That, while recognizing the importance of a wise discretion as to methods, we especially urge that temperance instruction be given from all our pulpits, in all our schools and in all our homes, and we recommend the recognition of the fourth Sabbath of September, or some proximate day, as a day for special instruction on this subject." The Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Alliance urges that the recommendation of the General Assembly be adopted by all Christian churches, especially in the Keystone State.

"SOCIETY," the dialogue poem by Rev. A. Thomson, which begins with this number, merits an introductory word. When the poem, "The Brotherhood," was published in the Cynosure some ten or twelve years ago, Gen. J. W. Phelps wrote the author asking him to write a poem on society, in which the lodge, the saloon, the Romish church, and other similar forces affecting the social condition should be noticed. At the time Bro. Thomson was not able, on account of ill health, to undertake the task. It has, however, been much upon his mind during these intervening years, and these contemplations have at length found words and utterance. The incidents of the poem are loosely connected with a city election, and the author has endeavored to exhibit the springs that move society today.

—The Catholic Review gives some figures that justify its jealousy for the predominence of Freemasons in French politics, thus: "The number of Masons among the Ministries that have succeeded one another in France is almost always the same. In the Freycinet Ministry, of the ten members, six were Masons; in the Ministry of Floquet six of the ten were Masons; in that of Ribot, seven of the ten were Masons and the same numbers in the Ministries of Dupuz and Perier. At present there are eleven members in the Cabinet of whom six are Freemasons. Thus half a million have more representatives in the government than thirty-six millions of Catholics."

DR. PARKHURST, TAMMANY AND THE LEXOW COMMITTEE.

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, pastor of Madison Square Presbyterian Church, New York, has become one of the best known American preachers for his fearless assaults on official iniquity in New York city.

As the result of his exposures an investigating committee was appointed by the State legislature over the veto of Governor Flower. The inquiries of this (Lexow) committee unearthed a mass of political and official corruption beside which the vices of the Tweed ring twenty years ago seem trifles. The Social Economist for July says of them:

"The Lexow investigating committee proves to be the most important political event of the year and probably of the decade. It brings to light a condition of moral rottenness on the part of the policy of the city of New York which has not been surpassed since the temples of the heathen religions which preceded Christianity were found to have been given over to social pollution in a manner to convert them into pest houses of debauchery, and the sacred oracles sold their prophecies for bribes in the interest of conspirators and criminals. The details of the nefarious traffic which has been carried on by the New York captains of police, sergeants and patrolmen, aided by the district leaders of Tammany Hall, are sickening and appalling. They convict our police system of being rotten through and through. They show that all its powers of physical coercion, brute intimidation and evasion of justice are concentrated upon the single aim of making the vice and degradation of the city a means of profit to the pretended administrators of justice. The estimated revenue derived by the officers of the police and the leaders of Tammany Hall from their systematic protection of crime is already seen to have been not less than ten million dollars a year.

"The world's history records no system of brigandage so revolting or so despicable. Every minute amplification of the facilities for immorality and debauchery has borne fruit as a distinct source of profit to the prostituted officers of the law. Beer, sold without a license, bore its fruits of corruption in a rental value for police immunity, if only ten or fifteen dollars a month. If dispensed by girl waiters the blackmail rose to fifty dollars a month and five hundred in advance. If rooms were attached the bribes were per room. If there were no side rooms, but only a lounge in the beer room, the price of immunity to vice fell one-half."

The work of the Lexow committee is not done. On the 11th inst. testimony was heard which proves that the police have protected "green-goods" men, the shovers of counterfeit bills, and had even shared in the profits. When one of the counterfeiters dens was to be raided, a police captain, Meakin, notified the proprietor and all evidence was removed. When a victim complained to the police the latter would give the "green-goods" men the tip and the complainant would be run out of town for attempting to pass the counterfeit money, while the police and the "green-goods" men distributed the spoils. Meakin received as high as $450 a month for protection.

"We were pretty well protected in Jersey," explained the witness. "We had our men not only in the postoffice, but along railroads. Our headquarters were in 10th street." A flourishing business was done until Anthony Comstock got after the gang and made a raid.

The witness identified Officer McArdle, who was formerly stationed at the Grand Central depot, as a policeman who protected "green-goods" men for a salary of $50 a week.

The police commissioners of the city have in response to the outburst of indignation following the investigation dismissed thirteen officers, four of them being captains. Police Superintendent Byrnes has made a report in which he says the excise liquor laws are continually violated, 63,460 cases being found in three months' time, or over 20,000 each month! The Superintendent attributes the demoralization and corruption of the force to political influences in these words:

"The widespread belief existing among the force that merit or the faithful performance of duty is not taken into consideration in promotions, and that a large number of officers and men have obtained their positions through means other than meritorious service and faithful performance of duty, has had a great tendency to impair the discipline of the department, and to make men who would otherwise be careful and painstaking members of the force careless and indifferent in the performance of their duty."

That means Tammany, the most prominent secret political society of to-day. Superintendent Byrnes is not ready to join the anti-Tammany league, and therefore uses much circumlocution of language. But at the bottom of this corruption is the secret Columbian Order. Corrupt policemen look to their political masters, and divide the spoils with them. New York city pays her police force $5,000,000 per year in salaries. The investigation shows that they receive some $15,000,000; and of the $10,000,000 plunder, four-fifths is blackmail drawn from disorderly houses, and the rest is from saloons If prostitution and like vices pay this enormous sum to escape prosecution, what must such business not cost their wretched victims!

Dr. Parkhurst and his co workers have evidence which compels them to believe the guilt to lie generally with the leaders of the police force, many of whom are high in the councils of Tammany. The warrior pastor returned from Europe the other day with new vigor for the campaign against the devil in the slums. He is quite dissatisfied with the work of the police commissioners in discharging a few underlings. "The eye of the people," said he; "is too big for the commissioners to pull the wool over it." He is ready to furnish the Lexow committee with evidence more damnable than any it has yet heard.

Dr. Parkhurst means, too, that the threat to bring down bigger game shall not be an idle one. But when he assails the corrupt leaders of the infamous secret society which has so long ruled and throttled the city and State, he will find that his previous work is only boy's play in comparison. "It is all nonsense," writes one of the shrewdest of correspondents to a Chicago journal, "to talk about Tammany being downed at the polls in New York this fall. The tiger may hibernate for a year to recover from the bruises received from Dr. Parkhurst and the Lexow committee, or he may not be quite so bold in the face of the discoveries that have been made as to the methods of the society, but any one who supposes the most powerful and perfect political organization in the world is going to dissolve and retire from business is not gifted with common sense or a knowledge of human nature."

What is more, the brave Doctor, if he attacks this order, will likely find it so joined and intertwined with the whole lodge system that, instead shaking this infamy out of a single community, he will seem to be shaking the continent. But may heaven give him a stout heart, a steady eye, and a dauntless courage. By God's grace a single man has once before shaken the pillars of lodgery in America so that they seemed to tumble about like the temple of Dagon before the bowing of mighty Samson.

Findel, the Mackey of German Freemasonry, in his history, page 26, confesses that the decline and final overthrow of the ancient secret societies "was a necessary consequence of the spread of Christianity." The matchless power of God's truth is enough for this battle also. No weapon formed against that truth "shall prosper." Go on, brave pastor, the people are with you in this fight, and so are all things good, angels and men, and God himself.

—Bro. J. P. Stoddard, New England Secretary, writes in a brief note of more calls than usual for addresses of late, which with publishing business have quite filled his time. The New England friends will find it a profitable investment to secure him an assistant secretary so the Cynosure can report to them more frequently of the work in and about Boston.

—Some people are astonished at the craze to wear a badge or pin possessing lodgemen. It means business, of course,—an advertisement that the wearer has been through a ceremony of which he should be heartily ashamed. But there is a mysterious superstition connected with some of these baubles. For instance, down in Georgia lately a Mason named Strother had a lodge pin stolen from him. After a vigorous search for it he found it had been used to fasten the clothing on the corpse of a colored girl and had been buried with the body. But the Mason and his badge were inseparable. He was bound to have it; and have it he did, by digging up the body and searching until the lost trinket was found and restored to the mesmeric service of the lodge.

—They have a very entertaining custom in Missouri lodges. The Royal Arch initiation, it will be remembered, gives opportunity for some dramatic attachments, and the chapters had a habit of improving it. One means was a quartette of singers, who were admitted to the lodge-room behind a curtain or screen, and were expected to enliven the solemn monotony of the rough road from Babylon to Jerusalem with vocal music. The Grand High Priest of this satanic worship has concluded that this is being carried too far, and enjoins the whole business. It serves to show how indifferent Freemasons have become to their oaths of secrecy, because they know them to be a sham, and hollow blasphemy.

—The Chicago German M. E. Conference was the body which in May, 1892, introduced in the General Conference in Omaha a memorial against secret societies. Last year this body appointed Rev. J. A. Mulfinger of Aurora to represent them in the conference meeting in connection with the N. C. A. annual meeting. The twenty-third session of this conference was held in the Sheffield Ave. German M. E. church September 6-10. Bishop Vincent, of Chautauqua fame, presided. The conference includes two large cities, which are largely populated by Germans and their descendants. Chicago alone contains over 400,000 Germans, and Milwaukee is often styled the German Athens. This conference has for many years exerted a great influence in these cities. There are now thirteen German Methodist churches in Chicago, and Milwaukee last year founded its sixth mission. The year has been very prosperous in almost all the churches represented. The greater majority of active ministers, numbering about seventy, reported gracious revivals, and from every district a large number of conversions and accessions were announced. Rev. Charles Hedler and his son were among the active members of this body, and the former especially is one of the most fearless foes of the lodge.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—The item of last week respecting Rev. W. M. Howie of this city was in error in placing him on the N. C. A. Board. He acted several years in that capacity until last annual meeting.

—Miss Flagg, our accomplished New England correspondent, was with Mrs. A. E. Stoddard of the N. E. Association office, Boston, attending the Prohibition Convention at Worcester last Thursday and Friday.

—Rev. J. N. Bedford of Norris City, Ill., was among the welcome visitors at the Cynosure office last week. He has resigned his work in southern Illinois, and may settle in Victoria, several invitations having been sent him by that church.

—It revives agreeable memories to see in the Christian Conservator the name of Rev. J. K. Alwood, now made a D.D. He was the "able and sage-looking chairman" of the United Brethren conference lately held in Auburn, Ind. Dr. Alwood was in earlier years a pillar of our reform in northwestern Ohio.

—Bishop Dillon of the U. B. church on the Pacific coast has lately been visiting southwestern Oregon, and graphically describes in his report to the Conservator the long stage rides and mountainous and timbered country through which our agent, Bro. P. B. Williams, labored a month or two ago. Both found true hearts and Christian fellowship more precious than any oath-bound brotherhood among these Pacific wilds.

—Bishop H. J. Becker, missionary secretary of the United Brethren church of the radical or old constitution branch, passed through Chicago last Thursday on his way to the Rock River conference at Coleta, Ill. He report a hopeful condition of the churches in the several States where fall conferences have already been held. The membership is united in maintaining the standard of the church against every device of the devil. Bro. Becker always finds a welcome at the N. C. A. office. He believes in continuing the battle on Gospel principles. That is the victory line.

—The remarkable disappearance of Rev. Dr. T. J. Kennedy, president of Amity College, College Springs, Iowa, noticed last week, has not been explained. The Chicago papers of Saturday last report no account is yet received of the lost president, and a reward is offered for his recovery. Any information which will assist to that end will be very thankfully received by Rev. Dr. W. T. Moffett, of College Springs, the successor of the lamented Dr. William Johnson, or by Rev. J. A. Collins, Chicago editor of the Christian Instructor, at 196 La Salle street, this city. Dr. Kennedy was 62 years of age, over 6 feet high, and a man of striking appearance. He was widely known and universally respected throughout the United Presbyterian church in which he has been a minister for thirty five years. He has been president of Amity College for about ten years. He is a man of fine ability both as preacher and teacher, and one whose writings and opinions always command respect and attention. He was moderator of the U. P. General Assembly at Princeton in 1891, and as a presiding officer won high praise.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman died of heart failure at her home, 2102 Ridge avenue, Evanston, Sabbath morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Freeman had been an invalid for a number of years. She was the widow of Thomas Freeman, the real-estate lawyer who died eighteen months ago, and who has been for years a very cordial supporter of the N. C. A. reform. The couple were among the earliest settlers of Evanston, having occupied the same homestead for thirty-five years. Mrs. Freeman had also spent seven years of her girlhood in Chicago. Two sons, Robert and George, survive the mother.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Women in the Interior Department.—No civil marriages in the District —Tariff mill keeps Secretary Carlisle at work —City mission and young people's work —Romish aggressions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12, 1894.

Secretary Hoke Smith of the Interior Department is calling critical attention to his administration by his frequent discharges of women,—and most of them women from the North. His opinion is quoted on the value of women clerks, none of whom he thinks earns more than $1,000 per year. In the land and patent offices there were a large number of women drawing from $1,400 to $1,800 salary, but all have been reduced to $1,200 and many discharged. The Secretary is blamed for his apparent discrimination in favor of men, and of Confederate widows.

The District of Columbia does not permit civil marriages, but gives the ministers of the Gospel a monopoly of this business. The regulation worked very happily for a gentleman from a neighboring State recently. He had a young daughter who was coaxed into eloping with a man much older than herself; the father followed the elopers to Washington only a few hours behind them. They procured a marriage license without any trouble, but then discovered that getting married was a much more difficult task, where the intended bride is a child who has plainly not reached the years of discretion, as she was in this case. The man, doubtless aware of the objections likely to be raised by any minister of the Gospel to marrying a child, asked to be directed to the office of the nearest justice of the peace. There he was greatly surprised to learn that civil marriages were not legal in the District of Columbia and that his license would be useless unless he could find a minister who would marry them. A minister was found, but, after seeing and talking with the child, he not only declined to marry them, but gave the man a lecture that he will doubtless remember to his dying day on the enormity of the crime he had committed in coaxing the girl to leave her parents for the purpose of marrying him.

Meanwhile the father had succeeded in overtaking the couple. He had no sooner spoken than the girl threw herself into his arms and begged to be taken back to her mother. "God bless the men who made the law that makes it necessary for ministers of the Gospel to do all the marrying in Washington," said the delighted father. "That law has prevented a man from committing a great moral crime, saved my child much suffering and perhaps years of sorrowing regret, and has restored her to her parents. Would that it were duplicated on the statute books of every State." Cases showing the wisdom of this law are so frequent that it is really surprising that it has not long ago been enacted in all of the States. It is only natural that a minister of the Gospel should exercise more care than any ordinary civil official in inquiries about those who seek to be wedded. In some of the States the regulations for the issue of a marriage license are so strict that much of the danger is removed, but it would be an improvement, in my humble opinion, to have everywhere only ministers allowed to perform the marriage ceremony.

Secretary Carlisle is the only member of the Cabinet at present in Washington. He is kept here by the new tariff law, which like all new and complicated machinery moves a little stiffly at first and with more or less friction, requiring the constant presence of an expert to inspire confidence as well as to assist in running the machinery.

The City Mission and Church Extension Society of the Washington Conference of the M. E. Church was this week incorporated. The work of the organization, which is to be perpetual, will be to assist weak churches and to plant missions in the city and suburbs, and to aid in rescuing the fallen aud neglected.

This week marks the beginning of a new year with the District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union, which has just elected new officers and named the committees charged with mapping out the winter's work. The executive committee has received a letter from the Boston union, asking that the committee endorse the claims of Boston for the international convention of 1889, which they did. The executive committee has also accepted the cordial invitation of the secretary and board of trustees of the Y. M. C. A. to establish the headquarters of the D. C. C. E union in the Y. M. C. A building, which will doubtless be beneficial to both organizations.

When Dr. Sunderland declared from his pulpit in the First Presbyterian church of this city that we, as Americans, could not afford to have the functions of our government paralyzed by the decrees of a foreign and usurping potentate, and that the Roman papacy, whatever might be the professions of its more liberal adherents, was an organization palpably irreconciliable with the spirit of our institutions; when he denounced the Jesuits as an order of men harbored among us, who had been at one time or another expelled from every country under heaven but our own, he planted good seed in good ground, and the Protestant people of the capital began to reflect and to investigate.

The plans of the new Congressional Library building now nearing completion, provide for the erection in the main reading room of sixteen marble statues of eminent men in eight branches of literature, and Librarian Spofford, to whom the selection was left, has named the following: Poetry, Homer and Shakespeare; Art and Music, Angelo and Beethoven; Science, Newton and Henry; History, Herodotus and Gibbon; Philosophy, Plato and Bacon; Commerce, Columbus and Fulton; Law, Solon and Blackstone; Religion, Moses and St. Paul. On the outer walls are niches for nine busts, and Mr. Spofford has selected Franklin, Demosthenes, Dante, Irving, Macaulay, Sir Walter Scott, Emerson, Hawthorne and Goethe to fill them.

In and around this capital we find numerous popish seats of learning, with hordes of instructors, mainly skillful Jesuits, and thousands of students, all being trained for the higher walks of life and for the priesthood.

Georgetown College, established in 1778, had last year 106 instructors and 650 students; Gonzaga College, established in 1821, had 11 instructors and 141 students; St. John's College, established in 1865, had 13 instructors and 160 students; the Catholic University of America established in 1889, had 13 instructors and 30 students. The last named is the national university of the papal church, and is confined strictly to post-graduate work. All these are within the District of Columbia. The total number of instructors they employ is 142; the total number of students last year was 981.

Besides these collegiate establishments, there are numbers of others, such as Carroll Institute, St. Rose's Industrial School, the Academy of the Visitation, the Convent of Notre Dame, St. Dominick's Convent, and St. Vincent's School, all within the District of Columbia. The numerous parochial schools, moreover, lend increased strength to these higher institutions, while to meet all this mighty educational force the Protestants have practically nothing but the common schools of the District.

As to churches, the papists are equally fortunate, having sixteen magnificent church edifices, the finest structures in this city, except the government buildings.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

THE HOME.

HE CHOSE THIS PATH FOR THEE.

He chose this path for thee;
No feeble chance, no hard, relentless fate,
But love, His love, hath placed thy footsteps here;
He knew the way was rough and desolate,
Knew how thy heart would often sink with fear,
Yet tenderly He whispered, "Child, I see
This path is best for thee."

He chose this path for thee,
Though well He knew sharp thorns would tear thy feet,
Knew the brambles would obstruct the way,
Knew all the hidden dangers thou wouldst meet,
Knew how thy faith would falter day by day,
And still the whisper echoed, "Yes, I see
This path is best for thee."

He chose this path for thee,
And well he knew that thou must tread alone
Its gloomy vales and ford each flowing stream;
Knew how thy bleeding heart would sobbing moan,
"Dear Lord, to wake and find it all a dream."
Love scanned it all, yet still could say, "I see
This path is best for thee."

He chose this path for thee.
What need'st thou more?—This sweeter truth to know,
That all along these strange bewildering ways,
O'er rocky steeps, and where dark rivers flow,
His loving arms will bear thee "all the days."
A few steps more, and thou thyself shalt see
This path is best for thee.

—Selected.

MRS. DYER'S TROUBLE.

"Well, Dr. Strong, I don't think—at least, I don't know, and that is as bad—I sent for you because"—

Here the words choked her. She had to stop; her eyes ran over on her pale cheeks, and she clasped her thin hands together in a convulsive effort of self-control. Dr. Strong, a white-haired old man, with the gentlest face and kindest manner possible, looked distressed; he could not say anything, for he had no clue to these sobs and tears. Mrs. Dyer had been a member of his church when he lived at Blandford; he remembered her well—a bright, delicate young girl, the only daughter of a well-to-do farmer. She was fairly well educated, had made a profession of religion in early youth, had married at twenty a young lawyer already in good practice, for he was ten years older than she, and had besides a little inherited property. Dr. Strong had heard of her from time to time, and sometimes met her when she came home on a visit. He knew that she was temporarily prosperous, and that she had three children; and at last he himself was called to a church in the city where she lived, and learned then for the first time that she was recently widowed. She had written a note to him, asking that he would come to see her; and, in answer to her request, he was with her now. Poor little thing! She was a pathetic spectacle to her old pastor as she sat there struggling with her tears, thin, pallid, and sad, with a comfortless sorrow, as he could plainly see, for neither hope nor submission lent a gleam to her eye or calmed her forlorn countenance. This was not a case of ordinary consolation, he felt at once; but, before she could control herself, in rushed a rosy boy of ten.

"Mother," he shouted, "can I go over to Denham with Hal Jones?"

Mrs. Dyer held out a hand and drew him to her side. She stopped her tears, and was composed at once.

"Come here, Harry," she said, in very loving tones. "I want you to shake hands with this gentleman; he used to be my minister when I lived at Blandford."

Harry was evidently well trained; he obeyed at once, and stood at Dr. Strong's knee a moment to answer some kindly questions, then reverted to his errand.

"Can I, mother?"

"Is no one else going?" asked his mother.

"No ma'am; we want to go fishing out in the mill pond for punkin seeds."

"No, Harry, I can't let you go."

"Surely, mamma?"

"Surely, dear," she said with a smile.

Harry's face flushed, his eyes glistened, and his small fists closed tightly. There was a struggle in his boyish heart, very evident to the doctor, but he said nothing, and, bowing to the minister, left the room much more quietly than he had entered it.

The interruption had helped Mrs. Dyer to recover her own self-control. She could speak now quite calmly.

"I sent for you, Dr. Strong," she said, "because I am in great need of help. You know I have been a church member many years, but lately I have begun to think I am not a Christian at all."

"Have you spoken to your own pastor?" asked the doctor, with professional instinct.

"No, I cannot. Mr. King is called a very fine preacher, but his sermons don't touch or help me; they never have. When Allen died, he came here and talked to me, but he didn't seem sure of anything; he is always telling us that doubt is a very necessary thing to growth in spirit; that we must try to find the pillars whereon the house standeth, before we can be sure there is a house."

"He did not really remember the context in that text, I fear. Samson was blind, my dear, and when the Philistines showed him where to grope for those pillars, he pulled them down and killed those in the heathen temple—and himself, too."

Mrs. Dyer smiled a little; she too had not remembered where the phrase came from.

"But I can find no help in all this, Dr. Strong. I want to be sure of something; to have a place of rest to my soul. 'Maybe' is no Gospel to me."

"My dear, cannot you pray?"

"Pray! oh, what use is prayer? When Allen lay speechless with fever, and the doctor told me he was dangerously ill, do you think I did not pray? I groveled before God to save him; I prayed till my heart was dry and my brain weary. What was the good of it? I had no answer. No, I shall never pray again. I don't believe in it. It is no use. I do not even read the Bible."

"Now answer a few questions for me."

Just at this point there was another interruption; two younger children, both girls, came eagerly running into the room; one threw herself into her mother's lap; the other leaned against her knee; they were flushed with exercise, and held in their hands long trails of graceful vine, with bunches of transparent scarlet berries hanging among the green leaves.

"Look, mamma, what bu'ful berries."

"Pretty berries; nice? Ally eat berries, mamma?"

Mrs. Dyer's face stiffened with terror; if she could be paler, one might have said she grew colorless; quickly, without waiting to make her children speak to the guest, she gathered vines and berries out of the little hands and put them away in the nearest place that was high overhead, the upper shelf of a high bookcase. The children whimpered.

"O mamma, don't take my berries!"

"Pitty berries. Ally's berries," chimed in the younger, with a tone of possession and a sense of injustice in the baby voice.

"Dears, you cannot have them. Go to your nurse at once and get your bread and milk."

"Do you think they have eaten any?" asked Dr. Strong anxiously.

"Oh, no! I have taught them thoroughly never to taste anything without my leave. I used to put bitter water out of a quassia cup on any fruit they might be tempted to take; it was harmless, but it taught them that what I had forbidden them was not good to eat, and so they learned to ask for what they wanted."

The children turned away with tears in their eyes, and slowly went out of the door, Ally looking over her shoulder at the "pitty berries" placed out of her reach.

"My dear young friend," asked Dr. Strong solemnly, "do you love your children?"

"Love them?" she answered, the warm flush of indignation crimsoning her expressive face. "Why, they are all I have got to love; my very life. While Allen lived I had him to care for, to be with, to wait on. Now they are all."

"Why, then, did you not answer Harry when he asked if he might go to Dedham?"

"I did answer him, Dr. Strong. Did not you hear me tell him he must not go?"

"Yet you said God did not answer your prayers for your husband's life because he denied it. Is not 'no' as much of an answer as 'yes'?"

Her face changed, but she made no reply.

"You admit still, in spite of your doubts, that there is a God?"

"Yes; oh, yes; I cannot disbelieve that; it would be a return to chaos!"

"You will admit, too, perhaps, the old geometric axiom that the whole is greater than its part?"

She looked at him with surprise and inquiry in her eyes.

"Of course I do."

"Well, then, if God made this world, and made you, is it not probable that he knows more about your needs than you do?"

"I suppose so," she said half reluctantly.

"And if he knew enough to create this world and all the myriad worlds we see above and around us, is it not at least possible that you may not be able to understand always what he means in what he does?"

She colored again, and silently bowed her head.

"Why did you refuse to let your boy go to Dedham? He wanted to go so much."

"Oh, it is not safe for him to go on the water with only another boy; the pond is deep and the boys are so careless! I do want him to be a manly, courageous boy, but I will not let him go into possible danger for no other reason than his own pleasure."

"Why not, then, have explained all this to him?"

"Well, I have tried to train my children to trust me, to feel that I know best what is good for them. I have thought that to give them a reason for all I did was not so good for them as to learn to trust me. I think they ought to feel that I am their natural head and ruler, now Allen has gone. He had the same feeling. He used to say, 'We're king and queen in our home, and the children hereditary subjects.' I want to carry out his ideas."

"Why not let them guide themselves, and not have to ask you for everything they want?"

"Oh, I love to have them ask, as far as that goes, even if I believed in encouraging anarchy in my little kingdom. I love to give them whatever I can give, and to have them come to me with all their wants and wishes."

"And yet you have to deny them?"

"Yes, I must; but how it hurts me! I believe I could have cried with the babies this morning when I took away those tempting berries; but, Dr. Strong, they were berries of the deadly nightshade—certain death had they eaten them."

The doctor leaned back in his chair and put the finger tips of his wrinkled old hands together in the argumentative way not uncommon to elderly clergymen. He did not look at Mrs. Dyer, but straight at the ceiling, as he said in a dry, quiet tone:—

"How much better you are than God!"

Mrs. Dyer looked, and felt, shocked.

"Dr. Strong!" she exclaimed.

"My dear, I take you at your own showing. You find fault with God because he denies your request; but you denied Harry's. You think he had no reason to refuse what you asked; but you gave no reason to Harry. You did not tell your little girls that those berries were poisonous. You knew they would not understand what that meant, to be sure; but then you wish them to trust in your love and wisdom without reasons; yet you refuse to trust God, who is immeasurably wiser than you and imaginably more good than you are, in comparison, to your children. You have ceased to pray because you were denied the answer that you wanted. You said, 'My will be done,' and, because it was not done, you refused to speak to Him who made you. What if Harry should come in to-night and not speak to you again for months and years, because he could not go to Dedham? Would it seem to you reasonable, or the petty sulks of a spoiled child? Is not all this want of faith in you an assumption that God is not as good as you are to your children?"

Mrs. Dyer hid her face in her hands, while the doctor went on.

"I have for many years found much comfort and strength in observing how the good Lord hath made of human life an ever-present exposition of and witness to his ways. I think it is this in part which the text refers to that says, 'If any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine.' Try, my dear, to know God as your Father; treat your children as your own sense and conscience teach you; these are the voice of God in your soul; then act toward him as you would have your children act toward you. You will find out more religion in that way than you think. But do not try to find a poor human reason for the divine ways. Would you have a God whom you could measure? 'Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? It is as high as heaven; what canst thou do? deeper than hell; what canst thou know?' Tell me honestly, could you trust in a God whom you could understand? Would one be a help or defense to you who was less than omniscient or omnipresent?"

"No," said Mrs. Dyer in a low voice; "but I never thought of that."

"And for the Bible, why not read that for the stores of help and comfort instead of trying to pick out its faults? Of all books that Bible has most of what we call common sense in it, besides its beautiful Gospel record. A life guarded by its precepts is more than merely pious, it is practical and useful. 'Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.' Try, my child, to go back to your Father; talk with him in prayer, accept his will as it comes to you daily, and remember that he as well as you can say 'no' or 'yes' as he sees fit; either is an answer. If you love God as your children love you, would you doubt or turn away from him?"

Mrs. Dyer's eyes were streaming with tears now.

"I will try," she said; and years after she thanked Dr. Strong for helping her to escape her trouble. She is now an earnest Christian woman, a mother whom her children rise up and bless; but she has for a long time ceased to attend Mr. King's church.—Rose Terry Cooke in The Independent.

TEMPERANCE.

HOW STANDS THE ROMAN CHURCH.

BISHOP WATTERSON OPPOSED.

Interviews with several of the leading saloon-keepers of Columbus, Ohio, who are members of the Catholic societies indicate a disposition to ignore the recent anti-liquor pronunciamento of Bishop Watterson. The Bishop declared against the violation of Sunday laws, and prohibited the election of saloon-keepers to office in Catholic societies. Many of the Catholic saloon-keepers of Columbus were emphatic in their denunciation of the Bishop's action, while others, though less outspoken, were quite as earnest in their criticism of what they call the Bishop's interference in private business. Almost all express an intention to act as they please regardless of the orders of the Bishop or their church. The situation indicates the possibility of a serious schism in the church.

SACRAMENT REFUSED.

Father Joseph Costa of Galesburg, Ill., during a sermon in Corpus Christi Church, said it had come to his ears that certain Catholic saloon-keepers of Galesburg were keeping their places open Sunday and had been decoying young men there to the injury of their bodies and souls. He said those proprietors knew that was against the principles of the church and that men who would thus persist in violating laws were not worthy to be members of the Catholic church. He gave them the alternative of leaving the church or obeying the law and notified them he would not administer the sacraments to them or to Catholic bar-tenders until they manifested a willingness to obey the law. He began the organization of a temperance society in his congregation.

BISHOP MESSMER ON SALOONS.

The Green Bay Gazette prints an important interview with Bishop Messmer, giving his views on the temperance question as being in accord with Mgr. Satolli's position. However, he holds that Satolli's decree implies no legal force extending to dioceses other than Bishop Watterson's. Satolli only upholds Watterson. Bishop Messmer says that total abstinence is an excellent thing, but Prohibitionists are wrong and must remain unsuccessful. He says he is against saloons and all evils which emanate from it. Circumstances and conditions surrounding saloons lead to intemperance. Low means are used to attract business. Though he would prefer to see saloon-keepers not become members of Catholic societies he thinks their being shut out altogether is too severe. The Catholic church considers the manufacture and sale of natural products, such as wine and beer, not sinful, but deprecates adulterations in that respect.

HE MEANS BUSINESS.

Archbishop Ireland, in a recent address before the Minnesota Total Abstinence Association, said: "We thought we meant business years ago in this warfare against drink, but I hope God will forgive us for our weakness, for we went into the battlefield without sufficient resolution. We labored under the fatal mistake that we could argue out the question with the liquor-sellers. We imagined there was some power in moral suasion; that when we should show them the evil of their ways they would abandon the traffic. We have seen there is no hope of improving in any shape or form the liquor traffic. There is nothing now to be done but to wipe it out completely. I have lost too much of my time striving in the past to repair the fearful wrong of the liquor traffic. I have lost too much time in speaking of total abstinence in hall and pulpit to men who, while listening, were with me, but who, out in the streets, would be invited by the saloon-keeper to come and take a drink, and forget their resolutions. Well, some of us are growing old, and do not intend to be throwing away our time in arguing with people who will not be converted, and I for one am going to go in with terrible earnestness in the future in this war against liquor in all shapes. I mean business this time."

NOTHING REMARKABLE.

An item is going the rounds of the press to the effect that whisky is now manufactured out of old rags. We see nothing remarkable about this. Every one knows that nearly all the old rags now in the country are manufactured out of whisky, and there is no apparent reason why the process of conversion may not work as well one way as another: from whisky to rags, and from rags to whisky. What a beautiful business it is!—New York Observer.

Mr. Moody is said to have once entered a Gospel temperance meeting in a strange city with a blue ribbon in his button hole, whereupon he was asked, "Are you a reformed drunkard?" and answered, with his characteristic emphasis, "No, I am not." Upon which his questioner, nothing daunted, said, "Well, don't you think you ought to be?"

A saloon-keeper should not be allowed to sit on a jury or vote. A man who is so morally degraded as to engage in selling, for his own selfish gain, that which he knows robs men of their reason, injures their bodies and destroys their souls, is not to be trusted with the affairs and fortunes either of individuals or of this great nation.—Judge Randolph.

The Express figures it that every year the workingmen of Aurora pay $200,000 to the saloons of the city. The laborer who spends his money in the saloons will to-morrow think he is ground under the iron heels of capital. The laborer who saves his money to day becomes the capitalist to-morrow. No man can spend his money and have it too. The road to wealth and comfort does not lead through the saloon.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes affirms that the working classes in England spend no less sum than eighty million pounds annually on strong drink. If the commodity bought with this money was food it would give strength and ability to labor and there would be some return. If it were spent for clothing there would be some return; but it would be a blessing to the people if the money were deliberately taken from them and no strong drink given in its place, as compared with taking the money and giving the drink also.

A New York Sun correspondent notes a remarkable decrease in the consumption of alcoholic beverages at Saratoga, Lake George and White Mountain resorts. He says: "I can remember the time when in this hotel (Grand Union), then much smaller than it is now, a large force of barkeepers was required to supply the demands of the almost constantly crowded barroom, which was one of the most frequented quarters of the house. Now the barroom is never full, and only very few people are to be seen in it at any time. This house contains more than a thousand visitors, but in the huge dining-room, with hundreds of occupants, not a score of bottles of wine are observable. Champagne, formerly the favorite and frequent dinner beverage, rarely appears, and even of claret the consumption is small."

BIBLE LESSON.

THIRD QUARTER--QUARTERLY REVIEW.

LESSON XIV.—Studies in the Life of Jesus, Sept. 30.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1: 15.

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 2: 1-16. T.—Matt. 2: 1-12. W.—Luke 2: 40-52. Th.—Mark 1: 1-11. F.—John 1: 35-41. S.—John 3: 1-16. Su.—John 4: 9-26.

REVIEW.—Luke 2: 8-11, 40; Mark 1: 6-8; Matt. 4: 8-11; John 2: 15-17.

LESSON I.—Subject: The birth of Jesus, Luke 2: 1–16; or, the announcement. Golden Text: Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord, Luke 2: 11.

LESSON II.—Subject: Presentation in the temple, Luke 2: 25–38; or, Simeon's desire fulfilled. Golden Text: A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel, Luke 2: 32.

LESSON III.—Subject: Visit of the wise men, Matt. 2: 1–12; or, homage to the child Jesus. Golden Text: They saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshiped him, Matt. 2: 11.

LESSON IV.—Subject: Flight into Egypt, Matt. 2: 13–23; or, the infant Jesus divinely guarded. Golden Text: The Lord shall preserve thy going out, and thy coming in, Psa. 121: 8.

LESSON V.—Subject: The youth of Jesus, Luke 2: 40–52; or, our Lord's love of wisdom. Golden Text: And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men, Luke 2: 52.

LESSON VI.—Subject: The baptism of Jesus, Mark 1: 1–11; or, the prepared way. Golden Text: Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased, Mark 1: 11.

LESSON VII.—Subject: Temptation of Jesus, Matt. 4: 1–11; or, Satan vanquished. Golden Text: In all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin, Heb. 4: 15.

LESSON VIII.—Subject: First disciples of Jesus, John 1: 35–49; or, power of Jesus' testimony. Goden Text: We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, the Christ, John 1, 41.

LESSON IX.—Subject: First Miracle of Jesus, John 2: 1–11; or, Christ's glory manifested. Golden Text: This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory, John 2: 11.

LESSON X.—Subject: Jesus cleansing the temple, John 2: 13–25; or, separation from the world. Golden Text: Make not my Father's house a house of merchandise, John 2: 16.

LESSON XI.—Subject: Jesus and Nicodemus, John 3: 1–16; or, Bible regeneration. Golden Text: God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life, John 3: 16.

LESSON XII.—Subject: Jesus at Jacob's well, John 4: 9–26; or, the water of life. Golden Text: Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst, John 4: 14.

LESSON XIII.—Subject: Daniel's abstinence, Dan. 1: 8–29; or, power of a holy example. Golden Text: Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself, Dan. 1: 8.

HOW TO PREPARE A LESSON.

OUTLINE FOR DAILY STUDY.

I.—Ascertain the facts:

1. Sabbath evening. (Use Bible only.) Ask—Where is the lesson? What is it? Read the lesson carefully. Think. Pray.

2. Monday. (Bible only). Study connections, references, parallel passages. Fix time of the lesson.

3. Tuesday. (Bible, maps and Bible dictionary.) Persons, places and events of lesson.

II.—Analyze (Study) the Facts to Get Truths:

4. Wednesday. (Bible and concordance.) Study topically. Arrange outline, etc.

5. Thursday. (Consult lesson helps; best you can get.)

6. Friday. (Lesson helps, continued.) Review and correct, as to time, persons, places, etc.

III.—Arrange (Classify) Truths in Teaching Order:

7. Saturday. (Bible, pencil and paper.) Ask—What and how shall I teach? Perfect outline and plan of teaching. Write out questions. Select illustrations. Review your work. Ask—What more can be done?

8. Sabbath morning. (Alone with God and his Book.) Read lesson. Pray for light on the Word; for an earnest and tender heart; for receptive minds in your scholars.—Trumpet Call.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Seventy Japanese churches have invited Mr. Moody to go to Japan.

—Evangelist Hartsough closed his work at Iron River, Wis., August 5th. Forty-five have united with the church at that place.

—The Illinois Conference of the Free Methodists, meeting at Peoria, decided in favor of ordaining women as evangelists by a close vote.

—Three of the foreign missionaries of the United Presbyterian church, Rev. J. Howard Martin, Miss Dora Martin, and Mrs. E. M. Giffen, and a successful home missionary, Rev. S. E. Martin, of Superior, Neb., are children of Rev. J. W. Martin of Mt. Perry, Ohio. This is a good record for one family.

—Xenia, U. P. Presbytery, lately meeting at Clifton, O., had an interesting experience. Rev. August Anton Miller was received from the Miami Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. He is said to be a finished scholar and a fine theologian. One reason for his leaving the Cumberland Presbyterians and coming into the U. P. church is his opposition to oath-bound secret societies.

—The Illinois Wesleyan Conference lately met in Wheaton for a four days' meeting. Encouraging reports were received from the churches. President C. A. Blanchard, Secretary Phillips and the editor of the Cynosure were introduced to the body, and the former made an interesting but brief address on the calls God now makes upon the pulpit, as when Adam Crooks and his noble compeers bore the cross in days of slavery.

—The Wisconsin Lemonweir Association of Congregationalists and Presbyterians employs a Gospel tent which has been pitched at Nekoosa, eight miles below Grand Rapids. About thirty have given in their names to unite in forming a Congregational church. A house of worship has already been built, which will be given to the new church. Another Gospel tent has been used at Fox Lake, where the churches have been much revived. About eighty cards were signed.

—Rev. W. Howie and his people, of the Third United Presbyterian church, Chicago, says the Midland, are considering how they may be able to secure a building that will accommodate them at all. They cannot build a tabernacle, for the city will not allow a wooden building to be erected on the site. They are not able to build now a brick or stone church, and the board of church extension is not able to help them this year. They are considering the advisability of putting up the basement of a church and using it for a time.

—The Methodist Herald, in an editorial on "Fresh Air," says: "A somewhat quaint preacher, who was preaching in a stifling atmosphere, saw the janitor close the only window which was open. He reproachfully remarked, 'John, I believe if I were preaching in a jug you would put the cork in.' It does seem that something might be done to get fresh air into our churches. There is plenty of it, and it can be had anywhere by giving it a chance to come in. Let the janitors and trustees enter into a beneficent conspiracy to get fresh air into our prayer meetings and preaching services."

—The Rock River U. B. Conference closed at Coleta, Ill, on the Sabbath amid transports of victory. The "shout of a king" was among the people. Bishop Barnaby, of Michigan, preached a powerful sermon, and the people came in crowds. The stationing committee's report was as follows: Presiding Elder, C. Bender, Mendota, Ill; Kent, W. O. Dinius; Mt. Carroll, H. M. Byers; North Grove, W. J. Byers; Haldane, J. H. Grimm; Coleta, A. X. Harrison; Fenton, Miss Grace L. Smith; New Bedford, J E. Humbert; Van Orin, W. E. Mosier; Princeton, J. O. Swarts; Owen Center, J. W. Brewster; O. F. Smith and J J. Margileth, Evangelist.

—The Ohio yearly meeting of Friends was held lately at Damascus, O, and was attended by great numbers. A large number of speakers also were present from several States. This yearly meeting is departing, it seems, from the old teaching of the Friends respecting ordinances, and permits the rite of baptism. This year Rev. Dugan Clark, a professor in Earlham College, and one of the ablest of the Quaker preachers, was publicly baptized with six others. It is said that Dr. Clark's belief in this respect is shared in by a large number of the younger members of the society, but the elder and more conservative element profess indignation at the ceremony, and predict that it would result in his dismissal from the society.

—The New York Tribune calls attention to the fact that one of the most notable features of the reign of Emperor William is the extraordinary impulse which has been given during the last few years to the building of churches in various parts of the Empire. In Berlin alone no less than twenty-six new churches have either been erected or commenced since the accession of Emperor William, which, added to the four and twenty evangelical churches with which the Prussian capital was previously provided, will render Berlin as fully entitled to style itself "The City of Churches" as Brooklyn. These new churches represent a money value of 20,000,000 marks, 3,000,000 of which have been provided by the Emperor and the government, while all the remainder has been raised by voluntary contributions.

From

High Government Authority.

No authority of greater experience on food products exists than Dr. Henry A. Mott, of New York. Dr. Mott's wide experience as Government Chemist for the Indian Department, gave him exceptional opportunities to acquaint himself with the qualities and constituent parts of baking powders. He understands thoroughly the comparative value of every brand in the market, and has from time to time expressed his opinion thereof. On a recent careful re-examination and analysis he finds

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

superior to all others in strength, purity, and efficiency. Dr. Mott writes :—

"New York, March 20th, 1894.

I find Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder to be superior to all others, for the following reasons :—

1st. It liberates the greatest amount of leavening gas and is consequently more efficient.

2nd. The ingredients used in its preparation are of the purest character.

3rd. Its keeping qualities are excellent.

4th. On account of the purity of the materials and their relative proportions, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder must be considered the acme of perfection as regards wholesomeness and efficiency, and I say this having in mind certificates I have given several years ago respecting two other baking powders.

The reasons for the change in my opinion are based on the above facts and the new method adopted to prevent your baking powder from caking and deteriorating in strength.

HENRY A. MOTT, Ph. D., L. L. D."

CHARLES P. SUMNER, father of the Senator, and a renouncing Mason: "Masonic engagements, whether they are called oaths, obligations, or promises, ought never to be made. They are not sanctioned by law and are not obligatory. They make it a Masonic crime to divulge that which the good of the community requires should not be concealed."

WASHINGTON, to Rev. Mr. Snyder, Sept. 25, 1798, speaks of his illness, "which allows me to add little more now than thanks for your kind wishes and favorable sentiments, except to correct an error you have run into, of my presiding over the English lodges in this country. The fact is, I preside over none, NOR HAVE I BEEN IN ONE MORE THAN ONCE OR TWICE WITHIN THE LAST THIRTY YEARS."

CHIEF JUSTICE MARSHALL was the intimate friend and biographer of Washington, and was himself a Freemason in his youth. Marshall left the lodge in 1793. He had then for some sixteen years been acquainted with Washington, who died six years later. Marshall wrote to Hon. John Bailey from Richmond, Oct. 18, 1833, of Washington and Freemasonry: "I do not recollect ever to have heard him utter a syllable on the subject."

GEORGE WASHINGTON, to Friends in 1794, Quoted by Myron Holley: "The real people occasionally assembled in order to express their sentiments on political sentiments, ought never to be confounded with permanent, self-appointed societies, usurping the right to control constituted authorities, and to dictate to public opinion. While the former was entitled to respect, the latter was incompatible with all government, and must either sink into general dis-esteem, or finally overturn the established order of things."

GEORGE WASHINGTON. Rev. Ezra Styles, D.D., in the "Philadelphian," July 23, 1830: "Hitherto I have neither advocated nor opposed Masonry, unless it be in the relation of a conversation between General Washington and Governor Jonathan Trumbull the second, which the latter more than once repeated to my father. The latter, when aid de camp to the former, asked him if he would advise him to become a Mason. General Washington replied, 'that Masonry was a benevolent institution, which might be employed for the best or worst of purposes; but that for the most part it was merely child's play, and that he could not give him any advice on the subject.'"

THURLOW WEED: "I now look back through an interval of fifty-six years with a conscious sense of having been governed through the Anti-masonic excitement by a sincere desire, first to vindicate the violated laws of my country, and next to arrest the great power and dangerous influences of secret societies."

JOHN MARSHALL, Chief Justice, in a Letter to Edward Everett, July 22, 1833, said of Freemasonry: "That the institution ought to be abandoned, as one capable of producing much evil, and incapable of producing any good which might not be effected by safe and open means."

GEORGE WASHINGTON, in Farewell Address: "Let it simply be asked, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigation in the courts of justice? And let us with caution indulge the supposition, that morality can be maintained without religion."

JOHN MARSHALL: "I never did utter the words ascribed to me, nor any other words importing the sentiment they convey. I never did say, 'Freemasonry is a jewel of the utmost value, that the pure in heart and life can only appreciate it fully, and that in a free government it must, it will be sustained and protected.' The fact mentioned in the resolution, that I have been in a lodge but once, so far as I can recollect, for nearly forty years, is evidence that I have no disposition to volunteer in this controversy, as the zealous partisan which this language would indicate."—Letter to Hon. John Bailey, Oct. 18, 1833.

GEN. HENRY SEWELL, a Companion of Washington: "I was initiated an Entered Apprentice to the Masonic rites in October, 1777, at Albany, soon after the capture of Burgoyne, being then an officer in the American army..... I was led by the influence of this 'Perfect Rule of faith and practice,' during the year 1784, to view speculative Masonry in a shape still more deformed. Its character appeared to be selfishness, because restricted to its own members; its religion, deism, because entirely devoid of the Gospel. Its history appeared fabulous; its claims to antiquity, unsustainable; its titles, tulsome; its rites, barbarous and absurd; its oaths, extra-judicial, unlawfully imposed and blindly taken; and the penal sanctions annexed, horrid and impious."

HOME AND HEALTH.

HOW TO EAT APPLES.

As a luscious fruit, juicy and mellow, nothing surpases the apple. June apples come in just as strawberries are gone, and along with raspberries are quite as refreshing to the taste and as wholesome as that ever popular berry itself, than which "God never made a better." Although the season from the Early Harvest, Belle Fleur and Summer Sweeting, to Ben Davis and the Russett in autumn, to the crowning excellence of the fine red Pippins that are kept by the barrel for the family to eat, at any hour, during the winter, this delicious fruit serves many purposes, pandering to many tastes and appetites and subserving in a hygenic sense a very important part.

The acids of the apple, grape and berry differ somewhat in chemical properties but are alike in beneficial effects upon the system, especially in spring and summer.

The half is not told, however, of the good points of the apple, simply as a refreshing, sustaining fruit to eat fresh. The very cider mills would talk and pie pans clatter if no reference was made to the good things that can made from the apple. It is a boon to the housekeeper in keeping a good table. Every meal some dainty made from them can be set forth and all are tempting to the appetite.

Everybody that has an apple orchard, or even a tree, and a flour bin, knows how to make apple pies and dumplings, and for farmers' tables or for the millionaire nothing is nicer. Only one of these old and popular desserts will we give, but that one is too good to neglect:

Baked Apple Dumplings.—Peel, core and quarter any nice kind of apple: make a light, flaky pastry and roll thin. Cut it in sections as large as a saucer. Lay two or three quarters of the mellow apple on the pastry and besprinkle it with sugar. Catch up all the corners of the pastry and press firmly together over the apple. Lay them in a bowl or pan, with the smooth side up, and put half a teaspoonful of butter, and teaspoonful of of sugar with a little nutmeg on top of each. Pour boiling water an inch deep around them and bake in the stove till the dumplings are nicely browned. Serve hot with sweetened cream for sauce, or in lieu of cream, the water in which they were steamed makes a well seasoned sauce.

Fried Apples for breakfast is a very popular dish in the South. Cut them evenly into circular slices, rather thin, and fry a nice light brown, and while they are hot sprinkle liberally with sugar.

Apple Float is always nice to eat with any kind of light cake in summer season, for dinner or tea. Boil the apple till tender and press through a sieve till the whole pulp is entirely free from lumps. Sweeten to taste and beat through it the whites of several eggs that have already been well frothed. Lemon juice or nutmeg can be added if flavoring is desired. Now pour the float into a handsome glass bowl, and on top, with a large spoon, heap the whipped whites of eggs or whipped cream and dust sugar and nutmeg over it, and here and there drop clear apple jelly on it. Eat with cream, plain or whipped.

Apple Sponge is made by dissolving gelatine and mixing the apple, boiled, pressed through a sieve, and sweetened to taste, with it and freezing. The juice of a lemon or two squeezed into the gelatine improves the flavor of the sponge. Serve with whipped cream.

Apple Butter of the very best kind is made by boiling the apples in cider, stirring and boiling slowly until it is so stiff the spoon will stand up in it. Put into shallow bowls; when cold, it will slice like cheese, and keep perfectly well for a year.—Mrs. J. T. Drennan, in Farm, Field and Fireside.

No other sarsaparilla has equalled Hood's in the relief it gives in severest cases of dyspepsia, sick headache, biliousness, etc.

Ayer's WAS THE ONLY Sarsaparilla ADMITTED AT THE * World's Fair. GET The Best.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1883

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Sept. 3 to Sept. 15:

J S Thompson, Mrs M R Berry, S F Fisher, T W Stewart, Rev A F Dempsey, C K Green, S Russell, Mrs M M Ames, Elder R Smith. Rev W O Dinius, W O Percival, J Richardson, I Meeker, D H Coulterr, P Kirbs, H Frost, D H Harrington, J A Black, J Matthews, D K Lawrence, D Ault, E W Hollopeter, Rev Z Darby, E W Alger, D H C Salisbury, Rev M Mathieson, J Davis, T Gunn, W Patterson, J S Culbertson.

Everybody is Going South Now-a-days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00

PILES DR. HILL'S GREAT SPECIFIC promptly cures where all other remedies fail. In use 85 years. 50c. per box. Mailed free. CHEMICAL SPECIALTY WORKS. Syracuse, N. Y.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.
—BY—
MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

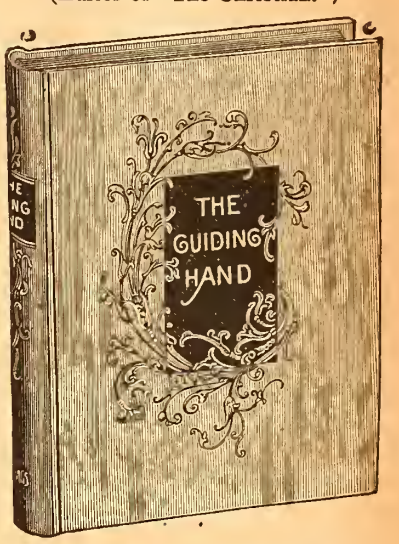
MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	53	@	54¼
Winter No. 2	53	@	53¼
Corn—No. 2	54¼	@	55⅛
Oats—No. 2	30⅛	@	33⅜
Rye—No. 2	46⅛	@	47⅛
Bran per ton	12 00	@	13 00
Hay—Timothy	8 50	@	11 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	15	@	16
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 30
Flax	1 26	@	1 28
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	8 55
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	75	@	85
Hides—Green to dry flint	02⅛	@	06⅛
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	10	@	21
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 30	@	6 10
Common to good	2 00	@	5 20
Hogs	3 75	@	6 60
Sheep	1 50	@	3 30

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	57⅝		58⅞
Corn No 2	63¼
Oats	37⅛	@	40⅛
Rye	52	@	52⅛
Eggs	14⅛	@	18⅛
Butter	13	@	24
Wool	19	@	25



KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25	@	5 25
Hogs	2 75		5 72
Sheep	2 00	@	3 25

THE GUIDING HAND;
—OR—
PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid	.35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid	.30
Cloth covers, postpaid	.50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid	.40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARBOIN.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

The Past
Guarantees
The Future

The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured thousands of others is certainly sufficient reason for belief that it will cure you. It makes pure, rich, healthy blood, tones and strengthens the nerves, creates an appetite, and builds up the whole system. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's. Cures

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, hand made, perfect in proportion and appearance.

FARM NOTES.

FALL PLANTING OF STRAWBERRIES.

The soil for strawberries should always be rich, and this is especially necessary for fall set plants, as they cannot send their roots to a great distance in search of food in the short time in which they have to grow. Old, well decomposed stable manure is excellent, and pleney of it should be used. It is well to apply it after the land is plowed, and then harrow it until the horses have stepped on every square foot. If the bed be small, the manure can be worked in with a hoe. If commercial fertilizer is to be used—I always depend on it—it may be scattered on the surface near the plants as soon as they are set. If bone dust be used, it may be raked into the surface before planting.

The soil should be made firm before the plants are set. This will insure their bearing, and will help keep them from being thrown out by the frost. If one is planting a large patch, which is seldom done in the fall, it is well to roll the soil. This not only makes the bed firm and smooth, but also enables one to see just where the surface is, and to set the plants at the proper depth. In planting a small bed my plan is to stretch the line where the row is to be and spat it down with the back of a spade. This gives a smooth surface with the impression of the line for a guide.

If the soil be dry, I cover the surface around the plants with a mulch of some kind, and give one thorough watering. An excellent plan is to cut some grass when it is short and green, and scatter it all over the plants. This gives them shade just when they need it, and as the grass dries up they become strong enough to do without shade.

If one is using potted plants it is a good way to have the bed prepared some days in advance, and a hole made for each plant. The holes may be filled several times with liquid manure which will soak into the soil and leave it in fine condition for the plants. In using layers it is a good plan to set them temporarily in loamy soil where they can be watered and shaded for a week. Then after a good watering they can be taken up with the soil adhering. These are as good as potted plants. If one wants potted plants without paying heavy express charges, he can accomplish it by buying layers and potting them as soon as received. They should then be placed where they can be watered and shaded as they need, until the roots reach the pot. Three-inch pots are large enough. If the roots are too long, they may be shortened. This method insures the plant sagainst receiving any check in transplanting, which alone is enough to commend it.

After plants are set they should be hoed so frequently that no crust can form on the surface, nor any weeds grow. It is a wise precaution to give fall-set plants winter protection. There is so much bare ground between them that they are liable to be heaved out. On sandy or gravelly soil where the drainage is good there is no danger. Even on clay soil the danger is diminished by having good surface drainage and the soil well firmed, also by setting the plants early enough so that they may become well established before freezing weather comes.—M. Crawford, in Farm, Field and Fireside.

DON'T PAINT YOUR BEEHIVES RED.

Beehives should be painted white or drab, but when there are many of a kind they may have door-marks so each bee can know its own, by spattering paint of different colors on the front, I had four hives painted a bright red by order of the gentleman I sold them to, and in the summer heat the combs all melted down. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Orchard grass roots run near the surface, and it furnishes a rich herbage before clover is ready to cut or feed. If not fed or cut down early the grass soon hardens, sending up a woody stem which is of comparatively little value. Left so long as this the vigor of the plant is weakened, and the second growth is less. By cutting early orchard grass can be made to furnish three crops in a season, if the soil be rich enough to grow them.

A correspondent of the American Cultivator says that the fall-planted trees are always superior to those set out in spring. In nine cases out of ten the trees will do better and the loss will be much less. The time for transplanting is about the latter part of September, selecting a time right after a rain, when the ground is moist. Planted at that time, the trees will immediately take root, and before cold weather is here they will get well established.

The recent letter from the Judge of Awards on Baking Powders at the Chicago World's Fair, exposing the falsity of the claim of a Chicago house that its baking powder had received the highest award for strength, purity, excellence, etc., is a scathing rebuke to those manufacturers of inferior baking powders who have no regard for the truth, but habitually seek, in their public announcements, to deceive consumers. The Judge of Awards states that no such award was given to the Chicago concern, and has notified it that it must cease publishing his name in connection with its false statements.

Three Home Seeker's Excursions.

To all parts of the West and Northwest via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway at practically half rates. Round trip tickets, good for return passage within twenty days from date of sale, will be sold on September 11 and 25 and October 9, 1894.

For further information apply to the nearest coupon ticket agent or address G. H. Heafford, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

FARM FOR SALE.

A quarter section in Kearney county, Nebraska,

WILL BE SOLD AT A BARGAIN.

Description: Southwest quarter of Section 31, Township 8, North, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian.

ONLY $500 CASH FOR 160 ACRES.

Large bodies of cattle have ranged over and been herded on this and adjacent land. It is pretty well covered with grass. The soil as a whole is quite sandy, especially on the hills; the little valleys have the best soil.

It is near two railroad towns. Lowell is within two miles, and Hartwell is about five miles distant. All taxes are paid to date. Must be sold soon if possible. Address, W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ills.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

A Frugal Meal.

It's house-cleaning time. Every one tired and cross; every thing out of place and wrong end foremost. No time to fool away in cooking; no fire, probably; no appetite, perhaps; no comfort, certainly.

No Pearline — that's the cause of it. A little Pearline, when you're cleaning house, makes the whole thing smooth and easy. With anything about the house that isn't hurt by water, you can save time and hard work by using Pearline. You won't have to use that rub, rub, rub, in getting the dirt off. And that saves other things, your paint, for instance.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 318 JAMES PYLE, New York.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.

Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

LODGE LAMP

a monthly of choice articles on the

SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM,

which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" compriscs the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837. at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. H. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

BAKING POWDER AWARDS.

(Data from the latest Official U. S. Gov't Report on Baking Powders, Dep't of Agriculture, Bulletin 13, page 599. From tests made by the Chief of the Chemical Division, who acted as Judge of Awards at the World's Columbian Exposition.)

ROYAL is placed first of the cream of tartar powders; actual strength, 160.6 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder.

Every other powder tested exhibited a much lower strength than the ROYAL, the average being 33 per cent. less.

Every other powder likewise showed the presence of alum, lime or sulphuric acid.

Royal Baking Powder has been found by every examination—official or competitive—to be the highest of ALL in leavening power, and of absolute purity and wholesomeness.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

The report of the statistician of the Department of Agriculture for the month of September shows a decline in the condition of corn to 63.4 from 69.1 in the month of August and 95 in the month of July. This is a decline of 5 7 points from the August and 31.6 from the July condition. The change is marked in nearly all of the great corn States,

COUNTRY.

It is predicted that the woman suffrage amendment will be carried at the coming election in Kansas, by a large majority.

While planting flowers in a cemetery at Homeworth, Ohio, a tombstone fell on S isan Johnson, an aged woman, inflicting fatal injuries,

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, the temperance advocate, was defeated in her suit for damages against Congressman Morse at Boston.

Trade reviewers agree that business continues to steadily improve. Gross railroad earnings for August show an increase for the first time this year.

The petition of the State of Louisiana through its district attorney, Charles A. Butler, was, at the request of twenty-five resident citizens and taxpayers, filed in the civil district court for a suit of impeachment proceedings against Mayor Fitzpatrick.

The first city election held in Iowa since the passage of the law giving women a right to vote on municipal matters, was held in Sigourney on the 10th. Seventy-four women voted on a proposition to bond the city for a water-works system, and the project was carried by a big majority.

The result of the election in Maine indicates that the State has re-elected Gov. Cleaves (Rep.) over Charles F. Johnson (Dem) by a majority which will exceed 37,000, the largest in the history of the party. The Republicans have carried every county in the State, and the Legislature will have a Republican majority of 125, which insures the re-election of Senator Wm. P. Frye. Thomas B. Reed has been re-elected to Congress by a plurality estimated at 10,000. Nelson Dingley, the friend of Sabbath reform, has been returned by a majority nearly as great.

Vermont returns show the Republican majority to be 27,310, and the plurality 28,356.

The Minnesota State Railway and Warehouse Commission has issued a general order cutting railway rates on all grain 15 per cent. The commission took into consideration the fact that wheat had fallen largely in price, and, on the other hand, that railway earnings had largely diminished, and split the difference, giving the farmer and the railway company each half the benefit

FOREIGN.

Advices from Australia says that another immense nugget of gold was found at Coolgardie. It weighs 1,800 ounces and is worth over $30,000. It was taken from a reef, the whole face of which glitters with gold. Tremendous excitement prevails, and since the find property has increased at the diggings 500 per cent.

After suspension of nearly five years, it is reported that work is to be resumed on the colossal Panama canal project some time next month. French and American capitalists have been quietly preparing the way during the last few months, and now are nearly ready to begin operations. Estimates recently made place the cost of completion at 500,000,000 francs, instead of 900,000,000 francs, as estimated by the French commissioners. 60,000,000 francs has already been provided. A considerable part of the ready money consists of restitutions forced from those who came by the company's funds unlawfully.

The Chinese army in Northern Corea is reported in a deplorable condition. The Chinese generals are said to have proved themselves to be grossly incompetent and the officers of lower grades are discontented and disheartened, while the rank and file of the Chinese army are exhausted and dispirited.

The Japanese are said to be maintaining such a strict blockade of the Corean coast that not even the smallest vessel can get through. Hundreds of Chinese soldiers are reported to have died of want and exposure, and much sickness is said to exist in their ranks. On the other hand the Japanese are well prepared for actve operations.

Dispatches from Fusan bring addltional confirmations of the reports that Southern Corea has risen against the Japanese. It also seems to be confirmed that the Japanese force of 2,000 men who attempted to march from Fusan to Seoul met with disaster serious enough to compel them to return to the former place with 1,200 of their number missing.

Thirty-six students in the high schools at Tarnopal, Austrian Galicia, have been arrested for conspiring to establish a Polish kingdom.

A French special envoy has been dispatched on a mission to the capital of Madagascar, to present the French demands upon the Malagassy government.

The French press says that the mission means an effectual protectorate over Madagascar; that it will lead to war, and the French government is prepared for such a result.

At Poonah City, Bombay, a riotous fight took place Wednesday at midnight between Mohammedans and Hindoos. All business is suspended and the streets are patrolled by a squadron of lancers. The Governor of Bombay, Lord Harris, is doing his utmost to reconcile the warring parties. A pamphlet in leaflets has been issued by fourteen Brahmins urging the Hindoos to arm and inaugurate a religious outbreak as the first step toward the overthrow of alien power.

A disastrous fire, attended with considerable loss of life, is reported to have occurred at Chung King, China, the evening of Aug. 25. The conflagration is said to have raged all night, and before midnight the whole of the southeastern portion of the city was in flames. About thirty persons are known to have perished during the fire, and it is probable that this number is far less than the truth.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

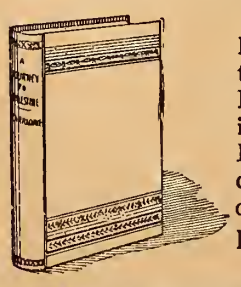
BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elementai, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.



NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Cook E A
17 River St.
May
95

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 3. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,274.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Chinese on the Badge... 8
Anti-Romanist Movement. 8
Prof. Ely's New Case.. 8
Lodge Secrets Gone, what is Left? 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Society (a poem)..... 2
The Unhallowed Sabbath..... 2
Never Reveal and Ever Conceal..... 3
SELECTED:
Why France has Anarchists..... 3
The Church and the World..... 3
Possibilities for Evil of Organized Secrecy.... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
New England Convention; Up and Down the Mississippi; Among the Hop-yards of the Willamette..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Rock River U. B. Conference; Wining them from the Lodge; Pith and Point..... 6
The G. A. R. at Pittsburg 9
LITERATURE 6
Science Notes..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
Schools and Colleges..... 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

The practical annihilation of the Chinese forces in Corea, by the late double victory of Japan on land and sea, is an opportunity not to be lost by lovers of international peace all over Christendom. Why should not the numerous church gatherings this fall take it up in earnest resolution? The International Peace Congress has adopted a memorial to be presented to each government in Europe, with a view to putting an end to the war. In America we have seen no movement except among the Chinese and Japanese Freemasons of Minnesota. In their Grand Lodge meeting at St. Paul, hey voted that the war was untimely so far as Mongolian Freemasonry is concerned, and want it ended.

But in Chicago, it is reported, the Gee-Hing, a Chinese secret Masonic society, lately held a national lodge meeting over the war. The reputed "initiation" of this society includes a ceremony in which everybody present draws some of his blood, which is caught in a tankard, which is sipped by all, including the initiates. This "goes one better" on the Knight Templar skull-tipping scene. The Gee-Hing is not at peace with the Emperor of China, but plot the overthrow of that "son of heaven." If it should appear that this widespread Chinese secret society has dry rotted the Celestial army, so that it has easily fallen to pieces, it will furnish another lesson from history of the danger of secret political societies

---

The temperance parade ordered for the 10th of October in this city promises to share equal honors with Romanism. The union managing it is heavily officered by Catholics, and of the two speakers last announced Bishop Watterson of Columbus, O., is one, and Miss Willard the other. In view of all the circumstances connected with the bishop's trumpeted assault on the saloon, it would hardly seem to require a street demonstration. It will need much stronger proof than that to give it a genuine temperance character. The Romanist churches have already begun to parade for "temperance." Last Sabbath one of these in Chicago turned out with brass bands and great disturbance to prove their right to be reformers by marching the street after their priest. Such temperance is too mixed to be genuine.

An unusual state of affairs exists in New Mexico, a majority of the people there being under the influence largely of Jesuit priests. In order to Americanize them (as in many of their schools they teach Spanish only) a suggestion was made that the English language should be taught as one of the branches in their schools. An amendment to this effect was offered requiring a provision to be placed in the constitution of the incoming State as follows: "and in all of which public schools the English language shall be taught as a branch of study, but not to the exclusion of other languages." The people of this country will be astounded to know that an American Congress defeated this proposition, although donating millions of acres of public lands to be used for school purposes, the proceeds of which may be used for teaching where the nation's language is unknown.

It thunders all around the horizon of municipal rascality. Dr. Parkhurst and the Lexow committee are after Tammany and the corrupt police of New York. Dr. Lansing is opening a heavy battery in Boston. Judge Wartele is terrifying guilty officials in Montreal. In Chicago, the Civic Federation, by its committee, of which Rev. W. G. Clarke is chairman, is making a storm center that has already swept down upon the gambling houses like a Nebraska cyclone. This Federation was formed last winter to promote municipal reforms and secure enforcement of the laws, with a special view to the suppression of gambling and the Sunday saloon. Several weeks ago the Sunday baseball game was attacked. Then raids began to be made by the sheriff with orders procured from court. Mr. Clarke published the names of about a hundred places where gaming was practiced, and after several seizures and some defeats Mayor Hopkins was forced by the popular pressure to shut the gambling houses. A great meeting was held at Central Music Hall last Sabbath, which overflowed into the First Methodist church. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed, and when one speaker attempted an apology for the Mayor he was almost hissed down. A great work is being done, and there will be fewer tramps to feed in Chicago next winter if it is pushed on.

Ex-Governor St. John, says an item going the round of the press, spoke in an Eastern State to an audience consisting of 1,000 persons. Nine hundred and ninety-one were men, and nine were women. It was in a prison. The next night, in the same town, he was at a prayer meeting where fifty seven were present. Fifty-two were women, and five were men. If the night after he had gone to the Masonic lodge, which he long since renounced, he would have found all men and no women. Men join the lodge to keep out of prison, and are not disappointed. The lodge provides for immunity to crime, and is not, therefore, directly a feeder of the prison. But counting those who are in prison and those who ought to be, the proportion in St. John's first audience would have put the women almost altogether out of sight.

It has been remarked that the information of the recent judicial condemnation and suppression of the "police papers" in Philadelphia, a result never before attained in the history of the city, seemed to have been sedulously suppressed by the enterprising telegraphers of the news, although there was here at hand an item which would have been helpful to the cause of good morals in a hundred cities of the land. On the other hand, there was sent abroad from New York since the above civic incident occurred a "special telegram" of fifty lines, giving with unconcealed satisfaction the details of the failure of the well-known Secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, to prevent the sale of certain works of "standard literature" which were claimed to be grossly indecent. Will it be said that the animus of such telegraphic reporting is that of a mind that "rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth?" But here is a dispatch that will have strengthened the hands of the purveyors of immoral literature in every city of the land, and particularly because of the gusto of strong approval with which it was launched forth.

Which is preparing for Statehood, Utah or the Mormon church? The act of Congress provides for the admission of Utah when a State constitution and other preliminaries are completed by act of the people. The "Latter-day Saints" are preparing for the same event. Articles of incorporation were filed on the 13th inst. by "The Utah Company." This new organization sets forth as its objects "To buy, own, hold, use, sell, lease and otherwise dispose of real and personal property of every nature and kind, including the capital stocks of other corporations; to make and execute contracts for the building and equipment of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, bridges and other works, both public and private, and to receive in payment for the same, stocks, bonds or other securities, or money; to obtain, use and deal in grants of rights of way, water rights, water powers, and easements, and to generate, vend, lease and deal in electric powers and franchises; to manufacture and operate mills and machinery, and to do a general contracting and financial business." There is little else to be done in Utah but in popular phrase "to own the earth." This company is capitalized at $10,000,000; and of the 100,000 shares, Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, and Joseph F. Smith hold 66,382. But these three individuals are the presidents of the Mormon church! Evidently the "Latter-day Saints" are also preparing for Statehood.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

SCENE SECOND.

(A winter's evening in the pastor's study. Present, the Rev. John Graham and Dea. Austin, bricklayer and stonemason.)

[Enter Dea. Austin.]

MR. GRAHAM:—

Welcome, my brother; take this easy seat
Before the fire. I'm very glad you're come,
For like true branches of the self-same vine
Our lives grow ever, bearing, as I trust,
Some fruitage for the Master. All day long
The storm has beaten mercilessly down.
I've watched the writhings of the wind-whipped trees;
I've watched the passers hurrying through the drifts,
Blowing their fingers, or with lusty slap
Trying to keep the circulation up.
And I have thought that all this warring storm
Is like the purblind world that staggers on
In darkness to its doom;
Because its face is turned away from Him
Who is its light.

DEA. AUSTIN:—

Such thoughts as these like somber restless ghosts
Have filled my mind this gloomy afternoon;
But are they not the children of the storm,
The morbid fancies born of frowning skies,
Rather than things that have the life and form
Of grim realities?
Three weeks ago, for one bright, brief half-hour
I listened to a sermon that was like
The leap of waters in a thirsty land.
With beaming eyes and countenance aglow,
With hope and gladness was proclaimed the day
About to burst upon a waiting world.
The Gospel message on swift fect of steam;
The Gospel message flashing o'er the wires;
The Gospel message in thin paper flakes
Descending on the households of the world;
Grim war abolished by inventive power
That makes it all too terrible for man;
Material progress in a single year
Producing more than centuries of the past;
Light from a thousand centers breaking forth,
Radiant with new-found glories for the race;—
In fact, the cloudless morning well begun
That ushers in the glad millennium.

REV. MR GRAHAM:—

I grant you all the speaker may have said;
I grant you more: our stately charities,
That for the weak, the suffering, and the blind,
Rise like the very outposts of the heavens.
I grant you zeal and love and sacrifice,
And men and women from whose souls exhale
The fragrance of the lands beyond the sun.
But what of the saloon whose open mouth
Devours our substance, making sots and slaves
According to the limit of the law
That gives them life? What of the Christian state,
That for so many dollars sells the right
To manufacture drunkards, and upholds
This murder business with its hedge of steel?

What of the lodge, whose caverns dark and deep
Have swallowed up our manhood, till the church,
God's holy church, the white-robed bride of Christ,
Is but a home for women and for babes,
With here and there a man who nobly stands
A lonely pillar in the house of God?
What of the riot of our social life,—
The dizzy dance, the cards, the rich, red wine,
That once were frowned upon and yet stand charged
With being smooth-tongued guides that lead astray?

What of the struggle deepening with the years,
Now well-nigh desperate, where the money power,
Hard grappling with the Samson of the mill,
Cries out for armies to maintain itself?

What of the great dark system that enslaves
The free born thought, and subjects to the priest
The spirit that should bow to none but God?
While busy Jesuits silently construct
Their plans infernal, marking their advance
With the green forest of fair promises?
Do all these tell the morning well begun?
Or do we hear, through half stripped autumn woods,
The first low moanings of the coming storm?

MR. AUSTIN:—

Who can work bravely on a sinking ship?

MR. GRAHAM:—

I know no sinking ships, but those that bear
A load of sin, full freighted for perdition.
And for the earth, which drank the offered blood
Of her great Lord, and furnished him a grave,
It is the purpose of the changeless God
To give it to his Son; that, where he wore
The crown of thorns, upon his brow may rest
The diadem of universal power;
That where his pilgrim feet in sorrow trod
There shall be seen the might and grace of God.

As when a ravening wolf with bloody fangs
Hears the sharp rifle crack and rolls in death,
So evil then shall give one gasp and die!
Then every tree shall grow with statlier grace;
Then every wild flower in the great wild wood
With richer tints and sweeter breath shall grow;
Then milder skies and gentle rains shall bring
A wondrous fruitage to the husbandman,
And life through all its varied forms shall know
The days of restitution.
The earth shall dance before the beaming sun,
The gladdest planet of the worlds of God.
Who was the speaker whose strong hopeful heart
Saw such a glory in the present storm?

DEA. AUSTIN:—

The Rev, Robert Gladden,
I know him well, a very man of God;
And though we see not eye to eye on this Important question of our thoughts to-night,
Yet I do know
That to the measure of his present light
He has been faithful.

(To be continued.)

THE UNHALLOWED SABBATH.

BY JOSIAH W. LEEDS.

It has been stated that not one-half the population of New York city ever attend a place of worship. The editor of a religious paper in the great metropolis, remarking upon this lamentable non-attendance, said that this "stay from meeting" habit was getting to be more and more the case in the country. He had lately visited a friend living in a beautiful district, about thirty miles from the city. As they were riding along past some fine residences, he asked, "Where do these people attend church?" "Nowhere," was the reply. "On the Sabbath they work on their farms, and compel their laborers to work; but they never go to church."

A few days ago, having occasion to go up the Hudson River by boat, I remembered an article read in a paper some years since, telling of a young business man and his bride, similarly journeying up the beautiful stream, and how, as they passed this or that elegant mansion upon the verdure-clad heights overlooking the river, the husband told of the domestic infelicity of the occupants, which neither abundance of this world's wealth nor beauty of external surroundings could cure. When the narrator had sufficiently illustrated his theme, they were united in concluding that there was nothing in one's earthly possessions that could truly compensate for the lack or the loss of that attitude of mind which turns to the Lord for guidance, and which would know of that wisdom concerning which it is said, her ways are "pleasantness, and all her paths are peace."

One of the most potent agencies of the evil one in effecting the forgetfulness spoken of, and in inducing an indifference towards attendance of assemblies called for a religious purpose, is unquestionably the "Sunday paper." To serve their summer patrons, it is the custom of some of the so-called "great dailies" to have their First-days' edition ready by daylight, to send by train express to the seaside and mountain pleasure resorts, that they may be receivable at the earliest possible hour of the day. The edition is a special, enlarged, news-and-gossip compilation, with large space given to the stage, sports and scandal. The sending out and dissemination of these sheets cannot be called a work of necessity or mercy, and it remains a great wrong, and an agency for wholesale demoralization, that the main railway lines, as well as the postoffice department, are made to serve both the selfish purposes of the publishers, and an unwholesome craving on the part of many people for a kind of reading that is the reverse of morally stimulating.

In the cities, there is a great deal of avoidable serving of articles of food on the first day of the the week. A worthy woman, to whom I rented, on behalf of a relative, a small grocery store in a manufacturing district of the city, complained to me that as she was obliged to rise between four and five o'clock six mornings in the week to serve the demands of her customers; she would be very glad indeed to have the only remaining day for rest and religious observance, as she believed was the intent of both the moral and civil law. Her patrons received their pay at the end of the week, and she kept open her store longer that night than other nights to serve them; but they had fallen into the habit of leaving a part of their purchases to be made until early on the day when her store ought to remain closed. A grocer, similarly situated, writing to one of the daily papers on this subject, said that having found all notifications to his customers ineffectual, he had adopted the plan of driving off with his family to a relative in the country, leaving a placard on the store front that he would re-open as usual the following morning.

In this county of many dairies there are creameries to be found every two or three miles apart, and I believe it is generally thought that they need to be operated on First-days as on other days. I have not inquired much about this. The introduction of creameries has much lessened the amount of work to be done by women on a farm, so that the lack of hired female help can be a little better borne than would be the case did all the butter-making work for the home and the market need to be done by hand, as formerly. I was interested in recently reading an account of a person by the name of Carr, who, upon entering into the creamery business in Kane county, Illinois, more than ten years ago, resolved that he would undertake to keep his factory closed on the first day of the week. His rule, which was to receive the late milking of Seventh day at that time, met with vigorous opposition, but it was inflexibly maintained. Says the account:

"That his business has not suffered by his Christian consistency in this direction is abundantly attested by the fact that it has increased to six creameries, having about three hundred patrons, none of whom have been served on Sunday. Indeed, the neighboring farmers have learned that the right way is the best way; and while some of them have churned at home, others, by exercising ordinary care, have been enabled to keep their milk sweet until Monday morning, and then delivered it at the creamery."

Many will probably be ready to say that the plan would be quite impracticable with them, and, unless the operator and those who contribute the milk supplies are quite agreed upon the matter, its trial would certainly not progress satisfactorily. I simply record the statement of this successful effort for what it may be worth in the way of suggestion and example.

A less defensible occupation upon the day, mostly indulged in by visitors from the city, is the employment of the photographic camera, for taking landscape views and other pictures. Here is a historic old mansion or meeting-house, there a fine grouping of trees, with cattle grazing, or a picturesque mill with exquisite water reflections in the still forebay. The commercially-prepared plates are ready at hand. Why may I not indulge my artistic tastes on First-day in a quiet way, and secure some results that will give pleasure to my friends? Probably few know the extent to which this "quiet" business is pursued in our cities. It may be that scarcely any one who reads these remarks will have heard that the eminent photographer Bogardus, who for forty years held a front rank in the profession in New York city, felt obliged at last to withdraw from the business because he was not willing, he said, "to break the Sabbath, and to do that was the only possibility of a remunerative trade."

In closing his gallery, Abram Bogardus left this certification upon the subject. He instanced one prominent Broadway establishment, which advertised that it would be open five hours "on Sunday, for the accommodation of business men who cannot spare the time for a sitting during the week." The proprietor of one of the now prominent club galleries claims that he makes from eighty to one hundred and thirty sittings every clear Sabbath. The famous galleries, although not exactly open to the public, are ready to make appointments, and prefer that day to execute the pictures of the popular actors, singers, etc ; and most of the small places, after passing a dull week, expect to make up on the First-day business enough to give them a profit over the week's expenses.....A few days ago an attempt was made to close up the violators of the Sabbath, but it was not successful, and several of the prominent men in that effort, seeing no remedy, now keep open, and find their purses better filled, their bank account much larger, and their credit much better with the stock dealer." This conscientious witness is to be much commended for the stand taken by him, and for testifying against the mischievous practice with which he refused to become entangled.

In the second month of 1893, after a term of continuous severe cold beyond any previously recorded, the writer, being at Niagara Falls on a

First-day, was witness of a nearly fatal attempt of a photographer to obtain a striking picture of the great cataract. He had placed his camera on its tripod upon the narrow parapet, covered with frozen snow and ice, above the walk at the ex treme end of Goat Island, and clambering up to it, slightly readjusted the apparatus preparatory to taking the picture. At that instant a leg of the tripod slipping from its place, dashed down the rock and into the plunging waters immediately below. Had the owner of the instrument had a less steady head he would have likely also gone over into the awful chasm. It was a relief to see him gather up his traps and depart.

Along the street of the town leading down towards the Falls there was a succession of liquor saloons that seemed to be all doing a very active business. My companion and myself, at the house where we stayed, were solicited to join with others in a sleighing party "to see the sights," but we felt best satisfied to defer the regular work of sight-seeing until the following day (the only other day of our visit); and though it proved to be rainy, windy, and very unpropitious for the purpose, we had no regret that we had relinquished a pleasure-ride on the first day of the week.

We observe inducements thrown out to indulge in recreation of the aforesaid kind, in the advertisement of "Sunday Sacred Concerts" to be given in the grove at Lenape on the Brandywine's side, three miles from here. But schemes of this character, whether of the purely money-making sort, or whether more or less benevolently projected, appear calculated to put the people pleasantly asleep, and not at all to stir them up to a sober consideration of the purpose of their being and a sense of accountability for a right use of their time. Let us hope that in due time the harmony of the undeceiving invitation, more effectually reaching than music of trumpet, violin, or flute, may be sounded by true messengers of the Lord (whether it be on the first day or any other day) in the grove at Lenape: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

Philadelphia.

NEVER REVEAL AND EVER CONCEAL.

BY CYRUS SMITH.

The discussion of the secrecy question is right, and should be conducted in a friendly spirit toward all. It is of vital importance to learn if possible the relation of the lodge to the church of Christ, and no one can rightly be offended at those who try to promote such an investigation. The lodge is wrong because it denies the right of investigation to outsiders. It is claimed that those who do not belong to the lodge "Don't know anything about it." And they claim we cannot believe a man who secedes from it and gives it away, because "he is a perjured villain."

If a lodge, however, be right, a Christian should know it to be so before joining. A Christian commits sin whenever he joins any society he "don't know anything about," blindfolded. And they should not be offended if we preach repentance to them. Because repentance is noble on the part of any who truly wish to serve God. "Men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil," and it is contrary to the spirit of the Gospel to go into anything blindly. To join the lodge one must take an oath to keep secret that which he "knows nothing about." But God's Word, and common fairness, would have one know what the secret is before he promises to keep it. Suppose the secret prove to be satanic, the soul bound to it by an oath would be lost. And if the secret was found to be good, as is so boastingly claimed, it would be criminal neglect on the part of a Christian to not impart it to others. That is the way men will do who "love their neighbor as themselves," and "do as they wish to be done by."

No wonder we see wisdom in the Word of God when it says of Christ: "In him is no darkness at all." And our Lord informs us of himself, "In secret have I said nothing," and that he always "taught openly." Those who are not deceived, but follow him fully, will not get into the lodge.

To follow Christ fully in all things, and thereby reflect his light in this world of sin and darkness, is the highest standard of Christian perfection. The standard of the lodge is exactly opposite, and it can have no legitimate relation to the church of Christ. The darkness of the lodge is the blindness of sin and is no kin to Christ and divinity, the source of the "light of life." Satan is the source of the darkness of sin and death.

If Christians will follow the right standard, "in the light as he is in the light," they will have no use for the darkness of the lodge.

DeKalb, Iowa.

WHY FRANCE HAS ANARCHISTS.

A SIGNIFICANT LEAF FROM A COMMON SCHOOL TEXT BOOK

(From the London Chronicle.)

The French educational authorities, if we may accept as correct an extract from "The Manual of Unsectarian Instruction" sent us by a correspondent, have not been inspired to greater religious toleration by Gambetta's later reflection that he had probably been unwise to quarrel with "le bon Dieu." This extraordinary handbook, which is, our correspondent assures us, in daily use in the state-aided public elementary schools, contains in the form of a lesson the following dialogue between teacher and pupil:

Teacher.—What is God?

Pupil.—We cannot tell.

Teacher.—Do you acknowledge a superior or controlling being?

Pupil.—Why should we? Prove to us the necessity and show him to us.

Teacher.—It cannot be proved that such a being is indispensable.

Pupil.—Then it is a waste of time to talk about the matter.

The term "God" has no signification; it means nothing at all.

To put such blatant infidelity in the mouths of children were surely a shocking thing to do, and its inevitable result, supposing the absolute correctness of the extract sent us, must be to drive the majority of French parents into the camp of the clerical reactionaries.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.

(From the Christian Witness)

In a recent Witness were two timely articles, entitled, "The Age of Laxity," and "The Church of God and the Modern Church." It is pitiful when such things as are there portrayed are true. But to my mind, there are other things equally bad, and more difficult to rectify. Not long ago a member of our church (the Methodist Episcopal) died. His funeral, held in the church on the Sabbath, was attended by over a hundred members of the lodge to which he had belonged. They were decked out with regalia and carried spears and poles and banners and battle-axes—all emblems of carnal warfare. He was buried from the church where he and his wife were converted. The members of the church who prayed with him around the altar had to stand back and give place to the lodge members, most of whom were members of the church; some never enter a church on any other occasion, and some were infidels, and the "chaplain" for the occasion was a reputed spiritualist. At the grave two rituals were read over the remains, that of the church being sandwiched in between that of the lodge. The man was thus twice buried.

Speak to a lodge member on the subject and he will reply, "We use the Bible in our ritual," as if this is a complete answer. But I have seen quotations from Scriptures on a circus poster, with the words ascribed to the "Holy Bible." Perhaps the circus, too, will therefore claim to be a sort of religious institution.

In some places it is almost impossible to hold religious special meetings or revival meetings, because the members of the church, so many of them, must attend the lodges. It was pitifully amusing to hear of the neighboring pastor lecturing his members on attending lodge when he was a member of the same lodge.

Our ministry to day are powerless in the matter, for they are mostly members of secret societies themselves. This same pastor prayed during the meetings that his people might be endued with power from on high; but the people, instead of "tarrying" for power, were off to the lodge. I have good reasons for believing that not one soul was saved during the meeting.

Subsequently, the pastor sent for an evangelist. He came, decked in gold shirt studs, gold sleeve buttons, gold watch and chain. I was not surprised that he said to the people: "You do not need to be under a great burden of conviction. You just do what you think Jesus wants you to do, and you will soon be a Christian."

Not a soul professed conversion at that meeting, though the pastor took a large number into the church. Much of the revival work of to-day is of this sort. What was the evangelist, and what these "converts" but baptized sinners?

POSSIBILITIES FOR EVIL OF ORGANIZED SECRECY.

We have referred more than once in the columns of the Christian Nation to the essential evil of organized secrecy as being in its very nature condemned by our Lord when he said, "Every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light lest his deeds should be reproved; but he that doeth truth cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." We now call attention to another fact, taught by experience, which also fixes the seal of condemnation upon secret organizations.

The condemnation of the divine Word ought to be sufficient, but this is reinforced by what secret orders have proved themselves capable of doing. Without asserting that all secret societies have committed aggravated crimes, which could not be established, we do assert that secret societies are capable of being used for any base purpose. The fact that some have been so used is sufficient for our purpose in showing the possibilities of evil which reside in them. Have the Anarchists proved themselves capable of any mischief by secret conclave? Without secret combination they could not accomplish very much. As isolated individuals they would not terrify nations. But allow them to assemble in secret places and lay their plots, and is anything safe? The Clan-na-Gael is a secret society which has proven itself capable of an enormous amount of mischief. The Mafia, another secret order, has demonstrated its capabilities along the line of assassination. The Highbinders on the Pacific coast are another secret band of criminals. The Mollie Maguires who were once in Pennsylvania were a secret combination with the darkest of plans. These are sufficient to prove to any fair mind that there are awful possibilities of evil in secret combinations.

We have mentioned only the most criminal of the secret orders. Others, while not criminal to the same degree, yet are guilty of wickedness in varying degrees, and if only the occasion arise may be as bad as the worst, since essentially the same at bottom.

We have had a very conspicuous example of the evil of secret combinations in the recent past in the U. S. Senate. The Wilson tariff bill was freely and openly discussed in the House and passed in three weeks; but in the Senate it was discussed for weeks in secret committee and then in secret conference, and what is the result? After five months an emasculated bill comes forth from the dark chambers of committees where the wishes of the people have been wholly ignored and where the most corrupt bargaining has been carried on. Manhood, honor, honesty, faith, all the better elements of human nature, have been trampled down and the basest predominated.

Secret societies, whether organized for criminal ends or not, tend always in that direction. A society though organized for a high patriotic purpose will degenerate in time, and if only the time be long enough, may become a menace to society. And the reason is very plain. These secret orders operate without the check of public opinion. They are not accountable to any one. Put power in the hands of any man or any institution unaccompanied by responsibility, and at once that man or that institution becomes dangerous; for human selfishness without the check of open responsibility will dare to attempt almost anything. Secrecy educates to crime and stands condemned by its own showing.—Christian Nation.

If newspapers are not promptly paid for, they become accusing angels.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Some startling facts —Prof. Evans on the labor question. —The Prohibition Convention and some of its omissions. —Mrs. Gougar vs. Congressman Morse.

The daily papers, in spite of their deficiencies rom a literary and moral standpoint, furnish us vith the most suggestive reading we can find nywhere. For instance, it is rather startling to Bostonian to learn that the Pilgrim City has lready so large a foreign element that among he 21,000 pupils of the Hancock school there is ot a single American child. The larger part are ussian, Polish and German Jews with a goodly prinkling of Italians, Portuguese and other na- onalities. Two hundred of this year's pupils ast entered do not know a word of English. hese are to be our future voters. In due time ney will enter the wage arena and bear their art in the great war between labor and capital. liserable and vicious surroundings have envi- oned the majority from their infancy. Mrs. uster is reported as saying that "the great mass foreigners who to-day possess the right of suf- age, and yet have no conception of its import, re a greater menace to the nation than the en- re Indian population ever were." What thought- l student of present conditions can say that this not so.

Sandwiched between paragraphs on the indus- rial situation, and the widespread unrest and iscontent of the laboring classes, comes report n the society papers how one woman, whose only laim to notice is her wealth, has startled even ar Harbor with her display of jewelry, includ- g a strand of pearls seven feet long, and every earl as large as a gooseberry! And how the com- g season at Gotham is to be one of such unre- trained revelry as Boston, thanks to her con- ervative traditions, has never as yet seen;— Hungarian carnivals, weird (and not over modest) ances, ball-room rose fights, and all this at a ost of seven or eight millions by the lowest esti- mate. Whither are we as a people tending?

Prof. Evans in his address at the Prohibition tate Convention at Worcester answered this uestion wisely and well. In one word—anarchy. ome may have called him an alarmist for pre- icting that if the public conscience did not wake in time, and the Golden Rule take the lace of the law of competition as the basis of ur political economy, we might yet see the stand- ng army invoked by a Debs in the Presidential hair; but it was throughout a noble and schol- rly address containing many such nuggets of ruth as the following: "The best market for a manufacturing people is a contented, well-paid working class." The difficulty is not to get Christian men into politics; it is to get Christian principle into politics." "Tammany Hall is the esult of conscienceless ballots. New York may e redeemed, but not when Dr. McArthur and yman Abbot leave their conscience behind hem." "God grant that all the enemies of the aloon . . . may come together and see eye to ye and stand shoulder to shoulder, grasp each ther's hands and swear eternal enmity and nited activity against the saloon . . . But, riends, there can be no union on a basis of com- romise or concession. Better wait a year longer; ye, ten or a hundred years longer—until we earn the lesson that no movement of reform like ours can succeed except on a conscience basis. United on such a basis the reform forces of the ation are irresistible. United on any other erms they are foredoomed to failure. Back to onscience! Back to justice! Back to God!" Loud and continued applause greeted this conclu- ion of his speech.

The mottoes ranged around the hall were triking and effective, such as: "The liquor raffic exists by permission of Christian men and Christian churches. When they say and vote no, t will go, and not till then." "You cannot get out of the ballot box anything better than you put into it. Please remember this." Referring to the Gutenberg system: "No sacred saloons with holy bar-tenders for Massachusetts."

The platform was adopted without debate, and while immeasurably superior to the other party platforms, it failed noticeably in one important point, for it contained no particular recognition of Christ as our divine Ruler; and while I would not say that it deals too largely with material is- sues, it seemed to me as I heard it read that it did not lay sufficient emphasis on the fact that it is a Christian political party, and bases its de- mand for political rightousness on that ground. Another great omission was the ignoring of the secret society question. Its ticket nominates to an important position, one man at least—and I know not how many others—closely affiliated with the lodge. When the Beveridges, those noted Prohibition singers alluding to the Prohibition party sang,

> "'Tis a little bit of Eden,
> With no serpent there at all."

I wondered if there was not such a thing as being too sure, and taking too much for granted. The serpent of the lodge shelters the serpent of the still, and all his wriggling, loathsome brood. Why should Prohibitionists be blind to a fact so patent? For my part I feel assured that we can trace to the steadily increasing deistical lodge in- fluence the fact that the platform is not so satis- factory on the National Reform issue as the one they put forth a year ago. However, it was a grand and inspiring assemblage of earnest men and women, the majority of whom I am persuaded will eventually shake themselves clear of the lodge, even if to do so they have to break with the Prohibition party and from a new one.

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar has lost her libel suit against Congressman Morse. It will be remem- bered that Mr. Morse accused her on the floor of Congress of being in the pay of the Democratic party. According to Mrs. Gougar's statement to a reporter one of the jury was a liquor-dealer, and three were chairmen of Republican commit- tees. These would seem to be good and sufficient reasons for distrusting the honesty of the verdict.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Breckenridge defeat hailed in Washington.—The Y. M. C. A. after vacation.—National charters for Jesuit colleges.—The oldest of the secret orders playing a deep game.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19, 1894.

One who is not a resident of the national cap- ital can hardly realize the interest felt here in the contest for the nomination to Congress in the Seventh Kentucky district. The defeat of W. C. P. Breckenridge, who shocked a continent by his confessions in court of moral depravity that would have been disgraceful to a heathen, is de- feated. The result of the primary election was not known until Sunday morning, but Rev. Dr. Brown, of Foundry M. E. church, made it the subject of his sermon. He said:

"Through the prayers and tears of an insulted womanhood, and by the ballots of a misrepresented and outraged manhood, immorality in high places has been rebuked by a voice whose echoes are heard not only through this land, but to the ends of the civilized world. The victory is so great that it can but inspire fresh courage in the heart of best citizenship everywhere. It has clearly taught that no man, however high his character may have been, or however exalted a place he may occupy, can offend the moral sense of the American people with impunity; that down underneath all superficial conditions there is in the American heart a lofty idea of character which representative men must respect if they would retain their high positions among their fellowmen and enjoy the honors it is in the power of the people to bestow. He is but a fool who imagines for a moment that his name and fame are lofty enough to win exemption from ordinary judgments of wrongdoing, and that he can play with and insult the wide-spread and deep-lying moral sentiments of the people. Public senti- ment is a gun that is always loaded, though the idiot who carelessly handles it may not seem to know it. What we want at the capital of the nation to make its laws and to work the ma- chinery of government are good men; men whose sympathies are with and for the good; men who are so pronounced on all the great moral ques- tions that are now disturbing and dividing society, that there cannot be a doubt that they stand for the right. We are thankful for the many such men we now have; but we are praying that more may come; and when from all parts of our land shall come such men, and only such, surely then the voice of the people will be the voice of God. The good effect of the defeat of this confessed lib- ertine will be inestimable in Washington, and no event has for a long time been received with so much gratitude and joy.

The Young Men's Christian Association inau- gurated the opening of their fall and winter cam- paign for the welfare of our young men with a house-warming in their completely renovated building. The reception was largely attended, the building being crowded to its fullest capacity from 7 o'clock until a late hour in the evening. The educational features of the Association are a Godsend for many young men who are employed in the daytime, embracing, as they do, English, penmanship, stenography, typewriting, algebra, geometry, draughting and physics, each under thoroughly competent instructors. Not a little of the success that has been achieved by a num- ber of Washington's business and professional men is due to instruction they received by becom- ing members of the Y. M. C. A.

A good deal is said of late about the "foot- prints of the Jesuits." Their footprints in Amer- ica, as set forth in the records of this District, relating to charters, are full of warning and pain- ful interest. One of the most curious facts in the history of the United States is, that the "Society of Jesus," so called, has obtained more charters for colleges under the laws of the District of Co- lumbia than all other societies combined, there being twenty-three Jesuit colleges so chartered. These are situated in various States, as well as in the District, a fact which indicates that from the beginning the astute Jesuit understood very well that there was less danger of the confisca- tion of property held under a charter from the federal Government than there might be if such property were held under State charters only.

The name and location of these institutions are as below:

Boston College, Boston; Canisius College, Buffalo; Catholic University, Washington; Detroit College, De- troit; Georgetown University, Washington; Gonzaga Col- lege, Washington; La Salle College, Philadelphia; Loyo- la College, Baltimore; Manhattan College, New York; Mount Angel College, Mount Angel, Oregon; Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburgh, Maryland; Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.; Seton Hall College, South Orange, N. J.; Saint Benedict's College, Atchison, Kan.; Saint Charles College, Overbrook, Pa.; Saint Francis College, St. Francis, Wis.; Saint Francis Xavier, New York; Saint John's College, Washington; Saint John's College, Brighton, Mass.; Saint Joseph Theological Seminary, Troy, N. Y.; Saint Louis University, St. Louis, Mo ; Saint Mary's Seminary, Baltimore; Saint Xavier's College, Cincinnati, O.

In these colleges there are 537 instructors and 6,630 students. This list shows pretty well the ideas of the secret order of the Jesuits in refer- ence to the strategic points of the Republic. It shows that there are three universities and twenty colleges of this order chartered under the laws of the District of Columbia, of which two universities and two colleges are located here, while the other nineteen institutions are scat- tered throughout the North and West—not a sin- gle one being placed in the South. The first Jesuit establishment chartered under the laws of this District was Georgetown University in 1778, and that the last was the Catholic University of America in 1889—both located in Washington.

Of course, this list does not include every Jesuit college in the country, but it affords a very fair idea of the distribution of their missionary forces, and is therefore extremely important to the stu- dent of current history. It emphasizes the fact that our national capital is their most important stronghold, and that here they overshadow and dwarf all other educational and missionary powers. The moral and political atmosphere of this city must therefore be modified permanently by their influence.

In 1850 Charles Summer said: "I have spoken of votes. Living in a community where political power is lodged with the people, and each citizen is an elector, the vote is an important expression of opinion. The vote is the cutting edge. It is well to have correct opinions, but the vote must follow. The vote is the seed planted; without it there can be no sure fruit. The winds of heaven, in their beneficence, may scatter the seed in the furrow; but it is not from such accident that our fields wave with the golden harvest. He is a foolish husbandmen who neglects to sow his seed; and he is an unwise citizen who, desiring the spread of good principles, neglects to deposit his vote for the candidate who is the representative of those principles."

REFORM NEWS.

THE NEW ENGLAND CONVENTION.

THE PLACE, THE TIME, THE SPEAKERS.—LET THE PEOPLE COME.

BOSTON, Sept. 18, 1894.

The Board of Directors of the New England Christian Association have deemed it wise to hold the next annual convention in Franklin, Mass., beginning October 8th, and continuing long enough for a fair discussion of such topics as may legitimately be presented. The by-laws of the Association require the incorporated body to meet in Boston during the month of December, but make it the duty of the directors also to provide for a general convention to be held in addition to the meeting of the corporate body. It is the general convention that will meet at Franklin and continue its sessions over the following Sabbath.

It is proposed to make the secret lodge system the special theme on Thursday and Friday, the 11th and 12th, though this or any topic germane to the suppression of evil and the promotion of good-will among men will always be in order. The list of speakers is not complete and further announcements will be made later.

Arrangements have been made with the following persons to speak as shall be further arranged and announced in due time: Rev. D. B. Gunn, Rev. J. M. Foster, Rev. Cyrus Cunningham, Rev. James H. Earle and wife, Elizabeth E. Flagg, Rev. J. C. Briggs, Ezra. T. McIntire, Elder S. C. Kimball, and others who, living in other cities have not been heard from, but who will, I feel confident, "come up to the help of the Lord" in this time of peril.

Franklin is an enterprising manufacturing center on the New York and New England railroad, and contains, I should judge, about 5,000 inhabitants. It is reached by express trains in less than an hour from Boston. From a limited acquaintance in the place I judge the people to be like the Athenians in Paul's day who provide worship and altars for every class of religionists from the lodge sanctuary, within the tyled recess of the secret chamber, up to the unknown God. That those speaking at the convention will express views at variance with those held by some of the good people of Franklin, I have not a doubt, but I trust they will listen to and candidly consider the views advanced, adopting such only as commend themselves to their judgment and conscience.

There are a number of churches in Franklin, and I presume an equal if not greater number of lodges. Both affect society and therefore concern the people, and neither the lodge nor the church should seek to avoid a reasonable inquiry into the character, conduct and influence of either. I trust there will be no hesitating on the part of pastors and people in Franklin and neighboring towns to attend the meetings so far as practicable, and that friends throughout New England will make an effort, and, if need be, a sacrifice, to attend and let their light shine.

There are a few devoted, earnest, self-denying souls in Franklin who will do what in them lies to provide for the physical wants of friends from abroad. Should they fail, there are boarding houses and restaurants where accommodations can be had at reasonable rates; and should it really be necessary, I for one will volunteer to camp in the hall, as we have often done out West in early days, and as the Salvation Army does when there is "no room in the inn" for them. A hall that is filled and lit up and warmed, and the atmosphere purified by the Holy Spirit, is not a bad place to spend an occasional night. Let us all believe and pray and trust the Lord for victory in the convention, and such food and shelter as we may need while attending it.

JAMES P STODDARD,
Cor. Sec'y N. E C. A.

UP AND DOWN THE MISSISSIPPI.

THE BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION. THE PEOPLE AND CHURCHES OF VICKSBURG.

MONROE, La., Sept. 13, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I left New Orleans on the 11th for this place via Vicksburg. The Louisiana Baptist State Convention is in session at the Zion Traveler's Baptist church, Rev. William H. Hamilton, pastor. For once since 1880, the Baptist convention of Louisiana is completely under the control of Freemasons, and notwithstanding I am both a delegate to the convention and also recording secretary of my district, as the president is an ardent Freemason, it is impossible for me to get a hearing before the body. I am to preach to-night at Zion Hill Baptist church, Rev. H. R. Flynn, pastor. I leave for Vicksburg to-morrow, where appointments have been made, after which I will return to New Orleans.

Monroe is a regular table land (or prairie) town. It sits on both sides of the Oauchita River and is penetrated by two railroads. Times are very hard here; the place has about 5,000 or 6,000 inhabitants, but it is now a very dull town.

VICKSBURG, Sept. 15.—I attended the Baptist State Convention at Monroe, La., last week and preached at Rev. H. R. Flynn's church to a pretty fair congregation, which seemed very favorably impressed. I reached Vicksburg Friday at 5 P. M. and addressed the Warren County Sunday-School Association on Saturday afternoon. I also attended a sisters' meeting at Pleasant Green Baptist church, Rev. O. S. Williams, pastor, on Friday night.

I was kindly entertained by Mrs. Jackson and her husband. Mr. Jackson is and has been for some time a very prominent Odd-fellow. Vicksburg is a very hotbed of secretism. Quite a number of Grand and Supreme Lodge officers live here. There are some very prominent and intelligent colored people here; also some few in business.

There is much room for effective missionary work in this city. Like many other cities, Vicksburg has quite a number of feeble churches entirely insufficient to give one-third of the pastor's support. The colored men find much work to do and fair wages on the several railroads here, as firemen, car-cleaners, porters, brakemen, etc.; also they are employed on the streets; in fact, Negro labor is vastly in majority here, and thereby gives them preference in employment. The Negroes are here very submissive, and, indeed, must be, since lynching is not unknown here. Six Negroes have been taken out of Vicksburg jail and lynched within four years. I find the same thing here that exists in other cities of the South, that is, cohabitation between white men and Negro women; with all the class legislation against Negroes of the South, white men won't stay separated from Negro women. If the Negro enjoyed his political liberties, and a full guarantee of the rights assured him by the National Constitution, Vicksburg would be a Southern Negro paradise. Miss Minnie B. Simms is one of Vicksburg's most intelligent and promising young ladies. She is very talented and a student of the Mary Holmes Seminary, Jackson, Miss. Mr. Ferdinand Simms, her father, is a prominent Odd-fellow and Knight. Very devoted to his lodge, still he is kind and entertaining. I was kindly invited by Mrs. and Miss Simms to their hospitable home, where I was kindly entertained. I think an energetic anti-lodge lecturer could do much in Vicksburg to promote the anti-secrecy cause. I have not met one man yet who would not hear all I had to say to them.

SEPT. 17.—I attended early prayer services yesterday morning at Mount Heroden Baptist church, Rev. A. A. Hamilton, pastor, where I met a very good congregation. I attended a Sabbath-school mass-meeting at King Solomon Baptist church, Rev. A. Griffin, pastor, where I was announced to lecture. Here I met about 350 scholars and teachers from the several city schools, being conducted by Rev. Mr. Morris, missionary for Warren County Baptist Sunday-school Association. At 4 P. M I attended services at King David Baptist church, Rev. D. D. Simms, pastor, where I lectured on "Race Pride." In the evening I preached at King Solomon church to a full house of about 400 or 500, who gave very good attention. At the conclusion of the sermon many, both men and women, grasped my hand and said: "God bless you, my brother, come and see us again; surely God sent you here." I met Prof. Shannon, principal of the Vicksburg high school, who very cordially invited me back to the city and assured me there was a great door open for the right kind of a man in Vicksburg to do mission work of any kind. The colored people, with few exceptions, are very poor; however, they seem to be gradually awakening to the evil of excursions.

I left Vicksburg this morning at 1:30 o'clock, and we are now laying on a side track near Port Gibson, on account of a wreck. This is a very hilly part of the country as well as Vicksburg. The "Yea-whoops," or "Red-necks" or "Bull-dozers," as they are called, are very thickly settled in these parts. There are several colored passengers, men and women, on board the train, all huddled together in a half of a coach specially set apart for colored people, while the other end is used for a smoking car by uncouth whites.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—After eight hours' delay I reached the city at 5 P. M. yesterday. I met the St. Matthew Baptist church in prayer service at 8:30 P. M. They were glad to welcome me home. I have this day opened a day school at the church with twenty-eight pupils enrolled, and prospects bright for twice that number. I shall be confined here in school until about the 30th of June next, unless I succeed in getting a good teacher to take charge of the school. I am very favorably impressed with my treatment in both Monroe and Vicksburg. Yours in the work of the Master, FRANCIS J. DAVIDSON.

AMONG THE HOP-YARDS OF THE WILLAMETTE.

PROVIDENCE AGAINST THE COAST AGENT.

I do not mean divine providence, for God is always with us; but Providence church in Linn county, Oregon, one of whose members refused to let me ride out with him, because of my position on the lodge question.

I was taken out in fine style by Bro. Goins' son, but when the hour arrived for me to speak on intemperance, out of one hundred and seventy members only one little girl and her little sister were present. She insisted that it was because the members nearly all drink "hard cider" and keep it in their cellars the year round, that they did not wish to hear a lecture on the subject. Quite a number are known to take something stronger than hard cider. This will doubtless continue so long as their pastor frequents the saloons and the members continue to avoid temperance lectures.

It is a bad case. Here is a nice, new church building, 72x44 feet, with its spire pointing toward heaven, and the members largely turned the other way. No wonder they cannot support preaching, even once a month, so much of their means goes for drink and lodges. Their supply pastor had said he would like to hear my lecture on secret societies, but when I spoke in Scio, where he lives, he was somewhere else.

Some of the very best people in the community will not unite with this church because of its worldly spirit. I do not blame them.

I was kindly entertained here by the family of Bro. Silas Kenoyer. I spent the next night with Bro. and sister Clark, near Lacamb, where I had hoped to speak that night. But it was thought best to wait till Saturday afternoon and speak after the Primitive Baptists had their meeting. Owing to the busy time, there were only a few present, but they seemed to be pleased with the truth as it was presented. If these persons will carry the truth to others, then great good may result from that little meeting.

Bro. John Flaugher brought me to Waterloo, where I was billed to speak three times. On arriving I found nearly all the town were gone to the hop-fields. The best friends said we could not get an audience of more than six or seven. So on I went to Sodaville, where I spoke Sabbath evening in the Free Methodist church to a fair audience, considering the depleted condition of the town on account of hop-picking.

I find a condition just now in this valley which furnishes food for thought. Christian men and women, members of the "W. C. T. U.", strong Prohibitionists, all are out picking hops! What does this mean? To my mind it says, the saloons and their allies have brought the country to such a condition as to compel Christian people to relieve present necessities, to assist them in their work of ruin. The only excuse the temperance and Christian people make for engaging in the work is, "necessity brings me to it." I am sorry that we have come to this. May the Lord help us. P. B. WILLIAMS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE ROCK RIVER UNITED BRETHREN CONFERENCE.

At Coleta, Whiteside Co., Illinois, the Rock River U. B. Annual Conference has just closed one of the best, most harmonious and spiritual sessions it ever held. The finances are higher than ever before and it is the banner conference in paying missionary money. Miss Grace L. Smith, J. Beers and H. M. Byers joined the conference and two of them received fields of labor. Sister Smith has been a successful teacher in Mt. Carroll for a number of years, and was urged to continue in that capacity, but her duty lies in a higher calling. She has also worked very successfully as an evangelist in the conference at times during the past three years.

Bishop H. T. Barnaby of Corinth, Mich., presided in his usual easy and very satisfactory manner, and preached three powerful sermons so full of apt and striking illustrations and pathetic appeals to the unsaved, as to more than meet the most sanguine expectation of the vast crowds which heard him. The power of God was wonderfully manifested on Thursday evening and the shouts of many happy souls were heard. Dr. Becker was present and preached with power and added to the interest of the conference in many ways.

Sabbath evening one hundred and twenty five partook of the bread and "fruit of the vine" in sacred memory of Jesus. Many stayed to hear Dr. Becker deliver one of his famous lectures on "The Holy Land" on Monday evening.

On Sabbath morning Rev. Wm. H. Beers was solemnly ordained to the office of elder. He has for the past four years been the successful pastor at Van Orin and has greatly endeared himself to the good people, especially to the many converts he has won to Jesus. They greatly desired his return, but on account of his poor health he was advised by his physician to seek a different climate, and will go to Petosky, Mich., in a few weeks to take charge of our flourishing society there. He was happily surprised on Sabbath evening to receive from the hands of the Bishop a fine Oxford Bible as a present from the members of the conference.

Coleta is the home of Bro. Beers, having always lived here until he took charge of Van Orin station. May the dear Master speedily restore him to health and permit him again to join our ranks in this conference. His brother John, who joined the conference at this session, will go to Hartsville College this year. May the good Lord bless all, and make the coming year the best in the history of the conference.

W. O. DINIUS.

WINNING THEM FROM THE LODGE.

SELMA, Ala., Aug. 29, 1894.

Our fight is on hot and heavy. The lodges threaten, but I trust God and he is abundantly providing. Most all my brethren are out of the lodge now but five or six, and they acknowledge that I am right. They wish, however, to see how this controversy will end. I am giving nothing but Scripture as yet. All have not faith. In any way you can help me, do so, and accept my life-long gratitude. Your prayers first of all. I am anxious that you see how we two Baptist ministers are conducting this fight. I am receiving letters of encouragement from those who also see the immense evil this abominable lodge system is doing the country and the church.

C. P. JONES,
Pastor Tabernacle Baptist Church.

PITH AND POINT.

A PLACE FILLED BY NO OTHER.

The Cynosure fills an important place in the Christian literature of our day. Would to God all men would free themselves forever from the trammels of the abominable secret, oath-bound associations!—GEO MCCOLLOUGH, Braddyville, Iowa.

THE UNFORGIVING LODGE.

I am often made to realize that the secret orders never forget or forgive a blow Though generally I am treated (and always to my face) very kindly by them, yet I always say I hold the same ground towards them I ever did; that I regard them all as thoroughly anti-Christian, no matter how much they pray or use the Bible. I am glad always to hear from my old friends, many of them who so often comforted me and aided me to accomplish the work I did. The Lord hath kept me; bless his holy name forever.—ELDER JOEL H. AUSTIN.

FORCED TO STRIKE.

In a Chicago street car, recently, I sat down beside a man who turned and quietly spoke my name. We once attended the same church. I knew he had been one of the recent strikers, and was out of work. He knew me as an anti-lodgeite. I asked if the movement hadn't proved a foolish one? He assented, but said he had to do as he was bid, and told me he knew two men like himself, each of whom had been dangerously dealt with by the avenging strikers. He had not dared to offend such men; and whispered some things in justification of his course as one of necessity. He has a large and good family, and I have no doubt that he spoke sincerely as he believed and felt.—HOMO.

HAPPY TO BEGIN AGAIN.

For many years I was a subscriber to your excellent paper; but for some time I have not had the pleasure of reading it, because of my small salary. But now I enclose again for the dear Cynosure Yours for the downfall of secretism —REV JAMES WILKINSON, Devon, Kansas.

Let a hundred or two of our old readers follow the example of our old brother and share his pleasure at the renewal.

THIS IS THE RIGHT EXPERIENCE.

I see that you, like myself, are no great lover of Free masonry. I was a member for ten years; but, thank God, when full salvation came in, Masonry went out. I know that a man cannot be a regular attendant at prayer and class meeting, and keep his experience of pardon or purity and be a regular attendant at lodge meetings. I have heard dozens testify in camp and revival meetings that when they got the love of God it cast out Masonry —T. M. FERGUSON, Dallas Center, Iowa.

NO RUSTING OF BRO. HINMAN'S ARMOR.

My health is pretty good for me I preach three times a week and have given sermons on secret societies and one on war. Both were well received The people here have suffered much from the drought for two years, but recent rains make them more cheerful.—H H HINMAN, Elmdale Kan.

LITERATURE.

EATING FOR STRENGTH; or food and diet in their relation to health and work. By M. L. Holbrook, M. D, professor of Hygiene in New York Medical College. Pp. 236. M. L. Holbrook & Co., New York.

This is a text-book for the kitchen. The philosophy of the dinner table has been neglected in favor of the philosophy of the stars, or of the center of the earth or something else very remote and often very impractical. The old time philosopher who located the mind in the stomach was not so much out of the way. The steam is is in the coal beds, and the coal beds are in the sun. So the power to think, to will, to do, depend on the human furnaces, where brain power, will power, nerve power, muscle power are generated. This book tells how to keep those furnaces aglow. It is a book worth studying along with our school physiologies. If every young woman was required to pass an examination in it before the marriage license was issued there would be great distress for something to do in our now sadly crowded divorce courts. "The time is near," says the author, "when a knowledge of the principles of diet will be considered as important a part of our education as a knowledge of the multiplication table." The volume is systematically arranged, and treats of the use of foods their scientific classification, the daily requirement of the body, digestion, the source and chemical constitution of foods, their economy, relation to intemperance, their derivation from vegetables and fruits and adaptation to different stages of life and use in various diseases. The volume closes naturally and practically with a compilation of excellent recipes, thus making it an all-around kitchen handbook. Throw your French cook-book into the fire and try this.

A HANDBOOK OF THE BIBLE. A Compendium of Facts and Curiosities. by Rev. William Turner. 235 pages. Price, $1.00. Thomas Whittaker, 2 & 3 Bible House, New York.

Next to the Word of God itself are the books which help us to study, understand and apply it. There have been a multiplicity of handbooks of the Bible, all of them valuable in one or more points or lines of study, according to the spirit and training of the compiler. The handsomely printed book before us explains the design of the Bible, its authenticity, its antiquity, its divisions, its chronology, its geography, its genealogies, the formation of the Old Testament, the Hebrew months and measures, obsolete terms, and Jewish history from B. C. 397 to A D. 97. It gives the titles of the alleged missing books of the Old Testament and the New Testament, and some remarks about them; the special prayers of both Testaments; lists of miracles and parables; an index of the first line of each psalm; the names of Gentile countries and nations; the name and titles of Christ, his discourses arranged in the order of the time of their delivery; the authors of the books of the Bible, where, when, and for whom each book was written, and biographies of the New Testament writers. It tells about the Jewish doctrines and opinions, ecclesiastical officers and sects, revisions of the Bible, suppressed Bibles, misquotations from Scripture, Bibles with singular names and many other things, all of which are important, and some of which are quite curious. An extensive index and good illustrations make the book additionally valuable.

"Remarks on the Mistakes of Moses," by H. L. Hastings' editor of the Christian, Boston, is one of the ablest refutations of the infidel Ignersoll, although there is no reference to that person aside from the quoted title. Mr. Hastings is a tremendous wielder of facts. They are a Hercules club in his hand. Woe to those who withstand him with facts taken from their own imagination for weapons. We have here the acknowlegement of Moses in history; the effect of his laws on public health, on civil liberty, on popular festivals, on the peaceful character of the people, on temperance; and last, the glory of his prophecies. (Scriptural Tract Society, Boston. 10 cts.)

From the American Federation of Labor, New York, the Cynosure has received, and thankfully acknowledges, several documents on the labor movement, trade unions, etc. Among them are "Trade Unions, their origin and objects." Proceedings of the thirteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, "The Philosophy of the Labor Movement" "Philosophy of Trade Unions," "History of the Eight-hour Movement," etc. These are issued in inexpensive pamphlet form.

The current issue of Our Day is an attractive and valuable number. We hail the appearance of Mrs. Cook's name, along with that of her illustrious husband, the editor. She writes of "Neal Dow as Guest and Host" so happily that we hope to see her contributions regularly. The number deals largely with present conditions of the colored race in America. Pres. J. E. Rankin, of Howard University, writes of the "Æsthetic Capacity of the Afro-American," Frederick Douglass on "Lynching Black Men because they are Black," and Louis H. Blair on "Lynching as a fine art." Mr. Cook's Monday Lecture is on the "Fiendishness of Caste" and the "Peerlessness of Christian Family Life." The editorial notes are especially valuable.

A new volume, entitled "Danger Signals; or Secret Lodges illuminated," is soon to be published for the New England Christian Association, by James H. Earle, Boston It will contain addresses by Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D, Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D, Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt. Nine portraits will be the embellishment.

A NATIONAL VICE.

Almost every function of modern life is discharged through the medium of a club. To dine in a crowd; to be charitable in a crowd; to go out in a crowd to view the face of nature; and, perhaps, greatest absurdity of all, to read poetry in a crowd—such are the ambitions of a typical American. I believe that there are in existence societies of drunkards, not for legitimate purposes of conviviality, but with the weak intention of reforming in a body. There is certainly a club of persons whose bond of union is a desire to free themselves from the dreadful vice of procrastination; and I have observed advertisements of "Rest Classes" at the seashore for clergymen and schoolteachers. There are immense summer towns or camps on Cape Cod, where people are herded together almost as closely as the occupants of a tenement house in the city: and this for pleasure.—H. C. Merwin, in the Atlantic.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

SCIENCE NOTES.

The proposal to construct as the great attraction of the exhibition of 1900 in Paris a monster telescope able to show the inhabitants, if any, of the moon, has been revived, and M. Bischoffsheim is said to be willing to advance 2,000,000 francs toward the cost.

Prof. Asa Gray says that the Washington elm, at Cambridge, has been estimated to produce 7,000,000 leaves, which would make a surface radiation of about five acres in extent, and give out every fair day in the growing season seven and three-quarter tons of moisture.

One of the most wonderful discoveries in science that has been made within the last year or two is the fact that a beam of light produces sound. According to Milling, a beam of sunlight is thrown through a lens on a glass vessel that contains lampblack, colored silk, or worsted, or other substances. A disc, having slits or openings cut in it, is made to revolve swiftly in this beam of light so as to cut it up, thus making alternate flashes of light and shadow. On putting the ear to the glass vessel, strange sounds are heard so long as the flashing beam is falling on the vessel.

Referring to the common statement that electricity is still in its infancy, Professor Dolbear recently said: "Electricity is not in its infancy. Despite what has been done there is nothing in the present use of electricity that has not been known for many years. Arc-lights were known eighty years ago; the telegraph is sixty years old, the telephone thirty, and the incandescent lamp ditto. We are not at work with new things or on new principles. If you are running a moter with electricity, it is not a new discovery in electricity to apply the same power to the operation of a lathe or a street car."

The great water-wheels at Niagara are not all of the same size. Those employed in the transmission of power to the machinery of the paper-mill were, when they were put in, the largest ever made. They were capable of generating as much as one thousand horse power each. But they are mere pigmies in comparison with those which are to supply power to the great dynamos. Each of these has been built with the purpose of developing as much as five thousand horse-power, which is about the power required to drive an ordinary ocean steamship from twelve to fourteen knots an hour. There are to be three of these mammoth turbines, and their handmaids, the dynamos, are sympathetically colossal in their capacity to generate electricity.

The idea of an electric light, which, fed by a current from a dynamo actuated by a forty-horse power engine, and giving 7,000 candle power, can have its illuminating power intensified more than 35,000 times, is not easy to grasp. It means the projection of a stream of light of about 250,000,000 candle-power, and it is no wonder that the announcement that such a light is about to be used in this country has been received with some incredulity in Europe. Yet this is the efficiency of the light which will be shortly erected at Fire island for the illumination of the adjacent coast and the protection of the fleet of ships entering New York harbor. A remote suggestion of the power of this lamp may be arrived at by bearing in mind that an ordinary oil lamp is about thirty-eight or forty candle power, and then trying to imagine the combined beam of about 3,000,000 Rochester lamps. The ordinary electric street lamp may be put down at 1,000 candle power, and 250,000 of these would about represent the strength of the Fire island light The most powerful oil lamp yet made is supposed to shine out on a clear night for a distance of thirty-five or forty miles, but the new light will flash its welcome rays to the incoming European "liners" when they are 120 miles away. The light revolves rapidly, and throws out its beams with the intensity and speed of lightning. The motive power which actuates it is a simple clock-work arrangement contained in a box two feet square, and, although the revolving portion of the light weighs fifteen tons, the mechanism controlling it is so delicate that the pressure of two fingers will turn it. The value of this marvelous lamp can only be determined by practical working, but it promises to represent an immense stride in the science of coast and light-house illumination.

SAVE DOCTOR'S BILLS

by paying attention to properly regulating the bowels thereby preventing a thousand and one derangements of the system which follow neglect of this precaution. Once used for this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are always in favor. They're purely vegetable and far better, as a liver pill, than blue pills or calomel. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular—not to constipate.

Miss MARY ANGUISH, of Glen Easton, Marshall Co., W. Va., writes: "Two years ago I was pale and emaciated, food fermented in my stomach. A physician pronounced my case 'Catarrh of the Stomach,' but he could not help me. I lived a month without solid food and when I tried to eat I would vomit. At this time I began taking Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and in two weeks I was decidedly better. I am now in good health, and never felt better in my life. I have a better color, eat more, and have no distress after eating—having gained thirteen pounds since I began taking them.

MISS ANGUISH.

PILES DR. HILL'S GREAT SPECIFIC promptly cures where all other remedies fail. In use 85 years. 50c. per box. Mailed free. CHEMICAL SPECIALTY WORKS. Syracuse, N. Y.

The importance of keeping the liver and kidneys in good condition cannot be overestimated. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating and invigorating these organs.

Do You Realize it?

Chautauqua and Chautauquans are becoming very numerous all over the land. The word is a synonym of something good. It stands for knowledge, progress, advancement. Knowledge is a power to accomplish something. It is obtained in many ways and in various channels; newspapers, books, and magazines are the greatest educators of the people, and we think it is safe to say that newspapers play a most important part in disseminating knowledge to the masses of the people. Not all have yet learned that there is something to be gained by reading all parts of a paper. Do not think that the editorials and telegraphic reports are all there is of value in a newspaper. The live paper of today has much that is interesting in advertisements. The very best talent is employed to write them. More real hard work is often shown in a good advertisement than in many articles which appear in the paper. No part of the paper has more labor bestowed upon it. These advertisements tell wonders and are an important factor in imparting knowledge and general good to the public. They are the medium by which manufacturer and dealer or consumer are brought together. Many of them in fact are as much an item of news as anything in the paper. Such an advertisement as the one of The Larkin Co., in this issue, is all we have described. This company are reliable. Their offers are genuine. We have known the Company for years and can vouch for them. Read their advertisement and order one of their combination boxes and get the Chautauqua Chair or one of their other useful premiums.

Everybody is Going South Now-a-days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for refence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Verona; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND.

The annual convention of the New England Christian Association will (D. V.) be held in Music Hall, Franklyn, Mass., beginning Oct. 8th, at 7:30 P. M., and continuing over the following Sabbath. Thursday and Friday will be given to the special features of the Association's work. Evangelists and specialists on several lines of reform work have been secured and we can promise those who attend a time of refreshing and uplifting in Gospel teaching, preaching and experience. "Whosoever will let him come."

REV. D. B. GUNN, Secretary. J. A. CONANT, President.

THE ILLINOIS STATE MEETING will be held November 15 and 16, 1894, in the Reformed Presbyterian church (Gen. Synod), Sparta, Rev. W. J. Smiley, pastor.

IOWA.—The current year of the Iowa State Association is drawing to a close. Copies of the State constitution, with blanks for signatures, have been, and are being, sent to many places. Efforts to arrange for the annual meeting have been begun. Congregations and individuals that have not contributed during the year, and desire to do so, are asked to forward subscriptions soon to the treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham, Iowa.

THE SECOND INSTALLMENT of Rev. A. Thomson's poem turns to another picture of "Society," and presents it to our readers with fine poetic grace. Such themes have seldom been more exquisitely treated.—The well-known philanthropist and Friend, Josiah Leeds, sends a strongly-written article on a great and pressing evil of the day.—The movement to un-God our schools ought to be checked in the face of such facts as are held up for us by French anarchy in the article from the London Chronicle.—Points from the Massachusetts Prohibition convention in the N. E. letter are grand.—Those from Washington are startling.—The lecture work is reviving mightily and letters from the brethren cry out for more room.—Parents and children will find a grand example of moral heroism in the Home reading.

CHINESE ON THE BADGE.—It is said of the Christian Endeavor societies among converted Chinese that they are unwilling to wear the badge of the society because of their dislike of secret lodges. Such fidelity to conviction is worth commending to the good friends who have taken the other side of this controversy. The badge is a custom introduced by the lodge for purposes purely and basely selfish. We doubt if it can be baptized into a part of a saint's garb any more usefully than the Saturnalia was baptized into Christmas. The soldiers found no badge on the Saviour's garments to raffle for.

AN IMPORTANT ANTI-ROMANIST MOVEMENT in Washington has for its object an investigation of Jesuit aggression in the departments of the Government, and a wide dissemination of the facts that may be brought to light. Green Clay Smith of Kentucky, now pastor of Metropolitan Baptist church, Washington, is prominent in the movement. By his aid, during the next three or four months, every American citizen who desires will be supplied with a pamphlet with extracts from the U. S. Congressional Record, containing the address of Hon. W. S. Linton and discussion in Congress upon Sectarian Appropriations of National Money to Indian Education, and the vote thereon; also remarks made respecting a requirement to teach the English language in New Mexico after admission to Statehood, and two separate votes rejecting such a requirement. General Smith will send to any address all the above matter (in one pamphlet), taken from the Congressional Record, for the printer's charges, viz: $2 50 per thousand copies, $1.50 for 500 copies, or fifty cents for 100 delivered at your postoffice to one address. This can be re-mailed, without postage, at any postoffice, under the franking privilege, being a public document. Patriotic persons can thus secure a large circulation of these pamphlets with but little expense. Address all orders to Green Clay Smith, P. O. Box 333, Washington, D. C.

PROF. ELY'S NEW CASE.

The investigating committee appointed by the board of regents of Wisconsin State University reported on the case of Prof. Ely last week. Their labor was perfunctory, as Mr. Wells, the State Superintendent of Schools, who preferred the charges, gave up his case the first day of the trial. The committee entirely exonerate Dr. Ely of the charges of being an anarchist, of fostering trade unions and strikes, and of teaching visionary, impracticable and pernicious doctrines. The faculty of the University as well as Prof. Ely and his friends are well pleased with the verdict, as it removes a shadow from the reputation of the institution.

The board of regents also passed a resolution condemning the imprudent course of Superintendent Wells in publishing his attack on Mr. Ely in New York papers, before submitting his objections to the proper authorities of the institution.

But there may be another charge against Prof. Ely that the public will urge with more determination than did Mr. Wells. In a recent article he makes some strictures on denominational colleges, and argues that the cause of higher education should be placed exclusively in the hands of the state, making the state universities great literary institutions, while the churches should look solely after the theological culture of the students.

The Professor is surely as greatly astray in this matter, if he is correctly reported, as Mr. Wells supposed him to be in questions of social economy.

It is a primary and fundamental principle of all home training and all true culture, that the intellect is inborn, God-given; but the heart, the moral nature, is the real object of all true education. Intellect is nugatory, said Webster; it it can be cultivated to any extent without either improving the understanding or benefitting the heart. "Poeta nascitur non fit," wrote Horace. (The poet is born, not made.) God gives to every man, says Cowper, those natural abilities that > —"lift him into life and let him fall

> Just in the niche he was designed to fill."

Professor Ely and all his faculty at Madison, and all the faculties of the colleges of Christendom, with all the teachers since Socrates, cannot make scholars of idiots. "Wherefore is a price put in the hand of a fool to get wisdom seeing he hath no heart to it." Prov. 17: 16. The effort to secularize our institutions of higher education is like the work of a Frankenstein. It tends to produce characterless monstrosities, abnormal natures, that go through the world as wandering stars were supposed to go bumping through the universe, missing their aim in everything and a catastrophe at the end of their course.

"Character is higher than intellect" says Emerson in his "American Scholar." "Character is the very first qualification for a teacher" wrote the State Superintendent of California in a paper that ranked first from men of his class. But there is no character without moral principle: and here is the error of those who insist that moral instruction must be kept out of our public schools and our colleges, and remitted to the home, the Sunday-school and the theological seminary. This is the demand of the secularists, who then turn about and ask the people to support them by heavy taxation in building up great universities which shall shut out the very instruction that makes men and women; that gives the taxed state its citizens of character, of worth, of force.

Stephen Girard attempted such folly. How nobly was he answered by Daniel Webster in his great argument before the Supreme Court:

> "The earliest and the most urgent intellectual want of human nature is the knowledge of its origin, its duty, and its destiny. 'Whence am I, where am I, and what is before me?' This is the cry of the human soul, so soon as it raises its contemplation above visible, material things..... And that question nothing but God, and the religion of God, can solve. Religion does solve it, and teaches every man that he is to live again, and that the duties of this life have reference to the life which is to come. And hence, since the introduction of Christianity it has been the duty, as it has been the effort, of the great and the good, to sanctify human knowledge, to bring it to the front, and to baptize learning into Christianity; to gather up all its productions, its earliest and its latest, its blossoms and its fruits, and lay them all upon the altar of religion and virtue."

It must be regretted if Prof. Ely has adopted the secularist view of higher education. It is more dangerous ground than that of a mistaken social economy. That could effect material relations only; this is a stand against principles on which the state and society must build "the virtue, peace and glory of mankind."

LODGE SECRETS GONE, WHAT IS LEFT?

The Masonic oath, Entered Apprentice degree, reads thus:

> I ..... most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear, that I will always hail, ever conceal and never reveal any of the secret arts, parts or points of the hidden mysteries of Ancient Freemasonry, which have been heretofore, may at this time, or shall at any future period, be communicated to me as such, to any person or persons whomsoever, except it be to a true and lawful brother Mason, or within a regularly constituted Lodge of Masons, and neither unto him nor them, until by strict trial, due examination, or legal information, I shall have found him or them as lawfully entitled to the same as I am myself.
>
> "I furthermore solemnly promise and swear that I will not write, print, paint, stamp, stain, cut, carve, make or engrave them, or cause the same to be done upon anything movable or immovable, capable of receiving the least impression of a word, syllable, letter or character, whereby the same may become legible or intelligible to myself or to any person under the whole canopy of heaven, and the secrets of Freemasonry be thereby unlawfully obtained through my unworthiness."

This form comprehends that of the degrees of Fellow Craft and Master Mason, and therefore is sufficient to show how definitely and comprehensively the whole matter of secret-keeping is guarded. This was the ravelin, or outwork of the lodge citadel which was earliest assaulted. It has been successfully stormed by Ronayne, Starry, Lowe, Rathbun, Goode and a host of others, who have made Masonic secrets cheap enough to be a byword.

This was awhile since confessed by "Gil" Barnard, secretary of a number of high degree Masonic bodies in this city, who said Masonic secrets could be had for a quarter, in plenty of book stores. Grand Lodges, like Michigan for example, have discussed this grave question for years. In that State were two strong parties. The orthodox, hard-shell, old-fashioned Masons insisted on the letter and spirit of the oath to the utmost. But they had to contend with an overwhelming fact; that, swear as much and as fiendishly and blasphemously as they pleased, yet every body knew or could know their boasted secrets. The progressive Masons accepted the fact and bought expositious or cypher rituals for private study without scruple for oath, or dread of penalty. For the bold use of the cypher "Ecce Orienti," etc., they offered the defence, that the cypher was not intelligible to outsiders and the word "whereby" released them. They did not write or print, etc. in a way "whereby" the secrets could become known to the world.

This same question came up before the Iowa Grand Lodge at its session in June last, and appears on pages 160, 161, 193–5 of the Grand Lodge report for 1894. In 1865 this Grand Lodge prohibited the "sale, distribution or use of mnemonics, or any printed notes, keys, cyphers, or characters of any and every kind whatever, containing any part of the secret work and lectures of the first three degrees in Masonry."

In 1876 the Grand Master was required to enforce this law. But in 1888 when a new code was adopted, the old laws were dropped, but the new very wisely said nothing about the exposition in cypher or otherwise.

Last year Red Oak Lodge expelled R W. Thorburg (or Thornbury, for the name is spelled both ways in different places) for selling books exposing Masonic secrets. The case, with several others like it, was brought by appeal before the Grand Lodge, and in every case the expelled Mason was restored to his "Masonic rights!"

Next day the question came up again, and Grand Secretary Parvin introduced a long preamble and resolution, reciting the whole situation, and prohibiting again the use of keys, cyphers, etc. On its presentation some one cried out, "Who among us shall cast the first stone?" The Grand Master affirmed he would "arrest the jewel" of any officer guilty of so tampering with sacred secrets. The vote was then taken,

AND WAS LOST!

Iowa Masonry therefore submits to the inevitable with a mock grimace; for the report reads as if the whole business was a huge joke.

Of the fifty Grand Lodges in the United States, twenty-seven report to Mr. Parvin that the cypher exposition is forbidden; eighteen do not reply one thing or another; and five: Colorado, Michigan, Ohio, South Carolina and Vermont, permit the innovation which the discussion of lodge secrets has forced upon them.

—Communications from the New England and Washington agents lay over for need of space. Read what they both have to say this week.

—An American Railway Union picnic was held last week in this city. The entertainment provided was two boxing exhibitions in the afternoon and a dance in the evening. Does Mr. Debs suppose he can revolutionize railroading in this country by such means?

—The Indianapolis Journal hits all around the circle when it says: "A great many people have been opposed to having women mix in the dirty pool of politics. There couldn't be a much dirtier pool than in the Ashland, Ky., district, but out of very self-respect the women had to mix in that. As a result there has been a wholesome cleaning out."

PERSONAL NOTES.

—Rev. W. E. Mozier, of Rock River Annual Conference of the United Brethren church, was elected as a delegate to represent this body in the next annual meeting of the N. C. A.

—Rev R. N. Countee, so long pastor of the Tabernacle church, Memphis, Tenn., was lately in that city on business and was welcomed by his former people as he preached to them on the Sabbath.

—Rev. S. F. Porter expects to leave the home missionary work in Dakota this week. He will soon resume the visitation of colleges, under direction of the N. C. A. Board. The church to which he has been ministering have shown a kind appreciation of his services.

—Hon. Edward Blake of Toronto, now a member of the British Parliament, is expected to address a meeting of the Irish National Federation in New York next month. We trust he will be true to the best interests of Ireland, as when he opposed Orangeism and all secret societies in the Canadian Parliament.

—Rev. J. P. Richards of the N. C. A. Board, with Mrs. Richards, started for California last week. They tarry on the way at Monmouth, Ill., and in Iowa, to visit friends during the pleasant fall weather, and then go to Washington by the Northern Pacific. They expect to spend most of the winter season at Los Angeles. The Cynosure expects an occasional letter from them.

—Dea. John Carr, whose name is favorably mentioned by Bro. Josiah W. Leeds in his article on the "Unhallowed Sabbath," in this issue, was, at the time of his taking so noble a stand for the Sabbath, a member of Rev. Alexander Thomson's church at Bartlett, Ill. He maintained his convictions and succeeded finely in business. A few years since he removed to Aurora, Ill., where his character was immediately appreciated by the New England church, who elected him deacon, and made him responsible for an important share in its work. We need hardly say that such a man is earnestly against the lodges.

—The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the surviving veterans of the Eighth Illinois Cavalry met last week at the Sherman House, in this city. Dr. S. K. Crawford of Sedalia, Mo., presided. In his address he made an eloquent reference to Gen. F. Farnsworth, the organizer and first commander of the regiment, who first became known in the vicinity of Chicago in a public exposition of Odd-fellowship which he and some young companions displayed in the early days of that secret order. Mr. Farnsworth, said the speaker, "was a member of Congress, a man of broad culture, an orator of rare tact and ability, a first-class lawyer, and had the advantage of being an intimate acquaintance and personal friend of Abraham Lincoln. He was and remains an advocate, thoroughly posted; a defender, securely guarded; a man whose devotions are underlaid with the soul of patriotism. In the army he was the patron of youth, in civil life the friend of old age. He arose to the rank of Brigade Commander and won distinguished honors for himself and his command."

—In the same address a tribute well deserved was paid to the late Dr. Abner Hard who lately died at Aurora, Ill. Dr. Hard was a warm friend of Pres. J. Blanchard, and sincerely sympathized with him in opposing secret societies. "I cannot close," said Dr. Crawford, "without making mention of my superior officer, Dr. Abner Hard. No man ever loved duty and proved faithful in its performance more than he. To those under him he was considerate, and to his superiors respectful. He was modest and firm in his opinions, cultivated in his judgment, and sincere in his convictions. We had many cruel tasks to perform together, as you will remember, but as time progressed we became more tender, sympathetic, and conservative. Dr. Hard attained the rank of Brigade Surgeon, served on the staff of Gen. Pleasanton, and at the close of the war returned home to family and friends, among whom he stood at the front of his profession, and died a few years ago as the result of blood poisoning contracted during the performance of a severe surgical operation, and thus, trying to save the life of another, he lost his own. He was a grand character, a splendid type of a noble profession."

THE G. A. R. AT PITTSBURG.

SOME THINGS UNACCOUNTABLE.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The G. A. R. encampment at Pittsburg has come and gone. The veterans are welcomed, wined and dined everywhere. No praise is too great for them. They are lauded in the pulpit and extolled in the press. Their vices are overlooked and apologized for, and their virtues magnified.

I have before me the last copy of the United Presbyterian. This paper contains some astonishing statements. It reports of the veterans that "they did not rob us of our Sabbath." "We are glad to say that the presence of our honored guests did not change our Sabbath quiet into a Babel of confusion." Where could the editor of this paper have been on the Sabbath? Surely not in Pittsburg. If the secular papers can be at all relied upon there were more arrivals on the Sabbath than any other day.

Two years ago when the G. A. R. encampment met in Washington, from early morning until late at night on Sabbath trainloads were arriving, bands playing, and banners flying. I have not known of a large gathering of any secret society that has not required Sabbath travel of those attending.

The following is another statement found in the same paper: "One of the many pleasant incidents in connection with the encampment of the Grand Army in this city was the welcome given to Gen. John B. Gordon, an ex-confederate soldier." Would it not have been well for the editor to have expressed his regret that this ex-confederate had so little manners as to take a flask of liquor, and on the stage, amid the applause of the Veterans' league, take a drink with Daniel E. Sickles? Reformers should not overlook such glaring evils, even if found among those claiming great patriotism. W. B. STODDARD.

"Sing me some of the bairn's songs," said Dr. Guthrie, the great Scotch preacher, when he was lying on the bed from which he went to the kingdom of glory. A great scholar of that nation, "Rabbi" Duncan, they called him, because of his great Hebrew learning, was found one day in his declining years by a friend intently reading a little book. "What are you doing?" said the friend. Smiling, the Rabbi said, in his native Scotch speech, "I'm learnin' the way to heaven out o' a bairn's builk." It is the old way. Jesus taught it to his disciples when he took a little child and set him in the midst of them. The simplicity of faith is part of its perfection.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The Norwegian Lutherans in this country report 500 parochial schools. The attendance, with but few exceptions, seems not to be very encouraging, and the majority of the schools have but one teacher. Their zeal and sacrifice in endeavoring to give their children a Christian education deserves praise.

Xenia Theological Seminary (United Presbyterian) opened under very favorable circumstances. It is expected that there will be at least forty-five students in the present session. Arrangements have been made to supply the place made vacant by the resignation of Prof. White who is now lecturing in Moody Institute. Rev. Mr. Muller, who recently came from the Lutheran Synod, will give instruction in Hebrew.

The American University (M. E.) at Washington has recently received a gift of $100 toward Asbury memorial hall from Rev. Marcus L. Taft of Peking university, China, who is now appealing for money to buy a heathen temple that stands by his own college. He offers to send the idol therein worshiped to begin a museum of religion in the American University. The amount now pledged by ministers for the Asbury memorial hall is $68,000.

The attendance at Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa, the past year in all departments was 291, of whom 116 were in the college department. Two missionaries are to go out from the class of '94—one to Africa and one to South America; the support of the latter is undertaken by twelve young men, made up of students and graduates of Penn College. The past year the command, "Go ye," has been heard by the students of the college as never before.

At Wheaton the college year opened most hopefully last Tuesday. The attendance is much larger than last year, and promises to equal or exceed all previous record. The ladies' hall was filled before opening day, and the large residence of Rev. L. N. Stratton, adjoining the college grounds was rented to accommodate the overflow. A new cottage for the accommodation of twenty to thirty young women is urgently considered, and would be a most economical and helpful addition to the institution.

The new college building at Knoxville, Tenn., to take the place of the one recently destroyed by fire, is now well under way, and, it is hoped, will be ready for occupancy by January. It is estimated that the building and furnishing will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. The insurance on the buildings destroyed by fire, will cover the greater portion of the cost. As this institution has done a good work for the United Presbyterian church among the freedmen of the South in the past, it cannot be doubted, with its enlarged facilities and educational advantages, but that a new era of prosperity awaits it.

It is stated that Mrs. Stanford, of California, has paid off the last of the debts due from the Stanford estate, and is now anxious for a distribution of the estate so that she may secure personal control of the property of which she is now executrix. As soon as the distribution is ordered, the erection of nearly $500,000 worth of new buildings, and the early extension of the Leland Standford University at Palo Alto to three times its present magnitude will begin. By that time it should shake off all connection with the wine business. Building public roads by licensing the hellish saloon is a trifle compared with educating young men with liquor-sustained endowments.

During a revival meeting not long ago, in a prominent church in the city of Columbus, Ohio, a leading member stated before the public, congregation that he had succeeded in getting a certain prominent gentleman to join the church by agreeing himself to join the Odd-fellows' lodge of which this gentleman was a member, and the measure seemed to be generally approved as a legitimate and prudent method of securing accessions to the church. Such a person and such a church would scarcely recognize any inconsistency in Christ's falling down and worshiping the devil for awhile upon condition that the devil would open the way for the establishing of his kingdom.—Christian Conservator.

If newspapers are not promptly paid for, they become accusing angels.

THE HOME.

THE SIFTING OF PETER.

In St. Luke's Gospel we are told
How Peter in the days of old
Was sifted;
And now, though ages intervene,
Sin is the same, while time and scene
Are shifted.

Satan desires us, great and small,
As wheat to sift us, and we all
Are tempted;
Not one, however rich and great,
Is by his station or estate
Exempted.

No house so safely guarded is
But he, by some device of his,
Can enter;
No heart hath armor so complete,
But he can pierce with arrows fleet
Its center.

For all at last the cock will crow,
Who hear the warning voice, but go
Unheeding;
Till thrice and more they have denied
The Man of Sorrows, crucified
And bleeding.

One look of that pale, suffering face
Will make us feel the deep disgrace
Of weakness;
We shall be sifted till the strength
Of self-conceit be changed at length
To meekness.

Wounds of the soul, though healed, will ache,
The reddening scars remain, and make
Confession;
Lost innocence returns no more;
We are not what we were before
Transgression.

But noble souls, through dust and heat,
Rise from disaster and defeat
The stronger;
And conscious still of the divine
Within them, lie on earth supine
No longer.

—H. W. Longfellow.

SOK-TAI—THE COURAGE OF FAITH.

(From "Christ or Confucius, Which?"

On one occasion, at a united prayer meeting of Christians and missionaries, this officer was asked to engage in prayer. There was a large crowd of heathen present as spectators, and amongst them some of the soldiers under his own command. These opened their eyes wide with astonishment when they saw one of their own officers taking a public part in this religious ceremony of the foreigners. On their return to the camp they at once reported the matter to one of their officers, who made a formal complaint to the colonel. On the next day he sent an orderly to the officer commanding him to appear at his quarters. When he entered his room the commander, addressing him in a very kind and polite manner, said, "I hear that you have become a member of the sect of the barbarians. Is that so?" The officer replied that he had been misinformed, for that such was not the case. "The fact of the matter is," he continued, "I have become a member of the church of Jesus." "But how is it that such a promising officer as you are should have been so deluded as to give up your own belief and adopt those of the men who are the enemies of China?" The officer then explained how he had been wounded in his engagement with the pirates; what agony he had endured, and how he had been treated by the foreign doctors. He also told him how he had been instructed in the knowledge of God, the very same God that their fathers in ancient times had worshiped; how, as the character of God was revealed to him, his own sinfulness was impressed upon him, and how he had found in Jesus, the Saviour of the world, the true remedy for distress of mind.

His superior officer listened to him very attentively, and then said, "If you want to be good and serve God, why not do so in your own home, or in your quarters here? There is no reason why you should be constantly associating with the foreigners, and thus bringing disgrace upon yourself and your regiment. Do you really believe that the Chinese don't know how to be good, and that you have to get this knowledge from these strangers?"

The officer replied that he was very sorry that he must appear insensible to the kindness of his superior, but he could not promise to do as he had advised him. "Very well, then," he said, "be very sure that you are prompt and faithful in the discharge of your duties, for on the first occasion on which you fail in any of them, I shall report you to the general and have you dismissed from the army."

This man's faith was not a common one. He must have had a profound conviction of the truth of Christianity to have thus disregarded the almost direct commands of his colonel. He had no influential friends to back him, for he was a poor man, and had come from a poor family. At present he was a rising man, and there were no reasons why he should not attain to high position in the army, which in China invariably brings with it wealth an honor. Long years afterwards, indeed, one of his fellow officers, whose prospects were far less bright than his own, gradually rose in the army, and actually obtained the command of all the troops in the Amoy districts. All these prospects he deliberately risked, rather than do anything that would interfere with his open profession of Christianity.

His faith was soon to be rewarded by a most signal deliverance from a great peril. He was ordered out with an expedition in search of pirates that had been committing depredations on the coast . . . They had not been out to sea long before the pirate junks were discovered in the distance. Chase was at once made, and as the wind was fair and the gunboats were fast sailers, they soon began to overhaul them. The one that Sok-Tai commanded was well in advance of the rest, and the breeze was so strong that he found himself fast getting up with one of the largest of the pirates.

The commanding officer now determined to put into execution his plan for Sok-Tai's destruction. He accordingly allowed his junk to get well ahead, until a considerable distance intervened between him and the rest of the squadron. As his vessel drew nearer the pirate, he discovered that she was too large for him to attack with any hope of success. Her decks were crowded with a crew of savage ruffians, who had forgotten what the word mercy meant, and who would fight to the bitter end rather than be captured. She was indeed already beginning to show fight, and the shot from her guns were whistling unpleasantly around. Sok-Tai looked anxiously about for help from his consorts, but to his dismay he found that they were being purposely kept back. Whilst he was debating with himself what he should do, he saw the red flag hoisted on board the commanding officer's ship. This was an order for him to come to close quarters with the pirate and board her. He dared not disobey, for to do so would end in ruin to himself, whilst to carry out the command and attack such a crew of monsters, who were fighting for dear life, was attended with the greatest possible peril. He felt that there was none that could save him but God, and to him he must appeal. Descending to his cabin, he knelt down and cried, "O God, I am very weak. The enemy is in front of me, and the enemy is behind me. My only hope is in thee. I know not what to do of myself. Deliver me for the sake of Jesus Christ." Returning quickly to the deck, with his own hand he trained one of the largest of his guns against the pirate, when the shot carried away her tiller, and killed the helmsman. Immediately there was the greatest confusion on board. All control over the junk was lost, for there was nothing to steer her with, whilst the shot from the gunboat was making havoc amongst the pirates. A panic ensued, during which Sok-Tai laid his junk alongside and boarded her. Some of the crew threw themselves into the sea and were drowned; a large number were killed, and thirty-eight were taken alive and subsequently beheaded.

After the action was over Sok-Tai went to make his report to the commander. When he appeared before him with the list of his prisoners he found him standing on deck surrounded by his officers. As he drew near to him he cried out half in earnest, half in banter, "Your God certainly is the true God; to-day you owe your safety to him." Sok-Tai's heart was too full to reply. The thought of the great peril through which he had just passed, and the wonderful deliverance that God had given him, filled his mind, so he merely bowed and then retired.

The answer to his prayer that day was one of the turning points in his life. It was not simply that he had been delivered from the pirates. He had a vision of the Unseen which was to qualify him for the great life-work to which God was calling him. Eighteen years ago he went to commence work in a region where men had never heard of God. The people were notoriously bad. Opium smoking and gambling and other vices that follow in their train were rampant. The Gospel was preached there, and its divine power touched the hearts of opium smokers and gamblers, and in time a church grew and multiplied under his teaching. What was the one great truth he was able to impress upon that church? It was the reality of God and of the unseen world. There are some things that no language can tell. They have to be taught by a life. . . . Sok-Tai had to preach truths which it takes even Christians long to fully believe. He had to tell of God mingling in human life, planning for men, very human in his affections, listening to every cry of the heart to him, and full of the intensest sympathy for all. How shall he get opium smokers and gamblers who require to have the very word God explained to them to understand this? His own life shall tell what human language cannot; and the unseen world which opened its mysterious gate to him through the flash of the cannon and the tumult of a deadly conflict, shall through his profound faith in it become a reality in their life.

WORRY OR WORK.

Never think that God's delays are God's denials. Hold on; hold fast; hold out. Patience is genius.

It is good to put a bother away over night. It all straightens out in the morning.—Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

Some one has said: "I have been surrounded by troubles all my life long, but there is a curious thing about them—nine-tenths of them never happened!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

It is not work that kills a man, it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more on a man than he can bear. Worry is the rust of the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction.—Beecher.

A life spent in brushing clothes, and washing crockery, and sweeping floors—a life which the proud of the earth would have treated as the dust under their feet, a life spent at the clerk's desk, a life spent in the narrow shop, a life spent in the laborer's hut, may yet be a life so ennobled by God's loving mercy that for the sake of it a king might gladly yield his crown.—Farrar.

I once heard of a lady who wrote down in order the particular fears and anxieties which were harassing her, inclosed the paper and sealed it, hoping by this kind of mechanical contrivance to be enabled in some sort to dismiss the subject from her mind. The paper was put away and forgotten. Several months later it came to light, when she found that not one of the fears therein set down had been realized, and the difficulties had all been smoothed away before she came to the time for their solution.—Mrs. V. K. Schuyler.

I say to my friend, "Be a Christian." That means to be a full man. And he says to me, "I have not time to be a Christian. I have not room. If my life was not so full. You don't know how hard I work from morning to night. What time is there for me to be a Christian? What time is there, what room is there, for Christianity in such a life as mine?" But does not it come to seem to us so strange, so absurd, if it was not so melancholy, that man should say such a thing as that? It is as if the engine had said it had no room for the steam. It is as if the tree had said it had no room for the sap. It is as if the ocean had said it had no room for the tide. It is as if the man said that he had no room for his soul. It is as if life said that it had no time to live, when it is life. It is not something that is added to life. It is life. A man is not living without it. And for a man to say that "I am so full in life that I have no room for life," you see immediately to what absurdity it reduces itself. —Phillips Brooks.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

TEMPERANCE.

A STORY WITH TWO SIDES.

A woman stood at the bar of justice and by her side two stalwart policemen. Her name was called, and she answered. Then the judge asked the clerk to read the charge against her.

"Disorderly conduct on tho street and disturbing the peace," read the clerk.

"Who are the witnesses against the woman?" asked the judge; and the two policemen stepped forward to be sworn.

"Now, tell the story," said the judge; and one of them began.

"I arrested the woman in front of a saloon on Broadway on Saturday night. She had raised a great disturbance, was fighting and brawling with the men in the saloon, and the saloon keeper put her out. She used the foulest language, and with an awful threat struck at the keeper with all her force. I then arrested her and took her to the detention house and locked her up."

"The next witness will take the stand," said the judge; and the other policeman stepped up.

"I saw the arrest, and know it to be just as stated. I saw the woman fighting as the saloon keeper put her out on the street. I heard the vile language she used in the presence of the crowd that gathered in the street."

"Call the saloon keeper. What do you know of this case?"

"I know dis voman vas makin' disturbance by my saloon. She comes und she makes trobles und she fights mit me, und I puts her the door oud. I know her all along. She vas pad vomans."

Turning to the trembling woman, the judge said:

"This is a pretty clear case, madam; have you anything to say in your defense?"

"Yes, judge," she answered in a strangely calm though trembling voice.

"I am not guilty of the charge, and these men standing before you have perjured their souls to prevent me from telling the truth. It was they, and not I, who violated the law. I was in the saloon last Saturday night, but I'll tell you how it happened.

"My husband did not come home from work that evening, and I feared he had gone to the saloon. I knew he must have drawn his week's wages, and we needed it all so badly. I put the little ones to bed, and then waited all alone through the weary hours until after the city clock struck twelve. Then, I thought, the saloons will be closed, and he will be put out on the streets. Probably he will not be able to get home, and the police will arrest him and lock him up. I must go and find him and bring him home. I wrapped a shawl around me and started out, leaving the little ones asleep in bed; and, judge, I have not seen them since."

Here the tears came to her eyes and she almost broke down, but, restraining herself, she went on:

"I went to the saloon where I thought most likely he would be. It was about twenty minutes after twelve, but the saloon, that man's saloon"—pointing to the saloon keeper, who seemed to want to crouch out of her sight—"was still open, and my husband and these two policemen"—pointing to those who had so lately sworn against her—"were standing at the bar with their lips still wet with drink, and the flecks of foam not yet settled in the empty glasses before them. I stepped up to my husband and asked him to go home with me, but the men laughed at him, and the saloon keeper ordered me out. I said, 'No,' I want my husband to go with me'. Then I tried to tell him how badly we needed the money he was spending, and again the keeper cursed me and ordered me to leave. Then I confess I could stand no more, and I said, 'You ought to be prosecuted for violating the midnight closing law.'

"At this the saloon keeper and policemen rushed upon me and put me out into the street, and one of the policemen, grasping my arm like a vise, hissed in my ear, 'I'll get you a thirty days' sentence in the workhouse, and then see what you think about suing people.' He called a patrol wagon, pushed me in, and drove to the house of detention, and, judge, you know the rest. All day yesterday I was locked up, my children at home alone, with no fire, no food, no mother."

It was well the story was finished, for a great sob choked her utterance, and she could say no more.

"Dismissed," said the judge in a husky voice, and the guilty woman who had so disturbed the peace passed out of the court room.

But what of the saloon keeper who violated the law by keeping open after twelve o'clock at night? And what of the policemen who violated their obligation by drinking while on duty, and who threatened an honest woman with a sentence in the workhouse if she dared to tell the truth? Oh, nothing at all! They were too guilty to be prosecuted.

The facts of this story will be found on record in Judge Ermston's court.—Cincinnati Living Issue.

WHEN THE SALOON GOES.

The increased consumption of bread will raise the price of wheat.

The increased demand for shoes will increase the demand for hides.

The increased call for clothing will make the wool and cotton markets boom.

The wages of farm laborers will advance, because the productive value of their labor will advance.

The wages of coal-miners will be raised, because the consumption of coal will be vastly increased.

The wages of railroad men will advance, because new trains will have to be put on to meet the demands of trade.

The slum politician will no longer run the political primaries.

The ginmill statesman will no longer sell out the State to corrupt corporations.

The besotted anarchist will no longer arouse public sentiment against justifiable strikes.

The hotheads in the labor union will no longer precipitate a strike regardless of consequences and the chances of success.

The wives and sisters of drunken bums will no longer be forced to compete in the labor market, to keep body and soul together.

The penitentiaries will be depleted and the contract labor problem will solve itself.

The foreigners who care more for drink than they care for their children will stay away, and the immigration problem will be solved.

The beer-guzzling anarchists will go back to the Old World and stay there.

Children will no longer be conceived by drunken fathers, nursed by besotted mothers, and educated in the dives.

The inmates of the brothels will leave their business or leave the county, for the brothel can thrive only on liquor.

Lynching will grow beautifully less, and cases of rape will be few and far between.

Two-thirds of the divorce lawyers will find their occupation gone.

Twenty-five million a week will be restored to legitimate trade, and hard times will vanish like the morning mist.—The Voice.

TEMPERANCE DAY.

It has been determined that, in the midst of all the special "days" of this city, Labor Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Thanksgiving Day and the like, it would be well to have a day when the friends of temperance should rally for a demonstration. A number of Christian Temperance workers of Chicago, of different religious and political beliefs have formed the Chicago Temperance Union, to perfect arrangements to have the first grand demonstration Oct. 10.

The plan in brief is to have a parade on the day set in which all sympathizers from Sunday Schools, churches and other religious and temperance organizations, as well as all boys' military companies and other individuals friendly to to the cause are invited to join, to be followed in the evening by a mass meeting in the Auditorium, which will be addressed by the best and most representative speakers on temperance obtainable.

Miss Frances E. Willard has ordered her bust made for the library of the South-west Kansas college at Winfield, the college having named its ladies' hall in her honor.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON 1.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Oct. 7.

SUBJECT.—Jesus at Nazareth.—Luke 4:16-30.

GOLDEN TEXT.—See that ye refuse not him that speaketh.—Heb. 12:25.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 4:16-30. T.—Mark 6:1-6. W.—Isaiah 61:1-6. Th.—John 5:36-47. F.—John 7:10-18. S.—Prov 1:24-33. Su.—Deut. 18:15-19.

"As his custom was." "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business," or "in my Father's house," was the word of the twelve-year-old boy, now a man of thirty. The synagogue was the place of local worship on the Sabbath. Our Lord was always found there on that day. But in all the years the worshipers had never seen him stand up before them to address them. What varied feelings there must have been in the audience. His words were "gracious." They were such words as the poor, the oppressed, the afflicted, the heart-broken in every age love to hear. The pitiful multitudes of London cheer for the man of Nazareth. They listen with impatience to the teaching of religion which puts vast wealth into church walls and furnishings, and provides a grand spectacular worship without heart and life for the humble and the poor.

"The acceptable year of the Lord."—This alludes to the year of release, or that of Jubilee. The Lord came to convey the tidings to the world that offended Deity was willing to be reconciled to them, and to accept them on new terms. In the year of Jubilee, servants were set at liberty, all actions against debtors were dropped, and those who had mortgaged their lands had them returned to them again. Christ sounded the Jubilee trumpet that Sabbath day in Nazareth, and those were indeed blessed who heard the "joyful sound." It was an acceptable day, for it was a day of salvation. He came in God's name, to discharge poor sinners that were debtors and prisoners to divine justice. The prophets could only proclaim liberty; but Christ, "as one having authority," having power on earth to forgive sins came to set at liberty.—C. W. Lyman.

"But I tell you of a truth," etc. He illustrates his teaching by two cases in Scripture of prophets whom they all respected, but who acted precisely in the way they had blamed him for doing. They worked miracles for others in these cases, but not for their own countrymen. Thus, in the days of Elijah, though there were many widows in Israel, yet unto none of them was he sent but to a Gentile widow in Zarephath, near Sidon; and though there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha, yet it was only Naaman, the Syrian, that was healed. In both cases the beneficiaries were outside of the Jewish people. "The application in the mind of Jesus' hearers was quickly made. Jesus was understood by them to propose a preference to other cities before his own." The revulsion of feeling was sudden, and they were ready in a moment to drive him from the city.—Bible Teacher.

In a recent lecture (1893), Mr. Moody gave the following: "People close up their Bibles and then wonder why they do not become holy." He then took a pitcher of water and began to pour it into a bottle filled with a dark fluid. The water drove out the fluid, and was rapidly making the contents look clear. Then he put the cork in the bottle and contined to pour the water. "That," he said, "illustrates the people who stop up their minds with unbelief. Many people sit in church with their minds corked up, and the minister pours on the Word, but it all goes outside. The people should be prepared to receive the message as much as the minister to give it."—Peloubet.

Why Jesus wrought no miracles at Nazareth.—(See also Matt. 13:58; Mark 6:5.) 1. He could do no mighty work there because of their unbelief. 2. Jesus never worked miracles merely to show his power. 3. In the state of mind they were in, a miracle would merely increase their pride, and produce an outward attraction.—Peloubet.

1. Every true Christian has the home-missionary spirit. 2. We understand the New Testament through the promises, predictions, and divine providence in the Old. 3. The Gospel is especially for the poor. 4. To become a Christian is to enter upon the year of jubilee. 5. Good listening is not only a blessing to the hearer, but an aid and source of power to the teacher. 6. The Gospel, like Jesus himself, bears the marks of its divine origin. 7. Many of the best and greatest men have risen from social obscurity. 8. We are apt to undervalue things with which we are familiar. 9. It is very foolish, as well as wicked, to become angry at the preacher for speaking the truth; and to imagine that destroying the preacher will change the truth he preaches.—Peloubet.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Rev. Hudson Taylor, of the China Inland Mission, estimates that more than 100,000,000 of the Chinese are addicted to the use of opium.

—At the age of seventy-three years Bishop William Taylor is as zealous as ever in the work of evangelizing Africa, though many of his best men have died or been compelled to return.

—The first church building erected in this country was built on Manhatten Island in 1628, by the Reformed Dutch church. The organization which erected it still exists, and is the well-known Collegiate church of New York City.

—At the Iowa Yearly Meeting of Friends held at Oskaloosa during the first week of September it was stated that there were thirty young men and women in that meeting who feel called to missionary work and are ready to go when an opportunity opens.

—At least in some parts of China the truth has been fairly well planted. A missionary affirms: "I could walk from Canton to Shanghai, over 800 miles, not walking more than twenty miles a day, and could sleep every night in a village or town that has a little Christian community."

—The annual meeting of the German Baptists of central conference opened last Thursday in Peoria, Ill., with an unusually large attendance from Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri. Rev. J. Meier, of Chicago, was elected moderator and Rev. A. Vogel, Peoria, secretary and treasurer.

—Work is soon to begin for a church building on corner of Hoyne avenue and Cortland street, Chicago, for the Humboldt Park Swedish Baptist church. It will be 46 by 70 feet, of pressed brick and stone exterior and interior finish in oak, with a seating capacity of about 600 people, and will cost about $7,000.

—Why the Reformed Presbyterian church is opposed to secret societies, was the topic for three recent Sabbath evenings, chosen by Rev. R. W. Chestnut of Marissa, Ill., for the instruction of the young people of his congregation. Bro. Chestnut is editor of the Reformed Presbyterian Advocate, representing the R. P. General Synod.

—An exchange says that a revival of peculiar interest took place among the sponge gatherers of Key West while they were out on their last trip. Thirty-seven of them applied for membership in the Congregational church and five in the Methodist. They are all young men, ranging from the age of fifteen years to forty-one.

—The Synodical Conference of the Lutheran church met in Milwaukee, on August 8th. Rev. J. Bading was elected president; Rev. P. Brand, vice-president; Rev. Ch. Kuehn, secretary, and Mr. Christiansen of Detroit, Mich., treasurer. The Norwegian Synod presented its greetings, and these were read on "Religious Fanaticism," and the "Labor Question." The Synodical Conference numbers 1,500 ministers, 2,000 congregations and 440,000 members.

—New York is often spoken of as a non-church-going city, yet she has 522 churches, valued at about $55,000,000, and having a seating capacity of 400,000. There has been a gain in the last twenty-three years of 188 in a number of churches, and about 100,000 in the seating capacity. The gains, however, have not, it is true, kept pace with the enormous increase in population. The percentage of increase is largest among the Roman Catholics, who have more than doubled the number of their churches. The Hebrews come next, and the Baptists next.

—China's first national Christian Endeavor convention, lasting three days, was a great success. About 100 delegates were in attendance, and the place of meeting was filled with natives and foreigners. Handsome banners were displayed, but because of the Chinese supicions about secret societies the native delegates did not wear badges. A very interesting feature was the introduction of Mr. Ling, from Foochow, who is said to be the first Chinese Endeavorer, having signed the pledge nine years ago. It is hoped that in a few years all the important offices may be filled by natives.—Christian Intelligencer.

—Railroad Chapel, a mission for the past forty years conducted by the First Presbyterian church, this city, and for the last three years located at 3825 Dearborn street, has just been organized into a regular church of the Chicago presbytery. The new church starts with an active membership of over two hundred and will be called the South Side Tabernacle. Railroad Chapel was started in 1855 by Rev. Brainard Kent, who was granted permission by the Lake Shore Railroad Company to use some of its cars in which to hold services. The mission grew and additional cars were furnished. From this circumstance the mission derived its name.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF AUGUST, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The

PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital, Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLd USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree. This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. Paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear area of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Distress in the Stomach

"I had trouble with my stomach for a long time and could not get anything that would do me any good. Last February I had

Mrs. E. Champlin

Inflammation of the stomach, and was so bad for a week, that even light food would cause Great Distress and vomiting. The doctor's medicine did me no good and so I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken two bottles I could eat anything without having the least bit of distress. I have only taken five bottles and my general health is much better." ED. CHAMPLIN, Groton City, New York.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills should be in every household.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

KEEPING THE BABY AMUSED.

Perhaps the following suggestion may help you to find occupation for your baby boy, writes Elisabeth Robinson Scovil in the August Ladies' Home Journal. A baby will be attracted for a short time by some fine toy that he can simply look at, but he will spend ten times as long in putting pegs into holes in a board contrived for the purpose, or in taking out one by one from a well-filled basket articles, no matter what—spools, blocks, clothes pins—anything so that they are sometimes changed and he does not tire of the monotony. Then the task of putting them all back keeps him busy for a still longer time. As baby becomes more discerning and his fingers more nimble, a pleasing device for his employment is a board with variously-shaped holes, round, square, triangular, etc., with blocks and spheres to fit into the various places. Should these be in bright colors his love for color may also be gratified, and learning these colors soon follows. Little tasks of carrying articles from one portion of the room to another, or from room to room, will often keep a child busy and interested for hours. A small hammer and tacks, with a soft wood board into which to drive them, is generally a delight to any child old enough not to put the tacks into his mouth. So simple are the employments that will satisfy the little tot that almost any mother will find them constantly suggesting themselves.

TO PREVENT BLISTERS.

If you would insure the sufferer from being blistered by the mustard plaster, mix it with the white of an egg.

SAND IN THE OVEN.

Sprinkle a layer of dry sand in the oven and let the cake pans rest upon it. This will prevent the cakes from burning on the bottom.

BORAX.

The cleanly borax seems to be offensive to most insects, and woolen goods are well defended from their invasions if they are sprinkled with borax and closely wrapped in newspaper.

THE HUMAN MUSIC BOX.

Never was a music box so exquisitely arranged for the playing of sweet tunes as the human organism is for the production of the music of happiness.

FOR MENDING CHINA.

A strong, perfectly colorless cement is made by dissolving a half-ounce of gum arabic in a wine glass of boiling water and adding plaster of Paris to form a thick paste. Use at once, applying with a brush.

A HINT TO THE COOK.

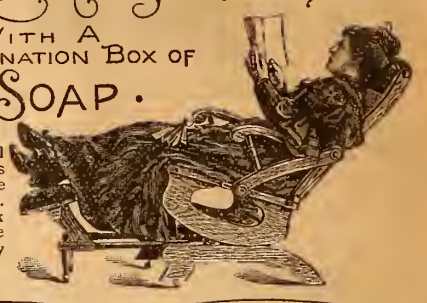
All kinds of canned food have a more delicious flavor if they are turned out upon a platter or other flat dish an hour or two to regain the oxygen that was used when they were sealed hot.

Physician—"Considering the weak state of your eyes it will be as well if you gaze as much as possible into empty space."

Patient—"All right, Doctor, then I'll keep looking into my purse."

The official reports show that no baking powder received an award over the Royal at the Chicago World's Fair.

The judge of awards on baking powder, Dr. H. W. Wiley, writes that the claim of another company to having received the highest award is false; that no such award was given to it.



The Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest baking powder made, and has received the highest award at every fair, wherever exhibited in competition with others.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00

"Chautauqua" Rocker and Reclining Chair FREE
WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF
"SWEET HOME" SOAP.

It can be adjusted to any position, and changed at will by the occupant while reclining. A synonym of luxurious ease and comfort. It is built of oak, polished antique finish, with beautifully grained three-ply veneer back. The seat, head and foot rests are upholstered with silk plush in crimson, old red, tobacco brown, old gold, blue or olive, as desired. It is very strong and perfectly simple in construction. It is fully guaranteed.

YOU USE THE GOODS THIRTY DAYS BEFORE BILL IS DUE.

THE COMBINATION BOX CONTAINS

100 BARS "SWEET HOME" SOAP, ENOUGH TO LAST AN AVERAGE FAMILY ONE FULL YEAR, FOR ALL LAUNDRY AND HOUSEHOLD PURPOSES IT HAS NO SUPERIOR.	$5.00
7 BARS WHITE WOOLEN SOAP, A PERFECT SOAP FOR FLANNELS	.70
9 PKGS. BORAXINE SOAP POWDER, CANNOT POSSIBLY INJURE THE FABRIC — SIMPLE - EASY - EFFICIENT	.90
½ DOZ MODJESKA COMPLEXION SOAP, EXQUISITE FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN A MATCHLESS BEAUTIFIER	.60
1 BOTTLE, 1 OZ., MODJESKA PERFUME, DELICATE, REFINED, POPULAR, LASTING	.25
½ DOZ. OLD ENGLISH CASTILE SOAP	.30
½ DOZ. CREME OATMEAL TOILET SOAP	.25
½ DOZ. ELITE TOILET SOAP	.25
¼ DOZ. LARKIN'S TAR SOAP, INFALLIBLE PREVENTATIVE OF DANDRUFF. UNEQUALLED FOR WASHING LADIES' HAIR.	.45
¼ DOZ. SULPHUR SOAP,	.45
1 JAR MODJESKA COLD CREAM, SOOTHING - CURES CHAPPED SKIN	.25
1 BOTTLE MODJESKA TOOTH POWDER, PRESERVES THE TEETH, HARDENS THE GUMS, SWEETENS THE BREATH	.25
1 PKT SPANISH ROSE SACHET POWDER	.25
1 STICK NAPOLEON SHAVING SOAP	.10
200,000 FAMILIES USE IN A YEAR THE ASSORTMENT OUR BOX PROVIDES.
THE CONTENTS IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL, COST.	$10.00
CHAIR, WORTH AT RETAIL	10.00
ALL FOR $10.00 · CHAIR YOU GET THE GRATIS.	$20.00

After trial you pay the retail value of the Soaps alone. All middlemen's profits are returned to you in valuable premiums, so well bought as to save you half the regular retail prices. The Larkin plan saves you half the cost. The manufacturer alone adds VALUE; every middleman adds COST. The publishers of this paper know that every claim is sustained by the facts.

ORDER TO-DAY. We do not ask you to remit in advance. We merely ask to send you a CHAIR and Combination box, and if after 30 days' trial you are fully satisfied, you can pay the bill—$10.00. But if you are not, no charge will be made for what you have used, and we will take the goods away at our own expense. HOW CAN WE DO MORE?

Many people prefer to send cash with order—it is not asked—but if you remit in advance, you will receive in addition to all extras named, a nice present for the lady of the house, and shipment same day order is received. The publishers also know that your money will be refunded without argument or comment if the box or CHAIR does not prove all expected. Booklet illustrating ten other premiums free upon application.

ESTAB. 1875. INCOR. 1892. THE LARKIN·SOAP·M'F'G·CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

FARM NOTES.

CHINESE METHODS OF TILLAGE.

Messrs. Allen and Sachtleben, the American students who crossed Asia on bicycles, were close observers of native manners and customs. In the September number of The Century they say:

Apart from the "Yellow Lands" of the Hoang-ho, which need no manure, the arable regions of China seem to have maintained their fecundity for over four thousand years, entirely through the thoughtful care of the peasantry in restoring to the soil, under another form, all that the crops have taken from it. The plowing of the Chinese is very poor. They scarcely do more than scratch the surface of the ground with their bent-stick plows, wooden-tooth drills, and wickerwork harrows; and instead of straight lines, so dear to the eye of a Western farmer, the ridges and furrows are as crooked as serpents. The real secret of their success seems to lie in the care they take to replenish the soil. All the sewage of the towns is carried out every morning at daybreak by special coolies, to be preserved for manure; while the dried herbs, straw, roots, and other vegetables refuse, are economized with the greatest care for fuel. The Chinese peasant offsets the rudeness of his implements with manual skill. He weeds the ground so carefully that there is scarcely a leaf above the ground that does not appertain to the crop. All kinds of pumps and hydraulic wheels are worked, either by the hand, animals, or the wind. The system of tillage, therefore, resembles market-gardening rather than the broad method of cultivation common in Europe and America. The land is too valuable to be devoted to pasture, and the forests nearly everywhere have been sacrificed to tillage to such an extent that the material for the enormously thick native coffins has now to be imported from abroad.

A VERMONT SHEEP DOG.

Here is a true story of a Vermont sheep-dog which Scotchmen will find it hard to match: Captain C——, of Bradford, Vt., had a "shepherd dog" which was accustomed to bring home the cows at night, always separating them from the other cattle, and never allowing any but milch cows to come up. One day Captain C—— accompanied the dog in driving the cows to pasture. At one place on the road the Captain was surprised to see the dog desert the herd and take to the woods by the side of the road. The Captain went on with the cattle, which were walking briskly in advance. Within a quarter of a mile they came to a break in the fence, of which the Captain had no knowledge, leading into a field, and here, in the gap of the fence, sat the dog in a matter-of-fact way, guarding it against the entrance of the cattle. What else could his master suppose than that the dog was aware of the gap in the fence, and knowing that the man would bring up the cattle, made a detour through the woods to the place to prevent the cattle from going into the field? —Boston Transcript.

A good crop of potatoes requires for an acre about 55 pounds of phosphoric acid, 119 pounds of nitrogen, and 192 pounds of potash.

It will be welcome information to lazy farmers, if any such are to be found, that the Illinois Station has proved that very frequent cultivation of corn has not been found profitable.

The following formula is for an excellent mixture to keep flies off of cows: Train oil, three quarts; crude petroleum, one quart; carbolic acid, one ounce. Apply with sponge, and one application suffices for five to seven days.

A correspondent writes to American Gardening that if you insert a branch of the common pine into the middle of a currant or gooseberry bush the currant worm will not get into it, or if they are already there, they will leave at once.

Manure is never more valuable than on the day it is made. It is, therefore, much better to haul it to the fields at every opportunity than to have a large pile staring one in the face in the spring when so much work is on hand. So much less goes to waste, too.

Ayer's PILLS

Received Highest Awards AT THE World's Fair

AS THE BEST Family PHYSIC

AYER'S PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR PILLS

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.

Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

By using Hall's Hair Renewer, gray, faded, or discolored hair assumes the natural color of youth, and grows luxuriant and strong, pleasing everybody.

Three Home Seeker's Excursions.

To all parts of the West and Northwest via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway at practically half rates. Round trip tickets, good for return passage within twenty days from date of sale, will be sold on September 11 and 25 and October 9, 1894.

For further information apply to the nearest coupon ticket agent or address G. H. Heafford, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

A UNIQUE PICTURE.

There was much interest in the N. C. A. Chart used at the World's Fair last year by Rev. J. P. Stoddard in illustrating various facts in Freemasonry.

There has been a demand for copies of it by those who saw it at the World's Fair, and who wish to use it in explaining to their neighbors different phases of the lodge question.

Hence the N. C. A. has had a photo-zinc etching made, size 18x20 inches, which shows the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scotch Rite, etc., and their relation one to another.

There are also seen some of the initiatory scenes in the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason. This chart can be used to illustrate the system of secret societies in a variety of ways. It will be especially helpful to local lecturers and pastors of churches in explaining to people the ceremonies, oaths, prayers, religion, etc, of the lodge. The Chart is on heavy book paper, and will be sent postpaid, at your risk, for six two-cent postage stamps; or sent at our risk by registered mail for ten two-cent postage stamps.

Framed and hung upon the wall it will make a novel and attractive picture for the homes of the readers of the Cynosure.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

LODGE LAMP

a monthly of choice articles on the SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM, which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

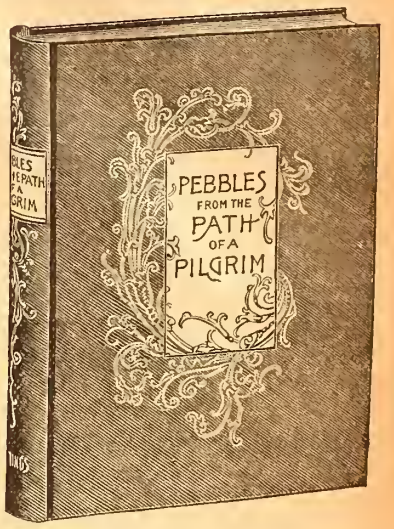
Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.



Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

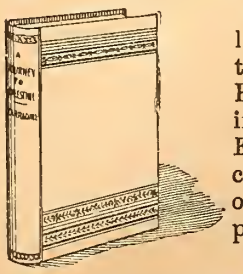
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."



A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

In accordance with a general order of the War Department the entire United States army will be concentrated at the great railway centers.

A large mattress factory burned on the 17th. Six persons perished in the flames. Property loss, $75,000.

DISASTER.

A cyclone swept through Minnesota and Iowa last Friday night, causing fearful loss of life and property. At least sixty persons were killed and many others were fatally injured. In addition several towns were wrecked, some of them being totally demolished. The storm was first observed a few miles south of Spencer in northwestern Iowa about 8 o'olook in the evening. Sweeping resistlessly across the State north of Emmetsburg and Algona it wiped out the town of Cylinder, touched Mason City, ruining buildings and crops northwest of Osage. Here the cyclone bore off to the northeast, orossing the Minnesota line and soon after 10 o'clock wrecked the little town of Leroy, where a bad fire added to the destruotion. Spring Valley was in the path of the cyclone and suffered severely. Turning again to the east the little towns of Homer and Lowther were badly damaged. After crossing the Mississippi and doing considerable damage to farm buildings near Marshland, Wis., the storm seemed to have spent its force. Just how many lives have been lost is still uncertain. Certainly not less than sixty are dead while some reports place the number at from seventy to one hundred. The towns damaged or destroyed are Cylinder, Burt, Forest City and Manly Junction, in Iowa; Leroy, Spring Valley, Dodge Center, Homer and Lowther, Minn., and Marshland, Wis.

The most disastrous fire in the history of Portland, Ore., broke out at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the dock of the Pacific Coast Elevator company and raged for three hours, destroying property valued at nearly $1,500,000. Three men are believed to have lost their lives, half a million bushels of wheat were detroyed and costly docks burned.

COUNTRY.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad will soon open its new northwestern extension to Billings, Mont., where connection is made with the Northern Pacific. This extension gives the Burlington a direct outlet to the North Pacific coast.

The late planter's convention in New Orleans was a large and enthusiastic assemblage. There were present not only the leading planters of Louisiana, but some of the most representative men of New Orleans. The convention went over to the Republican party in a body.

A terrible tornado passed through Jennings and Mining, O. Ter., and blew fifty houses to atoms. A young lady and two children were killed and several people injured. Several houses caught fire at Mining and a conflagration followed.

FOREIGN.

A petition bearing the names of 27,577 Swiss citizens has been presented to the Federal Council, demanding the adoption of vigorous repressive measures against Anarchists.

The empress of Japan as patroness of the Red Cross society in that country is personally engaged daily with her court ladies in preparing bandages and lints for the wounded Chinese, as well as Japanese, engaged in the recent great battles of Ping Yang and Yalu.

Advices from Madagascar show that the Hovas expect a war with France and are actively arming and construoting fortifications. The natives are being urged to resist the French to the death.

The steamer Namyong, 1,512 tons, is reported lost with all hands in the Carimata straits while on a passage from Soura Baya to Singapore, on the evening of Aug. 7. Sixty-four men are believed to have gone down with her.

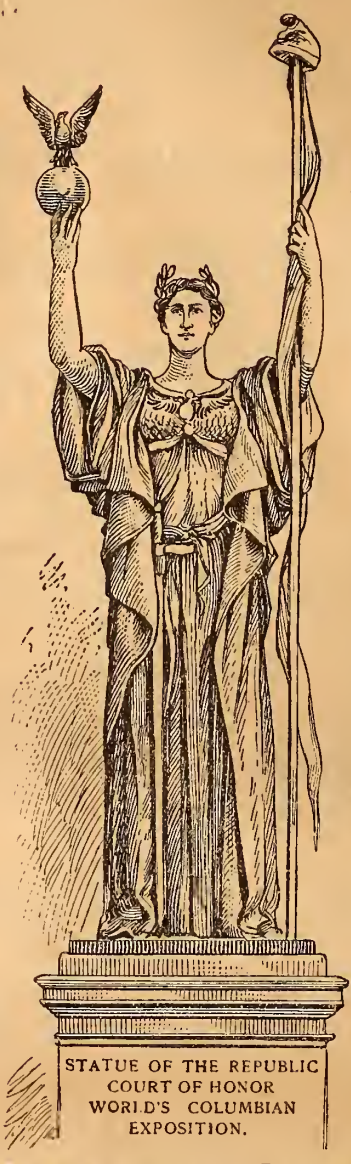
A daring outrage by Greek brigands is reported from Lamia, near the Turkish frontier. The procureur du roi and a judge were seized by a band of brigands and taken to their stronghold. A detachment of 100 soldiers was sent to attack the brigands and in the fight which followed the brigands were exterminated, but the procureur du roi was killed and the judge was mortally wounded.

Sept. 18 a naval engagement took place off Yalu, where a Chinese squadron was covering the landing of a large force. The landing was effected with success, but in the meantime a Japanese fleet attacked the assailants. In the fighting that followed the Chinese lost four vessels sunk and one burned. The Japanese fleet was comparatively uninjured. It is declared that the enthusiasm among all classes in Japan is very great.

A general engagement between the Japanese and Chinese forces took place at Ping Yang, near the northern frontier of Korea, on the 14th and 15th inst., and resulted in a decisive victory for the Japanese. The total of the Chinese losses during the two days' battle is said to be over 17,000 men killed, wounded, and prisoners. The Japanese cavalry is continuing the pursuit of the Chinese who succeeded in esoaping, and detachments of troopers continue bringing in squads of captured Chinese. Among the captured Chinese are several of the most prominent commanding officers in the Chinese troops in Korea, only a few of the Chinese commanders succeeding in escaping. The Japanese loss was trifling when compared with that of the Chinese, only thirty Japanese being killed and 270 wounded.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept 18.—The new treaties Japan is negotiating are regarded in diplomatic ciroles as quite as important as the Chinese-Japanese war, as they will give for the first time official recognition to Japan as one of the sisterhood of civilized nations, capable of meting out justice and attending to the other functions of an enlightened government. A treaty similar to that with Great Britain is now being negotiated with this country.

MARKET REPORTS.



CHICAGO.
Wheat—Spring No. 2	57⅞@	54⅛
Winter No. 2	51¾@	52
Corn—No. 2	51¾@	52⅛
Oats—No. 2	28⅝@	31½
Rye—No. 2	46½@	47½
Bran per ton	12 00 @13	00
Hay—Timothy	7 00 @11	00
Butter, medium to best	12 @	24½
Cheese	7 @	10¼
Beans	1 70 @1	90
Eggs	15 @	16
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	5 25 @6	00
Flax	1 42 @1	28
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00 @8	50
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00 @105	00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	55 @	70
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½@	06½
Lumber—Common	15	50
Wool (unwashed)	7 @	17
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 50 @6	50
Common to good	2 00 @5	30
Hogs	3 00 @6	15
Sheep	1 50 @3	50
NEW YORK.
Wheat No. 2	56⅛	57
Corn No 2	58¾	59½
Oats	33 @	36
Rye	52 @	52½
Eggs	14½@	19
Butter	13 @	25½
Wool	19 @	25
KANSAS CITY.
Cattle	1 25 @5	25
Hogs	2 75	5 72
Sheep	2 00 @3	25

LITERATURE
—ON THE—
ROMAN QUESTION
TAKEN FROM THE
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD
and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.
FRANKED ENVELOPES
Address,
REV. GREEN CLAY SMITH,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Its Fame Will Live.

STATUE OF THE REPUBLIC
COURT OF HONOR
WORLD'S COLUMBIAN
EXPOSITION.

The World's Columbian Exposition marked the climax of human achievement. It will live in memory of the crowning glory of modern times. No other development of the closing century can compare with it in practical benefit to mankind.

Who that exhibited is not proud of it? Who that failed to exhibit does not regret the omission? The former are the people of to-day. The latter are relics of the past.

No honor so high as that embodied in an award at the fair. Competition was world-wide, the fruits of ripest experience and noblest endeavors were submitted for examination.

Honest tribunals, composed of eminent scientists, examined and passed upon the claims of exhibitors. Their judgement based on inquiry and justice, proves conclusively the value of any article they commend.

Their approval was stamped on

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

It received the highest award at the fair from a jury headed by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Price's was officially commended for highest leavening power, purity, keeping qualities and general excellence.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Sept. 17 to Sept. 22:

Rev W H Chandler, F K Robbins, R D Nichols, C H Rawson, Rev W O Dinius, Miss A A Wolcott, Rev F W Loervenstein, Rev J Harper, R H Buttermore, E Trumbull, J McFarland, Mrs A Haughawout, Rev G I Breivik, S S Glasgow, S F Proctor, J S Smith, Rev J P Robb, A Lent.

"For years," says Captain C. Mueller, "I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels, and those of the ship's crew. These pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly."

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)
5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 4 CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,275.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Aug 29

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Who Pay Taxes?..... 8
Tammany and the Jesuits 8
The Heart or the Head.. 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Society (a poem)..... 2
TheJesuits andTammany 2
Business is not Charity.. 2
The Gospel in the Old Testament and the Law in the New..... 2
Christian Education in China..... 4
SELECTED:
A Church that Worships the Devil..... 3
G. A. R. and God's Day.. 3
Labor Organizations..... 3
LITERATURE 6
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
Schools and Colleges..... 9
REFORM NEWS:
Inspectors General; Old Friends and New in Pennsylvania; Gen. Sherman's Tactics; Conferences in Minnesota; Work Begun in West Tennessee.....4,5,6
CORRESPONDENCE:
Something New in Iowa; Young Men of the Evangelical Association; Pith and Point .. 6
Waifs..... 7
N. C. A 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15

An attempt to close the saloons of New York City last Sabbath by the police authorities was not a great success. The keepers have too long controlled the police to accept an order from their servants with good grace. The order was obeyed, however, in portions of the city, and of those who failed to heed it 240 were put under arrest. This attempt is in line with the police reforms begun by Dr. Parkhurst and the anti-Tammany committee, and will be renewed until the excise laws are obeyed.

Municipal reform is in the air, and the retail clerks of Chicago who are overborne with the burden of long hours and no Sabbath, are renewing their crusade for a rest day. They nearly succeeded some months ago, but the ordinance which passed the city council was vetoed by Mayor Hopkins. Their effort must be successful, for nature and conscience demand it. It is a significant fact that stores are more generally open in those parts of the city where the labor unions have more influence than the churches.

The other day, reformed gambler evangelist Quinn gravely offended the mayor of Minneapolis by praying for him in his office during an interview. But a stranger case is reported in Los Angeles. One of the city pastors, Rev. Dr. Campbell, prayed publicly for the city librarian in his church, as he possibly did also for the mayor, the governor of the State, and "all in authority." But Miss Kelso, the librarian, resented the service, employed a lawyer, and entered suit for damages. The worthy pastor gets his persecution too cheaply. But Paul once had to cast a devil out of a silly girl.

Postmaster Hesing of this city is being bombarded out of his peace of mind by the pastors. He has 1,400 letter-carriers, to whom a new suit is given twice a year. Mr. Hesing thinks they look well, and ordered a public parade to be held next Sabbath. The officers of the Civic Federation protested, so did the Sabbath Association; and then the pastors, led by the United Presbyterians, voiced the remonstrance of their people. But Mr. Hesing is backed by the power of Rome, whose strength he knows, and this makes him defiant; and as a large part of his employes are of the same creed with himself, they are likely to proceed with their lawless display of clothes.

The Inter Ocean calls attention to the unhappy scandals that are beginning to smirch women cyclists. Young women and girls use the evening hours for riding with supposed immunity from improper associations. The uniform adopted by them is on the one hand a frequent temptation to base men, and on the other hardens the womanly modesty of the wearer. In England this garb is in many places regarded with suspicion. The London Presbyterian says that in Dorking, one Sabbath day, a lady cyclist was at the railway station, dressed in the latest style. She excited great interest among the natives on the platform, who regarded her with wonder and astonishment. A man, apparently a ploughman, dressed in his Sunday best, who was looking on with open mouth, was asked: "What is that?" to which the grinning countryman replied: "Bothered if I knaws, but I thinks it's an oastrich!"

No considerations of an "off year" seem to be heeded in the political campaigning of this fall. In every State where elections are held the lines are closely drawn, and outside the two old parties various interests are pushing on to make a record. A grand Prohibition rally all day Saturday on the beautiful grounds of Wheaton College was a notable success. Rev. H. A. Delano of Evanston, and President Evans of Hedding College, were the chief speakers. They were heard with enthusiasm by great crowds from the country about. The Democratic nomination of David B. Hill, now Senator, for governor of New York, to make the campaign against Levi P. Morton, late Vice-president, is the most important news of the week. The story that Cleveland was to be rebuked by Democratic inaction in that State does not seem to be verified by this action, for Mr. Hill has no intention of being a sacrifice on anybody's altar.

The First Congregational church of this city, of which Dr. E. P. Goodwin has been for more than a quarter of a century the beloved pastor, is a bulwark against the encroachment of trade upon what has been for many years an exclusively residence district. Two years ago the church nobly resolved to stand its ground and labor for the multitude of young men surrounding it in the boarding-houses that had pushed multitudes of homes farther to the west. But business follows hard after. Now, a short distance away, the block once surrounding the historic Carpenter homestead with ample lawn, is half filled with an immense cracker bakery, and within a block on Washington Boulevard a vacant corner has been taken for a brewery site, and no protests or threats can stop the scheme. Some one has replied to the laws, prohibiting in some cases the saloon from the neighborhood of a school or church, that if such a Satanic den was close by each church there would be no time lost in voting the liquor business to death.

Tremont Temple, the Boston landmark for Baptists, is to rise from the ashes of its second conflagration. The corner-stone of the new building was laid with suitable ceremonies by the pastor, Dr. George C. Lorimer, on the 17th ult. He was assisted—not by his pseudo-brethren of the Masonic lodge, which he has for years exalted above the Christian church, but by Dr. I. J. Lansing, of Park Street Congregational church and other pastors. Ever since Tremont Temple welcomed its first—and we may say greatest—pastor, Nathaniel Colver, it has been a place of renown. In the center of Boston, it has been the convenient assembly room of great meetings on greatest themes. May it arise from its ashes for many years of useful service for the church of Christ.

The three men who secured the opening of the the World's Fair on Sunday, in spite of law, popular opinion and the wish of the directors, were William E. Mason, Edwin Walker and Judge Goggin. The trick they worked was afterward decided by the courts to be totally illegal. But Mason, who is an ex Congressman, is working to get into the Senate; and Walker, on the principle of setting a rogue after a rogue, is chief attorney in the case against Debs, argued in the U. S. Court last week. Goggin, whom reports did not probably belie when they said he was drunk, has been conducting the Circuit Court in Boone county, Ill., in place of the judge of the district. He is the selfsame judge who performed to the disgust of all decent men last year. The press and people of Boone county are horrified to see a jail full of criminals turned loose on them. "The sheriff, the attorneys, everyone in the court-room stood aghast," says the report. "His decisions and the sentences imposed by him were so ridiculous as to be actually laughable."

Except where the A. P. A. movement becomes prominent, as it is in Chicago, the campaign is comparatively without severity or bitter contention, now that Breckenridge is shelved. The A. P. A. members in this city are "between the devil and deep sea." If they do not support the Republican caudidate for State treasurer it is threatened that the charters of their lodges will be revoked. They have already made a strong independent movement, but whether they can unhorse the political bosses who are controlling their order is a question. They are learning fast what it means to be a professional politician. Their case reminds us of the doting father who tested his son to learn what profession he should enter. He put young Hopeful in a room with an apple, a dollar bill and a Bible. He resolved that if he found him after a time reading the Bible he would show the making of a preacher; if eating the apple he would make him a farmer; if pleased with the dollar, a banker. But he found the boy sitting on the Bible, the apple eaten and the bill in his pocket. So he made him a politician.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

SCENE THIRD.

(In the Rising Sun saloon. Present, Dick Jolly-fellow, Tom Doo-little, Mr. Pop-off, the anarchist, Hans Beerman and others.)

SALOON-KEEPER:—
Boys, listen; I have something new for you.
Our would-be Mayor Mason on the hill
Has been around and given five times five
To treat the boys so they may drink success
To all the ticket on election day.
(Great sensation and applause.)

DICK JOLLY-FELLOW:—
Heaven bless our coming mayor; he's a brick.
He knows the times are hard and we are dry;
We'll hoost him in if he be free of hand.
I tell you, boys, he'll make a bully Mayor.

POP-OFF:—
I'm not so sure of that, for he belongs
To bloated capital.
I'd rather place a bomb beneath his chair
And blow it up, than see him seated in it.
But we will drink his liquor and hurrah
For Billy Mason and for anarchy.

HANS BEERMAN:—
That Billy Mason is a man of sense;
To temperance cranks he gives the very devil,
And says that all good citizens should have
The right to eat and drink what they may please.
I vote for Billy Mason.
(They all drink several times, then there are loud calls for a song from Dick Jolly-fellow.)

SONG.

Hurrah, my boys, the beer is good;
The fun is getting faster;
What though the purse be minus cash
And the devil he our Master;
Yet we are jolly fellows all,
And we'll give dull care the slip,
For the brown beer foams good luck to all,
And the wine has a ruby lip.

'Tis hard to be dry with never a dime;
'Tis hard to be sober and suffer;
But we'll drink while we can, to a jolly good time
Though to-night we should lie in the gutter.
Then here is success to Billy the good;
We'll give him a friendly grip,
For the brown beer foams good luck to all
And the wine has a ruby lip.
(Applause, with loud cries, "A song from Pop-off," "A song from Pop-off.")

SONG OF THE ANARCHIST.

You've heard of the devil, I know, my boys,
With his hoofs and horns and all,
But the only devil that anarchy knows
Is the fatted ox in the stall.
The ox that is fattened on human toil
And watered with human tears,
And never yet has been satisfied
Through all the weary years.

Now anarchy takes the beast in hand,
Hurrah for anarchy still;
For the ox shall have his dynamite cake,
And of bright cold steel his fill:
His fat shall sizzle in all our pans,
Though he bellow and gore to-day,
For anarchy grows from gibbet and block
To have her own sweet way.

SALOON-KEEPER:—
No more of that! I am a decent man;
I pay my license and the kindly State
Gives me protection.
The law and I are friends; and Pop-off, mind—
This place is not a den for anarchy.

POP-OFF:—
Ye heavens, listen! this is rich indeed;
Here is a man who keeps a whisky-shop
A champion of the law!—Where are the lads
But now went out, wild reeling through the door?
Here's drunken Dave loud snoring. Who dealt out
The glasses that have made a beast of him?
Last Sunday you and I were gambling here
With other jolly fellows. Where's the law
Of God or man that you regard whene'er
It bars the current of your evil trade!
But you, forsooth, must rail at anarchy!
That's good.

SALOON-KEEPER:—
Now Pop-off, stop; or by the big black devil
You don't believe in, I will break your head
With this big beer-mug--that your addled brains
May have an airing.
(Cries, "A song from Beerman," "A song from Beerman.")

BEERMAN'S SONG.

These temperance chaps go round and round
And talk and sing and pray;
And we know they would if they only could
Take all our schnapps away:
But they can't, my boys, for we can vote;
And vote and vote we will,
To keep the beer-vat brimming full
And shelter the whisky still.

We stand, my boys, for the right of men,
To drink whate'er we please;
Who drinks cold water half the year
The other half should sneeze.
But we'll have something warm, my boys,
And we'll gladly pay the bill
To keep the beer-vat brimming full
And shelter the whisky still.

SALOON-KEEPER:—
I call that logic—that's no anarchy.
I'll stand the treat for that:--and boys, keep still
And you shall have another bit of news
That's to your interest.
When Billy Mason gave his five times five
To treat the boys, I let his rival know,
And he come down as gracefully as ever
A winged duck fell. Now we must drink a health
To long Bob Taylor.
(All, "Hurrah! hurrah for Bob Taylor!" A great carouse.)

(To be continued.)

THE JESUITS AND TAMMANY.

BY JOSEPH BRADFIELD.

The decree expelling members of the Jesuit order from France, arraigns them in the following words: "Their dogmas break all bounds of civil society, authorize theft, perjury, falsehood, the most inordinate and criminal impiety, and generally all passions and wickedness; teaching the nefarious principle of secret compensation, equivocation and mental reservation; extirpating every sentiment of humanity in their sanction of homicide and parricide; subverting the authority of government, and, in fine, overthrowing the practice and foundation of religion, and substituting in their stead all sorts of superstition, with magic, blasphemy, and adultery."

This looks like a very severe criticism. But the Provincial Letters of Blaize Pascal supply ample proofs of the truthfulness of every count in this terrible indictment, and the facts that crop out in the courts, now and then, show that the influence of Jesuitical principles on our public men and women is of the most baneful character. That their effect in shaping the views of statesmen is extremely unwholesome, was shown conspicuously by the remarkable statement of John J. Ingalls, in which he openly avowed that, in his opinion, the Decalogue and the Golden Rule had no place in politics.

This blighting influence concerns the welfare of the whole country, for there is not a town, a hamlet, or a household in the United States to which it does not reach in one form of legislation or another. No citizen, of whatever section, creed or party, can escape it. And, in the language of Martin Luther: "I tell you it is the last, worst curse of the earth, the very worst that all the devils with their might can generate."

In New York State, and especially in New York city, the people are beginning to realize that Satolli was right when he declared in the International Journal of Ethics last April, that the "Roman Question is as full of vitality as it is of actuality." This question is equivalent to the question of Tammany's supremacy in politics; and on that point, Mr. Charles Stewart Smith, at the formation of the new Anti-Tammany organization on the 6th instant, spoke as follows: "This is not only a question of the welfare of our homes and families, or of the commercial supremacy of this city and State; it has become a national issue, and is more important and far-reaching than any question of tariff or silver. Twenty-six to twenty-eight millions of the inhabitants of this country now live in the large towns and cities. Early in the next century the urban population will comprise fully one-half of the whole, and it is certain that in the near future the character of the government of our cities will fix the character of the General Government, and determine the destiny of the Republic."

The Romanists, who are now under the absolute domination of the secret Jesuit party, have concentrated their membership in the cities, and they practically control all the great centers of trade except Philadelphia, and the words of Mr. Smith on this point should never be forgotten. The truth they convey is of overwhelming importance. The fight against the secret order of Tammany is a fight against Jesuitical doctrines manifesting themselves in municipal policy. It is the same battle which the Protestants of the country are waging all through the land. Their quarrel with Tammany is our quarrel with Rome, and vice versa. May their success be commensurate with the merits of their cause.

The force we have to contend with is one of great power. According to the Catholic Directory for 1890, there were in the United States thirteen archbishops, seventy-three bishops, 8,332 priests, 2,132 ecclesiastical students, 7,523 churches, 3,302 chapels and stations, thirty-five theological seminaries, 102 colleges, 635 academies, 3,194 parochial schools, 633,238 pupils in the parochial schools, 553 charitable institutions, and about 8,000,000 Catholics. This force often dictates the nomination of candidates for office in National and Congressional conventions, and in many State conventions. It virtually controls both the great political parties. And the time has come for its overthrow.

Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS AND IS NOT CHARITY.

The Grand Sire's report at the Odd-fellows' convention in Chattanooga said, among other things, that "peace and harmony prevailed throughout the entire jurisdiction, except in Kansas, where a number of lodges had invoked the aid of courts against an assessment by the Grand Lodge for the support of a home. This matter will be referred to the body now in session for final adjudication."

We are told that Odd-fellows' lodges are more charitable than churches. We ought, therefore, to expect to hear many such reports as the above concerning churches, outnumbering the Kansas lodges. From associations and conventions and May anniversary meetings will doubtless come announcements of "adjudication" respecting the cases of numerous churches under "jurisdiction" that have appealed to the civil courts against "assessments" for "Old People's Homes" and similar institutions for the benefit of "widows and orphans," "aged and infirm ministers," "children of absent missionaries," and so on.

Charities "assessed" and "adjudicated"! Charities enforced within a "jurisdiction!" There is a difference between lodge charities and church charities, indeed. But whether the difference is altogether of the kind that lodge devotees wish outsiders to think, appears, in the light of the Grand Sire's report, open to question.

I am familiar with "assessment insurance" as a substitute for genuine insurance, and better than nothing, but assessed and adjudicated and resisted charity is a point or two beyond even "assessment insurance" so called. GRAPHITE.

THE GOSPEL IN THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE LAW IN THE NEW.

BY REV. H. H. HINMAN.

Many persons are accustomed to regard the Old Testament as an embodiment of law, into which the element of mercy and grace scarcely enters; while the New Testament is full of grace, and has in it but little of the element of law. A careful consideration of the question will show that the Old Testament Scriptures, though they reveal the law, are also full of the Gospel, and that the New Testament is also full of the law, and in no sense takes away from the strictness of our obligations to God.

The apostle considers this matter in Gal. 2: 24, 25, "So that the law hath been our tutor to bring us to Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But now that faith has come. Ye are no longer under a tutor." (Revised Ver.)

What was this tutor that brought them to Christ, and which ceased to instruct them after they had come to him? It could not have been the moral law as contained in the Decalogue. That contains no suggestion of mercy or grace. It reveals God's wrath against all iniquity. In its violated precepts there is no hope, only "a fearful looking for of judgment and of fiery indignation;" "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

Not so with the ceremonial law. This was indeed a tutor, one who teaches and suggests. It is full of mercy and points always to Christ, the atoning sacrifice.

Take as an example the law of the Passover.

At its institution the lamb was slain, its blood sprinkled on the lintel and door-posts, and those who trusted in God's plan of mercy were passed over and saved. This was a perpetual ordinance not only to commemorate the deliverance from Egypt, but the greater deliverance through Christ. He is our Passover, "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." So too of the law of the scape-goat (See Lev 16: 1–22). One goat, which was chosen by lot, was slain as a sin-offering, while on the other the priest laid his hands, and confessed his sins, and the sins of his people, and then sent it away into the wilderness to bear away the sins of the people. All this was full of suggestions of mercy and led directly to Him who "bore our sins in his own body on the tree."

It was in view of this wonderful system of ceremonial law that the Psalmist wrote: "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, and whose sin is covered; blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity," Ps. 32: 1, 2; and Isaiah could write the 53d chapter so full of mercy and grace that it has always been regarded as a part of the Gospel of Christ.

When this law of sacrifices and ordinances had led men to Christ, it had fulfilled its mission. It expired by limitation and was nailed to the cross. Col. 2: 14. Not so the moral law as contained in the Decalogue. It is in its nature perpetual. It was not for Jews only, but for humanity, and Christ said "whosoever shall break one of the least of these commandments and shall teach men so, shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. Matt. 5: 19. James quotes two of the commandments and says that whosoever keepeth the whole law and offendeth in one point, is guilty of all. Jas. 2: 10. "Blessed are they that do his commandments that they may have a right to the tree of life." Rev. 22: 14. It is not true that Christians are saved because they keep the law, but it is true the saints do keep the law because they are saved.

Elmdale, Kan.

A CHURCH THAT WORSHIPS THE DEVIL.

(From the Literary Digest of September 22, 1894.)

A well-known Parisian writer, Jules Bois, has recently issued a book entitled "Les petites Religions de Paris," in which he describes a number of "unofficial" religions, such as those of the Swedenborgians, Buddhists, Theosophists, the "Worship of Humanity," the cults of the Essenes and Gnostics, and those in honor of Isis, Satan, and the Light. Strangest among all these strange beliefs and "religions" is that of the "Luciferians." The writer tells us about it as follows: [Translated.]

"Last September the Palladistes conferred the Luciferian tiara on Lemmi. He is now the Anti-Pope. The cult of Anti-Christ is an accomplished fact, and the church is not ignorant of it. P. Deschamp, M. Claudio Sannet, Mgr. Fava, Dom Benoit, Mgr. Meurin, M. l'Abbe Mustel de Coutances, have often spoken about this modern cult of the devil, which the book of Revelation prophesied was to come in the twentieth century.

"From Dr. Bataille, an initiated Luciferian, I have learned the following:

"In Masonry, which now is in the throes of death, has arisen a powerful new religion, Palladism, whose supreme seat is at Charleston, the Jerusalem of the infernal Messiah, whose executive committee is at Rome, and whose administration is at Berlin.

"Only initiates of the rites of Misraim and Memphis and the 'Chevalier Kadosh' can become Palladians.

"The object of Palladism is not simply political power, but possession of the whole world and the destruction of Christianity. Men like Cornelius Herz, Haenkel, Bleichroeder, are its chief promoters. Sophia Walder and Diana Woghan are its prophetesses. Sophia has declared: 'At thirty-three I shall become the mother of a daughter, who at thirty-three also shall have a daughter, who, again, shall have a daughter at thirty-three, and so forth; the last shall bear the Anti-Christ. He exists now in the air as a spirit, and he calls me Holy Mother.'

"In Paris the Luciferians have two temples, the one in Rue Rochechouart, near Sacre Coeur, the other near the Archiepiscopal residence. There they say 'white mass,' which is the mass 'upside down.' The 'magus,' or the 'temple mistress' who says it, has on a chasuble with a cross at the bottom. Communion is given in both forms. The host is black, and Lucifer is supposed to be really present in it."

The author goes on to give a full description of the liturgical service of the altar and the paintings around it of Beelzebub, Lucifer, Ashtaroth, Moloch, etc., and says:

"Their morals are as good as ours; they do not adore a God of Evil, but the Good God, and they call him Adonai. Dr. Bataille tells me that the order rules India and China, and that America will soon be conquered. In Europe the main and final battle will be fought."

G. A. R. AND GOD'S DAY.

(From a Washington pastor to the Lutheran Evangelist)

The G. A. R. will bear from us a word of suggestion and admonition. Whilst we write, the posts are gathering for the annual rally in Pittsburg, where they will have a royal welcome. Of the 1,100,000 survivors, about 400,000 are enrolled in the Grand Army. Their ranks are rapidly decimating, and soon the survivors will be very few. The great majority have already answered to the roll-call on the other side.

Last Lord's day, from this city, as from other towns and cities, and upon the railroads centering in Pittsburg, there was, by multitudes, an utter disregard of the Sabbath day. This higher law given by God at Sinai—a sign of God's covenant of blessing with his people to the end of time—cannot be trampled upon and the transgressor escape the penalty. Nothing is more needed to-day than a revival of Sabbath keeping. Sabbath desecration opens a floodgate of evil, of lawlessness and vice, of godlessness, of crime, imperiling the very life of the Republic. The President of the United States forgets his early training and what is due to the Sabbath-keeping conscience of this great God-fearing Christian nation which has twice honored him, as only the best and noblest should be honored. Sunday traveling and visiting and pleasure-seeking, with Sunday papers, and the neglect of God's house are among the ominous signs of decay in the moral sense of the Republic. The "tiger" of godlessness which Franklin feared is being "unchained," and anarchy and violence and blood and vice are abroad. Thoughtful, sober-minded, patrotic, philanthropic and Christian men cannot be otherwise than alarmed. The call is, Back to the Sabbath! Back to the house of God! Back to the Word! Back to the Sabbath and the sanctuary. These two things he has forever bound together —twin blessings to the world—and let not man put them asunder.

Among our readers are Grand Army men and Labor Union men and men in all the many orders extant. May we not appeal to them, one and all, to raise their voice everywhere for the Lord's day? A drum corps of boys went from this city last Lord's day with the G. A. R., some of them no doubt from Christian homes. It is sad beyond expression to witness this demoralization of our dear children, and yet it goes on. God's Sabbath law is unrepealed, and the iniquities of the fathers shall be visited upon the children to the third and fourth generation of them that break the law. God is not mocked. Whatsoever we sow, that shall we reap. Is it not time for judgment to begin at the house of the Lord, for God's people are often among the Sabbath breakers?

The Knights Templar had their origin in the consecration of a few heroic men for the defense of the pilgrims to Jerusalem. But the order grew into power, and was perverted into a papal police force, to the terror of good government, in consequence of which it was rightly suppressed. It is mockery and folly to retain the name and keep up a sham organization when the purpose and spirit of the original have long since passed away. But the order, as it now exists, is one of the brilliant "chambers of imagery" in the most powerful and aristocratic branch of that secret religio-political system of modern idolatry recognized in prophecy as the "image of the beast." Being suppressed from being an honorable and acknowledged institution of the Roman Empire on account of its arrogant and treasonable attitude toward lawful government, the Knights Templar went into a sort of Hades or hidden state, where the order was reconstructed and revived under Masonic forms, and in time was incorporated into the artificial or Image Empire structure.—Times of Restitution.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

WHAT IS NEEDED AND THE ABUSES THAT ARE TO BE REFORMED.

(From the Elkhart (Ind.,) Review.)

Since the late strike there has been a great deal of talk about a new organization of labor which shall include all lines of industry. The purpose of the agitators of the plan is to unite under one head, if possible, all whose interests lie in the same line. They falsely assume that only those who become members of a union are interested in the advancement of the conditions which surround laboring men.

The only general union or combination of workingmen that can be possible for any length of time must take into account some features of individual and associate rights that are now utterly ignored. If an attempt to organize on a broad plan is made it must be made with the unselfish purpose of advancing the interests of all labor, not simply of unions or organized labor. It must recognize the fact that every man, whether or not he belongs to an organization, has a right to work when he has an opportunity, and that no fellow-worker has a right to say him nay.

It must recognize that there is an individuality about labor as about the management of capital, and that all men are not equally valuable in the same line of labor. Wages cannot be fixed for a class by a class. They must be flexible according to the individual. In the failure to recognize this lies one great objection to unions on the part of the better class of laborers. They decidedly object to having the average rate of wages fixed, as they must be fixed, on the average production of a class, taking into consideration the most skilled and the most ambitious, and the least skilled and the lazy.

Unions must not put restriction upon the number who may learn a given trade. Any organization which does this will necessarily fail of its purpose, because it weakens its hold upon every parent who has a son or daughter to enter the world of work.

Any union, to be successful, must set the standard of requirement demanded of each laborer on a high plane, not restrict the active worker to the production of the lazy. A case recently came to our notice illustrative of this: A non-union worker on the Elkhart and Western bridge was compelled to leave his job because his companions demanded that he lessen the amount of work he did per day in order that the contrast between his activity and their shirking should not be manifest. Unions too often encourage this reduced productiveness of labor in order to equalize the rate of wages.

In any contemplated union for the future elevation of workers these mistakes must be avoided. Men must be placed on their merits. The standard of production required of each in a given line must be the highest, not the lowest, that merit and energy may have full reward; the lazy must pay for his loss of time by accepting lower rate of wages; the youth must be encouraged to learn a trade, not retarded or prevented; the labor agitator and the walking delegate must be relegated to the ranks of honest workers; no officials who live on the harm they do the cause should be permitted, and the whole aim should be to stimulate the individual to the best that is in him. If any class is to be excluded let it be the lazy worker, who degrades the cause of labor by his desire to get something for nothing, and who lowers the standard of production by his inefficiency and ignorance.

A union based on these higher aims, struggling to make its members manly and conscientious in their service, recognizing the rights of others, devoting itself to the advancement of the mental and manual skill of the workingman, frowning upon the idlers who make their living by exciting discontent and dissatisfaction, and encouraging in all ways thrift, lawful obedience, recognition of others' rights, and measuring in a just and equitable way the mutual relation of employe and employer, would do more in one year to advance the cause of labor than all the unions that have sprung up in the last twenty years.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION IN CHINA.

A THRILLING APPEAL FROM FOOCHOW MISSIONARIES.

The advantages of a Christian education are fully realized only by those who have lived where this blessing is unknown. The sights and sounds of a heathen land cause the recent arrival to shudder and recoil. Bishop Mallalieu, when here holding our conference, said: "I am more thankful than ever that I was born in a Christian land." Rev. Yung King Yen, A. M., for twenty years in the Chinese missionary work in Shanghai, when speaking in Exeter Hall, London, said: "I feel convinced that God has chosen the English-speaking race as his servants in saving the world. A great change has come over China in the feeling both of the people and the government, and missionaries are now free to go to every part in the empire, except one province." I can add that now this province is on the point of being opened up.

What opportunities this affords! One fourth of the people of the globe are welcoming missionaries to their houses and asking to be taught the "New Doctrine." What a thought! Dr. A. B. Leonard, one of our honored missionary secretaries, after his recent visit to this empire, said: "China, as a nation, has stood for forty centuries and witnessed the birth of every other nation on the surface of the globe. Break down paganism in China and you break down heathenism in the entire world."

Can you, my reader, grasp this sublime truth? Verily Satan's stronghold is in this old aristocratic, literary and bigoted empire. But he is losing his grip, though the old idol processions and ancestral worship continue, the universal interest therein is waning. The masses frequently manifest disbelief in, and often contempt for, this form of religion. That a large per cent of these 360,000,000 human beings distrust their idols and are seeking something to satisfy the soul is apparent. Often is the Macedonian cry now heard by the missionary, and it is echoing round the world. If the church could but hear the pleas that come to us for preachers, teachers, and schools, she would not wonder that our hearts often ache. It is not so much the work he does, as the opportunities he sees lost, lost forever, that kills the missionary.

Dr. N. Sites and daughter, going to Ming Chiang district to establish boarding schools, were met by committees from different cities each urging their claim, and some even offering buildings free for years, if they could only obtain a school. Rev. M. C. Wilcox, of the Ku-Cheng and Jong-Bing districts, for lack of means, at first hesitated to enlarge his work, but the invitations were so strong and openings were promising, that he went forward and the Lord is honoring his faith. Rev. W. N. Brewster, of the Bon-Ding and Sieng-In districts, has appointed workers, trusting the Lord for their support, until his supply of men is nearly exhausted. Rev. N. J. Plumb for a time mourned over the needs of Hok-Chiang, and Hai-Dang districts, but is now rejoicing over a harvest of souls. Dr. J. H. Warley, of the Foochow district, has every available man in the field, and during this summer vacation, has sent the theological students to assist the pastors, and a larger ingathering than ever is being realized. The Doctor also has two men traveling with a magic lantern, who are accomplishing a grand work.

One evening, by invitation, I gave an exhibition in a temple near one of our day-schools. Standing within six feet of the idols, I threw upon the screen the views of the life and miracles of Christ. Hundreds listened with pleasure and astonishment. The next day three of the leading literary men of the ward called to pay their respects and invited me to visit their homes, so their women might see and learn of the doctrine. This was a special mark of politeness and interest.

WE ARE NOW BUYING AND RENTING TEMPLES

and ancestral halls for church purposes. Many of our best street meetings are held in heathen temples, the minister standing before idols that have been worshiped for generations.

Educational work in a foreign field does not merely include the work of the school-room, but has a religious feature as well, because many of our converts are unable to read and their knowledge is so limited that we are obliged to begin with first principles. However, I shall now speak only of school work proper within the Foochow Conference.

This conference has an area equal to the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a population of about 17,000,000, or over 300 to the square mile. Four or five other missions are working in the territory, but all make only a drop in the bucket. The number of pupils in attendance at our various schools is as follows: "The Anglo-Chinese College, 133; the two theological schools, 62; the girls' boarding schools and class seminary, 166; the six boys' boarding schools, 183; the five women's schools, 122; the 122 boys' day schools, 2,356; and the 63 girls'day schools, 926. In many of these schools, especially those of a higher grade, the larger per cent of the pupils are Christians. Thus you see we have gathered an army of 3,948 students, but might have many more did our accommodations permit.

But wait; from the roof of my house I can see the houses of nearly 2,000,000 people. Out of this vast number we have gathered less than 1,000 pupils. From the north end of the noted bridge of "ten thousand ages," which spans the Ming river, I can walk west forty minutes, east forty minutes, through solidly built streets, and among all these multitudes we have not even a place for street preaching. Within the city proper, which is eleven miles in circumference, we have but one church with less than forty members, three day-schools and a W. F. M. S. hospital. Do you wonder that we ask: "Who is sufficient for these things?" Had we the means, in less than eight months we could establish a hundred day-schools among this people with 3,000 pupils, and in each school-room we could hold a Sabbath-school and have street preaching services.

Last year I wrote a few letters, which were kindly printed, stating that $50 would for one year support a day-school, and in connection therewith a Sabbath-school and weekly preaching services. In response I have received contributions sufficient to open sixteen day-schools with flourishing Sabbath-schools and interesting preaching services. At the end of the second quarter 547 pupils in these day-schools passed the required examination.

I do praise the Lord for this answer to prayer and heartily thank the dear people who have assisted in this grand work. Over 500 boys and girls, who quite recently were running the streets or studying in heathen schools, are now receiving Christian education. The pupils' ages are from six to sixteen, and the schools convene seven days in the week, holidays excepted. On Sabbath, besides attending Sabbath-schools and the preaching services, the pupils are taught our hymns and the Bible. Many of our pupils, who have studied three or four years, can repeat scores of hymns and chapters in the New Testament.

Knowing that the missionary society could not grant even enough to support the work already in hand, we thought best, at our estimate meeting last July, not to ask for money to support these sixteen schools, believing that as God had raised up friends in the past, so he would in the future. These schools are faithfully superintended, examined quarterly by a competent committee, and a detailed record of every student kept.

Now what shall we do for these 527 boys and girls? What for the hundreds of others who are anxious to secure the advantages of a Christian education? One dollar will support a student for a year. Forty dollars will, at the present rate of exchange, support a day-school, Sabbath-school and weekly preaching services one year.

WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE?

Mr. Chas. M. Grace, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who now sustains three schools, writes that he intends to continue their support until such time as the missionary society can care for them, or they become self-supporting. What a profitable investment for a young man! I beg of you, however, not to forget your duty to the missionary society. She is carrying a heavy burden and must be assisted. But how thankful you ought to be that you were not born a heathen! Would that you might for one day be an eye-witness as to what this means.

Will you not, then, as a thank offering, help these poor children who are struggling for the temporal and eternal benefits of a Christian education? At present I only ask for pledges of money, one-half to be paid Jan. 1, 1895, and half the following June. As everything in China begins and ends with the New Year, which falls next year on Jan. 26, 1895, it is very desirable to open schools then, but plan for them about two months in advance. So with pledges in hand by November to support fifty schools, there will be no difficulty in starting them all on the 20th of the first moon with 1,500 pupils. Any person or persons pledging forty dollars to be paid as above indicated, can name the school, will receive a detailed quarterly report in Chinese and English, and with the third report, I will send a photograph of the school and teacher, a Chinese letter, with translation, from the teacher, giving a short account of his life and Christian experience, and an idol that has been worshiped. For twenty dollars I will send the quarterly reports and the photograph of the school the money helps to support. Similar sums will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged. Now please do not draw a long breath and throw this aside without a thought, but honor it with at least a few moments of meditation and offer an earnest prayer for these heathen children. "Give and it shall be given unto you." Send pledges to me direct, and the money to Dr. A. B. Leonard, 150 5th Ave., New York, requesting to be forwarded to me to support a day-school. Many may be unable to give money; but cannot all give a few picture cards? I can use thousands of them in promoting Christ's cause. Send them direct to me by mail as printed matter. G. S. Miner.

Foochow, China, Aug. 15, 1894

REFORM NEWS.

INSPECTORS GENERAL.

MASONIC IN HOTEL VENDOME AND ODD FELLOW IN FRANKLIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Boston, Sept. 20, 1894.

Returning from an interview with Bro. H. L. Hastings, I find the Cynosure containing a "gentle reminder" to the N. E. agent. It's timely, and I will try and do more if not better.

Just now the "Hub" is entertaining the "Supreme Council of Scottish Rite Masons." Of course I have not been permitted an inside view of this august body of "Sovereign Grand Inspectors General," but have interviewed a few as I have had opportunity. The members are quite reticent, and when asked for information they invariably direct me to call on the secretary.

One gentleman on the steps of the Temple this morning became somewhat interested in the N. C. A. photo zinc etching or miniature lodge chart, and kindly pointed out where the lodge in session was located in the diagram. This unintentional confirmation of the chart was very acceptable, and all the more so as it was obtained on the threshold of the Temple at the "Grand East."

I spent an hour or so in the rotunda of the "Vendome," the "high-toned" hotel on the Back Bay and headquarters of the "Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander" and his staff. The attendants were evidently men of brain, who had some ulterior purpose beyond a week's pastime. Physically, they were a select company, but I should say that they would be more at home in manipulating "corners" in the market than in a prayer or any other religious meeting. We shall probably learn something of their avowed purposes through the press; but the real purpose for which they have gathered from nearly every State included in the northern jurisdiction will be concealed from all but a select few, even in the order, for the big fish live off the little ones in this black sea of selfishness.

Spending a Sabbath at Franklin recently, I attended the Congregationalist services in the morning. Having recently lost their church building by fire, services are for the present held in a hired hall. The owner of Music Hall offered the church free accommodations, I am told, but they preferred to pay $300 a year to the Odd-fellows for quarters no more commodious or central. The game could be easily played because the lodge had its agents where they could use their influence in the church to which they belonged.

I spoke Sabbath afternoon and evening to a select company of the faithful and lectured Monday and Tuesday evenings in the hall. The announcement that I would contrast the Sabbath services with the night worship in the Odd-fellow hall brought out a fair audience for the second evening, and occasioned a little flutter when I put the candidate through the initiatory rites of the first degree. A few questions were asked, and after the audience was dismissed some indulged in remarks not very complimentary to the speaker.

I have secured the hall for seven days, beginning Oct. 8th, and hope we shall be able to get down to "bed-rock" on some of the living questions of the day before the meetings close.

I hope soon to send you a copy of "Danger Signals," now in press, which will give you the views of some of our most prominent New England people on the secret society question, told in a few words. J. P. Stoddard.

OLD FRIENDS AND NEW IN PENNSYLVANIA.

RAINSTORMS, INDIFFERENCE AND OPPOSITION DISCOUNTED BY TESTIFYING CHURCHES.

Harrisville, Butler Co., Pa., Sept. 20, '94.

My last report was written while riding on a slow freight between Mercer and Harrisville. I found myself about eight o'clock at night in a little station two and one-half miles from Harrisville. It was dark and raining. After waiting more than hour I was conveyed in a two-wheeled cart through mud and rain to the hotel. In the morning, as had been anticipated, I received a cordial welcome at the home of Rev. A. B. Dickie. I first met Bro. Dickie at the seminary in Xenia, Ohio. He then manifested an interest in the N. C. A. This interest has grown as the years have passed, and he has studied the effects of the secret lodge system. With his assistance I have been able to arrange for a number of lectures.

Harrisville is the home of Rev. Samuel Kerr, D. D., the oldest pastor in Butler presbytery of the U. P. church. He has continuously ministered to what is known as Harmony church for over forty years. On the anti-slavery, anti-secrecy and temperance questions he has stood on the right side when it has been unpopular to do so. There are no saloons in Harrisville. There would have been but for the persistent efforts of the Dr. and his associates.

Due largely to the urgent invitation which he extended, a goodly number gathered at the Harmony church on Monday evening to hear my lecture. Tuesday evening I spoke in the large Presbyterian church in Harrisville. Several who heard the lecture at Harmony came through the darkness and rain to listen to the second lecture. Though the night was unfavorable there was a very encouraging attendance of the people. The general sentiment of this people is not favorable to lodgery. The Knights of Honor, Maccabees, and a few more of the pinfeather societies have a hold here. There is an occasional Odd-fellow or Mason, but they have to go elsewhere when lodging.

Rev. J. J. Imbrie took charge of me over Sabbath, and introduced me to his West Unity congregation, to whom I preached and lectured morning and evening. Bro. Imbrie, like myself, showed good judgment in marrying a Covenanter. I never knew a man to marry a good Covenanter and regret it. They are not very numerous. Any young man having aspirations in that direction will have to hurry up or they will be all gone.

While canvassing in Bro. Imbrie's congregation I learned of a little secret society recently organized called "The World" that was bidding for the young men. I did not learn much of its nature, but from what I could hear I conclude it is well named. It is doubtless of the world, containing some of the flesh and headed toward the devil.

Mr. S. J. Black said that a butcher by the name of Leighner had been around talking it up. This man was brought before the court in Butler when Mr. B. was present, and accused of abusing his wife. The wife swore that he called her out of bed at midnight to get him something to eat when he returned from making his "world" society converts; that he threatened to kill her if she did not obey his mandates, etc. At best he is not regarded as a good pattern for young men to follow.

Bro. Dickie held communion at one of his appointments called Bethel on Sabbath. Rev. Geo. Bovard, of Argyle, assisted. He was expected to preach on Friday afternoon, but was detained. Your agent was invited to speak in his place. Many expressed sympathy with our work, and several subscriptions were added to the Cynosure list here as elsewhere. I send some twenty-five new subscriptions to our paper herewith. The larger number were secured among the West Unity people. Protracted rains have hindered my canvassing somewhat.

Last evening I was advertised to speak at Bethel. As the church is in the country, and the rain was pouring at the hour appointed for the lecture, I did not go. This is, I believe, the first appointment I have missed since I have been in the field. I should have been at this had there been any hope of the people gathering. Rev. Bovard is an all-around reformer, and not afraid to express his disapproval of the lodge system. I shall hope to respond to his invitation to visit him sometime.

I speak (D. V.) to-morrow evening in the Grove City U. P. church. A college is located there, having some two hundred students, whose attendance is expected, as they will have a special invitation. Rev. S. W. Gilkey, who received me very kindly at Mercer, writes that he has consulted part of his session and finds that some of them are very strongly of the opinion that it would not be best for them to have a stranger lecture on the lodge subject. We are often reminded that this is a very delicate question. It must often be approached with great caution. There are pastors so cautious that they do not approach it at all. But Bro. Gilkey is a true U. P. He subscribed for the Cynosure, and I trust when I return will be well enough acquainted so we can arrange for the lecture.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28 —The next lecture was in the United Presbyterian church, Grove City, Pa. This is a college town of about 2,000 inhabitants. As is often the case in towns of this size there were more secret societies than nights in the week. The attendance showed unusual interest. A number of the students, also several Masons and other lodge adherents were present. Rev. A. B. Dickie, who stood by me so faithfully at Harrisville, came over and introduced me to the people, vouching for all that I was about to say. With such an introduction I felt doubly bound to deal faithfully with my audience. I had their undivided attention as I gave the facts for nearly two hours. Several subcribed for the Cynosure, and I left with a feeling of gratitude that I had been permitted to sound the alarm in the ears of so many who are to become future leaders in society.

Passing through Mercer to New Castle, I called on some of the pastors. One brother in trying to get a gentleman to leave the Masonic lodge had quoted from Masonic authors, showing that Masonry claimed to be a religion. The Mason said that the books quoted were not authentic. He argued that he had an authentic book. He would write out the claim of his book and give to the brother. I was permitted to copy the quotation so presented. It is from the "History of Freemasonry and Concordant Orders," page 752. It begins with the statement that "Freemasonry is not a religion." After denying emphatically that it is a religion and a substitute for the church, the quotation tells what it is in the following language:

"It only professes to inculcate morality—not the ethical abstraction of the philosophers, but evangelical morality, religious morality, which will prepare mankind for the transforming and sanctifying powers of the world to come. Masonry does the work of preparation, by bringing men to that state in which they will see more readily the motives of the spirit of the Lord."

And this is what was given by a man of ordinary business intelligence to prove that Masonry is not a religion! Comment is needless.

I was made very welcome at New Castle by the brethren who helped make my meetings there a success. Sabbath morning I worshiped with Free Methodist brethren. A goodly membership has been gathered into this organization by Bro. W. B. Roupe, the present pastor, and those who have preceded him. I spoke for about an hour, after which we enjoyed a blessed season in the class-meeting. As the Sabbath evening service was to be the last before conference the F. M. friends could not well unite in the evening meeting in the Covenanter church, but they were out in full force on Monday evening to attend the second lecture at that place. Dr. R. A. Browne, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, together with many of his people, joined in this meeting. The Dr. may always be looked for in the front ranks of the reform army. Rev. J. S. Martin, who has recently come to the pastorate of the Covenanter church, did much, very much, to make the lectures a grand success. The house was full on Sabbath evening, and crowded Monday evening. The local News of Monday gave a good report that helped in enlarging the audience.

Stopping off one train at Beaver Falls, I had the pleasure of meeting a few friends. Dr. Johnson, president of Geneva College, reported a bright opening of the year. There were nearly fifty new students. In Pittsburgh I chanced to get into a council of the National Reform. There were present Drs. Robinson, Wylie, McAllister, Martin and George. They were a venerable looking committee.

I shall move forward in the fall and winter work with the feeling that God is for us and therefore the devil and his friends will need all the lodges they can organize for they will be overthrown in the end. W. B. Stoddard.

GENERAL SHERMAN'S TACTICS.

PORTLAND SURROUNDED BY THE COAST AGENT.

During our late war I served three years under Gen. Sherman, who was noted for his flank movements on the enemy. This I regard an excellent mode of warfare.

Since my last letter I have spoken two nights at Tremont M. E. mission, near Lents, and twice at Gresham, east of the city.

At Tremont the house was comfortably filled both nights by a very attentive audience. Here I received a better collection than usual.

There are some very excellent families here. Bro. McKinzie and family showed me no little kindness by way of entertainment and in the collection taken. He will receive the paper a year. Others would be pleased to read it, but do not feel able to subscribe at present.

Some lodge folks were ill at ease while I spoke, but kept their jewel nicely. One good brother of the Free Methodist church, who had been a Master Mason, approved my address. May the Master bless this people, and help them ever to give a firm testimony against sin.

From here I went to Gresham, where I spoke on Saturday night to not a large but an appreciative audience. I think respecting the saloon evil some eyes were opened against voting with the saloon-keepers.

On Sabbath morning I listened to Bro. Flavel Sumner, pastor of the F. M. church, preach at eleven. His theme was: "Forsaking all" in order to be Christ's disciples. Bro. S. gave the Gospel no uncertain sound. He is earnest, sincere and intelligent in his presentation of divine truth.

He was followed by Rev. David Cathey, who resides at Gresham, and wields an excellent influence among his neighbors. He is a preacher of no mean ability; and but for failing health, he would be a great power in the Gospel ministry. It seems too bad that the "sword has cut through the scabbard" thus early in life, and compels him to resign his charge. We pray that his precious life may be spared many years yet. He showed me great kindness in bringing me to the city, in order that I might take the early morning train.

After the discourse and exhortation an old-fashioned testimony meeting was held at which a large number of very definite experiences were related. It was indeed "good to be there."

At 3:30 I spoke on the lodge to a good audience, who listened with marked attention to the arguments against organized secrecy. The Lord helped me most wonderfully. I used arguments new to myself. A Mason's wife came and ordered a copy of Ronayne's Hand-book, saying: "I want to know what my husband does when in the lodge." The husband furnished the money to pay for it, but said: "If I get it first, I'll burn it."

Another neighbor said: "Send me one, and I'll loan mine to her if he burns the other." Five signed for the Cynosure. Bro. James Lawrence gave me a pleasant home while at Gresham. May the Lord abundantly reward him and his noble wife.

On Monday I went home at two o'clock and left for Roseburg the next day at eleven A. M. At Albany when I boarded the train for Roseburg, the train was literally crowded with preachers and laymen on the way to the conference at Eugene. I said, "It looks as if the Methodists and dog fennel would take this country."

Dr. Dennison replied to a brother, "I wonder which he represents."

I replied, "As a matter of choice I would be compelled to take the Methodists."

The denomination has some fine men on this coast, but it is a great pity that the spirit of the world has such a hold on them here. They have members and wealth sufficient to accomplish much for God's cause; but members and wealth do not count with God like nearness to himself and spiritual life.

I am here near Roseburg assisting in a camp meeting a few days. P. B. Williams.

CONFERENCES IN MINNESOTA.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—The German Evangelical conference has adjourned. Bishop Bowman was present and preached the introductory sermon.

One hour was allotted to me, and I improved it as best I could, not in exposing and arraigning lodge folly, but in showing the relation of God's Word to lodge lying, and blasphemy about that Word, as is practiced by Freemasons. Some of the ministers present expressed righteous indignation towards such pastors, presiding elders and bishops as are making the churches offensive, by reason of lodge lying and blasphemy against the Word they preach in the pulpits, and wished the writer a hearty Godspeed in unmasking these lodge pitfalls.

The Swedish Baptist denomination is still in session. They cannot spare any time for me to speak to them, but welcome me with literature against secret societies, and I held a little side-show in one corner of the church and exposed the work of Freemasonry as well as I could.

William Fenton.

WORK BEGUN IN WEST TENNESSEE.

McNairy, Tenn., Sept. 22, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—My first lecture after engaging with the N. C. A. was at Fairview, Sept. 2. It appeared that it was well received by Christians who were present. A leading brother remarked after the service that until lately he "had never heard anything against Freemasonry, but supposed that it was a pretty good thing." I had revealed something of its real character by its own landmarks, and of its mythological religion; and that it is a "development of ancient sun-worship," according to Masonic authors themselves. I had also shown them from the sacred Word that the Lord held the ancient sun-worship in abomination, and its manifestation in these Gospel times could be no less abominable. Several of my hearers seemed to have a changed mind, as at the close they stood and reasoned together.

A heavy rain on the evening of my appointment at Liberty prevented the lecture there for the present.

I attended a reunion of old soldiers at Bethel Springs the 13th inst, and distributed tracts. One of the several speeches made there was a very interesting one by the Republican nominee for Congress. It breathed nothing of the war spirit. Towards its close, the speaker became quite eloquent in setting forth the nature of our American government, in which the people were the rulers by virtue of the ballot, with which we elect our representatives to make and execute the laws. Particular emphasis was put upon the fact of equality, and consequent familiarity between officials and the common people. He gave an example which he had witnessed. Our President on a certain reception day stood for hours shaking the friendly hand of the multitude, while each, high or low in the social scale, could look him squarely in the face, with "How do you do, Mr. President." Not so under some governments, where the approach to one high in authority must be in an almost prostrate attitude with, "How do you do, my lord." Ours is the kind of government we do well to cherish and maintain.

C. Powers.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SOMETHING NEW IN IOWA.

Lake Mills, Iowa.

I have many books on Freemasonry: Mackey, Macoy, Webb, Sickels, Ecce Orienti, Freemasonry Illustrated and a history by Rebold. We do not admit Freemasons in our church, and I gave eight lectures against them last winter and used these books named above as proofs. I intend to commence lecturing again, but could you give me a little information on a certain point. I had a discussion to-day with some Freemasons, and they claimed that Freemasonry in the State of Iowa was so changed of late that the above quoted books could not be used against them. They said they used here a book by one "Parvin," and they did not use the ceremonies or prayer that is prescribed in Freemasonry, and that their main work consisted of "Debate, Geometry, Arithmetic," etc. Can you inform me about it, and will you please send me Parvin or other book that is used in Iowa. (Rev.) A. J. Lee.

Note.—Either Bro. Lee misunderstood his Masonic informers, or they tried to mislead him. "Parvin" is Grand Secretary T. S. Parvin of the Iowa Grand Lodge. His principal work as an author is the preparation of the Grand Lodge report. His addresses in years past have most keenly ridiculed the pretensions of Masonry to antiquity, and to other attributes of veneration, which lodge orators are accustomed to expatiate upon for the benefit of the gullible public. The most important writing upon the lodge ritual Mr. Parvin has lately published is the last Grand Lodge report. The Cynosure carefully reviewed it last week. It proves that "Freemasonry Illustrated" and "Ecce Orienti" are just as good authority among Iowa Freemasons as the word of Grand Master Fellows himself. We fear these Freemasons whom Bro. Lee met are so besotted with the lodge spirit that they love a lie better than the truth.

THE YOUNG MEN OF THE EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept., 22, '94.

Dear Cynosure:—I am a member of the Evangelical Association. Our doctrine is anti-secret, of which you are probably aware; but despite our good doctrine, secretism has gained such a strong foothold and has in the last decade increased so rapidly that it is difficult to know where the majority of our male members stand to-day.

Should we consider this as among the signs of the times? Is there no way of stemming the tide? I know about twenty very good (morally) young men reared in our church and Sabbath-schools under the best Christian influence who have fallen a prey to the wiles of secret societies, and claim if they follow the teachings of said "good" (?) societies, they will get to heaven. They seem to think that conversion may be all right for people that don't know any better, but for people enlightened through the lodge, Christ's words, "Ye must be born again," are superfluous,—yes, absurd in their mind. It pains my heart to think that some of our members and even some of our ministers are so indifferent about the lodges, and even seem to think it is a great thing if their sons are elected to some office in the lodge so as to be called by some illustrious, grand high title.

I would like to write you the conversation between two Catholics about three weeks ago, who said the Catholic church here had acquired a portion of an estate by getting one of the girls to become a sister. All of which seems to be in conformity with Catholicism. Martin Krauth.

PITH AND POINT.

A GOOD TRACT FOR THE SOUTH.

It seems to me that "Out of the Lodge into Christ" would be a grand thing to distribute in tract form in this southern country where there are so many Baptists. Is it not extra good?—C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

GREETING FROM AN OLD DISCIPLE MINISTER AND RENOUNCING MASON.

I wish to be numbered with the hosts that are moving in this great and grand work, and who are hastening on to the final consummation of that day when sin shall be destroyed, and Christ shall reign supreme, and when there will be no further use for lodges. I am not able to remit, having been afflicted three years 16th October, and without salary. I expect to meet the dear brethren of the Cynosure, brothers Blanchard, senior and junior, and others who are dear to me, if not in this life, on the shores of an eternal life.—Henry Cogswell, Puyallup, Oregon.

GOOD CHEER FROM A SOUTH CAROLINA PASTOR.

I am very much pleased with the Christian Cynosure. I think it is a grand paper, accomplishing much and lasting good. I am sorry that owing to the hard times I cannot get any subscribers among my people.—Hiram Young, Irmo, S. C.

GOD BLESS THE LIFE SUBSCRIBERS.

I have read the Christian Cynosure for many years, and expect to read it as long as I can pay for it. Eternity will have to tell the amount of good it is doing for God and humanity. May your arms be held up until victory prevails on the Lord's side.—I. C. Weidler, Biglerville, Pa.

LITERATURE.

The American Lutheran Publication Board of Chicago has just issued a 24-page tract on Odd-fellowship by Rev. William Dallmann. The Cynosure is unacquainted with either the publishers or the author of this tract, but this co-operation in the great work of destroying the false altars of the lodge is very welcome. The document is a very clear and forcible presentation of those evils of the Odd-fellow order that directly appeal to the conscience of a Christian man. The lodge authority quoted is Grosh's new manual. By it the order appears in its true anti-Christian character, dangerous alike to civil peace and the spread of Christianity.

Scribner's Magazine for October contains the first of two articles on English Railways by H. G. Prout, editor of the Railway Gazette. Col. Prout recently made a trip to England to accumulate fresh material on this subject. In this first article, which deals with Railroad Travel in England and America, he compares the systems of the two countries, particularly as to safety, speed, cost, comfort and construction. The English railroad, he claims, is "the most highly organized instrument of transportation in the world." The facts with which his article abounds will, for the first time, make plain to the unprofessional reader many things of which even the American railroad man is wofully ignorant. The article is richly illustrated by A. B. Frost and from photographs collected by the author. Dr. J. West Roosevelt describes life In the Hospital, from the point of view of the house physician. The article has the vividness and picturesqueness of one who has actually experienced the things which he describes. It is unusually strong and wholesome in tone. Dr. Carl Lumholtz, the explorer, concludes his observations on the Tarahumari—the Mexican cave-dwellers. In this paper he describes their dances and their strange plant worship with other superstitions.

The young American bicyclers who made a tour of the world, and are relating their remarkable experiences in the Century, were granted an unusual honor when they completed their journey through China. Viceroy Li-Hung-Chang sent for them, and accorded them a long interview. Messrs. Allen and Sachtleben give one of the best and most vivid descriptions that have yet appeared of the man whom Gen. Grant included among the three greatest statesmen of his day, and the article is accompanied by a new portrait of the prime minister from a photograph which he presented them. Li-Hung-Chang questioned the young men not only as to their journey, but asked their opinion on international politics, especially as to the territorial policy of Russia.

The Catholic Review has this notice: "The Honorable R. W. Thompson, who drew the salary of the Secretary of the Navy, during the administration of President Hayes, has written a second anti-Catholic book, which he has called 'The Footprints of the Jesuits.' To any person conversant with the history of the Sons of Loyola, the volume is a nightmare. It is a shame to Protestant scholarship and a disgrace to the Christian name!" Therefore we understand it tells some probing truths. If the book were falsehood the Review would laugh at it.

St. Nicholas for October is bright with attractive pictures. Stories and sketches of the animal kingdom are the feature of the number. Tame bears, seals, sea lions, pumas, horses, cats, etc., have a place in the entertainment. The serial account of the friendship of Decatur and Somers in the sharp struggle of the United States with the Mediterranean pirates is brought to a pathetic close.

Our Dumb Animals, published monthly by the Massachusetts Society for prevention of cruelty to animals, is one of the brightest papers for boys we have seen. It is finely illustrated, and has much to say about the domestic animals which all boys love to pet. Price 50 cents per year, 19 Milk St, Boston.

The Department of Peace and Arbitration of the W. C. T. U. is recommending to teachers a History of the United States by Prof. Thomas, of Haverford College. This text-book gives less prominence to wars and more to industries, inventions, etc., than do most histories.

WAIFS.

Do not fool yourself. If the first man was made with eyes and ears, his Maker can both see and hear.

The man who does no good with his money helps the devil every time he puts a dollar in his pocket.

There would be more success in life if more of us were willing for God to tell us where and how to work.

If you are over 70 years old you are living on an extended note. It may fall due at any moment.

An exchange tells of an excellent sermon preached by a prominent pastor on "Fools." Then adds, "There were a large number present."

Patient: "I wish to consult you in regard to my utter loss of memory." Doctor: "Aw—yes—why—er—in this class of cases I always require my fee in advance."—Puck.

The difference between the wise and the foolish is defined by Rabbi-Ben-Azia thus: "In seeking wisdom thou art wise; in imagining that thou hast attained t, thou art a fool."

Entering the house of one of his congregation, Rowland Hill saw a child on a rocking-horse. "Dear me!" exclaimed the aged minister: "how wondrously like some Christian! There is motion, but no progress."

Bind together your spare hours by the cord of some definite purpose, and you know not how much you may accomplish. Gather up the fragments of your time, that nothing may be lost.—Dr. Wm. M. Taylor.

Unsophisticated cook: "If you please, mum, the butcher says I shall get five per cent on all orders I give him. What does that mean?" Mistress: "It means, Mary, that we shall have a new butcher."—Boston Herald.

Being nobody in particular, he was placed last on the list of the speakers. The chairman introduced several speakers whose names were not on the list, and the audience were tired out, when he said:

"Mr. Bailey will now give you his address."

"My address," said Mr. Bailey, rising, "is No. 45 Loughboro Park, Brixton Road, and I wish you all good night."—Youth's Companion.

A small schoolboy in Detroit, who was addicted to writing rhymes, wrote the following about his teacher, whose name was Blodgett:

"A little mousie ran up stairs
To hear Miss Blodgett say her prayers."

Upon finding what he had written, the teacher informed him that unless in three minutes he could make up another rhyme equally as good she would punish him by whipping him on the hands. She timed him by the clock, informing him at the end of each minute, and asking him if he had a verse, and was each time met with the word "No" for an answer. When the third minute was up she told him to hold out his hand, but instead he said:

"Here I stand before Miss Blodgett;
She's going to strike and I'm going to dodge it."

He escaped a whipping by a narrow margin.—Central Christian Advocate.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER IN STRENGTH AND VALUE 20 PER CENT. ABOVE ITS NEAREST COMPETITOR.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various State and Industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the examination for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department of Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder, Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited at the Fair, the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent. greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent. above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

PIERCE GUARANTEES A CURE

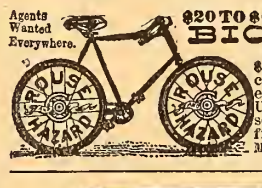
OR MONEY IS REFUNDED.

Disease follows a run-down system with the liver inactive and the blood disordered. Pimples, Boils, Sores, Carbuncles, Ulcers, and like manifestations of impure blood, should be driven out of the system with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.



MRS. KUHN.

Mrs. KUHN, of 618 E. 16th Street, New York City, writes as follows: "It pleases me to state that I had a running sore upon my neck, and had it operated upon three times, and still it was not cured. I was also run down very much. There was a decided change after using 'Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery,' I took a few bottles and was soon cured. Later my husband had a lump behind his ear; he tried your medicine, and one bottle cured him. I shall always recommend your medicines.

PILES DR. HILL'S GREAT SPECIFIC promptly cures where all other remedies fail. In use 35 years. 50c. per box. Mailed free CHEMICAL SPECIALTY WORKS. Syracuse, N. Y.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

$20 TO $60 SAVED ON NEW BICYCLES

$125 high grade Safety $50; $100 pneu. $60; $40 cush. ball $20 etc. Largest and oldest dealers in U.S. Easy payments We sell everywhere. Catafree. Rouse, Hazard & Co., Mfrs., 4 G St., Peoria, Ill.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Hall's Hair Renewer contains the natural food and color-matter for the hair, and medicinal herbs for the scalp, curing grayness, baldness, dandruff, and scalp sores.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morriil, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morriil St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Seliew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND.

The annual convention of the New England Christian Association will (D. V.) be held in Music Hall, Franklyn, Mass., beginning Oct. 8th, at 7:30 P. M., and continuing over the following Sabbath. Thursday and Friday will be given to the special features of the Association's work. Evangelists and specialists on several lines of reform work have been secured and we can promise those who attend a time of refreshing and uplifting in Gospel teaching, preaching and experience. "Whosoever will let him come."

REV. D. B. GUNN, Secretary. J. A. CONANT, President.

THE ILLINOIS STATE MEETING will be held November 15 and 16, 1894, in the Reformed Presbyterian church (Gen. Synod), Sparta. Rev. W. J. Smiley, pastor.

IOWA.—The current year of the Iowa State Association is drawing to a close. Copies of the State constitution, with blanks for signatures, have been, and are being, sent to many places. Efforts to arrange for the annual meeting have been begun. Congregations and individuals that have not contributed during the year and desire to do so, are asked to forward subscriptions soon to the treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham, Iowa.

WHO PAY TAXES?

The appearance of Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, before the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, with the statement, that the Pullman Company escapes taxation on $40,000,000, was sensational and characteristic. As governor, if he had any right or duty in the premises, it was not against the Pullman Company alone, but against all the defrauders of the tax list, and they are thousands probably in Chicago alone. But to single out the Pullman Company was a demagogue's game. We thank him, however, for the good he has done, not for the spite he meant to show.

The whole business of assessments in Chicago, and in all other great cities, needs a Lexow committee, with power to investigate and punish. The City Comptroller, Ackerman, lately appeared before the same State Board and asked that the Cook county assessment be equalized to about $300,000,000, or an increase of about $50,000,000 levies and assessments. He showed the assessors' valuation of real estate alone in Chicago had declined $73,670,700 in the last ten years, that great injustice was done the city by false returns and corrupt assessors. Unless the assessment was raised the taxes would be unequal to the public expenses. He declared that candidates for assessor in this county have been known to spend from $10,000 to $20 000 to secure election, and then retire rich on a $1,500 salary. He said that hundreds of houses in Chicago contained more plate, and that many ladies on the street wore diamonds and jewelry worth more than the entire amount returned in Cook county.

This condition has long been notorious. The rich are defrauding the public treasuries by false assessment returns, and the poor have to bear the burden of the deficit. But there are most honorable exceptions. A notable one is Cyrus H. McCormick, the reaper manufacturer, and his mother. A few years since in the published assessment list their valuation was so much greater than their neighbors that an explanation was asked of them. It appeared that they listed their property according to law, and not according to fashion.

The effect of such robbery is evident. Every school-boy knows that it begets hatred, first of the law-breaker and then of the law. That hatred is stored up until a day of outbreak and anarchy. Well does Mr. C. B. Farwell, former Senator from Illinois, say of these abuses of our assessment system:

"I think that the time is approaching when poor men will revolt—riot, burn, commit anarchistic actions—if these unjust discriminations do not cease. The burden of the increase will fall upon the poor man—the rich man will not pay one cent additional tax. When the rich are called upon to pay their just and proper pro rata the poor man's taxes will be reduced and there will be money in plenty to run our municipal and county governments and have all sorts of improvements. The assessor never slips a cog in dealing with poor men. But the rich man revels in fine personal property and millions in securities and the assessor's list shows him to be a poor man, nearly in want. Rich men are sent for, called into the assessor's private room, and informed that they are assessed at so and so. The assessor boldly makes the announcement that both can make money if the rich man is agreeable, and straightway the rich man's figures are lopped off. The assessors get rich doing this."

When will this wrong be righted? When will justice be done to all in this matter? Not until the people revolt against lodge rule and lodge methods and politics. So long as these are cherished; so long as they are endured, even fraud will thrive in the hotbed of secretism.

TAMMANY AND THE JESUITS.

"Americans are beginning to realize that Tammanyism and Catholicism are intimately associated," says the Christian Standard. Dr. Park hurst could doubtless tell us some tingling facts to justify this opinion. Two weeks ago an agent of the Vatican in New York, "Mgr." Ducey, is reported by the Herald of this city to have written this statement for American readers:

A few days ago I received letters from a very distinguished dignitary very near the holy father. The first letter is dated Rome, Aug. 17, and a second letter bears the date Rome, Aug 22. Both of these communications make reference to the Lexow investigation Here is an extract from the first: "A few days ago," says my correspondent, "I had a long interview with Cardinal ——, and had to go into details about the Lexow investigation and its disclosures and the story of Tammany." The second letter has the following passage: "The communications that have reached the Vatican in relation to Tammany, etc , have certainly produced a deep impression on it." I have been requested in these communications to put certain information in form and forward immediately to the Vatican.

The above is from the Herald of this city, a paper owned by a prominent Roman Catholic. Mr. Ducey adds his great satisfaction at the interest felt in Rome for the purification of our cities, and requests his non-Catholic friends to take note of the fact and stop talking about the Jesuits and the church they control, and no longer hold them reponsible for the corruption that exists.

No one should wish them responsible No one should impugn them without reason. But men, who think for themselves, read that a German Catholic convention the other day in New York resolved, that "the temporal sovereignty of the Holy See is indispensible for the true government of the church." They find that a large majority of the men engaged in the boodle business are subjects of this "temporal sovereignty of the Holy See." They are not to be blamed for putting related facts together. They are not to be blamed if they suspect that the interest in Rome is rather apprehensive than gratulatory when Tammany corruption is exposed and punishment is threatened. Exposure has ever been the greatest dread of all secret orders, Jesuit, Freemason, Clan na Gael or Tammany.

THE HEART OR THE HEAD.

An interesting addition to the argument from authority presented in our last against the position of Prof. Ely of Wisconsin State University is found in the autobiography of George T. Angell, the Boston philanthropist. During a visit to Europe in 1870 Mr. Angell visited Florence and made the acquaintance of the eminent American sculptor, Hiram Powers. In one memorable conversation with the great artist, the latter expressed his firm conviction that the great need in American education was more education of the heart. "Educate the hearts of the people," he said, "and the heads will take care of themselves. Give in your schools rewards to the good boys, not to the smart ones God gives the intellect: the boy should not be rewarded for that. The great danger of our country is from its smart men. Educate the heart! Educate the heart! Let us have GOOD men." There is no better remedy for the suppression of strikes and anarchy than this. Indeed, unless we do this we are threatened with a socialistic revolution with its fearful consequences. The Bible should be restored to the public schools from which it has been cast out, and our colleges should fortify themselves against the secularizing tendencies of the age.

THE PLAN FOR CHINESE SCHOOLS, so urgently presented on another page by Prof. Miner of Foochow, has excellent endorsement in the following:

"Having repeatedly invited a number of Rev. G. S. Miner's schools, established by special contributions, I desire to express my hearty and unsolicited approval of this method of mission work. With their accompanying Sabbath-schools and preaching services, they are reaching large numbers of this vast population who otherwise would probably die without hearing the message of salvation. Much good has already been accomplished through these instrumentalities and immeasurable results are sure to follow. M. C. WILCOX,

"P. E. Ku cheng District."

"Most of Bro. Miner's schools are within the bounds of the Foochow district. I have attended nearly all the examinations and can testify that thorough work is done. There is no better way to reach the millions of China.

"J H. WARLEY, P. E. Foochow District."

—The Chicago W. C. T. U. arranged a royal welcome to Miss Frances E Willard at the First Congregational church last Friday evening. Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, the builder of the Temple, presided, and addresses were made by a score or more representatives of religious and reform organizations.

—Rev. O F. Lee of Northwood, Iowa, is still busy with his ready pen in promoting reform work in the Scandinavian press. An article on "How the Freemasons treat Scripture" goes to America, and in the Scandinavian he is combatted by an Ohio writer who says Bro. Lee is ignorant of the lodges he is discussing, in spite of the overwhelming proof to the contrary.

—A card from Miss Flagg, the Cynosure's valued New England correspondent, brings us the unwelcome news of the failing health of her aged father. Mental decay renders him a constant charge upon the care of the most dutiful of daughters. A later note (Sept. 24th) informs us that Mr. Flagg is now confined to his bed. This will account for the absence of the New England letter.

—The September Lodge Lamp contains one of the most notable addresses, all things considered, ever given in the reform. It is the first public declaration of the loved Col. Geo. R Clarke, founder of the Pacific Garden Mission in this city. It was given before the Dupage county association meeting in the Baptist church, Wheaton, in 1889. The second and third pages show the chart of the various Masonic rites in reduced size, with a full explanation.

—The first number of the Christian Nation was issued from New York ten years ago, by John W. Pritchard. It has been published without interruption by the same management ever since and has won its way to merited success. Representing the Covenanter church its aid has been invaluable in promoting the principles of that denomination, and enlarging the influence of its pulpit. Bro. Pritchard will publish an anniversary number during the present month.

—The communication of Rev. G. S. Miner, professor in the Anglo Chinese College at Foochow, China, is cheerfully published, with the endorsement of Bro. Wilcox, who has for several years occasionally written to the Cynosure from that interesting mission field. The plan Prof. Miner suggests is a very engaging one. Seldom does the mission field promise so much good at so small an expense. It would be a pleasure to know that a hundred of our readers had become partners in this excellent work.

—Our thanks are hereby given the U. P. Board of Publication for a copy of the minutes of the thirty-sixth General Assembly of the United Presbyterian church, held May 23–30 in Albany, Oregon. It is an interesting document. Among the items caught in a hasty review is the invitation to the Holland Christian Reformed church, the Associate Reformed Synod of the South, the Associate church, the Reformed Presbyterian Synod and General Synod, and any other psalm-singing churches to take steps toward a union.

—As one among many instances of faithful testimony and discipline against lodge paganism, the United Presbyterian church at Sparta, Ill., is notable. Some years ago when the State convention opposing lodgery was held there, evening meetings were held in the United Presbyterian church. The pastor and some of the members were in no sympathy with the movement, though it was cordially supported by the other U. P. churches of the district. He soon after joined the Presbyterian church. His successor, Rev. J Knox Montgomery, believed in the U. P. testimony and discipline, and met the situation with Christian courage when he found a number of lodge members in the church. Those who were finally incorrigible were expelled and the church cleansed of the evil alliance with the lodge. Ruin to church and young pastor was predicted. At the Aledo Synod two years ago, he told the Cynosure editor something of this trying experience. But God has rewarded his faithfulness and zeal and courage. His labors have been signally blessed with large accessions, among them some who have openly forsaken their secret orders for a church that is true to Christ.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—The youngest daughter of Dr. H. H. George, of Pittsburg, was lately married to Mr. Frederick Ransom, of Beaver Falls, Pa.

—The mysterious disappearance of Dr. T. J. Kennedy, president of Amity College, College Springs, Iowa, is yet unsolved. A large reward has been offered for his recovery.

—Rev. Dr. O. P. Gifford preached his farewell sermon in Immanuel Baptist church in this city last Sabbath morning. He is called to Buffalo to be pastor of the Delaware St. church.

—Rev. M. A. Gault, N. C. A. Corresponding Secretary, has returned to his pastoral work in Bloomington, Indiana, with much improved health. See a letter from him in our next.

—Rev. D. W. Wise, late pastor of the College church, Wheaton, has located at Ahtanum, near Yakima, on the coast extension of the Northern Pacific road, in central Washington.

—Secretary Phillips made a brief business trip to Detroit last week. He was welcomed by our dear old friend and brother, George W. Clark, who survives the assaults of time like a reformer hero.

—Rev. Joel Martin, well remembered for his years of active service as a Wesleyan pastor, has been appointed general missionary for the Congregational Home Missionary Society for the upper Michigan peninsula.

—Rev. Simpson Ely, a courageous disciple of Alexander Campbell, and believer with him in the evils of the lodge, is dean of the Bible Department of Fairfield College, Fairfield, Nebraska. A number of the young men attending this fall are preparing for the ministry.

—The many admirers of Mr. Gladstone have thankfully learned that the operation upon his eyes has not produced blindness. One eye has not required surgical aid, and with it he can still read and write, but he is too much engaged in literary work to give it needed rest. There is also hope that the eye on which an operation was performed may be restored.

—Rev. Henry M. Bissell, missionary of the American Board at El Fuerte, Mexico, has been spending a few weeks in Oberlin with his family and is now visiting with his sister, Mrs. W. I. Phillips, at Wheaton. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bissel are Wheaton graduates. They are accomplishing an earnest and arduous but fruitful work among the Mexicans of the west coast.

—Rev. R. W. Chesnut of Marissa, Ill., president of the Illinois State auxiliary and editor of the Reformed Presbyterian Advocate, called at the Cynosure office on his way homeward from presbyterial meeting in St. Paul. He is preparing for an excellent meeting at Sparta in November which shall call out the best resources of all the southern part of the State, and make us regret that Chicago is so far away.

—Dr. Henry N. Hoyt, one of the most esteemed and faithful of the Congregational pastors in the vicinity of Chicago, has resigned his work at Oak Park to remove to Sacramento, Cal. Dr. Hoyt has been the pastor for eight years, during which time the church has greatly grown and prospered, 540 having been received as members, and the benevolences doubled. Such pastors as he are needed in California and everywhere.

—Rev. S. F. Porter had a laborious but joyful Sabbath on the 23d inst. In the forenoon he preached to the people whom he has served all summer in Dakota, receiving three into fellowship and administering the Lord's supper. In the afternoon he rode seven miles, and formed a new church of nine members, with whom he also presided at the communion table. He expected to return to Kingston, Ill., last week, and be ready for college visitation in a few days.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Small money and trade revival—The great secret order of Rome wants the loaves and fishes of government employ—Chinamen study the Bible.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25, 1894.

Treasury officials regard the increasing demand for small notes and silver dollars, which comes from every section of the country, as an unmistakable indication that business is steadily improving. From the South and the West come the greatest demand for silver dollars, which are being more freely circulated than at any time during several years past. One of the results of this will be the cancellation of more Treasury notes and the coinage of more silver bullion, under that portion of the Sherman silver law that was not repealed. Wherever it can be done the Treasury department is getting gold in exchange for the small money it puts out, and by that means it has added several millions to the gold reserve, which now exceeds fifty-eight millions, and is slowly increasing. The general receipts of the Treasury are also in a condition that is satisfactory to the officials, and which, they think, bids fair to prove that they were right when they said that enough money would have been raised to pay all necessary expenses of the government with the sugar duty and the income tax left out of the new tariff law.

There are two churches in Washington closely situated—one Methodist, of which Rev. F. C. Pate is pastor, and one Papist, St. Aloysius, on North Capitol St., near the Public Printing Office. In 1876–'77, eighteen years ago, fifteen per cent of the membership of this Methodist church were in government employ. About one year ago ten per cent only were so employed (17 persons), and now there is but a single one. About 1883 a Romanist renounced his church and became a member of this denomination, and after a time acted as agent for some parties seeking to purchase this property. To maintain this Methodist church and liquidate the debt which was upon it was a struggle, but these overtures were declined. About two years since this people erected a neat brick structure costing $18,000, which brought them in debt. Owing to the efforts from some source to remove its resources and hinder the payment of this debt, and the fact that Romish influences are prevalent in the administration of governmental affairs at Washington, and because of the location of this church so closely to large buildings attached to St. Aloysius church, which could adapt it for its parochial purposes, and the further fact that the entire property surrounding this edifice is in the possession of Romish adherents, gives strong circumstantial evidence to the belief that Jesuit intrigue is operating to drive out the Protestants and secure public employment for the Romanists, and it is not doubted that St. Aloysius church has hundreds of its adherents in government employ.

Rev. Dr. Easton, of the Eastern Presbyterian church, says that he has lost twenty-three families very recently by this process of weeding out Protestants in the public service. Another minister says that his congregation has been well nigh destroyed by it. Another, a leading Methodist pastor, says he has lost from his church almost scores of its membership. Nearly all Protestant institutions here suffer from the same cause.

These facts bring us to a point where it would be well to consider for a moment certain general principles, some fundamental truths which should be kept ever in mind. This struggle of subsistence is undoubtedly in the nature of a war; and our friends must not forget that it is as necessary to know how to provide subsistence for an army as to lead them to battle. Our enemies are acting upon this principle. Rome always acts upon it. Their monastic orders are built upon it. Such societies as the Tammany order are built upon it. The Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions is built upon it. In fact, the papal force in all its branches, secular and ecclesiastical, is grounded upon this elementary principle of military science. It labors continuously to accumulate capital. It enlists vast numbers of celibates who are really slaves, working for a bare subsistence and contributing all their gains to the common fund of the order to which they belong. It levies tribute upon every one of its adherents in the form of fees for absolution, dispensations, indulgenees, masses for the dead, etc. Wherever it is possible to do it, they place their adherents in positions of profit and honor, so that they may secure the larger revenue from them, and derive greater benefit from their social and political influence. As a militant organization it posesses the finest system ever devised for gathering, storing, and distributing the means of subsistence. It would be impossible to contend successfully against the inroads of this power, unless its sources of supply were cut off entirely; and this can never be done without placing these affairs under legal restraint, or prohibiting absolutely some methods of their operations.

An interesting place to spend a Sunday afternoon is in the Chinese Sunday-school conducted by the Metropolitan M. E. church. There are thirty-one scholars in this school, twenty-seven adults and four children, and the number of teachers is almost the same, each of the adults having a teacher all to himself, and the four children are in the "infant class," with one teacher. More orderly or better behaved scholars it would be difficult to find. Mrs. Collins, once a missionary to China, acts as translator, although most of the scholars can understand English fairly well. Mrs. Collins says the Chinese all prefer elderly teachers, because they say that the young ladies who sometimes act as teachers are inclined to be frivolous. The scholars purchase all of their school supplies, and not long ago they contributed $50 towards the support of Christian missionaries in China. Four of them are members of the church.

*

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

Rev. L. G. Abrahamson has been elected to the presidency of the new Swedish Martin Luther College of Chicago.

The college of the Missouri Lutheran Synod at Fort Wayne, Ind., numbers, this year, 175 scholars, 48 new ones having been added this fall.

The years opens at Tarkio College, Missouri, with unusually bright prospects. Sixty-two students, who were not in attendance last year, have been enrolled. The graduating class numbers twenty, nearly twice as many as that of any previous year.

In Great Britain some fifteen lectures go forth every day, into the day schools of the country, teaching the principles of physiology and temperance, and within the past four years no less than 10,000 of the elementary schools of that country have been reached with this subject.

Three halls have been used the past year in Chicago, in difficult parts of the city, for free musical instruction for poor children. A meeting for boys and another for girls is held each week after school hours in each hall. Mr. William M. Tomlins is superintendent of this mission.

Muskingum College, New Concord, O., opens this fall with an attendance sixteen per cent larger than last fall. President Johnson is especially happy over the fact that he has the largest class beginning Greek in the history of the college. There are thirty-one new students in the literary department.

On Monday evening of this week the Chicago Public evening schools opened in all parts of the city. They offer a large accommodation to the vast foreign population, and there will be rooms full of Scandinavians, Germans, Bohemians, Italians, Russians, Poles, Greeks and Hollanders. The attendance last year in these schools was about 9,000.

Princeton University, Princeton, N. J., opened her one hundred and forty-eighth year Sept. 19, with appropriate services, in Marquand chapel. James W. Alexander, of New York, member of the Board of Trustees, delivered a short address on hazing. The entering class is about the size of that of last year, containing 275 members. The total membership of the university reaches 1,200.

Reports from Vassar, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Wellesley and other leading colleges for women show a decided increase in the number of students who have matriculated this year, although the examinations for admission are more severe than ever before. In many studies, and notably those of the academic department, the undergraduate of to-day often begins where the graduate not long ago left off.

The Home.

TO DO OR TO ENDURE

I.

He who goes forth in manhood's royal prime
To battle with the myrmidons of ill,
Quite undismayed by winter's searching chill,
Or summer's heat, or marshes deadly rime,
Or rugged heights that chamois scarce can climb,
If he may but obey his Master's will,
And all His mandates faithfully fulfill,
Makes of his life-work something grand, sublime.
But he whose feet know but the treadmill's round,
Whose aspirations must fall to the ground,
Held down by self-repression, who is found
In humble duty's path, but to fulfill,
With faithfulness, his sovereign Master's will,
Makes of his life-work something nobler still.

II.

'Tis hard to strive with toil-stained bleeding hand,
To trudge along with weary aching feet,
So weighted that they scarce can rise to meet
The prizes set above them, the demand
Of each day's need too pressing to withstand,
Till life grows less than even "hitter-sweet."
But he who dares such servitude to meet
Makes of his life-work something noble, grand.
But he who can with cheerful countenance
Behold his brother's swift or slow advance,
While he is chained by adverse circumstance,
And who can say with folded hands: "Thy will
Be done, dear Lord, so I may but fulfill
My mission," makes his life-work nobler still.

—The Christian Standard.

FATHER'S RIGHTS.

Amid all the talk of woman's rights, the rights of the laboring classes, the rights of the oppressed, no one has thought of one uncomplaining class. We are glad that some one has written in their behalf in Harper's Bazaar.

There is one class in the community—one patient, hard-working, long-suffering and uncomplaining class—who never strike for their rights, concerning whom little is said, and yet who demand our sympathy and our concern. We refer to fathers. Mothers are adored in art, exploited in literature, heralded in song and embalmed in memory. If a boy goes safely through mumps, measles and malaria, his mother is commended for her care of his physical life. If he does well at school the teachers are sure that he has a sympathetic and judicious mother, who spurs him on and keeps him to the mark. If he becomes a great man—great anywhere, in politics, statesmanship, war or engineering, no matter what—we are told that his mother was an eminent woman, and that he derived his intellectual acumen and his moral balance from her. Monuments are erected to the mothers of great men; but who ever in his wildest dreams imagined the building, by subscription or otherwise, of a monument to the father of a general, a poet or a musician?

The father is, as a rule, in the background when the biography is written, and this is in keeping with the very modest share he has in the home, which he pays for and provides with comforts and luxuries. He may be permitted to carve the roast at the dinner table, but what does he know of the merry informality of the daily luncheon?

The bills are probably his to defray, but of the charming excitement of shopping, the manifold delights of looking over the rich stuffs in the shop, and the gleaming silver and translucent china in big warehouses, what does he know? He does not even, as a rule, buy the birthday and Christmas gifts which are bestowed in his name. His very gift-making is done, so to speak, by proxy, mamma and the girls choosing for him whatever presents he makes. His part in all the pomp that fills the circuit of the summer hills is usually just to pay the bills, for money-making and money-earning are his part of the contract, while his wife does the spending.

THE BEST HUSBAND.

No man, in my opinion, can be the best husband till he is the minister of his family. As the home is the first church, so the husband is the first minister. He is the high priest of that home; his wife, the high priestess.

If religion means an abiding faith in an almighty power above us, and a true love of God, who is love, together with love in the best sense of all mankind, then I say religion should have its place, a large place, in every home, and the husband should be the one to encourage, by example and sensible teaching, its continued presence there. If he would have the happiest family about him, he will teach—not preach, understand—the doctrines of religion and morality. The father who would have his child, when that child becomes a man, continue in his career in the fullness of Christian faith, must bring up that child amid Christian surroundings. As a rule, those men who are most sincere in their religious belief were imbued with the spirit of religion in childhood.

I cannot bring myself to believe that there is enough of religion in our homes to-day—not enough, particularly in this great, seething, crowding, pushing city. Amid the rush, the pace that kills, religion is forgotten. The husband and father has no time for it; he can't even find houseroom for it. As only one man here and there will tolerate religion in his office or place of business, where, then, do the great mass of men keep their religion? Some few keep it within the walls of church, pay a handsome pew rent for keeping it there, and go take a look at it once every Sunday from eleven to twelve.

I fear that especially among well-to do families, in the homes of prosperity, religion is almost entirely neglected; at least, the subject is seldom spoken of as an expression of real feeling, except in hushed tones. And yet I do not wish to paint the situation in darker colors than it really is. I do not say all husbands and fathers neglect religion. If there are great numbers of homes in this city in which religion has no place, there are still many households in which the family lives together in the spirit of Christ's teaching; and when such is the case it is usually because the husband and the wife agree in their religion, and agreeing in that, agree in all matters, and are the happier. In these homes husband and wife love God and pray and worship together, just as they work, hope, sorrow and joy together.—Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, in Demorest's Magazine.

THE HUSBAND'S CONVERSION.

For ten long years Mrs. H. prayed for her infidel husband. She knew that the Lord heard, and that "He is faithful that had promised;" but as yet the answer did not come. The thoughts of her kind, indulgent companion seemed as far from her as when, in the joy of her new-found hope, she had told him how "God so loved," and asked to join her in a life of loving service. Yet, the Lord was leading her gently that she might know and do his will.

One evening at the church prayer meeting her heart was more than usually burdened, and near the close of the services she rose timidly and said: "For many years, dear friends, I have longed to ask you to help me pray. It is not customary with us for ladies to speak in the meeting, and I have feared to be intrusive, but I can forbear no longer. Will you pray for my husband?"

Every heart was touched. A good brother immediately led in prayer, and another took up the petition. Mr. H. was well-known and much loved in the community, and they poured out their hearts before the Lord, pleading "as one pleadeth for a friend." Last of all a colored brother led in prayer, and in humble confidence seemed to enter into the very presence of Jehovah. Just after Mrs. H. had made her request, her husband, as was his custom, came to church to accompany her home. Finding that the service had not yet closed, he entered unobserved and took a seat near the door. "Tell me, wife," he said as they were leaving the vestibule, "who was the gentleman they were praying for just now?" "He is the husband of one of the church members," replied Mrs. H. "Wife," he said again, as they ascended the steps at home, "who was it they were praying for?" "The husband of one of the sisters, Charles." "Well, wife," he replied, "that man will certainly be converted; I never heard such prayers before." Again, as they were preparing for the night, he remarked: "Those were wonderful prayers, wife. Can you tell me the gentleman's name?" "He was the husband of one of the ladies present," replied Mrs. H., and then she retired to her closet for prayer and praise. At midnight she heard her husband's voice again: "Wife, wife, God heard those prayers; I cannot sleep, wife. Will you pray for me? Can the Lord show mercy to me, wife?"

There was joy in the presence of the angels that night. When the faithful pastor called next morning he found Mr. H. "praising and blessing God."

Blessed words of Jesus, "When two of you shall agree touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done of my Father."—Sunday Magazine.

BETWEEN FATHER AND SON.

We have a great deal to say in our literature about the confidence that should exist between a a mother and her daughter, but we ignore altogether too much the frankness that should exist between a father and his son, writes Edward W. Bok in "At Home with the Editor" in the June Ladies' Home Journal. It is not right to expect that our girls shall bear the whole burden of moral responsibility. Our boys must be taught that the world expects uprightness in a man just as much as it looks for it in a woman. If the men of to-day are protected by an unfair moral discrimination, that is no reason why the men of to-morrow should be so sheltered. If it is for women to elevate their conception of the moral standard for men, it is for the young men of to-day to adjust themselves to that higher measurement. A healthy frankness between the boys of to-day and their fathers is the first step. This is man's part in the aim for social purity. Women must cease their blinking at actions in men which they will not tolerate in women; men, to whom experience has come, must unfold to the younger men. It is a favor to a boy that his feelings shall be analyzed for him by his father; that he be taught that his self-control, or his loss of it, means an ascent or a descent in the social scale. There is no harm in a father pointing out these things to his son; the harm comes when the father neglects to do so. A young man should never be expected in any point of morality to experience what his father can explain and warn him against.

WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?

Pharisees, with what have you to reproach Jesus?

"He eateth with publicans and sinners."

Is this all?

"Yes."

And you, Caiphas, what say you of him?

"He is guilty; he is a blasphemer, because he said: 'Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power and coming in the clouds of heaven."

Pilate, what is your opinion?

"I find no fault in this man."

And you, Judas, who have sold your Master for silver: have you some fearful charge to hurl against him?

"I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood."

And you, centurion and soldiers who led him to the cross, what have you to say against him?

"Truly this was the Son of God."

And you, demons?

"He is the Son of God."

John the Baptist, what think you of Christ?

"Behold the Lamb of God."

And you, John?

"He is the bright and morning star."

Peter, what say you of your Master?

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

And you, Thomas?

"My Lord and my God."

Paul, you have persecuted him; what testify you of him?

"I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord."

Angels of heaven, what think ye of Jesus?

"Unto you is born a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

And thou, Father in heaven, who knowest all things?

"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Beloved reader, what think you of Christ?—From the Spanish.

Talk of improving the liquor traffic! You might as well undertake to paint the devil white.

TEMPERANCE.

TEMPERANCE AND PROHIBITION.

Temperance and prohibition are distinct. Great harm has been done and is daily done by failing to notice the distinction. The prohibitionists are falsely charged with trying to drag a purely moral and religious issue into politics. Many good temperance people who never cast a prohibition vote, but who yet admit that prohibition is a good thing, soothe their own consciences to sleep by calling themselves prohibitionists. When the people recognize the distinction between prohibition and temperance they will appreciate both better.

The two are unlike in almost every respect.

They aim at different results. Temperance seeks the moral, religious and eternal welfare of the individual. Prohibition works for the economic and political welfare of the community.

They differ in their agents. The church should preach total abstinence. Prohibition belongs to a political party.

They differ in their methods. Temperance is the result of moral suasion. "Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself." Prohibition can only come by force, through imprisonment, by the hands of constables, sheriffs, courts and juries, as the result of law and officers pledged to enforce the law.

They differ in their advocates. All temperance men are not prohibitionists. All prohibitionists are not total abstainers. A prohibitionist is one who votes for prohibition at every election or as frequently as he can. A drunkard may be a good prohibitionist. A total abstainer is one who practices temperance. Most prohibitionists are total abstainers. A minority of total abstainers are prohibitionists.

Yet there is very close connection between the two, as there is between the doctrine of the unity of God and the brotherhood of men and Republicanism and Democracy.

As constitutional liberty is founded upon Christianity so prohibition is founded upon total abstinence. And we think that prohibitionists should be especially active as individuals, as church members, as Sunday-school teachers, in teaching temperance. Prohibition will never take the place of temperance; will never render temperance needless.

In the county Tyrone, Ireland, there is a district of sixty-one square miles, inhabited by nearly 10,000 people, having three great roads communicating with market towns, in which there are no saloons, entirely owing to the self-action of the inhabitants. The result has been that there is not a policeman in the district, the poor-rates are one-half what they were before, and the police magistrates testify to the great absence of crime and disorder.—The Templar.

It is asserted by continental statisticians that in the consumption of alcohol France, as a country, has gone up by bounds. It is now fourth among the nations of Europe, following close on the second and third; Belgium being the first and Great Britain the second. These are grave statements, says the Methodist Recorder, indicating a new peril to that gifted and excitable people, and through them to the European nations at large. What a drunken France may mean the world has yet to learn.

Prohibition would be so buried under public disapproval that it would be hard to resurrect it, if it defied and evaded laws as does high license. Boston is under a $1,000 license, with strict ordinances hedging in the saloons; yet the authorities are forced to begin action against a host of saloon-keepers for defying the law, in keeping screens in front of their doors and windows. Minnesota demands a $1,000 license, and it has recently come to light that fictitious names were placed upon the saloon-keepers' bonds. Philadelphia is also under a $1,000 license, yet the papers of that city report numerous raids upon illegal liquor joints. It is as impossible to warm by a lump of ice as it is to compel those engaged in the liquor business to conform to the law. If a man is corrupt enough to go into the liquor business, he is corrupt enough to violate the law. Darkness cannot make light; neither can a saloon-keeper be a respectable, law-abiding citizen. It does not pay to be such, and he is in the business for money, and will have it; so it matters but little to him whether it is obtained by fair or foul means. Down with saloons.—Pacific Ensign.

Many people do not seem to understand that the putrefaction of sugar by means of yeast at home produces just as much alcohol as if done by a brewer. The products may indeed be more deleterous, because the scientific brewer of the present day takes infinite pains to employ only the right kind of yeast germ, free from others which commonly produce more injurious results. Children who become accustomed to these fermented herb beers are soon unable to relish a meal without them, and they thus create a crave which will at length lead them on to stronger beverages.—Editor Medical Pioneer.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON II.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Oct. 14.

SUBJECT.—The Draught of Fishes.—Luke 5:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 5:1-11. T.—Matt. 4:18-25. W.—John 21:1-11. Th.—Acts 2:41-47. F.—Matt. 9:9-13. S.—Luke 9:23-27. Su.—Matt. 19:16-22.

Two. The number of testimony. "Washing their nets." Cleansing their nets from weeds, indicating that their labor was finished.—Alford. These fishermen would have the outermost thing belong to them clean. They must have clean hands that bear the vessels of the Lord, and everything on board must be honest and pure. The Lord will never help us to catch fish with dirty nets. Integrity is the name of the craft on which you will find the Lord and honesty is carved on the figure head.—Pearse.

Which was Simon's. How eagerly Simon received him into his boat. Earth could afford no such joy; no gain could compare with this privilege, that the Master should sit in his boat and teach the people.—Pearse. "Prayed him". He might have bidden them as his disciples, or commanded them as Lord, but he graciously prays them.—Ibid. "Taught out of the ship." Jesus was the farthest removed from the conventional type of religious teacher. Like all his disciples who have led great revivals he set usage aside, and did the thing his hand found to do apart from the cold, formal, dead service of the synagogue. Wesley abandoned the churches and took to barns, coal-pits and open fields. Moody took to theatres, market-places, old warehouses and machine shops.—Pentecost. Jesus seeks a pulpit in the midst of daily life. We are to find the desk and the counter as near to God as any place of worship. Again, Christ wants a pulpit in the midst of the people. To have the pulpit in the church is to leave ten thousand out of reach, never hearing his voice, never seeing his face.—Pearse. Let us think of our Lord's simplicity of manner and method, his marvelous ingenuity and adaptability; his being in season and out of season; and so where we are, and as we are, by one means, or by another, careless of prescribed rule or precedent, strive to satisfy the need of the surging multitude, who press upon us on every side.—Strain.

When he had left speaking. When he had finished his morning's discourse, he turned to the plain work of the present life. Jesus had an interest in the everyday toil of his disciples. He did not ask them to be always hearing sermons. He was as ready to help them fish as to help them pray. He is the same now as then, watching us with loving sympathy in our daily duties. We can confidently go to him for direction, in whatever concerns us, whether it be fishing, or farming, or hunting a house, or deciding where to spend a vacation. Whatever is legitimately our business is his business.—Trumbull. "Launch out." We fish too near the shore. There is a great deep beyond our parish of neglected classes of people, and still beyond the vast heathen world.—Pentecost. They were not to be guided in their ministry by appearances, nor even discouraged by temporary failures; but at his bidding were to launch out into the deep, expecting results after the most inauspicious seasons, and the most unsuccessful and trying experiences.—Simpson. "Into the deep." This command peculiarly trying to a fisherman's faith. The deep waters are not the waters in which fish are taken in lakes.—Ryle.

Simon answering. Rapidly Peter's mind took in the whole situation. Night was the proper time for lake-fishing. It was against common sense and experience to expect to catch anything in the day-time. Jno. 21:3. Here was the test to Peter's obedience.—Needham. "All the night—taken nothing." All labor must be fruitless where the blessing of God is not. It is the presence and influence of Christ in a congregation that causes souls to be gathered to himself. Without these all will be night and fruitless labor.—Clarke. Peter put discouragement from him. He would not allow past failure to hinder him from trying again when the Lord bade him. Nothing so hinders the Lord's work as the discouragements that overtake his workers. Jesus left us a good example. What an apparent failure he made in Nazareth! for he not only caught nothing in his own town, but was driven away from the fishing grounds. Nevertheless he launched out into the deep places of Capernaum, and there he enclosed a multitude of souls.—Pentecost. "Let down the net." To fish for men is to preach the Word; the threads are the words of persuasion; knots are arguments of reason; plummets articles of faith. This net is to be woven by study, let down by preaching, gathered by calling men to account, washed by tears, spread and dried by charity and mortified affection.—Frank.

Great multitude. Simon had let Jesus have the use of his ship as a pulpit, and now he rewards him. Conditions being changed, the same work will produce different results, and the conditions of all work depend entirely upon God.—Wrigley.

Partners. Had not these been called to assist, the net must have been broken and the fish lost. It is an intolerable pride to think nothing well done but what we do ourselves.—Clarke. "Filled both the ships." Prosperity that comes when Jesus is in the business is a safe prosperity. Prosperity without him has ruined many.—Pearse. "Began to sink." It was the number that brought trouble to the ship. How vast is the multitude of ill-living Christians. But for the sake of the good fish, the boats escape shipwreck. Jno. 1:12; Acts 27:24—Augustine.

Fell down. Adversity, rather than prosperity, draws us to the Lord. Not the full net but the sinking ships prostrated Simon at the feet of Jesus, and made him feel his need of mercy.—Ferguson. Peter had seen Jesus do wonderful things, but this wonder came home to him as none of them had done, wrought in his own vessel, with his own net, in the way of his own calling, after his own fruitless toil. Never had the impression of a divine power at work in his presence taken such a hold of him.—Hanna. "Depart from me." It was the cry of self-loathing which had already realized something nobler. It was the first impulse of fear and amazement, before they had time to grow into adoration and love. Peter did not mean "depart from me," he only meant, and this was known to the searcher of hearts, "I am utterly unworthy to be near thee, yet let me stay."—Farrar. "A sinful man." Did Peter wish to be separated from the Master? No, but he deserved to be. Jesus answered the heart and not the literal words of the prayer.—Wakefield. Bid not Christ go from thee because thou art a sinner, for therefore he comes to thee. Thy argument for shunning him is his argument for saving thee.—Clarke.

Fear not. Your very conscience of sin and the new increase of faith will prepare you for the better work I have for you to do—Peloubet. "Catch men." Catch means "to take alive." It is for life and not death that men are taken in the Gospel net.—Ibid. Admire how he draws each by the art that is the most familiar to him. Magians by a star and fisherman by fish.—Chrysostom. We hear a good deal about reaching young men and reaching the masses. What we want to do is to catch, not simply to reach.—Sandham.

Forsook all. Not only the ship but the rich haul.—Lange. These apostles might have left little when they left their possession, but they left much when they their desires. A man may be holden by love to a miserable hovel with as fast bands as to a sumptuous palace; for it is the worldly affection that holds him.—Trench. Resolving to forsake all, remember to include thyself.—Jerome.

Please renew your subscription now.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Rev. C. H. Yatman, the well-known evangelist, has been conducting crowded daily meetings with blessed results at Trenton, N. J., under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of that city. Regular services began on Sept. 11, and were continued until Sept. 23.

—The thirty-seventh anniversary of the Fulton-street noon prayer-meeting was held Sept. 23 in the Marble Collegiate church, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City. A letter was read from Mr. J. C. Lanphier, the aged founder of the noon prayer-meetings, who at the last moment found himself too feeble to attend.

—A meeting is to be held in Hansom Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, from the 9th to the 13th of October, for the deepening of spiritual life. The general subject to be discussed is "The Ministry of the Holy Spirit." The leaders in the movement are A. J. Gordon, D.D., A. T. Pierson, D.D., R. S. Arthur, D.D., Major D. W. Whittle, Anthony Comstock and others.

—A series of lectures on Christian Society will be delivered at Princeton Seminary, N. J., October 1-5 inclusive, at 5 P. M., by Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, author of "The Sabbath for Man," "The Temperance Century," etc., as follows: October 1, Social Problems and Their Relation to the Church; 2, to the Family; 3, to the School; 4, to the Shop; 5, to the State.

—The Chicago Bible Society employs a number of young women to go into the homes of the city to read the Bible and to supply copies of it at cost price to those who do not have Bibles; in cases of extreme poverty copies are given. Last year, on an average, fourteen were employed. They made 31,000 visits and distributed over 24,000 copies of the Scriptures in Chicago.

—It is interesting news respecting the foreign mission work of the United Presbyterian church, that a party of over a dozen returning foreign missionaries and the new appointees will sail from New York on Oct. 13. Miss Mary A. Platter, M.D., of Chillicothe, Ohio, will take charge of the medical missionary work in India under the care of the Women's Board. Rev. J. P. White of Walton, Kansas, son of Rev. James White, D.D., has been appointed to the Egyptian mission. He has signified his willingness to accept the appointment.

—The annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign missions will open Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 10, at Madison, Wis. Special meetings led by D. L. Moody, will begin on Sunday, Oct. 7, and continue in connection with the Board meetings through the entire week. A grand spiritual uplift is expected, which will give power to the meetings of the Board. The conversion of the world at home and abroad will be the inspiring theme, and it is hoped that converting power will be experienced to a remarkable degree during the meetings.

—Mr. John Wanamaker has made a study of the plans of practical helpfulness carried on in several London churches during his stay in that city, and proposes to introduce several of them at his Bethany church in Philadelphia. He says that he hopes to make the church a helpful place to the people who are attached directly or indirectly to the church and Sunday-school, not only in the line of religious privileges, but in lines of practical and industrial education, including whatever will help young people with limited opportunities to make the most of their lives.

—The Chicago Tract Society, auxiliary to the American Tract Society of New York, held its anniversary last week in the First M. E. church. The number of tracts supplied for free distribution during the year was 1,976,000; number of colporteurs employed, 4; number of volumes circulated, 3,814; public meetings addressed, 291; families found destitute of religious books, 918; Protestant families without the Bible, 300; Roman Catholic families visited, 844; Protestant families neglecting evangelical preaching, 1,577; families conversed or prayed with, 7,080; total families visited, 8,815.

—The Pacific Garden Mission, which Mrs. Sarah D. Clarke still carries on since the death of her noble husband, has issued a report of the year closing Sept. 15. This mission is held every night in the year, with several meetings on the Sabbath. The attendance has exceeded that of any former year, from 300 to 500 night after night. A mission Bible school is soon to be opened. A Gospel wagon and regular jail visitation are part of the mission labor. Bro. Harry Monroe is Mrs. Clarke's faithful assistant in this great work. Students from the theological seminaries and especially from the Moody Institute render constant and invaluable aid in this great work.

—It is sometimes said that there are no instances of conversion from Mohammedanism. Yet in the Punjab, India, the Church Missionary Society has nine ministers and twenty catechists who are converts from Islam. And in North India there are over a hundred Moslem converts, many of whom are persons of distinction in native society. The Church Missionary Society has on its roll over a thousand who have renounced Mohammedanism, and the Rhenish Missionary Society has over two thousand. And in the island of Java the converts are numbered by thousands. True, all these are in regions where there is religious liberty. But the fact shows that if the same liberty were allowed in Turkey and Persia, the same results would follow.—The Intelligencer.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF AUGUST, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital, Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Government officials are favorably considering the scheme to have mail transported in large cities by street cars.

Secretary Gresham's outline of the new treaty with Japan shows that it closely resembles the one just concluded with England.

CHICAGO.

Election commissioners decided to supply separate ballots and ballot boxes for women voters at the coming election.

Chauncey M. Depew as a representative of capital and Terence V. Powderly as a representative of labor are expected to be among the speakers at the Congress of Arbitration to be held in Chicago Nov. 13 and 14. The Civic Federation is planning a meeting of labor leaders, thinkers, manufacturers, representative leaders of the employer classes, students, and doctrinaires of the social questions as related to the laboring field.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Sept. 24 to Sept. 29:

M Plummer, W H Gillette, Mrs M C Eaton, J Buck, J Gates, S Irish, I R B Arnold, D Lotzenhiser, Rev M A Gault, J R Cooper, L Skinner.

THE LARKIN IDEA.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co. have been frequent and liberal users of our advertising space for some years, offering "Sweet Home" Soap and various premiums to our readers. These offers are almost marvelous, yet we know they are fully carried out. We have tried them and speak from experience. The Larkin idea of doing business is to sell direct from manufacturer to consumer, giving the latter extra value, disposing with the middleman, who increases cost without adding value. The Chautauqua Chair combines comfort and durability, attention being given to all of these points in the manufacture. You can take advantage of their offer, and at the expiration of the thirty days' trial, we are sure you will have had sufficient comfort out of the chair so that you will not part with it, and you will also have learned that the Larkin Soaps are unsurpassed.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	51	@	53
Winter No. 2	51½
Corn—No. 2	48	@	49¼
Oats—No. 2	27¾	@	31
Rye—No. 2	47½	@	50
Bran per ton	12 50	@
Hay—Timothy	7 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	25
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	15	@	17
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 42	@
Clover (100 lbs.)	7 50	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	55	@	65
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 50	@	6 25
Common to good	2 00	@	5 25
Hogs	2 50	@	6 10
Sheep	1 00	@	3 40

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	55⅛	@	56⅜
Corn No 2	54¾
Oats	32⅛	@	35¼
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	21
Butter	13	@	26
Wool	19	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25	@	5 25
Hogs	2 75		5 72
Sheep	2 00	@	3 25

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

121 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees In Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and coucil. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons, swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

That Tired Feeling

So common at this season, is a serious condition, liable to lead to disastrous results. It is a sure sign of declining health tone, and that the blood is impoverished and impure. The best and most successful remedy is found in

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which makes rich, healthy blood, and thus gives strength to the nerves, elasticity to the muscles, vigor to the brain and health to the whole body. In truth, Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes the Weak Strong

Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

LITERATURE

—ON THE—

ROMAN QUESTION

TAKEN FROM THE

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.

FRANKED ENVELOPES

Address,

Rev. Green Clay Smith,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Home and Health.

A young man named Frank E Fowler, in Nahant, Mass,, is in trouble with the United States authorities for using the mails improperly. He advertised that he had for sale a ladies' hat fastener, which made the use of hat pins unnecessary, and offered to send a sample for 10 cents. Orders began to pour in rapidly. Several ladies in Boston sent money for a sample, and in return received two small rubber bands with directions which read, "Sew one of these fasteners on each side of your hat or bonnet, and place the loop around your ears, which will hold safely."

HER DREAM.

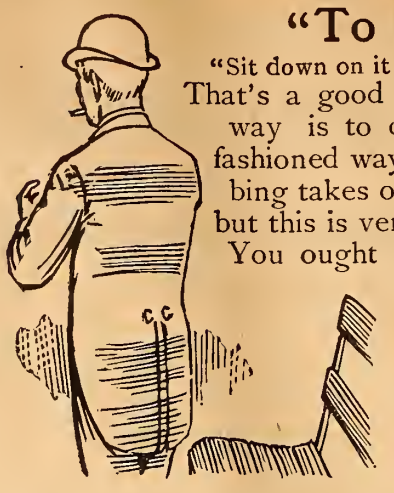
A ready reply with characteristic Irish wit comes from the New York Ledger:

An Irish earl and his lady were riding out one morning, and meeting one of their tenantry, gave her a kindly greeting.

"And sure I had a drame about yer honor last night sending me a pound of sugar, and yer leddyship a pound of tay; and its joyful I am to tell ye this morning," said the accustomed beneficiary.

"But, my good woman," replied the earl, "dreams go by the contrary."

"Indade, then, yer honor is to send the tay and her leddyship the sugar," was the quick-witted reply.



COOKERY A MEANS OF GRACE.

Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln, lecturing at the Methodist Chautauqua at Point o' Woods on Long Island, recently, treated "Cooking as an Adjunct to Civilization," as undoubtedly it is, and told her attentive class that "good cooking is essential to happiness and morality," as it may be. Hence she contended that it is a moral, if not a religious, duty for all Methodist wives to learn the art and practice it. Her idea is that bad cookery provokes domestic discord by producing discontent and physical disarrangement, fatal to the harmony which ought to prevail in a Christian household. A poorly cooked dinner excites criticism dangerous to the peace of the family, but a dinner properly and skillfully prepared calls for the praise that is a balm of peace, so that the grace offered before it is eaten, expresses a spirit of thankfulness which comes to every partaker after the meal is done. With an adequate knowledge of the principles of cookery, the housewife can always produce her concoctions with certainty that she will reach the result she seeks; and that is one of the tests of a good practitioner of the art.

It is fortunate for the people that the body of women cookery teacher, of which Mrs. Lincoln is a conspicuous member, has become so large, and that it is pursuing its profession with so much enthusiasm. She is at the head of the Boston Cooking School, an institution which was greatly needed in the Puritan capital, where the cookery used to be lamentably bad in spite of markets remarkable for their variety and profusion.

Mrs. Lincoln, however, goes too far in her zeal when she advocates the introduction of instruction in cookery as a part of the teaching in public schools. Those schools are already overloaded with courses of study, injuriously distracting the attention of pupils whose time for schooling is brief, and whose intellectural energies need to be concentrated in learning the simple branches of a necessary elementary education, reading, writing, and arithmetic. The apostles of good cookery like Mrs. Lincoln can accomplish the needed reform in the ways they have adopted already. A housewife who is a first-rate cook sets an example for a whole neighborhood and excites emulation to reach the elevation she has attained. The knowledge of the culinary art Mrs. Lincoln is spreading at the Methodist Chautauqua will be carried thence into many communities.—The N. Y. Sun.

"For several months, I was troubled with a persistent humor on my head which gave me considerable annoyance, until it occurred to me to try Ayer's Hair Vigor. Before using one bottle, the humor was healed."—T. T. Adams, General Merchant, Turbeville, Va.

"To Remove Paint.

"Sit down on it before it is dry."—(Texas Siftings.) That's a good way—easy, too. And another way is to do your cleaning in the old-fashioned way with soap; the necessary rubbing takes off the paint along with the dirt, but this is very tiresome work.

You ought to do your house-cleaning with Pearline; that's the modern way—easiest and most economical way—takes away the dirt easily and leaves the paint. Saves rubbing, saves work, saves time, saves whatever is cleaned. Use Pearline (without soap) on anything that water doesn't hurt. 455

Millions NOW USE Pearline

THE CELEBRATED OXFORD ORGANS.—CONTAINS 122 CELEBRATED ORCHESTRAL TONED REEDS.

When you buy from us you pay the factory profit, and not agents' dealers' or middlemens' enormous profits. This beautiful Oxford Columbia Organ for $45.00.

COMPASS:—Five Octaves, 11 Necessary Stops, 2 of 3-Octave, 2 of 2-Octave Each.

11 NECESSARY STOPS— All that can be put on a 4 set reed action without attaching bogus stops, viz.: Diapason, Principal, Melodia, Dulcet, Cremona, Vox-Angelica, Echo Horn, Celeste, Treble Coupler, Bass Coupler, Grand Organ and Right Knee Swell and Left Knee Swell. The above 4 set reeds and 11 necessary stops are placed at the disposal of the performer and the action is characterized by greater power, variety and brilliancy of tone, combined with the most exquisitive purity and sweetness, in addition to the music contained in an ordinary organ.

DESCRIPTION OF CASE— Constructed of the best grade of solid black walnut, handsomely finished, hand-rubbed with oil, durable and strong, thoroughly seasoned, kiln dried, and made on scientific principles, each component part being paneled to prevent warping or splitting, with veneered panels, elegantly carved and ornamented; center panel on top fitted with a large beveled French plate glass mirror, with veneer panels on each side; exquisite fret work, brocade silk velvet trimmings back of all fret work, large music cabinet, swinging front fall board, two lamp stands, convenient handles for moving. It is entirely new in design, and is as illustrated in cut. The case stands on castors.

INTERIOR CONSTRUCTION— is simple yet scientific and durable, not liable to get out of order and easily adjusted in case of any disarrangement; working parts are free from friction and will neither break nor wear. Nothing but the best of material used, and you will never find in one of the Oxford organs blotting paper instead of felt; cloth instead of leather; oil-cloth instead of rubber; common board instead of three-ply stock.

THE TONE— which is the most important part of an instrument, is full, sweet, round, sympathetic, and harmonious, with volume, variety and brilliancy, combined with great power.

THE BELLOWS— a very important part of a good organ, are of the very best and strongest material, best quality of rubber cloth and best quality of felt, with perfect stop action. They have an immense capacity and furnished, with the automatic valve for preventing an over supply of air, will never leak or wear out.

THE WARRANT— By our warrant we pledge ourselves in case our organ should prove defective in material or workmanship during a term of fifteen years to put the same in proper condition or refund money.

FREE—Our Wholesale Catalogue of Organs, Baby Carriages, Sewing Machines and Bicycles, quoting cash and time prices. Write for Catalogue at once and state which to send.

THE OXFORD MFG. CO. | Old Established and reliable.... | 338 TO 334 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

LODGE LAMP

a monthly of choice articles on the SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM, which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle. B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. Kimball,
Box 277. Newmarket. N. H.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. Phillips, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

TAKE AYER'S
the Only
Sarsaparilla
AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.
IT LEADS ALL OTHER *
BLOOD
Purifiers.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.
Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.
BY REV. S. F. PORTER,
A Study of Christ's Comings.
Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.
For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated
A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is
Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Vital Questions
DISCUSSED IN THE
ADDRESSES AND SERMONS
OF THE LATE
JONATHAN BLANCHARD,
President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.
1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.
"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.
"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.
"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.
"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.
"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.
"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.
"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.
"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

If eggs are desired during the warm season, do not let the hens get crowded in the roosting place. Better provide a roosting shed with open sides. At the most not over twenty-five should be allowed to roost together.

Clover or fine-cut beet tops packed away tightly while green, in barrels, will make a good juicy food for the hens next winter. The barrel must be air tight with a tightly fitting head, and the heavy weight must be left on the top until you are ready to use the contents.

An exchange says: To keep chickens healthy, put one teaspoonful of sulphuric acid in a gallon of water, soak corn in this solution over night and feed in the morning. Use at any time your chickens look droopy. This will cure cholera. As a disinfectant, use two tablespoonfuls sulphuric acid to a gallon of water, and thoroughly sprinkle run and roosts. This will exterminate mites and all insects.

An acre of ground may yield by poultry raising from $100 to $1,000; but the management has much to do with the profits. A bright, energetic Yankee can oftentimes bring about results that another would say were impossible. A certain Massachusetts farmer makes $4,000 per annum from his poultry because he knows how to go about it. He makes it pay better than farming, and keeps his flocks on the land that used to feed his cattle.

LINCOLN'S MEMORY.

Abraham Lincoln had a great memory. A writer in the Chicago Herald gives an incident in point. When he was comparatively a young man and a candidate for the Illinois Legislature, he took dinner with a Sangamon county farmer, and after the meal they two stood at the barnyard gate, talking and whittling. Lincoln's knife needed sharpening, and the Yankee in him prompted him to sharpen it. He walked to a tool box, took from it a whetstone and came back to the great gate, where he stood again and began sharpening his knife. One post of the gate was very high. A man came along the road in a wagon, going in the direction Lincoln wanted to travel, and he bade his host good-bye and clambered into the vihicle—intent, no doubt, on getting another vote.

Years afterward, when he was President, a soldier came to call upon him at the White House, and at the first sight the gaunt chief executive said: "Yes, I remember you. You used to live on the Danville road. I took dinner with you one time when I was running for the Legislature. Recollect we stood together out at the barn-yard gate and I sharpened my knife?"

"Ya as," drawled the farmer-soldier, "and wherever did you put that whetstone? We 'lowed mebby you had took it along with you."

"No," said Lincoln, "no, I put it on top of the gate post—the high one."

"Well!" exclaimed the visitor, "mebby you did. Couldn't nobody else have put it there, and none of us ever thought to look there for it."

He went on home, and when he got there one of the first things he did was to climb up on the gate and look for the whetstone. It was there, right where it had lain for fifteen years. The honest fellow, adoring his chief, wrote a letter before his furlough expired, telling the President the whetstone was found and never would be lost again.—Methodist Herald.

It may truly be said of Hood's Sarsaparilla that it "makes the weak strong." It purifies and vitalizes the blood, giving great bodily nerve, mental and digestive strength.

Everybody is Going South Now-a-days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

Scrofula is Disease Germs living in the Blood and feeding upon its Life. Overcome these germs with Scott's
Emulsion
the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, and make your blood healthy, skin pure and system strong. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.
Don't be deceived by Substitutes!
Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

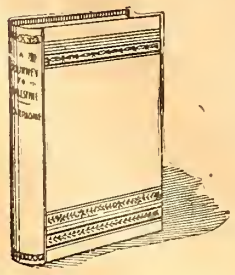
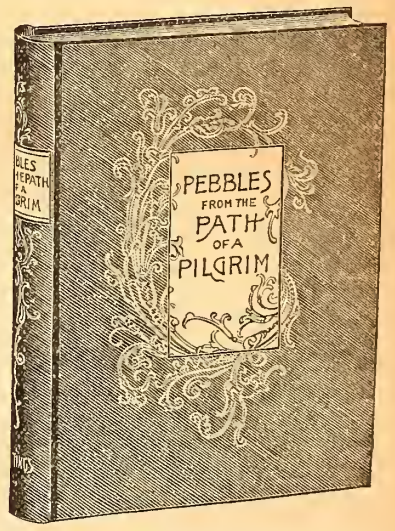
To January next.....	$ 25
To January, 1896.....	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal.....	3.00

A UNIQUE PICTURE.



There was much interest in the N. C. A. Chart used at the World's Fair last year by Rev. J. P. Stoddard in illustrating various facts In Freemasonry.

There has been a demand for copies of it by those who saw it at the World's Fair, and who wish to use it in explaining to their neighbors different phases of the lodge question.



Hence the N. C. A. has had a photo-zinc-etching made, size 18x20 inches, which shows the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scotch Rite, etc., and their relation one to another.

There are also seen some of the initiatory scenes in the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason. This chart can be used to illustrate the system of secret societies in a variety of ways. It will be especially helpful to local lecturers and pastors of churches in explaining to people the ceremonies, oaths, prayers, religion, etc., of the lodge. The Chart is on heavy book paper, and will be sent postpaid, at your risk, for six two-cent postage stamps; or sent at our risk by registered mail for ten two-cent postage stamps.

Framed and hung upon the wall it will make a novel and attractive picture for the homes of the readers of the Cynosure.

A Journey to Palestine
BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.
Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?
An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.
W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."
A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.
Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.
—BY—
MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."
"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

Fifteen of the most notorious gamblers were indicted Thursday by the grand jury, and with them two landlords of premises in which gambling has been carried on. The list of gamblers includes some of the worst known names in the city, though a few of them are reputed to be rich.

At a fire in the basement of No. 254 State street at 11 o'clock Thursday night, one fireman was killed by suffocation and four others were overcome by smoke.

COUNTRY.

Mill owners and operatives at Fall River, Mass., held a conference, but failed to settle the strike involving 40,000 persons.

Snow fell in thirty counties of northern Minnesota, amounting in some places to a depth of three inches.

Friday night was a night of terror in Brainerd, Minn. The fires had eaten their way into the city limits and a fierce gale was blowing the flames directly toward the residence portion of the city. Hundreds were fighting the flames all night. Scores of farmers had been burned out and many coming into the city had lost all but the clothes on their backs. In the morning a heavy rain put the fires out.

Information regarding the murder of Mrs. Mary J. Platt, teacher in the Indian school on the Pichango reservation near Temecula, Riverside county, Cal., has been received. The murdered woman lived with her niece, aged 10, in a wing of the school building. The Indians were apparently on the most friendly terms with her, and she taught every little Indian child on the reservation. An Indian boy complained to Chief Metteopa that the chidren were being abused. He went away angry, and is believed to be the author of the crime. The crime was committed the night of Sept. 20. Mrs. Platt was clubbed to death and her body cremated. The little girl escaped.

Four men were killed and four injured by the blowing up of the boiler of a thrashing engine on a farm near Crystal, N. D.

In an address before the Illinois State board of equalization Gov. Altgeld said the Pullman Company escaped taxation on property worth upward of $40,000,000.

An investigation of the pass business in Kansas shows that the system applies to almost all officials, executive, legislative and judicial, and that the Populists, who have been loudest in denouncing the abuse, are as ready to use passes as either Republicans or Democrats.

Harry Knox, one of the leaders of the late railroad strike, and who is charged with complicity in the train-wrecking at Sacramento, Cal., and is now out on bail, has been unanimously nominated for sheriff of Yolo county by the Populists.

Wood-choppers will organize a large union this fall to take in the employes of the Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan pineries. A preliminary organization has been made at Ashland. Woodmen have never organized before. To cut down the long hours instead of raising wages they say is their reason for organizing. There are about 15,000 woodsmen in the pineries.

Later returns from the Sequoya (I. T.) dance tragedy a week ago at which three men were killed, indicate that two more men were also killed and several others injured.

CASUALTIES.

Five tramps who were stealing a ride on a Northwestern freight train, which was wrecked near Woodstock, Ill., were killed, and two others injured.

Saturday, Louis Scharf, while intoxicated, drove rapidly down hill with his family, and plunged into the Minnesota river at Chaska. His wife and her sister and five children were drowned. The wretch himself was saved.

A West Indian cyclone raged in Florida Tuesday and Wednesday. Many houses were wrecked and crops destroyed, but no loss of life is reported. At Tampa several large cigar factories were wrecked. The First Presbyterian church and the Palatial hotel, Tampa Bay, were badly damaged. Several smaller structures were also demolished. The total loss on buildings at Tampa is estimated at $50,000. The hurricane made its way steadily up the coast. Thursday it was off the coast of South Carolina, traveling slowly in a northeasterly direction with a rotary motion describing a circle of about 2,000 miles in diameter. The rainfall attending the storm was the heaviest ever known on the coast. The rain area has reached as far north as Virginia.

FOREIGN.

Several thousand workmen are already assembled at Panama, ready to begin operations upon the canal, which has been suspended for several years. Arrangements have been made for funds sufficient to prosecute the work for eighteen months.

The clerks of the Bank of England are holding angry meetings of protest against the recent admission into the service of the bank of two batches of women clerks.

Capt. Onslow, late commander of the flagship of the British Asiatic squadron, says, although the Japanese have the better of the fight so far, he thinks China will ultimately win. Native enthusiasm, he says, in Japan is most intense, and not only are large numbers volunteering for active service, but private subscriptions to a large figure have been contributed by rich and poor alike. Capt. Onslow says Japan's army is one of the best disciplined he has ever seen.

Admiral Da Gama asserts there has been rioting in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, lasting five days, accompanied by outrages on Portuguese merchants, instigated directly by President Peixoto, who incited soldiers, dressed as citizens, to make an attack, on the pretense they wanted to break up a meeting of royalist conspirators. Rio, it is reported, looks like a great military camp, soldiers patrolling the streets, cavalry encamped in public gardens, launches patrolling the harbor front. The number of killed is stated to be 328, and 213 wounded entered the hospitals. The damage to the property of Portuguese, British, and other foreign residents will amount to $1,500,000.

Inhuman barbarity marks the course of the Chinese army. The Chinese Taotai of Formosa offered a prize for Japanese heads. Coreans have been enlisted, and three Japanese heads transfixed on spears are reported to grace the walls of Pyong Yang, and the hands of five of their foes were nailed to gates of Whang Ju by Chinese.

The World's Tribute to
Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Highest Honors Awarded by the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893

World's Fair
HIGHEST MEDAL awarded to
Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The highest award was given on every claim, comprising superiority in leavening power, keeping properties, purity and excellence. This verdict has been given by the best jury ever assembled for such a purpose, backed by the recommendation of the Chief Chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., who made an elaborate examination and test of all the baking powders. This is pre-eminently the highest authority on such matters in America.

This verdict conclusively settles the question and proves that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is superior in every way to any other brand.

NOTE.—The Chief Chemist rejected the Alum baking powders, stating to the World's Fair jury that he considered them unwholesome.

JUMPING BEANS. They hop, skip, jump, dance, turn somersaults almost incessantly from August to May. Wonderful product of a Foreign Tree. Greatest curiosity to draw crowds wherever shown, on streets, in shop windows, etc. Just imported. Everybody wants one. Full history of Tree and sample Jumping Bean to Agents or Streetmen 10 cents, postpaid. 3, 25c.; 6, 50c.; 12, 75c.; 100, $3. Rush order and be first. Sell quantities to your merchants for window attractions and then sell to others. Quick sales. Try 100. Big Money.
Agents' Herald No. 341. J. B., Phila., Pa.

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Specialists, ATLANTA, GA.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.
Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents
—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

"CHAUTAUQUA" ROCKER AND RECLINING CHAIR FREE WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

IT IS BUILT OF OAK, POLISHED ANTIQUE FINISH, WITH BEAUTIFULLY GRAINED THREE-PLY VENEER BACK. THE SEAT, HEAD AND FOOT RESTS ARE UPHOLSTERED WITH SILK PLUSH. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, - - - - - - - - $10.00
CHAIR, WORTH AT RETAIL, - 10.00
YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00.
WE WILL SEND BOX AND CHAIR ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00 IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Cynosure S pt. 27 issue. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

Charles P. Sumner, Father of the Senator, and a renouncing Mason:—Masonic engagements, whether they are called oaths, obligations, or promises, ought never to be made. They are not sanctioned by law and are not obligatory. They make it a Masonic crime to divulge that which the good of the community requires should not be concealed.

Daniel Webster: "All secret associations, the members of which take upon themselves extraordinary obligations to one another, and are bound together by secret oaths, are naturally sources of jealousy and just alarm to others; are especially unfavorable to harmony and mutual confidence among men living together under popular institutions, and are dangerous to the general cause of civil liberty and just government. Under the influence of this conviction I heartily approved the law, lately enacted in the State of which I am a citizen, for abolishing all such oaths and obligations."

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 5. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,276.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mar 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Hugh Price Hughes and Bro Paull. 8
Dr. Gladden on Secret Societies..... 8
Shining Marks 8
Odd-fellows and Religion 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The N. C. A. and the Churches..... 2
The Church and the Lodges..... 2
That Motion to Adjourn. 2
Society (a poem)..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
Soul Winners; Notes of a Summer Rest; God's Reform..... 6
LITERATURE..... 6
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
SELECTED:
No Orders Excepted..... 3
Sample Brothers..... 3
Christianity Elevates Man..... 3
Briefs from the Editors. 3
Our Mosaic Americanism 4
Secret Societies in Politics. 4
REFORM NEWS:
The Pacific Coast Convention..... 5
Fact..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS. 12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

It is said that the daughter of Jeff. Davis, to whom was given the unenviable title "Daughter of the Confederacy," now lives at Colorado Springs. Woman suffrage prevailing in Colorado, Miss Davis has announced her intention to vote the Republican ticket. Is this a change of principles on the part of the lady, or of the party; or is she simply trying to return good for evil? It surely looks like a case of the mountain coming to Mohammed.

Over in Indiana the A. P. A. has begun to question political candidates. The Roman Catholics are returning the compliment. This is all right if people keep a good spirit, and do not drop argument and take to sticks. Candidates need more questioning on moral issues than on tariff or silver. And it is more important to know if they worship false gods and have sworn false oaths of partiality to a few of their neighbors in a lodge than that they have an allegiance to the temporal sovereignty of the pope.

Postmaster Hesing of this city was overruled. An order from the Postmaster General's office forbade the parade of the letter carriers last Sabbath. Petitions from all over the country were a proof that Christian sentiment means to uphold the laws that give workingmen one day of rest in seven. The next move should be to curtail the business of the mails in our large cities. Why may we not have stamps like Belgium, which bear on their face a request not to forward on the Sabbath?

Following the address of Mr. Alexander against hazing, at the opening of Princeton University, the students put their heads together and resolved to abolish that criminal folly. The whole country applauds them; but most people forget that Dr. McCosh abolished the secret fraternities before the students abolished hazing; and there is a very decided connection between the two cases. It would be highly profitable if our wealthy institutious secure a repetition of Mr. Alexander's address before their students. But let the secret societies among them be McCoshed first.

We see the day arising when the great Rock River M. E. Conference shall again refuse to ordain men who worship at Freemason altars, as they did in the days of Cartwright and John Thompson. At their meeting last week in Galena, the excesses which wealth and popularity have begotten at Evanston educational headquarters were assailed fearlessly by country pastors, and only escaped a rebuking vote by personal solicitation of Chicago brethren. Rev. John Lee, an authority on Romanism, some time since sent to delegate Satolli, asking why the same religious liberty accorded Romanists in this country was not given Protestants in papal lands. The pope's representative answered like a Jesuit, but the Methodist ministers have accepted the question of their brother, and mean to push it to some sort of an issue.

Chief Justice Harlan, sitting in the United States Court of Appeals, delivered an important decision last week, reversing in part the celebrated injunction of Judge Jenkins of the U. S. Circuit Court in the Northern Pacific railway case Dec. 19, 1893. That road being in the hands of a receiver appointed by the court, the injunction restrained all employes from interfering or obstructing in any way the operation of the road; or from combining or conspiring to quit its service with the object of interference, or "from so quitting the service....as to cripple ....or hinder the operation" of the road. Judge Jenkins' definition of a strike included the idea of a conspiracy; as it generally is. Under this definition Judge Harlan approved the injunction. But he defined the term more liberally, and struck out the clause containing the words quoted; thus affirming that the leaving of the company's employ, without conspiring to interfere, is a lawful act. The injunction was regarded by many as limiting the independent action, the freedom of employes. The decision of Judge Harlan removes this restriction by making a better definition.

It is no recommendation of the Keeley cure for drunkenness, that the fourth national convention of the "Keeley League," meeting lately in Colorado Springs, made a new ritual an important part of its business. This League is composed of men who have passed through the treatment of Dr. Keeley, or his assistants, after experiencing the horrors of drunkenness. They had a great meeting in Colorado; some 2,000 delegates were present. But instead of taking any practical measures to stay the ruin of the liquor curse; instead of commending all men rid of the liquor disease to the services of the Christian church, where they might gain from God grace to stand against this wile of the devil, they spent the time over a three-degree ritual and the formation of an order of Keeleyites. We do not learn whether they added secrecy to the organization, but the practice of a ritual with degrees will put them far on the highway of lodgery.

Governor Altgeld lately went East to consult about his health. While there he was visited by a reporter, who asked about his expectations of recovery. "I don't know or care," replied the Governor. "If they told me I would be taken back in a coffin to morrow, I would go to the theater and take a drink of wine just the same to-night." This explains why her chief executive has so often shamed Illinois. The Ram's Horn says truly: "It is a sad thought that a man in high public office, face to face with death, would prefer to take the last drop from the cup of this world's pleasure rather than sit down in meditation and prepare his mind for the great change."

The recent arrest of Captain Howgate, the distinguished Freemason and defaulter, calls up the memory of his past career and seems to indicate that either he has lapsed in his Masonic standing, or that more conscientious officers have been put on his track. It will be remembered that some fourteen years ago he was at the head of the Signal Service Bureau, and that he was a defaulter for over $100,000. He was a Mason of the 32d degree, and was arrested, but allowed to escape. For a number of years it was well known that he lived in the vicinity of Washington and occasionally visited that city. On one occasion, when information was desired, which he only could give, there was no difficulty in finding him and securing it; but no arrest was attempted. No reason has ever been given why he was not brought to justice and his ill-gotten gains restored to the public treasury. What has now led to his re arrest, or what will be the result, remains to be seen, but there is at least good reason to think that it was his Masonry that brought him this immunity.

An official report from Washington shows the military strength of American and European armies. They are significant in view of threatened European complications resulting from the renewal of the French invasion of Madagascar, and of the suspected intentions of Russia in China and Corea. The war footing of several of these nations is as follows: Russia, 13 014 865 men, maintained at a cost of $186 349,000; Germany, 3,700,000; cost, $118,118,825; in France the two items are 2,850,000 and $127,000,000; in England (total regulars and volunteers at home and colonies), 662 000, and $89,000 000; in Austro-Hungary, 1,794 175, and $55 235,000; Spain, 400,000, and $28,128,000; Switzerland, 486,000, and $10,550,000; Mexico, 162 000, and $7,500,000. Italy reports an army of 3,155,036, the cost of which is not given. These governments have thus set aside 26,260,000 men largely to support the barbarity and crime of war, and tax the rest of their populations some $720,000,000. Lodge and saloon aside there is no greater folly than the perpetuation of this system of standing armies. Disarmaments should be the demand of the people in all these mail-clad nations.

THE N. C. A. AND THE CHURCHES.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO REACH THE RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS AND AWAKEN THEM TO A DEEPER INTEREST IN THE ANTI-SECRECY REFORM?

BY REV. H. H. HINMAN.

The answer to this query leads to another: What has led to the comparative indifference to this question?

1. Aside from the fact that there is a considerable percentage of the members of all the leading denominations who are also members of the secret orders, and whose influence tends strongly to oppose all investigation, there is the other more potent fact, that the rank and file in all our churches are either absolutely or relatively ignorant of the nature, the history and the evils of secretism. It is not less true than in the time of the ancient prophet, "My people perish for lack of knowledge." Christian people mainly read the secular papers and their denominational organs and these are mainly silent on all questions of reform about which any good people are supposed to be sensitive. Aside from a few papers of limited circulation there is almost no discussion of the secret lodge system.

2. There is "a conspiracy of silence" on the part of lodge members and of those denominational leaders who subordinate moral questions to denominational interests. To our indictment of Freemasonry there never has been, and, in the nature of things, never can be a reply. The men who know the facts, including many who deplore them, feel that the "interest of the denomination" requires that they shall be silent, and hence our pulpits and religious press divert public attention to less delicate and exciting questions—delicate and exciting only because of the iniquity that is sure to be exposed.

3 The rapid growth of the denominations and corresponding declension in spirituality must be considered. At the beginning of the century about one in twelve of the people was a member of a Protestant denomination. To-day about one in five is a church member, and this is true notwithstanding the enormous growth of Romanism. This rapid development of nominal Christianity has not been an unmixed good. There has been "gathered of every kind," and the time has not yet come when they shall "put the good into vessels and cast the bad away." Until then, the great number of unbelievers in the nominal church will restrain Christian activity and discourage investigation. Until there is more earnest and practical preaching, and less relative importance given to denominational interests, we may expect the numbers will be increased at the expense of quality. Nevertheless there is more Christian activity in the world than ever before and the moral sense of mankind has been sharpened rather than blunted.

And this leads us to consider what we can do to awaken dormant convictions of the Christian world:

1. We must bear in mind that ours is distinctively a religious movement. The Anti-masonic movement of 1826–38 was mainly political. It died out because it did not find lodgement, to any great extent, in the religion of the people, and because it was superseded by other political questions. Feeble and poor as is the moral sense of the average church member, it is immeasurably in advance of that of the average politician. It is vain to hope to reach the latter class until you have first won the former.

2. As our movement is wholly undenominational, so we ought consistently to oppose and expose that denominational spirit that subordinates moral interests to material growth. To know how to do this wisely and in the spirit of the Master, will be to know how to achieve success.

3. Much can be done by presenting to the religious denominations their own testimonies on the subject of Masonry and its kindred societies.

Nearly all our religious bodies have at some time or other made declarations on this question. If such declarations have not been ex cathedra they have at least voiced the best moral sense in such denominations. This is true of Baptists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians, as well as some others. The great mass of church members are ignorant of these testimonies. The older members have forgotten them, and the ministry feel constrained to ignore them. These testimonies should be presented to these denominations as their own utterances on this question,—their unrepealed testimony to the truth, which consistency requires that they should not repudiate.

This should be done if possible through the denominational press, and when this is refused, through tracts and circulars and delegates sent directly to ecclesiastical bodies, ministers and church officials. The material for such circulars might be easily collected. "What the churches have said about Freemasonry" would make a good-sized volume and often be read with interest by the denominations represented.

4. If we would reach the ear and retain the hearing of our brethren, we must maintain the same spirit of candor and openness to the truth that we demand of others. Other controverted questions will constantly arise, and it is in vain that we insist on a hearing, unless we will hear. It is not probable that any one of us has received all the truth, and we will do well if we can say with President Finney, "I have never stereotyped my theology."

Lastly, let us continue to "cry aloud and spare not," trusting that He who came to destroy the works of the devil will know how to use and bless such feeble instruments as we are.

Elmdale, Kan.

THE CHURCH AND THE LODGES.

BY REV. N. R. JOHNSTON.

Among questions that should most concern us, first comes that of our own salvation and greatest good and usefulness; then what should and can we do for the salvation and highest good of others, or what can we do for the glory of God and the advancement of the kingdom of our Lord. In this connection probably comes in the claims of the church upon us, not of "our church" but of Christ's church. And happy is he who from the standpoint of His throne can see what is truth and what is duty.

"Our church" or "our party" prevents many a professed Christian from seeing or doing the right. It puts colored glasses on the eyes of many whose vision might otherwise be clear; and they fail to see that Christ should be "all and in all."

The Pacific (San Francisco) copies from the Los Angeles Times these two statements, viz :

"A young man was asked why he joined a secret society, and gave it more time and money than his church. He replied that the church did not have offices enough. In the lodge there was an office for almost every member. Some men like to put on regalia and procesh.

"The multiplication of such societies is an obstacle to our work. They flourish at the expense of the churches. They draw away the thought, time, attention and money which would sustain the church. The colored brother shrewdly put it, 'By de time de brudders pays all de dues and tends all de meetin's, there is nothing left for Mt. Pisgah church but jis de cob; de corn has all been shelled off.'

The statements contain the ordinary and, to many, the only serious objections to the secret orders. It is a grave mistake. But they are very suggestive, and to every true friend of the church of Christ they must be sad.

Is there no remedy for these evils? The churches have all the offices they need. Some of us think they were appointed by Christ, and he knows best. If the secret orders seek popularity with the people, and most of these desire office, let them have their reward. The church of God can well afford to follow Christ rather than worldly policy and lodge devices. And if the church's treasury is depleted by drafts from the pockets of her members who belong to the lodge —money which properly belongs to the church rather than to the devil—would not that treasury be just as full if her lodge members would withdraw? Whether or not, the question should not be raised when we know that the orders with all their lodges are hostile to Christ and to the progress of his kingdom. Whatever may be the truth here, these two facts remain—first, the true church is of God, and the whole body of true believers is the body of Christ; and, second, the oath-bound secret societies are hostile to his kingdom and every member of them unworthy to be a member of his church.

Not only are the associations ensnaring but the position itself is sinful; and sin on the part of church members is not to be tolerated. And here comes in the question, why do the churches receive lodge members into their fellowship at all? And yet another, why do Christians who believe that membership in the lodges is sinful join or remain in such churches? If we love Christ we should honor him by obedience. If we obey him we will come out from among them and be separate, partaking of neither their sins nor of their plagues.

The writer of this is thankful that he is a member of a church that is free from the sin and the incubus of secrecy; and he here and now invites all who love the Lord and hate evil to join him and all who in like manner are trying to wash their hands in innocency. A pure church in dead earnest in the cause of our Lord and Master would be a mighty force for the right, however few in number; and, best of all, every member of it would have a good conscience and know that he is on the side of Him who is not only love but who is sure to conquer.

Oakland, California.

THAT MOTION TO ADJOURN.

BY ALBERT M. PAULL.

In the Cynosure of Sept. 20th appears this passage: "The great London missionary, Hugh Price Hughes, lately spoke of the perplexities of sectarianism and the advantages of union among all Christians for social work. He put his proposition in the following original way: 'Of course, I know that our ecclesiastical and theological points of difference are so profound that we shall require the whole of eternity for their adequate discussion. Why, then, waste the present time? I move that the debate be adjourned till we reach eternity, and that we now unite our energies in the suppression of the liquor traffic!'"

A subtle sophism. Without question, there is a sectarianism which is to be deplored, wherein a man pushes forward his sect or party on all occasions, for sect's or party's sake alone, and irrespective of the question of right or wrong, truth or error. Such work could well be postponed forever.

The sectarianism, however, referred to in the above quotation is not that, but altogether a different thing—a sectarianism that discusses as adequately as possible profound ecclesiastical and theological points of difference, or in other words a class of Christians, who, like the Bereans of old, "searched the Scriptures daily to see whether these things were so." Surely only commendation should be given to such. The search for truth is the highest, wisest employment, and the stand for truth the noblest virtue.

Every Christian sect rallies around some truth; hence to call a man to forsake his sect is to call him to forsake the truth he holds so dear, if he be a true man. Such is the gist of our London friend's proposition, and the end in view is: "that we may unite our energies in the suppression of the liquor traffic."

The sophistry is based upon the false premise that it is necessary to abandon one truth to maintain another, or to aid in social work. True, when all energies are bent to a certain end, that end will the sooner be accomplished. No one disputes that. The point disputed is this: That it is necessary to give up the truth around which our particular sect is gathered to work for some other truth some leader would found a sect upon, or for some reform around which he would gather a party.

Again, men may single out some special reform work, and, leaving all else, devote their lives to it. No one disputes their right to do so. This only we dispute: their right to call upon every other Christian to abandon all other work and to rally around their particular banner exclusively. However other denominational men may feel about this, as a Baptist I have somewhat to say. I shall mention but two points in our creed.

Among other truths, Baptists have ever held to the principle of soul liberty; and, not till their best blood had been shed, first at the feet of Rome, afterward at the feet of their Protestant brethren, did that truth become generally accepted. We will touch on soul liberty again.

Another truth has not become so generally accepted, viz., the administration of the ordinance of baptism in Christ's appointed way. From the time of Christ Baptists have stood for the ordinance in its purity, as commanded by Christ; opposed in this by the church of Rome and by every Protestant sect. Luther gave them encouragement at first, only to disappoint them afterward, for while admitting that the ordinance should be administered by dipping, he accepted in place of it the substitute adopted by the council of Ravenna 1311. Calvin also, admitting the same, was not slow to follow Luther in changing Christ's ordinance to sprinkling, and eventually all Protestant and reformed sects did the same, the Westminster Assembly changing the ordinance in 1643 and Parliament sanctioning the change the next year, and enacting that sprinkling shall be the legal mode of administering the ordinance. Thus all these sects followed the lead of the Romish church, and thereby endorsed her impious act of changing Christ's ordinance.

Now, Baptists have no desire to follow suit. To them it appears a dreadful sin, a wicked rebellion against the authority of Christ, our Lord, to change his ordinance, or to countenance the change made by others. We cannot understand how our dear brethren in Christ dare to do it. But the fact remains. Yet this "motion to adjourn" asks us to deny our Lord in this thing and endorse anti-Christ, so far as this popish rite of sprinkling goes, till eternity. Brethren, we cannot do it. You ask too much, and we love our Lord too well.

If we cannot work with our brethren in social reform without giving up some truth dear to us, then we must quit working with them. But it is not so. We can and do work with them in many ways, and yet we remain true to our convictions. Are not many Baptists to-day to be found in every good reform? Do they yield one iota of their convictions?

Turning the question: Must anti-secrecy be cast aside to work for temperance? Or must temperance be cast aside to work up for anti-woman suffrage? Or must anti-woman suffrage be cast aside to work for the interests of the public schools? Rather let every reform be pushed simultaneously.

Let me ask: What would be gained if the "motion to adjourn" should carry? Look back 250 years to the time when Roger Williams was banished from Massachusetts for speaking his religious convictions. A "motion to adjourn" was suggested to him. What if he had yielded to it, where now had we been? Still under the yoke of religious bigotry! Thank God, he did not yield, and Rhode Island, the place to which he was banished, became an asylum for all those who, like him, were persecuted for their religious belief. The influence of the Baptist idea of soul liberty is felt to-day all over our land, and simply because the "motion to adjourn" did not prevail in Roger Williams' mind.

Again, suppose that the "motion to adjourn to eternity" had been presented to the Abolitionists that they might "unite their energies in the suppression of the liquor traffic." Perhaps it was, I don't know. But, if so, and they had yielded, where would our nation stand to-day? Under the heel of Southern slavery! We do not stand there, simply because the "motion to adjourn" did not prevail.

Give up sectarianism! Give up principle! Give up truth! No, never! While the world stands, and error shows its head, let every contest wage until truth is triumphant, and error is vanquished. If the battle is fought at all, it must be fought here on this earth. There is no error in eternity.

About that motion to adjourn: For one, we vote, No!

Riverside, R. I.

NO ORDERS EXCEPTED.

We believe that the Discipline of our church clearly and unmistakably defines our position in reference to all secret societies. It would be well for all Free Methodists to carefully read the section devoted to this subject. It plainly states that "any society requiring an oath, affirmation or promise of secrecy as a condition of membership is held to be a secret society." This bars the members of the church from entering the American Protective Association and all labor organizations requiring the conditions of membership just quoted from the Discipline.

All secret associations that are organized ostensibly to accomplish some good object invite criticism and distrust by the element of secrecy that underlies their work. The Discipline states that "Even a good cause under the shadow of secrecy invalidates its claim to the confidence of open and honest men." "A bad institution should not, and a good one need not be secret."

We rejoice in the fact that our church allows of no exempt cases, but closes its doors against all members of secret orders. With all our fidelity in maintaining an uncompromising opposition against secret societies it is possible for us to retract our position. It is necessary to be vigilant and on our guard. Our members should be instructed as to the reason why we have no fellowship with secret associations and prohibit their members from entering the pale of the church. To this end let the ministers of this conference bear faithful testimony in private and public, against the secret empire of Satan. We advise our people, both ministers and laymen, to read and circulate literature expressing the unscriptural and anti-Christian character of all secret societies.—Report adopted by the Iowa Free Methodist conference.

SAMPLE BROTHERS.

AN ALABAMA POPULIST SOCIETY BOUND BY OATH TO RESIST THE LAW.

(Special telegram to the Inter Ocean from Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26.)

The Democratic State Central Committee asserts that it has positive information of the existence of oath-bound secret associations of Populists in many parts of the State for the purpose of resisting the law. It is known as the United Order of Brothers. The officers of the order are: Z J. Boland, chief; T. J. Perkins, assistant chief; C. R Elliott, chaplain; Smith Turner, lecturer; Charles Turner, doorkeeper; Ed. Elliott, assistant doorkeeper; Henry Kornton, secretary, and J. D. Kidd, organizer. A gentleman writing from Marion says all these officers are Populists. He also says that it is charged that members of the order burned the house of a man named Chapman, in Marion county, and "whitecapped" an old woman and her son about two weeks ago. The following extract from the pledge to which it is said they subscribe indicates the character of order:

We will never forswear each other in time of trouble. We furthermore agree that we will never see one of our brothers imposed on, but will stick to them in all trouble whatever, such as sickness and death. If our brother gets sick we will see that he and his family are provided for. If our brother be prosecuted by the laws of the country we will do all in our power to release him from imprisonment by bail. We will never allow any of our brothers to be hanged, burned or shot by the laws of the country or by military laws if in our power to prevent. We will never go to law with each other for anything, but will let the brothers of our order settle all troubles that may arise among us. But if we are ever brought before the courts of our country as criminals, we being jurors on such cases, we will never give a verdict against our brother, but we will act in his favor.

CHRISTIANITY ELEVATES MAN.

False religions, cumbrous superstitions. the nurseries and creations of priestcraft have written upon them the sentence of condemnation, and nourish the seeds of their own decay. Destitute of sympathy with the great organizations which have been built by the Architect of all things, with a view to the development of mind, their tendency is to repress the intellect, paralyze the conscience, and debase the feelings of their votaries. The only points at which they come in contact with human nature are those of its weakness and of its corruption; and these, by an awful perversion, they employ the sentiment of religion to augment. All they have to fear is the diffusion of truth; all they have to hope is from the progressive degradation of the race. But genuine Christianity, while it restores the sinner, elevates the man. It leaves a radiance in its track more soft and yet more glowing than the proudest philosophies can boast, by the light of which the greatness of man is both asserted and revealed. Should it be hinted here that instances of high intelligence have existed in connection with corrupt and idolatrous nations, these have been in defiance of the popular error, and not in obedience to it; they have been exemplified, for the most part, by those who neglected or despised the prevailing notions; who ventured to turn to the oracle of nature, and to leave the enslaved multitude prostrate before the altar of superstition.—Rev. J. P. Mursell, Leicester, England.

BRIEFS FROM THE EDITORS.

"The meetings are all open; the public are invited; we have nothing secret here," was the announcement concerning the sessions of a conference. It stands in marked contrast with the announcements of lodges, unions, and all that class of societies. It must commend itself to all. There is nothing hidden from anyone, for all is in the public interest. The work is open; open to knowledge, criticism, and the public judgment, and open to all to be profited thereby. The church has no locked doors. Everyone who will may become a member of it on the evidence of Christian faith and character, and may know all about it, even if not a member. That is better for the public good, has more of the spirit of the Leader of all right and truth, than the course of many who come to right the wrongs of humanity by methods which are open to criticism.—United Presbyterian.

It is said that on a recent Saturday the proprietors of a tomato canning factory at Madison, Indiana, threw three thousand bushels of sound tomatoes into the Ohio river. The tomatoes had been contracted to be delivered on that day, but the operations of the factory were delayed by the breaking of machinery and rather than continue operations on the Sabbath-day with their five hundred hands, the proprietors paid the farmers for their tomatoes and ordered them to dump them into the river, as they would not keep till Monday. How rarely these days do we have such an object-lesson in the conscientious observance of the Lord's day. This lesson, we trust, will not soon be forgotten by the community and especially by the employes of the firm and the farmers who supply them, and we feel certain that God will not permit them to suffer financial loss thereby, in the end.—Christian Conservator.

It is certain that the gentlemen who ordered the late strike builded better than they knew. The storm has passed over us and there are only a few mutterings of thunder in the distance with here and there a faint gleam of lightning in the receding clouds. On the whole it has, like every cyclonic disturbance, cleared the air. There has not been such an arousing of the American spirit in thirty years. The people of the country have a new sense of security in seeing for themselves that we have a government. During times of peace it does not intrude itself upon the consciousness of the citizen, but in hours of danger it puts out a strong hand. We may reasonably hope that the present generation has seen the last attempt upon the part of a secret order to forcibly restrict the personal and commercial freedom of American citizens. After this the functions of government will be left to the officers of a government elected by the whole people.—Interior.

It is said that an earnest lecturer on Secularism, a form of skepticism which prevails to a considerable extent in Britain, was once asked, "Why can't you let the Bible alone, if you don't believe it?" The honest reply was at once made, "Because the Bible won't let me alone." This is the fact. The Bible will not let men alone. Either in its own pages or in the lives of its faithful followers it meets every man in a Christian country, and speaks with an authoritative voice. It gets a grip on the conscience, testifying of sin, of penalty, of judgment. It lays hold on the heart, telling of the virgin-born who for us men and our salvation came from heaven to earth and suffered on the ignominious tree. It tells men what they are with an accuracy they cannot but acknowledge, and with a certainty which came only from God. Therefore, it does not, cannot, let men alone. It has a message to deliver and must be heard. Blessed are they who heed its earnest words.—Intelligencer.

Among those who struck to show their sympathy with the Pullman strikers were twenty five carriage-painters in a certain Chicago factory. They had hardly laid down their tools, however, before twenty-five skilled workmen applied for and received their positions—and these twenty-five were strikers from Pullman! It is safe to say that sympathetic striking can have no further charms for those particular workmen, and that their faith in human nature has received a shock from which it will not soon recover. It has been held by the advocates that it would be the most difficult to apply the principles of Christian-socialism to the rich capitalist; but some difficulty would have been found in securing the assent of those twenty-five strikers to the new doctrine. The doctrines of Bellamy and Christian-socialism are pleasing to the ear, but they will never work so long as human nature is as it is. The old doctrine that man is sold under sin; that he is naturally selfish, and that he needs regeneration, is the only doctrine that will save this Pacific coast and the whole world.—Occident.

SECRET SOCIETIES IN POLITICS.

(Rev. Washington Gladden, in the Century for October.)

Ever since the disappearance of William Morgan, in 1826, there has been a strong sentiment in this country adverse to secret societies of all kinds. This opposition has enlisted many sincere and patriotic men; but it must be confessed that its force has been gradually waning. The social and beneficial orders against which the warfare is chiefly directed have been in existence among us for many years; for many good works we are constrained to give them credit; the mischiefs which they were expected to perpetuate have not appeared; the apprehensions of good men concerning them do not seem to be well-founded. On the score of taste many of their performances may be criticised, and it is easy to show that they might become very dangerous; but the public mind rests in the conviction that most of them are, in fact, innocent if not useful institutions.

* * * * * * * * *

The first law of public business is the law of publicity. What concerns the whole public the whole public has a right to know all about. A group of citizens, meeting in secret, and scheming to impose their will by stealth or indirection upon the community, is as much out of place in a republic as a cinder in the eye or a tumor on the brain. What these people are trying to do directly concerns me; my freedom, my security, my welfare are to be affected by their action: yet I am not permitted to know anything about their designs; I cannot discuss their measures with them; I must simply accept what they in their secret conclaves decree.

All free government is based upon free discussion. The motive power is public opinion, and public opinion is formed by public debate, by an open canvass of all measures proposed and candidates nominated. No other method is safe. The whole community ought to be thoroughly informed respecting all questions of public policy. The sovereignty resides in the whole people; the attempt of a portion of the people to impose their will upon the rest without consulting them is simply usurpation. The majority may rule, but not until the minority has had a fair chance, in open debate, to traverse the arguments of the majority and to utter its protest. The attempt to control government through secret organizations is a flat repudiation of the fundamental principle of a free republic.

Such a secret organization confesses by its very existence its lack of faith in truth. Its purposes are evidently such as would not prosper in a fair debate. This will be found true, I believe, of all secret political societies. Take the case of the one which is now very much in evidence—the anti-Catholic society known as the "A. P. A." Its oath binds its members to two practical measures: to disfranchise, so far as office holding is concerned, all Roman Catholics; and to prevent, so far as possible, all Roman Catholics from getting an honest living by their labor. It is evident that these measures would not bear discussion. Any organization which came before the public to advocate them would be overwhelmed with popular indignation. But by covering all the operations of the society with the veil of secrecy, and prevaricating about these oaths, multitudes of men are induced to support this scheme. What men would be ashamed to do in the daylight, they can be persuaded to do in the darkness. In politics it is always those whose deeds are evil who prefer darkness to light. The conclusion is irresistible that any political organization whose methods are secret is cherishing nefarious purposes.

Those who adopt the method of secrecy thereby confess their belief that the people outside their pale cannot be trusted with the truth. Such a belief will lead to a frugal dispensation of the truth within the pale. No fair discussion will be allowed in the secret conclave; a species of terrorism will enforce unanimity and stifle dissent. Under such a regimen the most grotesque falsehoods can be propagated. Secret political societies are always marvelous disseminators of delusion. Statements which would be blown to the winds if they were made in public can be kept in active circulation for months through the agency of such societies. As vehicles for the distribution of cowardly slander and defamation nothing could be more effective.

The point of view of those persons who adopt these methods may be best gained by considering the replies which they make to criticisms like the above. It is certainly worth while to give careful heed to these replies. They throw light upon the problem before us. They show what kind of elementary instruction in political ethics is needed, just now, by a million or more of American voters. Let me state some of these defensive arguments as they have come to me, with such answers as they seem to require.

One querist wishes to know whether, in a game of chess, I am in the habit of informing the man on the other side of the board of the move that I intend to make. Another suggests that such societies as I have described are no more secret than an army; that armies operate secretly, that they have countersigns, and the like. These comparisons probably indicate the conceptions which underlie most secret political organizations. The notion is that in civil society we are all seeking to beat one another in a stupendous game, or that we are natural enemies, arrayed against one another and trying to exterminate one another. It is true that there is much in current politics which is based upon one or the other of these notions. But it is, perhaps, worth while to try to comprehend that this is not the real foundation of civil society. Not to discuss the analogy of the game, let us consider the other similitude. It is true that an army, engaged in war, does resort to concealment and strategem; but what is the business of an army? Its business is killing people. That is the only reason of its existence. It is a costly and elaborate machine for destroying human beings. Therefore, when war is proclaimed, many of the ordinary social and moral laws are set aside. Inter arma silent leges. Truth, the fair bond of society, is banished; falsehood, deception, trickery are weapons freely used. The state of war is not the normal state of human society; the normal relations of human beings are discarded and reversed when people go to war. It is this abnormal and unsocial state of war to which appeal is made for the justification of secret societies in politics. It must be admitted that they do conform exactly to that analogy, and this fact seals their condemnation.

What is the real basis of civil society? I will not suggest a very lofty idea of these relations; but to put the matter on the lowest possible basis, we may say that the people of any town or city are business partners. There is a great company or corporation, and we are all members of it. A vast amount of property is owned in common—the streets, the parks, the markets, the city buildings, the school-houses, the water-works, and a great deal more. We are partners, also, in the business of keeping the peace, in the business of making the ordinances by which the city is governed, in the business of choosing the officers, in the business of keeping the water and the air free from infection, and of making the city where we live a healthy and pleasant place of residence. The same kind of partnership exists with regard to the interests of the State and the nation. All these great interests are ours in common. It is only by co-operating with one another intelligently and harmoniously that we can secure them.

What, now, would be the consequence if, in any great partnership concern, part of the members should stealthily combine, holding secret meetings, and plotting against others; trying to deprive some or all of their co-partners of their fair share of the gains or advantages; secretly scheming to prevent others from holding any official position or having anything to do with the management? Would it be good policy in a business partnership to encourage that kind of secret plotting of members against one another? Would not a company afflicted with such intestine warfare speedily go to pieces?

The lowest conception that any man can form of civil society is that which we are considering; and such secret leagues as now exist in this country, by which citizens of one way of thinking are conspiring to take away the advantages of citizenship from citizens of another way of thinking, and to deprive them, so far as they can, not only of their civil rights, but also of the means of existence, are destructive of the very foundations of society; they are not only anti-social, they are inhuman; they are attempts to lead society back toward barbarism and anarchy.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

SCENE FOURTH.

(Meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Rev. Policy's Church. Present —Mrs. Policy, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Frank and others.)

Mrs. Policy:—

Ladies, we need new carpets for our church
And a new organ.
Shall we undertake the work before us;
Or, lying on our oars becalmed awhile,
See what the brethren think or mean to do?

Mrs. Gray:—

'Tis all election now. Our men are fired
With all the ardor of the spring campaign.
Mason or Taylor!—One would think the earth
Would stop her revolutions should we fail
Electing Mr. Mason. Talk of church!
You might as well talk sunlight to the man
Who never saw the light! My husband says
If Mason fails, our town will surely go
Adown the swift toboggan slide to ruin.

Mrs. Pierce:—

And mine declares if Mason wins the day
The rowdy element will dance for joy,
And every tough and thug come forth and cry,
Hurrah for Billy Mason.

Mrs. Frank:—

If we have carpets we must raise the means.
If we secure an organ we must get
The cash to buy it. Our men are like the boys
Who have on hand a great prize game of ball,
And give us ball for breakfast, ball at noon,
And ball us all the pleasant hour of tea.
You might as well
Arouse their interest in a flock of geese
As in the church, unless you also show
The church in some way will affect the cause
That moves them.

Mrs. Policy:—

Why, then, we'll start two papers on their rounds
For carpets, and for organ; on the first
The name of Mr. Mason heads the list,
The other Mr. Taylor's; and we'll see
A generous rivalry will gladden all.
We'll get our carpets and our organ thus,
And make the passions of our lords the steeds
That carry us to victory.

All:—

Agreed! Agreed!

Mrs. Policy:—

Now ladies sing a verse of some sweet hymn
That shall go with us all the coming week,
With its sweet ministry.

(To be continued.)

OUR MOSAIC AMERICANISM.

(Rev. J. E. Roy, D.D., in the American Missionary.)

After I had preached recently at Naperville, Ill., Sunday morning, upon our mountain work, using the big map, a couple of ladies came forward and introduced themselves as descendants of John Sevier, the Huguenot "commonwealth builder" in the mountains of Tennessee, the hero of King's Mountain, as I had represented him to be. One of the ladies was Mrs. Knickerbocker, her husband being one of the most respected citizens of that place—his own stock being that indicated by his name. She is now, as she has been for many years, the lady principal of the college in that town connected with the Evangelical Association church. Her mother was a Sevier and her father, Rev. John Cunningham, a Presbyterian minister from Jonesboro, East Tennessee, who came early to Illinois to get away from slavery, and who served acceptably that Congregational church of Naperville. She was a granddaughter of John Sevier. The other descendant was Miss Sevier, a great-great-granddaughter, a cultivated young lady, who was a teacher in a college in Ohio.

It was at least a noticeable coincidence that out here upon these western prairies two of those worthy representatives should confront the preacher, who found his response to be, "Well, I didn't say anything bad about John Sevier, did I?" What a grand coalescing of blood was that which in the gathering of our nation brought Knickerbocker and Huguenot, Scotch, Irish and English and Germans, with congenial Danes and Swedes, into our people's life. It was also a bond of union, North and South, too strong to be separated by civil strife. It is an element in the make-up of the South that will ever be a conservative force in behalf of theology, of law and order, of Puritan institutions.

REFORM NEWS.

THE PACIFIC COAST CONVENTION.

ADDRESSES, OFFICERS, PLANS FOR THE YEAR.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Under very unfavorable circumstances the Coast Association met in Keezel chapel, Philomath, Oregon, Sept. 26, 1894, at 2 P. M. to hold its third annual convention. The forbidding weather; the absence in California of the president; a rumor that the convention would be postponed on account of Bishop Dillon's absence; and last, but not least, the severe hard times, combined to give us a small attendance.

In the absence of the president and vice-president, Prof. L. B. Baldwin was elected chairman. After organizing, the convention adjourned until evening. At the evening session Rev. Ezra Maurer, of the Evangelical Association, conducted the devotions, and Prof. Baldwin delivered an excellent address of welcome.

A letter from Bishop Dillon was read by the secretary. Among other good things the Bishop says: "That the secret lodge system is wrong is the conviction and judgment of intelligent men everywhere, who know the facts. Any secret society that rejects Jesus, as the Odd-fellows do, from all their legal prayers, and as Freemasonry does from the very Scripture they quote in their books, should, in turn, be rejected by the Christian church. Lodge-loaded churches are fruitless, faithless, and powerless. No man can be a member of any secret lodge and be a spiritual, living, active member of the church of Christ. The citizen even should oppose secret societies for they conspire against governments, classes, and persons. Recently our national government had to chime in with our movement and put down the lodge strike and lodge mob-law. No greater safeguard could be thrown about our country and citizens than to pass a law forbidding the existence of any secret society in our land. The developments of recent years demonstrate the harmful effects of secret orders. In Huntington, W. Va., a Methodist preacher was killed while being lowered into a pit, initiating him into the Royal Arch degree. The Mafia assassinated and killed chief of police Hennessy in New Orleans. The Clan-na-Gael killed Dr. Cronin in Chicago. Such fruits show the nature of the tree which should be hewn down. Joseph Cook says that some churches disfellowship the secret orders, and all churches should do so. While churches harbor the works of darkness they cannot be counted as the children of the light and of the day."

Rev. A. S. Copley then delivered a good address which was well received.

"WHY I AM AN ANTI-SECRETIST."

Among the good points he made were these: It never seemed consistent to call a wicked man "my brother."

The best great men have testified against secrecy. Chas. G. Finney, Jos. Cook, D. L. Moody, B. Carradine and Jesus the Christ were instanced in support of this proposition.

Some States have legislated against secrecy.

Men have no time to waste on unholy institutions. Time, talents and means belong to God.

Secrecy provides for no real unprovided need of man. The church of Christ was shown to contain all the elements of reform and benevolence the world needs.

To belong to a lodge for help in time of need expresses a want of confidence in the church and God.

This was Rev. Copley's maiden address on the subject of secret orders, and is an indication that in him our cause will find a true champion.

Tht secretary followed with a brief address.

Revs. C. H. Merryman and Ezra Maurer were appointed a committee on enrollment.

There was no morning session because of the college exercises. In the afternoon Rev. Joseph Taylor led the devotional exercises. Rev. H. L. Barkley, D. D., opened the question-box, in which some fifty questions were found touching nearly every phase of the saloon and secrecy questions. These elicited considerable sharp and interesting discussion. Among those participating was a young Odd-fellow student from Pacific University at Forest Grove. He is a manly young fellow, but having the wrong side of the question, was ill at ease in the discussion. He promised us that he would go to the very bottom of the investigation of our side of the subject. He took all the different tracts to study and no doubt will come out a full-fledged anti-lodgeman. The question-box was closed at five minutes past four for want of time to continue it longer.

THE AGENT'S REPORT

for the year was submitted and adopted. The report said:

The work has developed beyond our expectation. Calls are coming from California and Puget Sound, "Come and help us." The field is ripe for harvest. The laborers are few. The recent strikes, for which organized secrecy is directly responsible, has developed a vast sentiment against societies of so far-reaching evil influence. Now is the time for special efforts on the line of agitation and organization. We have men and women who could accomplish much good by furnishing tracts for distribution. We need a small tract fund. This convention should take steps to secure such a fund. Then, we need a library of at least 100 volumes embracing secret societies, saloons and infidelity, to be loaned to the members and such persons as they may recommend. An anti-secrecy monthly paper has been called for, to be edited and published somewhere on this coast.

A synopsis of work done during the year was added, beginning with August, 1893, and ending with Sept., 1894, making thirteen months. Number of anti-secrecy lectures, 146; other addresses, 177; total addresses, 323; tracts distributed, about 3,000; Cynosure subscriptions received, 197; cash received from same, $59.25; collections during year, $127.92; salary received, $425.00; expenses for the year, $217.86; total salary and collections above expenses, $394.31. Have visited since starting in this work 136 different places and spoken on moral reform. More than sixty persons are reported to have left the lodges through the influence of these meetings, and probably many more. How many have been kept from uniting with the orders eternity alone must reveal. "We thank God for this success and pray that still greater success may attend our efforts in the year to come. We now have more than 1,000 names enrolled."

Revs. Copley and Taylor were constituted a committee to confer with the secretary and report as to the suggestions in his report.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Bishop W. Dillon, D. D., Salem, Ore.; Vice-president, Rev. A. S. Copley, Albany, Ore.; Secretary, Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Ore.; Treasurer, Samuel Terry, Canby, Ore. Rev. E. Maurer, of Jefferson, Ore., was elected as delegate to the N. C. A. annual meeting in May, 1895. The officers of the association were constituted a committee on program for the next meeting. Adjourned with prayer by Dr. Barkley.

At evening session, Rev. A. S. Copley conducted the devotions. An excellent paper by Rev. W. H. Pruett, of Weston, Ore., was read by the secretary, subject, "The Duty of Christians toward Secret Societies."

Rev. Joseph Taylor delivered a sweet-spirited address against all lodges, taking the position that Christ is all. The committee on the secretary's suggestion reported as follows:

"Your committee beg leave to recommend the following:

1. That we undertake to collect a circulating library by donations, loans, and purchase, provided the money can be secured,

2. That a board of three trustees be appointed, whose business it shall be to collect such books, and have charge of the same.

3. This board shall appoint one of their number as librarian, under whose immediate supervision the library shall be, and who shall make all loans. All parties receiving booke shall be responsible to him for all expenses in transit.

4. No book shall be loaned longer than ninety days to the same parties.

5. We hereby authorize our secretary, Rev. P. B. Williams, to purchase at least $12 worth of tracts for free distribution during the year, and that we provide for the payment of the same here and now.

6. Your committee are of the opinion that it is not advisable to start an anti-secrecy paper on the coast at present, but that we hereby agree to assist our agent in securing five hundred subscriptions to the "Lodge Lamp."

The report was adopted. It was agreed to hold the next convention in Portland, Sept. 25 and 26, 1895. A collection was taken to pay for printing programs. Adjourned with prayer by Dr. Barkley.

L. B. BALDWIN, Chairman. P. B. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

AGENT'S APPEAL.

I come at once to ask the friends on the coast, or anywhere else, to send in funds for tracts. Any amount will be accepted. Then, again, send in books, pamphlets, etc., for the starting of this library. Revs. I. B. Fisher, B. F. Smalley, and E. C. Wyatt, Salem, Ore., are the trustees. Books, pamphlets and periodicals for the library may be sent to either of them, post-paid; but, cash for the tract fund should either be sent to me, Philomath, Ore., or to Rev. W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill. Always be careful to mention that it is for the coast tract fund. P. B. WILLIAMS, Agent.

To-day there is a Masonic lodge collecting money and working on mind not far from every court-house, legislative hall and church in the United States! If Freemasonry be puerile and harmless, we are still safe. But that which absorbs men by thousands and money by millions is not puerile and harmless. Freemasonry has come back into power (since it went down after the Morgan discussion) against forces, popular intelligence and indignation, which would have annihilated any organization not sustained by supernatural power. The lodge leaders are neither imbeciles nor fools. I speak not of the Masonic masses, multitudes of whom seldom attend a lodge and know as little of their system as papists and Mormons know of theirs, but the leaders, the men who guide this dark craft, are steadily pursuing objects more engrossing to them than patriotism or war.—Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses.

Do you suppose that if the Bible had been written by some learned doctor, revised by a committee of eminent divines, and published by some great religious society, we should ever have heard of Noah's drunkenness, of Abraham's deception, of Lot's disgrace, of Jacob's cheating, of Paul and Barnabas' quarreling, or of Peter's lying, cursing or dissembling? Not at all. The good men, when they came to such an incident, would have said: "There is no use in saying anything about that. It is all past and gone; it will not help anything, and it will hurt the cause." .....But when the Almighty writes a man's life he tells the truth about him; and there are not many persons who would want their lives printed if the Almighty wrote them.—Rev. H. L. Hastings.

A German Catholic convention was recently held in this city at which it was resolved that "the temporal sovereignty of the Holy See is indispensable for the true government of the church." Do these German Catholics propose to buy a little island somewhere in the Pacific and establish the Pope there? It is too late to suggest his taking Hawaii; he certainly cannot have any portion of the United States, and we see no prospect of any restoration of Italian territory to papal rule. And yet, according to this German Catholic resolution, it is essential to the true government of the church that the temporal sovereignty of the Holy See be an established fact. The chances for true government of the church are, therefore, evidently below par, but surely these Germans are mistaken. When the Saviour declared that his kingdom was not of this world, he assumed a position to which the resolution of this German Catholic convention is entirely opposed.—New York Observer.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SOUL WINNING.

THE COAST AGENT AT PINE GROVE CAMP MEETING.

PHILOMATH, Ore., Sept. 20, 1894.

I came home last week expecting to "rest up" few days before the convention. On my arrival found an earnest call from Rev. Walter Reyolds, pastor of the U. B. church at Roseburg, to ome and assist in a camp-meeting at Pine Grove, ve miles from the city. So I bade good-bye to ie little wife and away to Roseburg I started.

Next morning, in company with Rev. E. M. Iarsters and son, I went out to the church and amp-ground. In consultation with Revs. Marsers and Reynolds, they agreed that I should have ill charge of the meeting until the presiding ider, Rev. Wm. Stewart, should arrive. He ailing to get there left me in command as long as remained. Rev. C. B. Marsters and wife came ie next day and worked heroically in the meetg. They are a regular camp-meeting team. I ever had charge of a meeting where ministers orked in greater harmony with me than did iese noble men of God. Rev. A. Notestine of ie M. E. church, who stops at the Soldiers' Iome at Roseburg, was also with us and gave ood assistance in the work.

From the first it was evident that the Lord was n our side, and was pleased to answer prayer. On the second day the work began to revive and inners began to inquire the way of life and salation. True repentance, genuine heart work in onversion, and renunciation of the world were reached as the only plan of salvation. Men and vomen accepted it, and professed saving faith in Christ. Many received Holy Ghost baptism; ome were baptized with water; some brought heir children for baptism; eleven united with he church; others I think will do so. Among he number was an old lady seventy-six years old, who had never made a profession of religion before.

On Sabbath the house was crowded and many ould not get in. I regretted that I must leave, ut after preaching Monday evening I took an arly morning train from Roseburg home. The neetings are being continued by the pastor and Rev. E. M. Marsters.

I was treated very kindly by all the people. I tayed one night at brother A. H. Brown's, a kind Christian family; but I made my home with rother John Bonebrake and family. Brother nd sister B. are faithful Christians, and are very nxious to see their children converted. I trust hey may have the desire of their hearts before he meeting shall close.

I secured thirteen yearly subscriptions to the Cynosure, and distributed some tracts, and otherwise represented the reform work. As I left I was made to feel sad for a few moments when a good brother followed me out and said, "Brother Williams, I don't expect to live very long, and if you are in this State when I die, I want you to preach my funeral sermon." Before leaving the meeting, I asked all who would covenant to meet me in heaven to come forward and give me their hand. Nearly the entire large audience came. May the Lord help them to keep their promise.

Our convention meets this afternoon. The rains have set in and I fear will hinder many from coming. P. B. WILLIAMS.

A PASTOR'S REPORT OF THIS GOOD MEETING.

ROSEBURG, Oregon, Sept. 28, 1894.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—We desire to contribute a few lines to your valuable paper that its readers may know that the spirit of reformation is yielding grand results here, as elsewhere.

Our camp meeting at Pine Grove closed on the 26th inst., leaving us well satisfied with our efforts and the results. The meeting was quite well attended, and eleven accessions were made to the church.

Among those who assisted in the meeting was Rev. P. B. Williams, your worthy advocate, who was duly elected as leader of the meeting, and to whom we ascribe much praise for the success we have enjoyed. Bro. Williams is an excellent revivalist as well as a successful lecturer on moral reform. His stay was very brief, yet it will long be remembered by all who enjoyed the pleasure of his acquaintance. While here he was successful in getting a number of subscribers for the Cynosure, a paper that should be found in every family.

We have been able to hear a number of Bro. Williams' anti-secrecy lectures. It seemed to the writer that not a stone was left unturned. As he put before the minds of his hearers the secret workings of these so-called beneficent orders, how strangely some were caused to act. Their spirits seemed to be disquieted within them and they sought refuge in the open air. Oh, that more of the truth might be had along this line! May success be the lot of this good brother, and may he continue to be a potent instrument for good.

WALTER REYNOLDS,
Pastor in charge of U. B. church.

NOTES OF A SUMMER REST.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—After nearly six weeks' rest at Petoskey and Bay View, Mich., I reached home Saturday A. M., Sept. 15th, and have resumed my pastoral work in much improved health. I spent a short time last summer at Atlantic City, and believe it does not compare with Bay View, Mich., as a health resort. Petoskey and Bay View are not a mile apart, and both on the shore of Little Traverse Bay. The healthful facilities they afford are the cool breezes nearly always from the west, sweeping over Lake Michigan; and the water of the Bay which is said to be impregnated with mineral, which underlies this whole country; and a mineral well at Petoskey furnishes water, which is gaining a high reputation as a health restorative. It is attracting thousands of invalids annually from all over the country. The Bay View Chautauqua Assembly is very popular and attracts larger crowds than any I ever attended.

Wheaton was well represented by Mrs. L. H. Plumb and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ross A. Harris, Miss Maud Whipple, Miss Guitner, Miss Anna Dresser, and Braham Loveless. Rev. J. W. Fifield, of the Covenant Congregational church, Chicago, also spent a few weeks there, and preached an excellent sermon one Sabbath morning in the Auditorium. I met a number of old Cynosure readers, among whom were Thomas Shepherd, of Martin, Mich.; Jacob Shelly, of Montpelier, Ohio; R. Atkins, of Petoskey, Rev. B. Baldwin, of West Unity, Ohio. Bro. Baldwin was supplying the pulpit of the U. B. church, Petoskey, during the summer. This congregation has recently divided on the secret society question, the radicals holding the church and the liberals are building a new one.

As everywhere, Petoskey is fearfully lodge-ridden, and this U. B. congregation has to breast a powerful tide of public sentiment, but it is standing firm and is not afraid to show its colors. I preached three Sabbaths in this church and addressed a Y. M. C. A. meeting on the street while at Petoskey.

I enclose a list of twenty names from Bloomington for the Lodge Lamp. I hope every friend of the cause will aid you in this advance move. The cause needs just such a small paper as the Lodge Lamp to put in the hands of busy men, and a paper that can be enclosed in a letter. May God enable you to scatter it by the ten thousand. M. A. GAULT.

GOD'S REFORM.

DEKALB, Iowa.

Lodgemen may be reformed as well as others who feel the need of it. But to reform the lodge, as an institution, cannot be done, because it is in principle a part of Satan's kingdom. It is "not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." The lodge agrees with the "carnal mind" and "is a law unto itself. If the church undertakes to reform the kingdom of Satan, he will wink at it.

God's way of reform is the best, and that is by repentance and faith in Christ. Satan hates God's way of reform, because genuine repentance turns men away from the lodge as well as from other sins. "Come out from among them and be ye separate." "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them, for it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret."

"Why not abhor that which is evil?" Has not the time come when "they will not endure sound doctrine" on the lodge question? It is too true with many of whom we expected better things.

"Reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long suffer. ing and doctrine," till lodge and saloon are reformed out of existence. "Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up." CYRUS SMITH.

LITERATURE.

DANGER SIGNALS, "Secret societies illuminated. Witnesses to their influence in the home, the church and the state.

The new work on which Secretary Stoddard of the New England Association has been engaged is ready. It is a beautiful pamphlet of 46 pages, containing "Perils from Secret Orders," by Joseph Cook; "Divided Allegiance," by Dr. A. J. Gordon; "Masonic Oaths Blasphemous," by Dr. I. J. Lansing; "The Lodge a Spiritual Counterfeit," by Rev. James M. Gray; "Effect of the Secret Lodge System on Good Citizenship," by Rev. J. M. Foster; "Secret Societies in Colleges," by Mrs. A. J. Gordon; "Secret Societies an Incentive to Warfare," by Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey; "A Foe to Reform," by Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason; "Secret Societies and How to Counteract Them," by Elizabeth E. Flagg; "The Yoke Broken," by Stephen Merritt. A fine half-tone portrait accompanies each except the last. Bro. Merritt is not so homely a man as to suffer in contrast with this notable and noble company. The ten contributions are brief, and with one exception seem to have been prepared for this publication. Dr. Lansing has not before spoken so emphatically on the lodge. The others are well known for their previous public testimony. It is a grand little book, and ought to sell by the million.

The most important contribution yet made to our knowledge of the celestial Bismarck, Li Hung Chang, appears in the October Review of Reviews in the form of a character sketch of the Chinese Premier, by John Russell Young, formerly our Minister to China, and for many years a close personal friend of the Viceroy. General Grant said in 1879 at the conclusion of his journey around the world: "I have met on this journey four great men, Bismarck, Beaconsfield, Gambetta and Li Hung Chang. I am not sure, all things considered, but that Li is the greatest of the four." The picture drawn by Mr. Young of the relations that existed between General Grant and the Chinese statesman has all the charm of novelty to American readers. Another article in the same number is "The Progress of Irrigation Thought in the West," an admirable summing-up of the proceedings of the Recent Irrigation Congress at Denver, by Wm. E. Smythe, chairman of the national committee of that Congress. Portraits of prominent leaders in the movement accompany the article. "The Church and its Relation to Labor" was the subject a remarkable address at the Grindewald Conference by Mr. Alfred Ewen Fletcher, editor of the London Daily Chronicle. The entire address appears.

The Century for October contains a monograph on "McClellan and his Mission," which will be apropos to the revival of interest in McClellan, following upon the dedication of his mounument in Philadelphia on Antietam Day, September 17. The writer is the late Major General James B. Fry, who, in a critical but not unkindly way, has here forcibly set forth his belief that the secret of McClellan's disastrous military career was the halucination that he was the God-appointed saviour of the nation. The article is likely to re-awaken discussion between McClellan's partisans and their opponents. Mrs. Christine Ladd Franklin writes of "An Unknown Mathematician," a French woman, Sophie Germain. It was said that her philosophical writings contain the essential features of the system which has been associated with the name of August Comte. Her chief discovery was the equation of elastic-laminæ, which is still called Germain's equation, and which was the starting-point of a new branch of the theory of elasticity. As a pure mathematician she stands with Mrs. Somerville among the most distinguished of her profession.

In the October McClure's Magazine the story of "The Capture of Niagara" and its subjection to the manfacture of elecricity for use hundreds of miles away, is the first to please the popular taste. The account of this great piece of engineering skill and the estimate of its tremendous possibilities is profusely illustrated, and is of great interest. But no less interesting to many is the interview with Dr. Calmette, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, regarding his recent triumphant experiments in inoculating against snake poison, with its startling pictures of poison snakes drawn from life; and the account, by Dr. Edward S. Holden, director of the Lick Observatory, of "Recent Advances in our Knowledge of the Moon's Surface," with the accompanying reproductions of recent important photographs of the moon. The opening article is an excellent sketch of Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun, since Greeley one of the first of American editors.

There are some men who would rather hear themselves preach than to listen to the angel tuning his harp.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

Married.—At Mt. Washington, Chelsea, Mass., on the 11th of last month, by Wm. F. Davis, Amaldo Natino to Joanna W. Carlson, both members of the Christian Mission Colony.

Married.—In Groton, N. H., on the 14th of last month, by Wm. F. Davis, Geo. A. Williams, minister of Christ, and principal of the Christian Mission Farm School at Groton, to Hannah Hopson.

FACT.

The area of the United States is slightly over 3,000,000 square miles, excluding Alaska.

It is the boast of Germany that she possesses the greatest number of political parties, there being no less than thirty-two.

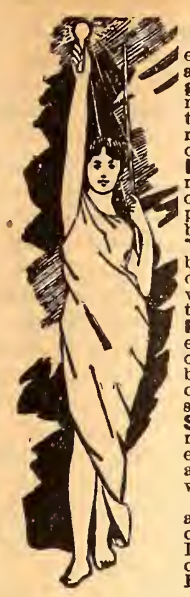
It has been computed that the death rate of the globe is 68 per minute, 97,790 per day, or 35,717,790 per year. The birth rate is 70 per minute.

It is computed by a Scotch paper that there are now enough paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession considerably over 100 miles in length.

Mail matter dropped in a box in Paris is delivered in Berlin within an hour and a half, and sometimes within thirty-five minutes, It is sent by means of pneumatic tubes.

China's imperial canal is the largest in the world and the greatest in point of traffic. Its length is 2,100 miles, and it connects forty-one cities on its banks. It was completed in 1350, after 600 years spent in its construction.

It is estimated that at least $50,000,000 of the government's paper money supposed to be in circulation has been lost or destroyed. By the sinking of a vessel on the Atlantic coast some years ago, $1,000,000 in greenbacks was lost.



The report on immigration issued by the bureau of statistics of the Treasury department has some very significant figures on the decrease in immigration during the eleven months ending May 31. It shows that during that time the total number of foreigners who arrived in America was 288,020, a decrease of 142,190 as compared with the corresponding period of the year previous. The greatest decrease was in the immigration from Poland, only 1,379 coming in as compared with 13,046 the year previous. There was a falling off of 21,889 in the number of Italian immigrants, while the decrease from other countries was in corresponding ratio.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In safety, the English railroads are far beyond those of the United States. In six recent years the railroads of the United States killed sixteen times as many passengers as those of the United Kingdom, in proportion to the number carried. This is not a fair comparison, however, for the journey of each passenger was longer in the United States—how much longer we do not know, for the English statistics are incomplete in this particular. Relatively to the total train movement of all kinds, which is a rough basis of comparison, but fairly just, the United States railroads killed about four and a half times as many persons as the English, in six years.—From "Railroad Travel in England and America," by H. G. Prout, in the October Scribner.

The tortures of dyspepsia and sick headache, the sufferings of scrofula, the agonizing itch and pain of salt rheum, and that disagreeable tired feeling are all overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

KEEP WARM.

The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., intend to keep their customers warm, because they are kept so, filling their orders. See advertisement of the Chautauqua Oil Heater. This Company are progressive, pushing business men. They have gone to the front rapidly, and will stay there if new ideas, energy and fair dealing will accomplish it. We are surprised each year with their magnificent enables the more advanced and Conservative Surgeons of to-day to cure many diseases without cutting, which were formerly regarded as incurable without resort to the knife.

ENLIGHTENMENT

RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy Trusses can be thrown away!

TUMORS, Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting.

For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

PILES DR. HILL'S GREAT SPECIFIC promptly cures where all other remedies fail. In use 35 years. 50c. per box. Mailed free. CHEMICAL SPECIALTY WORKS. Syracuse, N. Y.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.

Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

offers, but none have been more astonishing than the opportunity now given to get the most perfect heater made. Those who received one of these heaters last season, speak with words of highest praise. It is extremely useful and is also very ornamental. The Larkin Co. never disappoint. They create wonder with the great value they give for so little money. A customer once is a customer always with them.

As the name indicates, Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is a renewer of the hair, including its growth, health, youthful color, and beauty. It will please you.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00

FARM FOR SALE.

A quarter section in Kearney county, Nebraska,

WILL BE SOLD AT A BARGAIN.

Description: Southwest quarter of Section 31, Township 8, North, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian.

ONLY $500 CASH FOR 160 ACRES.

Large bodies of cattle have ranged over and been herded on this and adjacent land. It is pretty well covered with grass. The soil as a whole is quite sandy, especially on the hills; the little valleys have the best soil.

It is near two railroad towns. Lowell is within two miles, and Hartwell is about five miles distant. All taxes are paid to date. Must be sold soon if possible. Address, W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ills.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

National Christian Association, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

New England Department.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

Eastern Department.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

Northern Department.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

Pacific Department.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

College Agent, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

Other Lecturers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for refence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. Or the Power of the Secret Empire. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison Street, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

President—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

Vice President—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

Gen'l Sec'y and Treasurer—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Cor. Secretary.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

Rec. Secretary—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

Directors—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

New England.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

Connecticut.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

Illinois.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

Iowa.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

Kansas.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

Nebraska.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

Maine.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

Massachusetts.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

Michigan.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

Minnesota.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

Missouri.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

New Hampshire.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

New York.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

Ohio.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

Oregon.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

Pennsylvania.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

Wisconsin.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1894.

New York State Convention.—A brief note in another column is for the attention of all friends of reform in the Empire State to begin preparation for their annual convention in New York City. Pray for this meeting and plan to attend it.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Reformed Presbyterian church (G. S.), Sparta. It will convene at 7:30 P. M., November 15, 1894, and continue through the Friday following. President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, will be one of the speakers, Sparta is in Randolph county, on the Centralia and Chester and the Mobile and Ohio railroads.

There are many friends in this part of the State, and a very helpful time is anticipated.

J. R. Wylie, Secretary. R. W. Chesnut, President.

Our Contributors, brethren Hinman and Johnston, discuss some practical measures and fundamental issues in so commendable a way that we ask special attention to their articles.—— Note also the last clause of the oath of the new Populist order reported to us in the Inter Ocean. ——The Pacific Coast meeting should have a favored place in our attention as it has in the good work of Agent Williams. Mothers have their turn in the Home department as fathers had last week. Read carefully this number and look for a better one next. So it will be continually if you pray well and work well for the Cynosure.

Hugh Price Hughes and Bro. Paull.—On the second page this week an article is admitted quite against the rule which has long prevailed in our office, a rule which has been urged more strenuously by Baptist brethren than by any other. An exception is made: 1, because the main argument is legitimate, and the reference to baptism by immersion and to Roger Williams will do for an illustration of one side of the question; and 2, because the question is put in such a way that the indifference of many good brethren may possibly be broken up by way of aggravation. It is by no means intended that Bro. Paull shall have the platform to himself. There will be pens fresh nibbed to reply. The Cynosure exercises some self-denial itself to give others an opportunity; and the Eolus of the office will endeavor to restrain the winds of controversy which he seems to be rashly letting loose. He requests, however, that there be no reference to Bro. Paull's particular views, to which he has a right, as Bro. Hinman has to the Seventh-day Sabbath, Dr. Collins to the singing of Psalms, Dr. George to refuse to vote, or Bro. Hastings to remain outside a church organization. We could have wished these views less arrogantly expressed, but not every one can write like Paul or even like Cicero. So pass that on to human infirmity. Let the question stand for a while: Can Christian brethren afford to suspend argument on denominational differences in order to hasten the success of great moral reforms, like those now urged against the lodge, the saloon, the social evil, gambling, the theater, or Sabbath desecration?

DR. GLADDEN ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

The current Century prints an article on the secret anti-Romanist movements, which will find a friend and a foe in every discriminating reader.

Dr. Gladden is pastor of a Congregational church in Columbus, Ohio, who keeps up the literary habit which once made him an editor in New York. He is very much better known for his magazine articles than for the success in winning men to Christ. The prompting of his frequent and earnest attacks on the American Protective Association is probably found in his liberal views of religious distinctions, which make little account of the terms popery and Protestantism. His zeal on this account has brought him, however, to the consideration of some very obvious principles which the Cynosure has many years urged upon the attention of patriot and Christian.

In this Century article he has enunciated this principle more clearly and forcibly than it has often, perhaps ever, been done in these columns. For his defence of the law of publicity; for the right of all people to know what is to be done with questions that concern all, Dr. Gladden has our honest thanks. It is a great principle, and has so wide an application that the writer himself seems to have touched its horizon in a single point only. The A. P. A. is so near and threatening in Dr. Gladden's vision that he sees no other application of the principle; as a miser puts a dollar over his eye and is blind to all beside. But Tammany, and the Farmers' Alliance, and the secret trade unions, which are moving to the ballot, are secret political societies as well as the A. P. A. In his Sunset Club speech President C. A. Blanchard argued powerfully against such orders as the Freemasons and the Jesuits, which are secret societies working in politics without the honesty to openly avow their purpose, as does the A. P. A.; and are on this cccount far more dangerous.

But the public is concerned in patriotism as much as the G. A. R. or the Sons of Veterans, or the Woman's Relief Corps, or the Ladies' Aid Society, or the Patriotic Order of Sons of America, etc., etc. The public is as much concerned in the temperance cause as the fragment of the people who dive into lodges of Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, Rechabites, Royal Templars, or Templars of Honor and Temperance. The prosperity of the laboring classes of America is a public concern. Those who remit it to the recesses of oath-bound secrecy are committing a treasonable and hostile act against the commonweal. The sacred offices of charity are a public concern. To turn them over to secret lodges of Masons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias, etc., are not only a violation of the great principle Dr. Gladden maintains, but such an act is sacrilege and infamy. For these orders limit their benefactions to those who pay for them, which is no charity. And having done this they make faces at the Christian churches!

But Dr. Gladden has no purpose to antagonize all secret societies. He evidently has no hatred for any but the A. P. A. The rest are "innocent if not useful." But if his argument against the A. P. A. is valid, it condemns all the rest.

One parapraph of the Century article is omitted for very shame. It attempts to vindicate secret societies because in Dr. Gladden's words the family is one of them. It is pardonable in the ordinary Freemason or Odd-fellow to use such an argument. Most of them know no better than to confound the needful and heaven-born privacy of the family with the blasphemous, cut-throat secrecy of the lodge. But Dr. Gladden is a man of too great intelligence to confound things so utterly different. We would prefer to believe a man careless or ignorant rather than dishonest. But carelessness or ignorance are such improbable explanations, that we prefer to omit the paragraph.

SHINING MARKS.

Since our last, three eminent Americans have been taken from earth.

On Sabbath morning Hon. Andrew Curtin, ex-Governor of Pennsylvania, died, being in his 80th year. He was twice elected to the office of chief executive during the war, and was one of the ablest advisers of President Lincoln.

In the afternoon of the same day Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet, wit, essayist, and philosopher, almost the last of the circle of the great men in literature of the last generation, ceased life in his 84th year.

Prof. David Swing, a notable name in the history of Presbyterianism in this city, died Wednesday evening. He was also a man of letters and the sermons for which he was so celebrated were simply beautiful essays of a very liberal religious tone. In 1874, while pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, located in the most aristocratic part of the city, he was tried for heresy. The Chicago presbytery failed to convict; when Prof. Patton, now of Princeton University, appealed to the Synod and expelled him from the church. The trial created profound interest at the time. A large body of the Fourth church left, and joining other heterogenous elements, formed what is known as Central church, to which Prof. Swing has preached up to the present time. The congregation was held together by the personality of its pastor, and will probably disband. Dr. Thomas was expelled from the M. E. church soon after the Swing trial and has held together a similar, but more liberal, or rather heretical, body of hearers. But there is no suggestion of his succeeding Prof. Swing. The two men were entirely dissimilar, although the logical tendency of their teachings might be toward the same ultimate conclusions. Prof. Swing belonged to no secret order, and hardly favored them. Thomas was a Mason from the first; depended for his popularity on the lodge, and was the other day re-elected Grand Chaplain of the Illinois Grand Lodge. Prof. Swing's amiable character and literary habit and culture drew to him many friends who had much less regard for his religious tenets. Of the latter we must speak more at length in another number.

THE ODD-FELLOWS AND RELIGION.

The late meeting of this order at Chattanooga was compelled to answer the perpetually rising question of its religious standing. The Christian Standard comments thus upon the decision:

"The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-fellows has just decided that belief in the existence of a Supreme Being is, and must continue to be, a cardinal condition for membership. The very fact, however, that this question was presented for decision indicates that there are some in the order who would abolish this requisite for membership. Atheism has been giving the European Masons a good deal of trouble, and in some countries it seems to be predominant in the order. But if Masonry and Odd-fellowship are not religious, but merely benevolent and social institutions; if their lodges are in no sense churches, but purely secular societies, we do not see why a man's religious belief should bar him from membership any more than it should bar him from citizenship, or a place in a business corporation."

But will our accommodating brother of the Standard kindly put the other side of the postulate. If Masonry and Odd-fellowship ARE religious, what follows? Simply this, and the logic is inexorable, that these religions are pagan, and the worship at their altars is devil worship, according to 1 Cor. 10:20–22, and various other Scriptures.

This classification of the religion of these orders is from their own choice. They must be cosmopolitan, world wide, accepting men of every superstition, Jew, Buddhist, Musselman, Parsee or Confucian. In the Odd-fellow Sovereign Grand Lodge of the world the decision is: "Everything savoring of sectarianism is not to be tolerated. The words 'system of faith' or 'sect' . . . . include all the religions of the world. In this sense Christianity is a sect." The rule forbidding sectarian reference applies to Jews, Mohammedans, "equally with members of the Christian faith." Christ and Mohammed are therefore bundled out and only the Supreme Being of Odd-fellow conceit is left.

The Standard and every candid inquirer can easily see the meaning and the tendency of this sort of religion.

—Col. Richard J. Hinton, a co-worker of John Brown, of Harper's Ferry fame, has written a volume on "John Brown and his men." Brown renounced Masonry before he began his abolition career. Else we should have no Ossawatamie or Harper's Ferry.

—The Romanist press of Ohio makes some urgent requests of its patrons. A Columbus paper lately said: "Throw the Jew, the Freemason, A. P. A.-ist, etc., out. Do not allow yourselves to be trampled on like dogs. Chase the Jewish baggage to that place where it belongs—to the devil, and do not forget to take from those fellows what they have taken and extorted, through your necessities, from you."

—Mrs. Mary E. McPherson, who was personally and warmly interested in opening the way for the National Christian Association in Washington, after the Batavia convention of 1880, is engaged with two other ladies in a Greek Sunday-school class in that city. This is said to be the only one of the kind in the United States. The number of scholars varies, as they are mostly traveling fruit peddlers, who seldom remain long in one place. The teachers speak in high terms of the character of their Greek scholars, particularly of their love of country and of freedom; their respect for old age, for their parents and for the church. They are also said to be, as a rule, proud of their race, intelligent and remarkable for their rapidity of thought and their pleasure in receiving instruction.

—The "Bulletin" issued under the auspices of the National W. C. T. Union publishes the following as if it was accepted truth: "Dr. Saunderson says that 'all Knights of Pythias wearing any part of the regalia of the order are forbidden by their laws to enter any saloon or house of ill-fame, unless it be on important business, and then they must neither give nor accept any hospitality whatsoever—as one of their watchwords is purity." The prohibitory law is only a "watchword." The editor of the Bulletin should be wiser respecting the wicked ways she is opposing. Here in Chicago we have a "House of David." From the name it might be taken to be a Covenanter church, but it is one of the worst gambling dens. Lodges have plenty of watchwords. The principal use made of them by lodge members is to see how far they can keep away from them.

—The Christian Instructor's correspondent in Pittsburgh speaks with justice and candor of the late G. A. R. gathering in that city: "Barring the exclusiveness and the secrecy always unnecessary and injurious in any good thing, the G. A. R. has its merits. They profess to, and no doubt do, assist each other when in need. But in many cases they are too poor to afford the fees and the 'fixins,' no small item of expense, to a poor man, and so are excluded. Then a great many of the more conscientious will not and cannot endure the secrecy (whether oath-bound in form or not), the grips, the passwords and aristocratic and military titles and pomposity. 'The pomp and glorious circumstance of war' in time of peace does not commend itself to good, Christian, common sense. Hence many of the best of 'the old soldiers,' we wish we could say all of them, keep or are kept out of the organization. Why then this secrecy?"

—The Advance of this city is true to its motto, "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those which are before," in manner as well as matter. Volume XXIX. begins with a 36-page number, and a promise of many good things in store. Among them is a portrait and sketch of some eminent preacher in the denomination. Naturally Dr. E. P. Goodwin is first. He is now the Nestor of the Congregational churches, bearing a faithful testimony against all the enemies that assail the church of Christ, from the lodge to the least of them. Ringing articles appear from Dr. Goodwin and Rev. I. J. Lansing of Park St. church, Boston, which are worth reprinting in every denominational paper in Christendom. Over twenty-three years ago the Advance printed a sermon from Dr. Goodwin against secret societies. It was not so radical an utterance as he now gives, and the paper was not editorially enlightened on that question as now. But it was a landmark for that day. There have seldom been stronger and truer words spoken against the lodge system than the editorial of Feb. 15th last. May this great paper be ever true to its name in the great movements of Christianity Christward and in the greater gifts of the Spirit.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—John G. Wooley, the eloquent temperance lecturer, speaks nine times in the several United Presbyterian churches of Allegheny, Pa., from the 14th to the 21st inst.

—Rev. William Fenton, of St. Paul, paid a hasty visit to this city last week. During the day or two of his stay he conferred at length about the work in Minnesota and the northwest.

—Among the United Presbyterian brethren attending the Moody Bible Institute in this city are Revs. J. W. Cleland, late of Peotone, Ill., and T. C. Maughlin, pastor at Stafford, Kansas.

—Myron W. Reed, for some ten years pastor of the First Congregational church of Denver, has wrecked both himself and the organization. He is both a Knight Templar and a Mystic Shriner; that is, in religion a mocker of Christ and a Musselman. Eight years ago he was notorious for his lodge orations in Colorado. This influence has bolstered him up for a time until his anarchistic speeches became too outrageous to be longer endured, and he was forced to resign by the remnant of the church.

—Rev. W. H. Carwardine was returned to Pullman by the Rock River Conference. The Conference not only endorsed what he had done during the strike but showed their appreciation of him by raising over $900 for the church in Pullman.

—Word is received by her parents of the safe arrival of Miss Susan F. Hinman in Japan on her way to Pekin, China, where she is to take charge of the Bridgeman mission school for girls. The voyage was pleasant and much enjoyed by all the missionary party.

—Bro. W. B. Stoddard, the Washington agent, went to Philadelphia and New York last week. In the latter city he purposes to arrange for a State convention to be held Oct. 30th and 31st. The State President, Rev. S. R. Wallace, is now in St. John's, New Brunswick, but expects to return to his home in Syracuse during the month.

—Rev. S. G. Wallace, president of the New York State Association, has received unanimous calls from congregations in Brooklyn, New York, and Washington, Iowa. He lately resigned the pastorate of the Reformed Presbyterian church in Syracuse. During the years of his residence in that city he has been foremost in all reform movements against vice and immorality.

—A note from Bro. J. P. Stoddard speaks of the condition of Mr. Flagg, father of our New England correspondent. He is very feeble and requires constant care. Mrs. Stoddard has been for over a week at the Wellesley home. Bro. Stoddard also spent several days there and his assistance was quite constantly demanded. Let us all remember our dear friend, Miss Flagg, continually before God.

—Dr. F. J. T. Fischer, of Elmhurst, Ill., who, to a large circle of acquaintances and friends, is like Luke, a "beloved physician," suffered an attack of cerebral hemorrhage Sept. 30th. At first the stroke was attended with intense pain, and it was not thought possible that he could recover. We are thankful to God that his restoration is yet possible. A strong constitution and temperate habits always aid recovery. Dr. Fischer is a warm friend and patron of the reform, as well as his younger brothers, Prof. H. A. Fischer, of Wheaton College, and Wm. H. Fischer, Esq., of 151 Washington St., Chicago.

—Rev. T. M. Chalmers, who has been studying in the Moody Institute with other United Presbyterian brethren, is now answering a call to deliver a course of lectures on the Second Coming of Christ, the Jews and Prophecy, at the Bible Conference, held by the Mennonite brethren, at Berne, Ind. Bro. Chalmers will visit Ohio after the conference, and his lecture and preaching engagements will not be filled until some time in November. His mission work among the Jews of this city, and careful studies of the prophetic Scriptures, have given him excellent preparation for lecture work. The Cynosure readers, who may have an opportunity to hear him, should not fail to improve it.

—The Patrol of Geneva, Ill., in a note on the transfer of Rev. O. F. Mattison from the M. E church, Wheaton, to a larger field in Aurora, Ill. It intimates that about ninety-nine per cent of the Wheaton membership desired his return, but a very small minority caused the change. The Cynosure can speak for the other churches in Wheaton and the community generally, that Rock River conference has few pastors who have more fairly won or better deserved the love and esteem of all classes of people than Bro. Mattison, those favoring the lodge and saloon excepted. The reason why he was not permitted to remain five, instead of two years, and complete the fine new church building, for which plans are drawn and money largely raised, will probably be found in the fact that he engaged Bro. N. F. Deveneau, of the French M. E. church in this city, to assist in revival services last winter and co-operated in his union meetings afterward. Bro. Deveneau was like an Elijah or a Nahum against the idolatries of the lodge and popery, and the follies of the dance, the race-track and the saloon, and did not spare church members who walked close to the ragged edge of social iniquity. Bro. Mattison stood by him in all, though a few of his wealthy members are prominent in lodge circles.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Abrogating treaties by indirection—The whisky business in Alaska—The way to stop it is to STOP it.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3, 1894.

Congress, in assuming the authority to abrogate formal treaties, or parts of them, by general legislation, as was done in the tariff act of the last session and by other acts at other sessions, has raised a question that may sooner or later bring about international complications. Foreign governments do not understand such methods of abrogating treaties. Brazil lately entered an indirect protest against such methods, by declining to recognize the abrogation of our reciprocity treaty and giving notice of its own intention to abrogate the treaty in accordance with the provisions contained therein. This week the German Ambassador filed with the State department the formal protest of his government against that clause of the tariff act which imposes an additional duty of one-tenth of a cent a pound on sugar imported from those countries which pay an export bounty on the article to their producers, claiming that this clause of the tariff act violates the spirit of the commercial treaty with Germany. The Ambassador states that the protest is made in a friendly spirit, with the hope that it will cause Congress to correct what his country considers an unjust discrimination against its sugar producers.

Although it is illegal to send intoxicating liquors to Alaska and to sell them there, it has long been known, through missionaries, that the law was practically a dead letter, and that the deadly liquor traffic was demoralizing, not only the natives of Alaska, but many of the white residents as well. These facts are now officially known to the government of the United States, and officials of the Treasury department are at work trying to devise some effective method of enforcing the laws. This is the result of the recent official visit to Alaska of Hon. Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Hamlin reports that he not only found that liquors were openly sold in Alaska, but that illicit distilling was carried on there to a considerable extent. On one Sunday, which he spent in Juneau, a town of about 2,500 inhabitants, he saw five saloons openly selling liquors. The excuse for this disgraceful state of affairs, as given by Treasury officials, is the distance of the country, the fewness of U. S. officials and the long distances between U. S. courts. These things, they say, result in laxity in the enforcement of even the few laws there are.

The enforcement of law in Alaska should not require any great ingenuity. If the U. S. officials now there will not perform the duties they have sworn to do, let them be supplanted by men who will. If there is not a force of officials sufficiently large to enforce the law, their number should be increased. The United States government should be ashamed to allow its laws to be thus openly violated, and a particularly strong effort should be made to prevent it when, as in this case, it is resulting in the destruction of the health and morals of a people who are entitled to our protection and help. It would be more creditable to the United States that enough of its naval vessels should be sent to Alaska to enforce the laws than it is to have those naval vessels idly cruising around the world merely as an exhibition of our ability to fight, if need be. This government will not soon be called upon to fight a more dangerous enemy of its people than the liquor traffic, either in far away Alaska or at home. *

In conversation with a very intelligent Oddfellow the other day, he made the declaration that the secret orders were doing more to break down the bitter prejudices of the different religious sects toward each other than any other influence in operation; and when we responded that they were doing it by leading the churches to abandon the essential and distinctive features of Christianity, viz: the doctrines of atonement and salvation through Christ, he could not deny it, but openly expressed the idea, though a church member, that a belief in Christ is not necessary to salvation. Right here, in our judgment, is the worst feature of the whole secret lodge system; it teaches a religion without any atonement or any Christ in it. And just in so far therefore as it removes [what it calls] denominational prejudices, it instills infidelity. —Conservator.

The Home.

ONE WOMAN.

Her eyes are not "cerulean blue;"
Her "silken tresses" do not fall
In rippling waves of amber hue;"
She has no "special gift" at all—
This gentle woman, sweet and good,
Who sprang not from a royal race,
Yet wears her crown of womanhood
With more than queenly grace.

She does not seem to "float on air
Like thistledown, amidst the dance;"
Nor would her modest spirit care
To "hold men spellbound with a glance."
But she is gracious to the poor;
The sick and sorrowful aver
That when she enters at their door
The sunshine follows her.

She has not soared to Learning's heights,
Or sounded Wisdom's depths profound;
She only claims her woman's rights
When tasks for tender hands abound;
Yet, though she shrinks from themes abstruse,
Nor studies "ethics" overmuch,
The common things in daily use
Grow fairer at her touch.

Enjoying most where most she loves,
She has no great desire to roam;
But by her pure example proves
How love may sanctify the home.
And thus she rules with kindly hand
The realm she understands the best,
While all her happy household band
Arise and call her blest.

—Chamber's Journal.

DUTY TO ONE'S SELF.

In a certain household, located in northern New England, a house set among rugged hills and dimpling valleys, there lives a woman whom the angels write upon the roll of their saints. Her life is one of unremitting toil, hard, unrequited, and unrecognized. The people around her, relatives by marriage, are incapable of appreciating the rare heroism of her life, the sweet beauty of her constant, uncomplaining devotion to her daily duty.

I do not think she has an ideal. She is too simple and straightforward, and much too busy to think about how her conduct impresses others. She spends day after day, year after year, in caring for childhood and tending querulous old age; and through a weary and monotonous life, filled with drudgery, she keeps the sunny sweet ness which distinguished her as a girl. It never occurs to her, either, that she is to be pitied or admired, or that she is doing anything extraordinary.

But her self-abnegation is making her young daughters thoughtless of their mother's rights and claims. They are surprised when she occasionally expresses a wish for a change of scene or a new gown, or hints at being included in some projected party of pleasure. Her husband accepts her unremitting service as his due, and seldom puts himself out to show how much he thinks of it and of her. Indeed, it has become to him like commonplaces of the sky and earth and air, and he takes it in the same way, as a matter of course, and will never acknowledge what it is to him until one of these days it is gone. Even then it will not be evident to him that his wife died of devotion to him and his, a martyr to too great disregard of self, to unstinted outpouring for her family.

Dear sisters, there are some of you who need this reminder. God asks of you an account of one soul of his fashioning entrusted by him to your care. For the talents he entrusted to you he will exact a full report at the end of the day. You have no excuse for squandering yourself, you precious wife, you beloved mother, you faithful daughter, or sister. I know a woman growing thin and gray—a woman who toils strenuously in an exhausting profession, earning her salary in the literal wearing out of her strength—and twice in the last five years she has bestowed every penny of her savings on a strong but indolent relative, a man who never had force enough to take care of himself, but who does not scruple to take advantage of her weak unselfishness. Is she praiseworthy? Is she not rather responsible to a large degree for his pettiness and his disgraceful lack of manly chivalry?

Depend upon it, that each of us owes a plain duty to herself. This duty includes a proper care for our physical well-being, a taking whatever belongs to us, in consideration from others, in time and in leisure, and a recollection that we are God's children, and as such entitled to our share of what God meant us to have. Too much of the altruistic spirit and attitude may rebound unfavorably, and harm rather than help the very persons it hoped to elevate and broaden.—Mrs. M. E. Sangster, in Congregationalist.

A CHARMING WOMAN.

"How can a woman be charming when she is getting old, and there are plainly visible silver threads among the golden?" Of course it was a girl in her teens who asked the question. Such naive ignorance could not survive twenty years of observation or experience. The women who have swayed the world's scepter as "charming women" have never posed as professional beauties, nor as great intellectual luminaries, and never has the scepter of supremacy been intrusted to girlish hands. But how to define a charming woman is a delicate task. What she is not might be easier of indication. She is not personally vain. She is not egotistical. No one can "charm" by impressing others always with a sense of her own importance. She is not impertinently curious about your affairs, but gracefully encourages you to believe that you are the most interesting subject in life to her just then. She is never personal in her remarks. Does not entertain you with her physical ills. Somehow, imperceptibly, subtly, she leads you to a higher mental and moral plane by an all-pervading sweetness and cheerfulness that leave you admiring and emulous and "charmed." A recipe for such cheerfulness is given by Mrs. Edward Goss, wife of the English critic and poet: "To two parts of unselfishness add as much fresh air as can be obtained. Stir in two hours of beauty sleep (i.e., sleep obtained before 12 o'clock at night), a silver tongue, from the tip of which all malice has been removed, and an eye that looks out on the brighter side of life. Into this mixture throw a pinch of humor and a sprinkle of the essence of romance, and there you are." Not a bad recipe, either.—Selected.

THE DEAD WIFE.

The hour set for the funeral had come. The hearse with its black plumes stood at the farmhouse door. It seemed a strange and foreign thing among the bright-colored hollyhocks, the commonplace sunshine, the lowing of cows in the barn-yard, and the chickens that moved about on the green lawn before the house. The Jersey wagons of the neighboring farmers filled the road, for the Garrets were much respected.

Mrs. Garret, who had just died, was a "home body," and saw but little of her neighbors, but her husband had grown rich by great industry and close saving, and had pushed his children on in the world.

John, his only son, had been to college and the girls to a boarding-school, and they were so improved that they seemed to belong to quite another class from their mother.

They had stood with their father at the coffin to look for the last time at the woman who lay there.

"Your mother was a pretty woman when she was young," the farmer had said. It had startled him to see how thin and withered her face was under the white hair.

"Sarah's only fifty," he continued. "She hadn't ought to look so old," he said. He had not thought of her looks when she was alive.

There was a certain sullen resentment under the grief that she was dead. How was he to do without her? She was a master hand at cooking and butter-making and laundry work and sewing. He had never thought to ask her if she needed help. She had never complained, and to complete her work she had risen at four and had gone to bed late at night. Things always ran smoothly. She never spoke of being ill. It stunned him when she took this cold and sank under it in two days. The doctor said that all her strength was gone. "Sarah had the strength of ten women," the husband said. "Where had it gone?"

He was amazed and indignant. Was this the justice of God, to take away a woman of usefulness in the world? It was not just!

Her daughters sobbed vehemently. She had always been so tender! She had done so much for them! They did not, it is true, feel well acquainted with her since they grew up. But between their music and their studies, and their young companions, and other social occupations, their lives had been filled! They smoothed the folds of her merino gown, a little ashamed that the neigbbors should see that she had no silk dress. She had insisted that each of them should have silk gowns, and helped make them herself.

Jack, her son, like his father, was shocked to see how tired and worn his mother looked. He had talked for a year or two of taking her for a week to New York. She had never seen a great city. But he always had some engagement. He remembered now that she had made enough in the dairy to keeping him in his spending money at college. He wished he had contrived that little holiday for her! They all felt now how good and unselfish she had been and how dear to them.

"Why should she be taken from us?" the old man moaned, bitterly. "It is cruel. Why has God done this thing?"

And the dead woman lying there, her lips closed forever, could make no answer, save that which toil had stamped upon the thin, worn face, that seemed pleading for rest.—Youth's Companion.

PICTURE OF THE INDIA CHILD WIFE SYSTEM.

A little girl in India went to the missionary school; she was a pretty, clever little thing, and so attracted the teacher that she ventured to visit her in her home. She found the child overshadowed by the horror of her approaching marriage. As a baby she had been betrothed, but, according to custom, she lived in her father house till she was 12, then she was to be taken from her own people and given over to her husband, a hideous little man, deformed, his face scarred with disease, of bad character and notoriously given to drink.

The child was terrified at him, and he derived a ghoul-like pleasure from her terror; used to jump at her in the dark, make faces at her, and told her that once really married to him, and in his home, he and his old mother would make short work of her beauty with a red-hot fork, so that it would soon be difficult to choose between their two faces.

At last the fatal day arrived. The missionary's heart ached for the little friend she was unable to help, and as she went about her work she prayed that God might save his hapless creature.

At noon the child's mother burst into the house. "Nahomi is dead," she cried, and the two women hurried to her home. Nahomi, lying stiff and cold on the floor, looking very slim and childish in her bridal dress and smooth, flower-crowned head.

It appeared that she had spent the morning in restless agony of anticipation, that (to quiet her) her miserable mother had beaten her, and that afterward she had fallen into an apathy of despair.

She had washed her little person and her hair, had braided it neatly, and put on her bridal gown, had decorated herself with flowers and jewelry, and then had gone quietly into the yard behind the house, where a datura tree hung its great white trumpets against the blue sky, dug up and ate a little of its poisonous root and then crept back into her home, where she now lay, cold, stark—free.—Temple Bar.

There are wives who bear the brunt of ill-fortune without a murmur, husbands who struggle with poverty, or impending poverty, with calm fortitude which excites the pity of the "cloud of witnesses" in the upper air; both men and women who have secret sufferings so great that their hearts are beating a dead march to the grave, but from whose lips no word of complaint escapes; and girls by the score who keep themselves unspotted in spite of fate, preferring the loneliness of a dingy room, with honesty for company, to the gaudy surroundings which are bought with impurity of life.—New York Herald.

We laugh at a boy who will tug a sled for an hour to reach a summit from which he will slide down in a minute, but he is a philosopher to the man who does hard work for six days that he may on Saturday night turn his coined sweat into the till of a saloon.

TEMPERANCE.

LIQUOR AND POVERTY.

Commissioner of Labor Carroll D. Wright lately forwarded to the President the results of his investigations, ordered by Congress, of the slum districts of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Chicago. Two points have a most important relation. In the first he shows where saloons thrive:

"In the city of New York there was, at the time of the investigation, one liquor saloon to every 200 persons, but in the slum district canvassed there was one saloon to every 129 persons. In Philadelphia, in the city at large, there was one saloon to every 870 persons, but in the slum district canvassed there was one such saloon to every 502 persons. In Baltimore, in the city at large, there was one saloon to every 228 persons, but in the slum district canvassed there was one saloon to every 105 persons. In Chicago, in the city at large, there was one saloon to every 212 persons, while in the district canvassed there was one saloon to every 127 persons. In these calculations fractions have been dropped."

Farther along he says of "earnings:"

"The earnings of the people living in the slum districts canvassed are quite the average of the people generally and at large, but as there are no data with which to make comparisons of average earnings the results of this investigation must practically stand alone; yet from all that can be learned from various sources the statement made is believed to be correct."

From which the inference is plain, abolish the saloon and the poverty of the slum will disappear.

BEER AND LONGEVITY.

At a recent medical banquet, one of the gentlemen present, Dr. Bernacki, had a word to say about growing old. He was only eighty-two, and he expected to live to be older. He was still in excellent health, and able to perform all his medical duties as well as ever. His rule had always been: Be cheerful; not to worry about things. Do your duty, and knowing that you have done so await results, which are sure to be right. Do not eat too much. Eat all that nature requires, but do not stuff or gormandize. There is no use in clogging up the digestive organs, and requiring them to do more than nature intended them to do. Do not drink too much. Since he was sixty he had never taken a drop of beer—(Milwaukee beer, said a member)—Milwaukee beer or any other kind. Beer is incompatible with long life. You never hear of a man living to the age of seventy if he takes five or six glasses of beer every day.

ALCOHOL AND ANARCHY.

There is another great hotbed of anarchy and crime in our modern civilization that can never be passed by, or overlooked, when we are considering the dangers that threaten us with universal destruction—the traffic in drunkenness. One of the most alarming features of the present age is the awful and shameful fact that the fourteen most civilized nations of the earth devote one-fourth of their labor and agricultural land to the production of this demoralizing and destructive force. Forty-four million acres of the best soil God has given to man is being used to produce a pauper-making, anarchy-breeding drink, while multitudes die of want and nations stand back aghast before the deadly work of anarchists.—Rev. Louis Albert Banks.

BEER AND ATHLETICS.

Beer-drinking in Germany is being discredited by competitive athletics. It is stated that three clubs of Leipsic students have abandoned the "morning drinking bout," and that several additional university clubs are about to take the same step. A desire to excel in athletic sports is said to be the impelling cause of this action on their part. This practical acknowledgment that beer-drinking is inimical to the best physical condition and to the highest degree of athletic success would be significant in any country, but it is especially so in Germany, the great beer country of the world! We have sometimes feared that many students were disposed to give relatively too much attention to athletics, but if these athletic sports should lead them to abandon the use of intoxicants we should rejoice and account it a great gain, even if they were less brilliant in scholarship. May their athletics prosper and beer be overthrown!—National Temperance Advocate.

ALCOHOL ON THE CONTINENT.

According to an article by Dr. C. R Drysdals, in the Echo (London), there is arising on the Continent a wave of medical opinion in favor of total abstinence of healthy persons from alcoholic drinks. He quotes from an article by Dr. E Jordy, of Berne, the following items from which is showing the current of medical opinion:

In 1893 one death in seventeen which occurred in Switzerland, was ascribed to drinking habits (thus including women and children).

Dr. Speyer says that one-eight of the insane in public asylums were sent there from alcoholism.

In the Zurich Lunatic Asylum one-fourth of the cases were ascribed to drink.

Dr. Bær, a well-known writer in German prisons, alleges that forty-four per cent of the prisoners were intemperate.

Mr. Otto Lang found that eighty-eight per cent of the crimes committed in Zurich were due to drink.

Prof. Strumpell, of Erlangen, says that alcohol has an evil influence in the causation of most diseases, and is the ruling cause of dyspepsia in adults.

The noted professors of physiology, Gaule in Berne, Hertzen in Lausanne, Bunge in Basle, and Schiff in Geneva, are total abstainers from alcohol.

Mr. Brassey found that barrow-men who avoided alcohol could do as much work in eight and a half hours as non-abstainers could do in ten hours. Swiss contractors find the same true among Italian workmen.

THE WORLD'S BREW.

Last year in Germany there were brewed no less than 1,200,000,000 gallons of beer, representing an annual consumption of thirty-three gallons per head. The Bavarian is the biggest guzzler, for he requires sixty-two gallons a year, while the inhabitant of the "stolen provinces" only wants twelve gallons. In Great Britain 1,165,000,000 gallons were brewed with a consumption of thirty gallons a head. Pan-America produced 1,100,000,000 gallons, and drank sixteen gallons a head. The French are wine-drinkers, so only 200,000,000 gallons of beer were produced in France. Only 100,000,000 gallons were produced in Russia, or less than one and one-quarter gallon per head. The total world's production was 4,500,000,000 gallons, and it required 7,270,000 tons of malt and 82,000 tons of hops. What an ocean of loss and ruin!

The greatest duty every father owes to his children is to walk where it will be safe for them to follow.

A lamentable condition of affairs in Philadelphia has lately been disclosed by a member of the Ledger force, James F. Dailey, who has been engaged for six months examining the patronage of the liquor business in the city of brotherly love. He has discovered that of the sixty thousand signers for saloon licenses, a very large number are members and officers of various churches, also of different branches of governments and of courts. Mr. Dailey names certain prominent churches whose officers—Sunday-school superintendents and teachers, trustees and vestrymen—have their names affixed to saloon license applications, also police magistrates, city councilmen, State Senators, etc. Although this is probably no isolated condition, it is seldom that we have seen such a clear, startling revelation of iniquity, even in the liquor traffic. Many of these Christian (?) men doubtless regard with horror liquor drinking and drunkenness, but if we were to compare the two sins—deliberate signing of a saloon application and impulsive drinking of the saloon product, we would pronounce the former the greater. Do not the churches named by Mr. Dailey, by their very silence, sanction this libel on Christianity? We await with interest the anticipated action of these religious bodies, and will inform our readers of the final outcome of the charges.—Union Signal.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON III.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Oct. 21.

SUBJECT.—A Sabbath in Capernaum.—Mark 1: 21-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes."—Mark 1: 22.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Mark 1: 21-34. T.—Mark 1: 35-45. W.—Matt. 15: 21-31. T.—John 7: 40-53. F.—Matt. 7: 24-29. S.—Acts 16: 14-18. S.—John 8: 25-32.

Astonished. There is an awful possibility of being "astonished" without being persuaded or saved.—Parker.

One that had authority. Not relying upon rabbis, or elders, or prophets, or even upon Moses.—Whedon. As one that knew the mind of God and was commissioned to declare it.—Com. Com. As the great author and revealer of truth, He expounded the law in all its fullness, and enforced it by personal authority, "Verily I say unto you." Matt. 5: 18, 26.—Clark.

Not as the scribes. 1. They expounded the law of Moses; He gave a new law, expressing His will as the manifestation of the divine will. 2 They gave traditional interpretations; He made truth evident to the judgments and consciences of men. 3. They spoke and did not; His conduct and character enforced all he taught, for he ever sought the good of men and the glory of God; nothing for Himself.—Godwin.

With an unclean spirit The words are literally, "In an unclean spirit." In his grasp, possessed by him. The man was so absolutely in the power of this evil spirit that he seemed to dwell in him; as the world is said to lie in the evil one. 1 Jno. 5: 19.—Charran. This, like the expressions, in the Lord, in Christ, expresses the element in which the man lived and moved, as possessed and interpentrated by the evil spirit.—Alford. Unclean spirits are demons. There is but one devil; there are many demons, subordinate spirits. It seems utter folly to identify these demons with mere physical and mental infirmities. They were the witches and gods of the Egyptians, the inspiration of all the bestial ceremonies of the Philistines. They are the inspiration and evil power of all paganism to-day.—Pentecost.

What have we to do with thee? The Saviour had not been formally interfering with the demon, but his preaching was contrary to demons; his character was opposed to theirs, his mission was the exact opposite of theirs, everything he did and said was directly interfering with them.—Peloubet. The preaching of Jesus had thrown the world of spirits into excitement and alarm. They resented this intrusion of their domain: "We have nothing to do with thee, thou holy one, but we have a right to take possession of sinners." Our ignorance of the spiritual world shrouds this incident in mystery, but the ever possible exertion of unseen spiritual power upon us should make us careful of associations, and careful about leaving mind and heart open to assault.—Wakefield.

To destroy us. Our Lord had not uttered a word of judgment or punishment. But guilt condemns itself. Fear of destruction is the spontaneous offspring of sin, and whether the Lord reproves or keeps silent there is no peace to the wicked.—Ford. The man was not included in the "us," for it was the saving of the man and his own expulsion that the demon feared.—Clark. Holy one. Jesus came only in the appearance of sinful flesh, Rom. 8: 3, as the brazen serpent had the figure but not the poison of the very serpent. He was without the least tincture of original or actual sin.—Bates.

Cried out. He was obedient to the command of silence. He did not speak anymore.—Trench. He does not utter any further testimony to the divinity of Jesus, but with a cry of rage and fear and despair he surrenders his place and departs.—Whedon. Evil tempers always defeat their own wishes. If the spirit had passed out quietly the miracle would not have been so evident. Hall.

House of Simon and Andrew. Peter and Andrew were natives of Bethsaida, Jno. 1: 44, but had moved to Capernaum.—Broadus. Possibly Peter's house was to Jesus in the north like the house of Lazarus at Bethany in the south.—Glover. Some are troubled that Peter should have a house, while it has been said before that he "left all." It is needless, the renunciation was entire in his will, Matt. 19: 27, and ready in act to be carried out in all its details, as necessity arose.—Trench.

Peter's wife's mother. Peter had a wife. As late as A. D. 57, she was living and accompanied Peter on a missionary tour, 1 Cor. 9: 5. The Rom ish doctrine of clerical celibacy is unauthorized by Scripture. Heb. 13: 4.—Clark. Peter's wife is not mentioned by name in the New Testament, but she was a believer in Jesus. According to early writers she suffered martydom, dying before Peter.—Wakefield.

Healed many. He healed "all," Matt. 8: 16, and they were "many," in a free, spontaneous exercise of divine charity and compassion. Luke 6: 19.—Bartholomew. Matthew gives us the key to the Christ's atoning death. By his fellowship with our diseases he gradually descended into the unfathomable depths of his full sympathy with our death. Matt. 8: 17. Hence his miracles partook of the nature of atoning suffering and prepared for it.—Lange.

Suffered not the devils. Preachers of truth must be divinely commissioned. The message may be weakened by the character of the messenger. Jesus may be compromised by self-sent preachers. Jesus healed without reward or praise.—Pray. Jesus would not even seem to be in alliance with demons. We should avoid even seeming complicity with evil spirits. Lev. 19: 31. And not found our faith on presumed or questionable spiritual manifestations. Isa. 8: 19, 20. All who listen to such anti-Christian teachers expose themselves to damnable delusions. 1 Tim. 4: 1. Binney.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—A four-story hospital building to contain a chapel, social rooms, emergency and surgical wards, is to be erected by the Tabitha Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church in Chicago. The cost will be $100,000.

—Hon. Cecil Rhodes, the multi-millionaire diamond digger and premier of Cape Colony, has given to the Baptist missions in South Africa 9,000 acres in Mashonaland and Matabeleland for three mission farms. Sites for churches and parsonages are given with each farm.

—A minister of this city, who is also a rancher, a lecturer for the State Grange, and a candidate for the Legislature, finding that he has more on hand than he can attend to, has decided to drop the ministry. The decision is no doubt a wise one, for had he been a faithful preacher of the Gospel he could not have found place for all the other callings. Even the apostle Paul could find time for only "this one thing."—Signs of the Times, Oakland, Cal.

—The Synodical Conference of the Lutheran church employs nine missionaries and five teachers among the colored people of our land. They have ten churches, four school-houses, one parsonage and one cemetery. They number 1,100 members; the average attendance at divine service is 800; their Sunday-schools number over 1,000 pupils and their parochial schools 700. Three colored youths are preparing for the ministry in their seminary at Springfield, Illinois. The average expenditure for these missions is $900 per month.

—The financial year of the American Board closed Aug. 31. The regular contributions reported for the year were $385,150 44 (in 1893, $415 676 62); special gifts not for debt, $60,187 18 (in 1893 $67,511.16); legacies, $133 768 51 (in 1893, $146 759); total $579,106.13 (in 1893 $629,946 78). The debt at the end of last year was $88,318.73, and this has been reduced by special gifts for that purpose to $50,548 10; but, on the other hand, the excess of expenses over income for this year was $65 689.46, making the debt at the end of August $116.237 56. The new debt of the year was $22,629.27 less than it was last year.

—The British and Foreign Bible Society is being seriously checked in Russia. About eight months ago the society was informed that its shop in the city of Kieff—the Russian Jerusalem, and a great resort of pilgrims—must be closed for six months, by order of the Minister of the Interior. The Governor of Kieff has now gone further. When an effort was recently made to have the shop re-opened, he replied by strictly prohibiting colportage in the four large provinces over which he has jurisdiction, and by publishing in the newspapers throughout the empire that he does so because the colporteurs of the Bible Society are actively engaged as Stundist propagandists. There can be, of course, little doubt that the distribution of the Scriptures among the villages of Russia has vastly helped the cause of evangelical truth, and that hundreds and thousands of the peasants known as Stundists owe their light to the reading of the Bible; but it is denied absolutely that the colporteurs have been engaged in the work of preaching or teaching. Their simple duty, as in the case of the colporteurs of the American Bible Society, which they do not overstep, and which they are strictly forbidden to overstep, is to sell the Bibles and Testaments with which the Bible Society supplies them.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF AUGUST, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

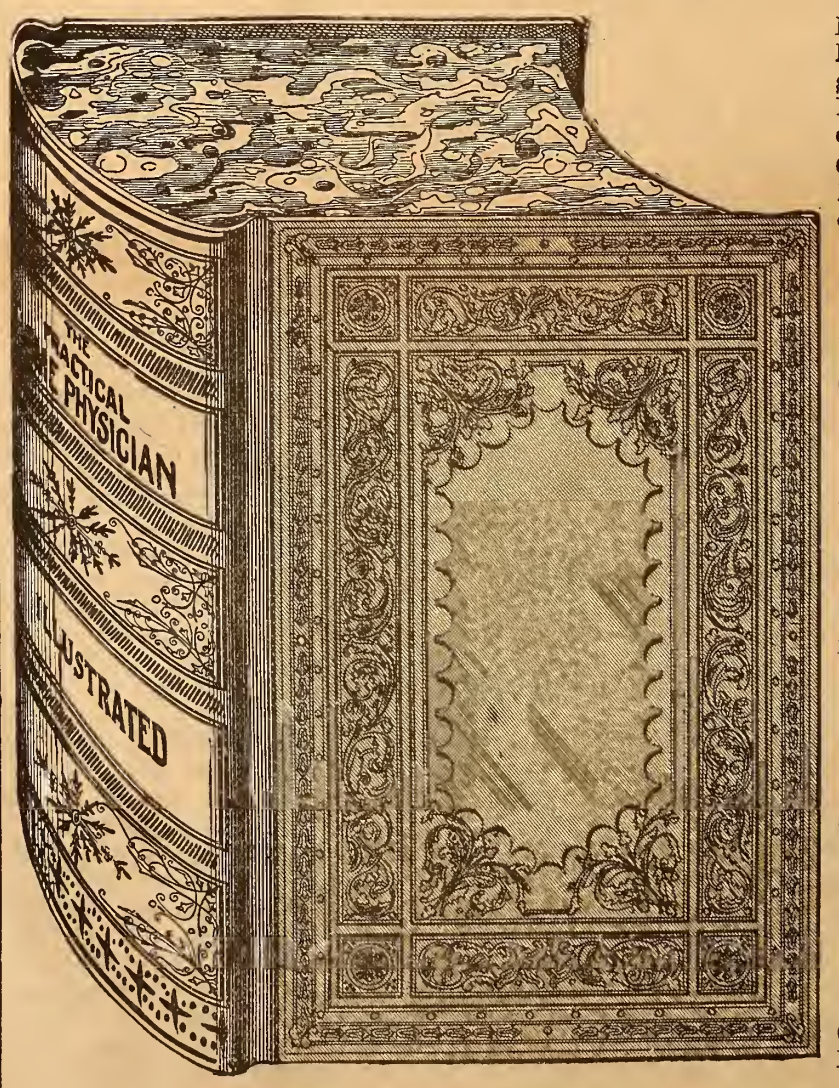
IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:



SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D, Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

——o——

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

——o——

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLd USE.

——o——

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

——o——

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

231 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely Illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D, Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow —or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth $1.00

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. B. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Nervous

Troubles
Originate in

Impure Blood

Therefore the True
Method of Cure
Is to Take

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which cures Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Catarrh, Rheumatism and other Diseases, because it

Purifies The Blood

Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. 25c.

LITERATURE

—ON THE—

ROMAN QUESTION

TAKEN FROM THE

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.

FRANKED ENVELOPES

Address,

REV. GREEN CLAY SMITH,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1½c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1½c.

Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY		5c.
" " "	SCHOLAR'S "	3c.
" " "	INTERMEDIATE "	3c.
" " "	PRIMARY "	3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

HOME AND HEALTH.

AN IMPERIAL HOUSEWIFE.

The Christliche Apologete, Cincinnati, draws a sketch of the life of the Empress of Germany, in which it says:

"Before his marriage, the German emperor was wont to say that a 'wife with a talent for making jam is preferable to one who has the wish to amend the constitution.' He must have found his ideal, for, in a speech recently delivered by him, he said: 'I cannot wish anything more pleasant for the men of my nation than that the women may, like the empress, devote their attention chiefly to the three great C's: Church, children and cookery.'

"Augusta Victoria is the daughter of the Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, and has been trained to superintend household affairs after the manner of the daughter of a German yeoman. Her parents taught her to be saving, diligent and modest—qualities which she now endeavors to instill in her own children. No particular of the imperial household escapes her attention; she takes especial pride in attending to the mending of the emperor's linen, and darns his stockings after the manner of old-fashioned housewives, who would consider it a crime to throw away a pair of socks which could be mended. She has no great love for her social functions, but delights in the grand maneuvers, when she will ride beside her husband in the uniform of the regiment of which she is honorary colonel. Much of the empress' time is devoted to charity, and especially do poor children find a willing listener in her. In giving presents she chooses some useful article, generally a watch. She is not only strict in fulfillment of her own work, but exacts the same attention to duty from others. The simplicity of the life led by her household may be gathered from the following:

"The empress rises, summer and winter, at 5 A. M. Breakfast is taken at 6, dinner at 1 P. M., tea at 5, and supper at 8. At half-past ten the whole imperial family is generally asleep.

The empress is thirty-five years of age, of medium height, blonde, and rather stout. She was married in 1881, and has six sons and a daughter. She keeps a diary, the contents of which are unknown even to her husband. The following may serve as an illustration of the reverence with which she is regarded by her sons. The crown prince, aged twelve, upon hearing his teacher say that 'all mankind are sinners,' inquired if this applied to the high as well as to the humble. Being told that such was the case he answered: 'Well, my father may be a sinner, but my mother isn't.'"

WHAT WE SHOULD EAT.

The report on food products at the World's Fair, by Prof. W. O. Atwater, has just been published by the government. He takes the ground that food has a great deal to do with the character of any race. "The underfed man is weak. The underfed race is a weak race physically, intellectually, and morally," and he cites the example of the Javanese, who were "simple, gentle, attractive," but, living on rice and fruit, were lacking in stamina such as a diet of beef and bread will furnish.

Professor Atwater shows the importance of our meat industry by the following table of our principal industries, showing their growth in ten years;

Industries	Value of Products. 1880	1890
Slaughtering and packing.....	$303,562,413	$565,667,053
Flouring and grist mill.....	505,185,712	513,971,474
Iron and steel.....	296,557,695	430,954,348
Lumber.....	283,268,729	403,667,575

He then goes on to say that all our beef and pork are overfed. We aim at fatness at the expense of nutritive power. Lean meat is far less wasteful and more nutritious. The cattle and hogs should be fed less corn and other starchy foods and more nitrogenous foods, if we want the greatest good from our feeding. The English and Dutch farmers know this, and in consequence produce beef which gets far higher prices than ours in their home market.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

Only a Step

from Weak Lungs to Consumption. from Depleted Blood to Anæmia, from Diseased Blood to Scrofula, from Loss of Flesh to Illness,

Scott's Emulsion

the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, prevents this step from being taken and restores Health. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

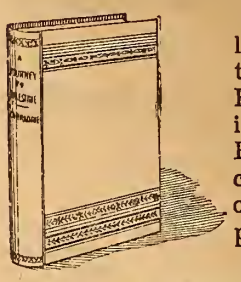
—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.



This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

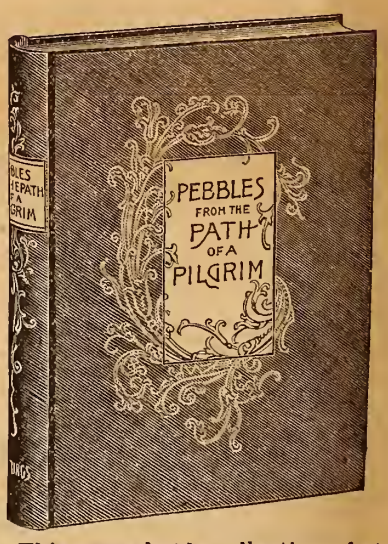
The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.



Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Ayer's CHERRY Pectoral

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

For Colds and Coughs

RECEIVED

MEDAL and DIPLOMA

AT THE

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

World's FAIR.

THE ADVANCE

—IS—

A WIDE AWAKE

RELIGIOUS FAMILY PAPER.

Especially Representing the Congregational Churches of Our Country.

It celebrates the commencement of its 28th year by changing, October 1st, to the popular magazine form, and expects to give a fine portrait of some prominent divine of national reputation as a weekly feature of great value.

During the coming year another serial by "PANSY" will appear. Its Sunday School Lessons, Household and other departments will be kept up to their already high standards, and new and pleasing departments will be added. Subscription price $2.00 per year. If strictly in advance, $1.75.

Trial Offer, Three Months 25 Cts

The Advance,

215 Madison Street, - - Chicago.

N. B.—New subscribers will receive the paper from now to January 1, 1896, for the price of one year. Sample copies sent free on application.

—LODGE LAMP—

a monthly of choice articles on the

SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM,

which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket. N. H.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

FARM NOTES.

A FRUITFUL VINE.

A London paper of a recent date says the great vine at Hampton Court Palace has always been thought to excel in dimensions any other vine in the kingdom, but there is a still greater vine at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Park. These giants have both to give way, however, before the giant vine now growing at Manresa House, Roehampton. This remarkable vine is now bearing eight hundred and fifty-two bunches of grapes, and carries a total weight exceeding half a ton. This vine was planted some thirty years ago, and made such rapid progress that a special vinery had to be erected for it, 224 feet long. Over 2,000 bunches were cut out after they had set. The value of the crop is estimated at £112. Probably no other tree in the kingdom could produce such a sum annually. It would beat three acres and a cow as a means of insurance when the next Birmingbam millionaire is bidding for the popularity which will make him dangerous, then famous, then fashionable.

630,000 QUARTS DAILY.

The Illinois Condensing Company contracted with dairymen to-day for the milk supply for the ensuing six months. They pay twelve cents a gallon for the months of October, November and December, and 11 cents for January, February and March. At the condensing factory 250,000 quarts a day were contracted for, and at the bottling factory 80,000. The company pays the same price at the Carpenterville and Algonquin factories. At the former 250,000 quarts are used daily. The Elgin Butter Company made a contract for about 50,000 quarts daily at the same price.

The safest bank in which a farmer can invest his money is the land. Not necessarily more land, but in making richer and deeper and better in every way that which he now has.

Black caps are a noble berry, and every one should cultivate enough for his own use if no more. I have tested several sorts, and if I was limited to one variety, I should choose the Seneca black cap first and the Gregg second.—S. H. Dawes, Harrison, Me.

Do not pasture too closely in the autumn, for the reason that the tops are a protection to the roots, in summer as well as in winter. The little food which may be found will not compensate for the loss of protection and the mulch which saves the crop through the season of frost.

Successful gardners and orchardists must observe five points in the summer management of young and old orchards: (1) Mellow, well-kept soil for receiving young trees; (2) The same mellow soil through spring and into summer; (3) Young bearing trees kept in good shape by light and needed pruning; (4) Cultivated ground over the whole surface in young orchards for the first five to ten years; (5) Yearly top-dressing with barn manure and lightly with wood ashes.—Country Gentleman.

To remove the constipated habit, the only safe treatment is a course of Ayer's Pills, followed by a laxative diet. Most other cathartics do more harm than good; therefore leading physicians recommend Ayer's Pills, especially as a family physic.

Everybody is Going South Now-a-days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

"Chautauqua" Oil Heater FREE

WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP

Warmth and cleanliness are vital to good health. By actual experience only can you conceive the comfort our handy, portable heater gives. It quickly dispels chill or dampness in sitting-room, bath-room, chamber or nursery; will boil a kettle or fry a steak. Heats a large room in coldest weather. Handsomely nickel plated. Central Draft, Round Wick, Brass Burner. One gallon kerosene lasts 12 hours.

YOU USE THE SOAPS AND THE HEATER THIRTY DAYS BEFORE BILL IS DUE.

THE COMBINATION BOX CONTAINS

100 BARS "SWEET HOME" SOAP. Enough to last an average family one full year. For all laundry and household purposes it has no superior.	$5.00
7 BARS WHITE WOOLEN SOAP. A perfect soap for flannels.	.70
9 PKGS. BORAXINE SOAP POWDER, Cannot possibly injure the fabric. Simple - Easy - Efficient.	.90
¼ DOZ. MODJESKA COMPLEXION SOAP, Exquisite for ladies and children. A matchless beautifier.	.60
1 BOTTLE, 1 OZ., MODJESKA PERFUME. Delicate, refined, popular, lasting.	.25
¼ DOZ. OLD ENGLISH CASTILE SOAP.	.30
¼ DOZ. CREME OATMEAL TOILET SOAP.	.25
¼ DOZ. ELITE TOILET SOAP,	.25
¼ DOZ. LARKIN'S TAR SOAP. Infallible preventative of Dandruff. Unequalled for washing ladies' hair.	.45
¼ DOZ. SULPHUR SOAP,	.45
1 JAR MODJESKA COLD CREAM. Soothing. Cures Chapped Skin.	.25
1 BOTTLE MODJESKA TOOTH POWDER. Preserves the teeth, hardens the gums, sweetens the breath.	.25
1 PKT SPANISH ROSE SACHET POWDER.	.25
1 STICK NAPOLEON SHAVING SOAP.	.10
200,000 FAMILIES USE IN A YEAR THE ASSORTMENT OUR BOX PROVIDES.
THE CONTENTS IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL, COST	$10.00
HEATER WORTH AT RETAIL,	10.00
ALL FOR $10.00 YOU GET THE HEATER GRATIS.	$20.00

HEIGHT, - - 3 FEET.
DIA. OF DRUM, 8½ IN.
WEIGHT, - - 30 LBS.

ENDORSED BY PHYSICIANS.

After trial you pay the retail value of the Soaps alone. All middlemen's profits are returned to you in valuable premiums, so well bought as to save you half the regular retail prices. The Larkin plan saves you half the cost. The manufacturer alone adds VALUE; every middleman adds COST. The publishers of this paper know every claim is sustained by the facts.

Many people prefer to send cash with order—it is not asked—but if you remit in advance, you will receive in addition to all extras named, a nice present for the lady of the house, and shipment same day order is received. The publishers also know that your money will be refunded without argument or comment if the box or HEATER does not prove all expected. Booklet illustrating ten other premiums, including the famous Chautauqua Desk, free upon application.

Write your order like this, TO-DAY—while you think of it, or cut this out and sign it:

"You may ship me, subject to thirty days' trial, ONE COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP, with extras, etc., and the CHAUTAUQUA HEATER.

☞If after thirty days' trial I find the Soaps and the Heater entirely satisfactory and as represented, I will remit you $10.00, if not, I will notify you goods are subject to your order and you must remove them, making no charge for what I have used."

Name, ...

Occupation, ... Street No. .....

P. O. ..... State, .....

ESTAB. 1875. INCOR. 1892. THE LARKIN SOAP M'F'G. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

News of the Week.

WASHINGTON.

Reports received by the director of the mint show that during the month of September the coinage of gold at the various mints amounted to $50,033,692, and of silver $8,765 370, of which $672,200 were standard dollars.

The Bureau of Immigration has received personal descriptions of sixty six anarchists recently expelled from France. Officers at all ports will be furnished with duplicates of this list for purposes of indentification.

The Chinese government, after a delay of over a month, has finally ratified the treaty with the United States providing for the exclusion of Chinese laborers from this country and recognizing the validity of the Geary law.

The condition of the Treasury is again becoming serious enough to demand the attention of the President upon his return from Massachusetts, The rush of imported goods under the new tariff which was expected to crush American industry and load the Treasury with import duties, is not taking place to any considerable extent, and receipts for October, at the present rate, will run about $9,000,000 short of expenditures. Meanwhile the rate of foreign exchange is rising in New York, and a rise of a fraction of a cent more will carry it to the point where it becomes profitable to ship gold.

CHICAGO.

Wholesale grocers have declared war among themselves, and the public will soon have two pounds of sugar and coffee where it now can afford to buy only one. The fight began Monday morning, and it is, in part, a movement to get back to this city the grocery trade of the West and Northwest. It results from a decision on the part of the members of the Illinois Grocers' Association to make the market open and allow each individual firm to do business in its own way.

Vickery Bros., importing grocers, are among the property owners indicted by the Grand Jury on charges of allowing gambling houses to be opened on their premises They have begun a $20,000 damage suit against Rev. Wm. G. Clarke, chairman of the gambling committee of the Civic Federation, and its witnesses.

CASUALTIES.

A cyclone struck Little Rock, Ark., at 7:30 Tuesday evening, and almost devastated the business portion of the city. Four persons are known to have been killed and others injured. The main portion of the business center is practically in ruins and the amount of damage is incalculable. The total property loss will probably approximate $1,000,000. The cyclone was accompanied by a terrific storm and the stocks of goods in those business houses which were unroofed, though not otherwise wrecked, are destroyed by water.

At Pittsburg, Pa., some lads were playing blacksmith and drove three nails into the foot of one of their number who acted the horse. It is feared the child will die from loss of blood and nervous suffering.

Near Lancaster, Pa., Wednesday, a three-story brick dwelling house was blown up by dynamite, and the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Leim, were instantly killed. A servant was seriously injured and may die. Leim was an extensive quarryman. Several days ago he had trouble with his employes, consisting of a gang of Italians, and it is believed that they placed a large quantity of nitro-glycerine used in blasting under the building.

Seven Negroes were reported killed near Hawesville, Ky., on Saturday in a fight about a colored compartment of the train.

Six firemen are dead, ten are more or less injured, and $80,000 worth of property was destroyed by the burning of a five-story furniture establishement on Woodward avenue, Detroit, on Friday.

While John Chandler and his wife, colored, were absent from their home at Smithsonia, Ala., Saturday, their residence caught fire and four of their children perished in the flames.

A severe snowstorm, which in many places has developed into a blizzard, was raging throughout the Northwest Sunday night. North Dakota, portions of South Dakota and the northern border of Minnesota are covered with snow. There was every indication of a repetition of the terrible storm which swept that country fourteen years ago. The wind from the northwest attained a velocity of from thirty to forty miles an hour, piling up drifts and delaying traffic.

ELECTIONS.

Returns from all except two out of 164 towns in Connecticut that held local elections show a Republican gain of twenty-three towns. The majorities show a Republican majority sufficient to elect a governor.

In Waterbury, Conn., the A. P. A. movement aroused the Catholics, who succeeded in electing an entire school board of Catholics.

In almost all towns in the State where the A. P. A. made a fight they met with defeat.

Reports from Georgia show that the Populists have made gains in almost every county, and that the Democratic majority will probably not be more than 15,000. It was nearly 70,000 at the last general election.

COUNTRY.

The greatest syndicate deal since the purchase of the American breweries by English capitalists has just been concluded, and unless something unforeseen occurs all the paper and pulp mills on Fox river will pass into the hands of an English syndicate on April 1.

A month ago a movement was started in Valparaiso, Ind., to enforce the Sunday observance ordinance by Mayor Suman. He succeed in closing all the saloons and by agreement the drug-stores all closed. Now he intends to close the cigar-stores, restaurants, meat-markets and also to stop the sale of Chicago papers. He will endeavor to have an ordinance prohibiting any person under 20 years of age from being on the streets after 9 o'clock at night. A law and order league will be formed to assist him in his work. That will be an attractive city if these reforms are maintained.

FOREIGN.

It is reported that the Japanese have captured Kiu-Lien-Cheng, on the eastern side of the Yalu river. One hundred and fifty thousand men have been gathered at Pekin for the defense of the city, but of this number only 7,000 are effectively armed. Only 50,000 soldiers are available for the defense of the province of Chi-Li Ku and these are raw levies. A Japanese army has landed to the north of the Yellow river in the southern part of the Gulf of Be-Chi-Li, to intercept the transport of troops from the south via the Grand canal to Tien-Tsin. A Japanese fleet of seventeen ships is now blockading the Gulf of Pe-Chi-Li. French troops are massing in Tonquin.

The British Consul at Hankow and Ningpo sent alarming dispatches to the government on Tuesday and Wednesday reporting disturbances in those places, and stating that the European residents were in peril. The Evening News publishes a sensational statement to the effect that the cabinet council was called to consider a dispatch received from Minister O'Connor at Pekin in which it was stated that Russia was intriguing to assist China against Japan in return for the cession to Russia of certain parts of Korea.

Government Reports ON TESTS OF Baking Powders.

Analysis by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Agricultural Dep't proves Dr. Price's to be superior in leavening strength and purity to all other powders.

THE PROOF.
(From Official Records).

	Leavening Gas. Cub. in. per oz.
Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder	166

The award of highest honors to

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

at the World's Columbian Fair was the result of investigation by the Government authorities and leading experts in food products. It stamps Dr. Price's as the best and strongest baking powder ever offered to the public.

A UNIQUE PICTURE.

There was much interest in the N. C. A. Chart used at the World's Fair last year by Rev. J. P. Stoddard in illustrating various facts in Freemasonry.

There has been a demand for copies of it by those who saw it at the World's Fair, and who wish to use it in explaining to their neighbors different phases of the lodge question.

Hence the N. C. A has had a photo-zinc-etching made, size 18x20 inches, which shows the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scoich Rite, etc., and their relation one to another.

There are also seen some of the initiatory scenes in the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason. This chart can be used to illustrate the system of secret societies in a variety of ways. It will be especially helpful to local lecturers and pastors of churches in explaining to people the ceremonies, oaths, prayers, religion, etc , of the lodge. The Chart is on heavy book paper, and will be sent postpaid, at your risk, for six two-cent postage stamps; or sent at our risk by registered mail for ten two-cent postage stamps.

Framed and hung upon the wall it will make a novel and attractive picture for the homes of the readers of the Cynosure.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	55	@	56
Winter No. 2	52		52⅛
Corn—No. 2	51	@	52⅝
Oats—No. 2	28¾	@	32¼
Rye—No. 2	47⅛	@	48
Bran per ton	12 50	@
Hay—Timothy	7 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	14	@	17⅛
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 42	@
Clover (100 lbs.)	7 50	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	55	@	63
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 50	@	6 20
Common to good	2 00	@	5 25
Hogs	2 50	@	5 35
Sheep	1 00	@	3 35

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	55¾	@	65
Corn No 2	56⅛
Oats	32¾	@	36⅛
Rye	52	@	52⅛
Eggs	15		20
Butter	13	@	26
Wool	19	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25	@	5 25
Hogs	2 75		5 72
Sheep	2 00	@	3 25

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Oct. 1 to Oct 6:

A J Millard, Mrs A Schnellbacher Jacob Flieman, D Cameron, F A Armstrong, S R Coyner, J G Lorbier, J McCleery, W H Morrow, N P Eddy, E L Walker, J Walters.

Philo Carpenter:—This saint of God (Moses Stuart) like the old prophets, was satisfied with the institutions and ordinances of God's house, and consequently did not give his influence or aid in supplementing the same with human ordinances and worldly alliances; in other words, he was opposed to secret, oath-bound societies, into which many good men, and even clergymen, have been, and are being "ensnared."

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII, No. 6 — CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1894. — WHOLE No. 1,277.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞ No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid. ☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The New England Meeting..... 8
The Theology of Prof. Swing and of the Lodge..... 8
How a Sublime Prince is Buried 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
A Few Thoughts on Reforms 2
Society (a poem)..... 2
Must History Repeat Itself?..... 2
SELECTED:
A Moral Revival Needed 3
What Masonry does for a Man's Soul..... 3
The Commercial Value of Peace 3
Two Chapters in the History of Labor Unions.. 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 9
REFORM NEWS:
All Roads Lead to New York; Echoes of the Pacific Coast Convention; Wake Again, West Tennessee.....5,6
CORRESPONDENCE:
To Bishop Joyce; Pith Point 6
LITERATURE..... 6
Fact..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
Schools and Colleges.....12
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
MARKETS 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15

It is grand news from Arkansas that the vote in the late election was nearly 2,000 against license, which is practically a victory for prohibition. This vote has been secured without any campaigning loud enough to find an echo through the country.

The Christian Endeavor Convention at Oshkosh shows that the young life of the churches of Wisconsin does not yield to Indiana in zeal or conviction. They declared: "We also believe that Christian Endeavor stands for Christian citizenship, for Christian statesmanship, and we ought to put Christian principles into our politics. . . . . So long as the great social evils like Sabbath desecration, intemperance and gambling intrench themselves behind politics then we must go into politics to combat them." This avowal was made with enthusiasm. The crowds that made it were too great for any one audience room, and Dr. P. S. Henson, the eloquent Chicago pastor, on fire with the sentiment of the meeting, delivered a powerful sermon.

Ingersoll delivered his tirade of threadbare quips against the Bible Saturday night in this city. He was while in Chicago "under the management" of the Press Club. This is the announcement; but the lecture itself may have been the speaker's private affair. The club gave him a reception, however, the night before, and as much as it was possible certainly endorsed and cheered him on in his message of despair and death. This club is said to have in its membership "all the active writers" in the city, among whom we regret to see the name of the Presbyterian, John McGovern. This club is surely not so large and influential as stated above, but its undertaking a propaganda for infidelity, and infidelity of the Ingersoll stamp, is an amazing thing, and sadly discreditable to the literary record of Chicago.

A singular episode of the Father Matthew celebration in this city last week was the reply of Bishop Watterson to Postmaster Hesing. The latter in a speech to the German Catholics of Louisville had freely criticised the decree of the Cleveland bishop against the Roman Catholic liquor dealers. Rejoinder followed reply back and forth in the papers, and ceased because of the spectacle these two eminent adherents of the papal church were making. The bishop is evidently in earnest. He desires the liquor controlled until it shall be rid of its disagreeable features, but has no room yet for prohibitory measures.

Four eminent Republicans are practicing for the race 1896. Mr. Allison of Iowa had a dicided Presidential boost last week. Governor McKinley of Ohio overran Illinois and adjacent States, speaking at every important point. Reed of Maine is coming in a few days to start a hurrah for his candidacy. While ex-President Harrison has come out of his retirement for the same reason. Friday he traveled 182 miles and made seven speeches to a total of 20,000 persons. Altogether three hours and nineteen minutes were occupied in speaking, and there were words enough to fill ten columns of the average newspaper. Surely no one need envy a candidate who begins with such labors.

It is to be regretted that our leading religious papers will persist in stating that "the Knights of Pythias have become a strong ally of temperance," the Congregationalist in particular indulging in a very fulsome editorial notice of "this large and useful organization," which at their late gathering at Washington "elevated its standing in the eyes of the public by declaring saloonkeepers, bar-tenders, and professional gamblers ineligible to membership." It will be remembered that an editorial from this paper against Prohibition by the former editor, Dr. Dexter, was printed and circulated by the saloon party as a quasi endorsement of their business, and doubtless the Knights of Pythias will be equally gratified by such a flattering advertisement in its columns, but it will not tend to increase the confidence of the Christian public in that paper as "a guide to the blind" or "a teacher of the foolish."

Nine murders by the liquor system are counted in a late number of the Voice. They are all of heroes who tried to suppress the saloons. There have been scores of attempts to assassinate by pistol, or bludgeon, or arson, or dynamite. The record should be published. No document would be so convincing for certain minds. One of the latest of these cases is that of W. B. Webster, of Fort Scott, Kan., a W. C. T. U. lawyer who has been making war on the saloons. He learned that two men had been employed to attempt his assassination on the night of Oct. 5. He sent his family away and called in several neighbors and all armed for defense. At midnight the two suspected men attempted to draw him to the yard, but discovering the presence of an armed force they fled. Prominent citizens confirm this report and Webster has pluckily sworn out warrants for the arrest of seven saloon-keepers.

The Pacific Ensign, organ of the W. C. T. Union in California, says that the Congregational church of Santa Monica has been incorporated as "The Prohibition Congregational church." A part of its constitution reads: "No one shall become or remain a member who uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage, or who casts his or her vote for any political party that does not have in its platform, both tate and national, a clause denouncing the liquor traffic, and pledging its overthrow." This is trying to stand on the edge of a plank instead of its side. If a church is Christian it includes prohibition, but the reverse may not be true. Such restrictions about voting belong to Rome. The church has no right to demand a vote for this or that party, only that the voter shall keep a clear conscience before God. If there is not ample conviction on the liquor question it is the fault of the church.

The Prohibition candidate for governor of California is a successful grocer of San Jose, Henry French, who deals in neither tobacco nor liquors. In a late address he tells of some tariff reductions under the new law, and also broaches an approved plan for fairly and intelligently disposing of the tariff issue. He says: "The tariff is a bug-bear to scare voters. What did the last Congress do in the way of relieving the stress of the people by modifying the tariff? It reduced the tariff on playing cards 12 per cent, on firecrackers 66 per cent, on pistols 53 per cent, on gun wads 71 per cent, on clay pipes 80 per cent, and on opium, the greatest curse in the world, next to whisky, 50 per cent. Now I would rectify the tariff by the appointment of a commission—ten honest Democrats, if they can be found; ten sober Republicans, if they can be found; ten intelligent Populists, if they can be found; and any ten Prohibitionists at hand. Let this commission adjust the tariff and all commercial relations."

General Schofield reports, as head of the army of the United States, to the secretary of war, the operations of the year and suggestions for the future. He urges that the military arm of the government be strengthened, because, first, of possible widespread internal dissensions, like the Debs' riot; and second, some little foreign power may come snapping at us. He thinks we will do well to dismiss our over-confidence in American prowess, and prepare for war. But everybody is not rushing to an enlistment office because of Gen. Schofield's recommendation. If we should not be confident in ourselves we may have some faith in the dread of other nations, and ought so to conduct our relations with them as to give no just occasion for a quarrel. As to home disturbances the government can better afford to spend one or two millions in securing justice and the practice of the Golden Rule between man and man, than ten in shooting them after they get exasperated and quarrelsome.

A FEW THOUGHTS ON REFORMS.

BY HENRY M. HUGUNIN.

The superabundance of alleged "reforms" of all sorts—which, by the way, are principally untried theories unsupported by precedents or experience—impels me to present a few thoughts on reforms in general, and our own in particular.

Any reformation that will improve the defective conditions of society, politics or religion, embracing the welfare of an individual, a race or the entire aggregation of humanity, if based upon the eternal principles of Christianity, and carried forward in the spirit of its Founder, will never fail. It matters not with what opposition such a reform may meet, what stumbling-blocks and delays may retard its progress—it is indestructible. "Truth is mighty and will prevail." Error is of the devil and cannot stand before the truth. "I am the truth," said Jesus. Therefore whatever is not supported by his word is error. In the economy of heaven right is invincible, and wrong is successfully opposed. Hence every reformation based upon the word of truth, and involving the best interests of humanity, must succeed.

This is the correct rule by which we ought to measure the value of any proposed reformation. Apply to it the teachings of Christ. Do they harmonize? Ostensibly no reference may be made to Christianity in the reform. No mention of Christian doctrine appears in stating its character and effects. But the careful Christian, enlightened by the Holy Spirit, can easily decide whether it will promote righteousness or unrighteousness; whether Christ would favor it or denounce it; whether it will tend to advance his kingdom, or to engender evil. These test questions may be, and should be, applied to every political measure, every social movement, every theological dogma. Very often, however, the closest examination of the great questions of the day fails to discover the Christian or un-Christian points involved, while the innate policy of the reform appears helpful and wholesome. Then the judgment must be called in to decide the adoption or rejection of the reform, with the consolation of knowing that an error of judgment is more easily amended than an intentional sin, if abandoned as soon as it is discovered.

It is no sign that a reform is worthy of support because a majority favor its adoption, or that it should be rejected because a majority denounce it. Christianity and judgment harmonizing as to its merits, it matters little how scornfully or rapturously it is received by the masses. We need not go out of our own reform for the proof of this. We know that the lodge system is wrong—un Christian—corrupt, and powerful because it is popular among wicked and deluded men; but do we honor our reform the less because it is unpopular and despised by men? No; we know that it is in harmony with Christ and his kingdom, and that settles its value in our estimation.

We know, perhaps, more about our reform than any one can tell us; but its righteousness is the foundation upon which we stand, even if we know but little else about it. We can, from the Bible, truthfully oppose and denounce the whole lodge system, without knowing anything of the lies which Freemasonry tells about Solomon. It is the falsity, the hollowness of its principles against which we fight. If we know all the nonsense and insincerity of its boasted relations to religion, morality and benevolence, we do not care to have fellowship with Hiram Abiff or the fellow who sits in the eastern end of the lodge-room and wears his hat when every other fellow present is uncovered. It is the principle, rather than the machinery used by any evil institution, that becomes the object of reformation. We need not know how to gamble in order to oppose gambling, any more than we need to murder a man to know how a murderer feels. It is enough for us to know that Christianity opposes gambling and murder, and that should make us the implacable enemies of both. Thus we know that no sincere Christian can for one moment defend Freemasonry.

Chicago.

There is just now quite a demand in some quarters for a badge to be worn by church members. The necessity for it probably arises from the fact that church members act so much like worldlings that one can scarcely tell which is which. If the Christians were only labeled in some way there would be no danger of a mistake. And to those particularly interested we would commend the suggestion of a Presbyterian minister of age and experience. The question of a badge for Presbyterian ministers was before the presbytery, and was warmly discussed. Some, particularly the younger ministers, presented in glowing terms the advantage of a badge, while others sharply condemned the wearing of such a trinket. At last one of the older men who had hitherto said nothing, was asked his opinion. He replied, "I do not see anything to hinder us having a badge, and I suggest that it be of tin and about the size of a pie plate." There was no more debate.—Associate Presbyterian Magazine.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

SCENE FIFTH.

(A priest's home just before election. Present—Two Jesuit Fathers, one old, the other young.

FATHER YOUNG:—

How fares the battle for election day?

FATHER OLD:—

Bravely.
There is no doubt their candidate will win.
He is a Mason, and the lodge will work
Its best to seat him; and too well we know
We have no rival in the big round world
That's worthy of the name but Masonry.
Our noiseless feet are busy in the dark,
Our viewless hands strike many a telling blow,
Our unseen ears hear many a secret thing,
But Hiram's sons, in their white bibs, explore
As dark recesses, and mature their plans
With almost equal cunning.
Well, let them work; they are our enemies,
But enemies to Luther's whelps as well,
And they, not we, are digging deep the grave
For Protestant rebellion. I do laugh
With deepest inward pleasure to behold
The lodge and Luther going hand in hand.
The lodge, the parasite whose hug is death,
By our good Lord the pope, it is indeed
A wondrous sight to see these frockless priests
Take cut-throat oaths, and promise to obey
A system that its very votaries say
Had root in old Egyptian heathendom,
Again, the A. P. A., another twig
Of the lodge tree, will bear its fruit for him.
Most of the preachers standing on his side
Will wheel their flocks to line on battle day.
Mason will win: but by no means will gain
The victory he thinks. His golden key
Matches not Peter's key when both compete
With equal vantage in a human soul.
He thinks by slipping a fine gold ring
Upon the finger of fair Miss Saloon
That he has won her. We control the trade.
Good Miss Saloon shall do as we shall say,
And we shall not say Mason.

FATHER YOUNG:—

But how then bravely goes the fight if thus
Our candidate's defeated?

FATHER OLD:—

If our war hinged upon one stricken field
We had been buried centuries ago.
See you not how within the godless meal
The leaven of disunion works, and works?
Within the close ranks of our godless foe
A hundred sects with shrilly clamor wage
A war of dissolution. Thus to-day
Our foe is like a tall and stately tree,
The liquor worm fast fattening at its roots,
Half girdled by the lodge, while in its boughs
The "Higher Critics" pluck the blossoms off
That else would yield a fruitage,
While we, united and aggressive, move
To victory.

FATHER YOUNG:—

I see, I see; thus shall we bide our time,
Till, like the couchant tiger, we may spring
With war terrific on the helpless prey
And make it ours forever.

Oath-bound secret societies, of which Freemasonry is chief, are a monster system which threatens the destruction of our nation, utterly ignores our laws and turns our courts of justice into a farce. It is a hell-born religion of gigantic form; therefore we shun it as we would the devil.

Freemasonry deals, not in modesty and sobriety, but unblushingly supplants the rights of others, as instanced by the recent laying of the corner-stone by them of a public institution in Illinois to be built by taxation of the people, notwithstanding the protests of those opposed to secretism. We charge the late troubles and riots in our country to this monster of evils, and reaffirm our former position to condemn the principle of all secret societies in unequival terms.

We exhort all our preachers to be faithful in exposing this evil in the pulpit and in the home. Free Methodist Conference of Minnesota and Northern Iowa.

MUST HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF?

BY J. B. HOOTON.

We find the world under Masonic pilotage slowly drifting back to the state of affairs that once obtained in India. Slowly but surely the lines of caste are being drawn about the people now as when India was morally and physically by the network of caste drawn about them. Singularly enough we find a great resemblance between the oaths of Masonry and the oaths and penalties of breaking caste as shown in the laws or codification by Manu in India three thousand years ago.

Of the four great castes in India, Masonry in this country furnishes the complete parallel with its dependent or auxiliary orders. Masonry itself corresponds to the Brahmin caste, and the Odd-fellows with their Patriarchs Militant correspond to the Kashateyas or "warrior" caste, as also the K. P. with their Uniformed Rank. The Red Men correspond to the "Vaisayas, or husbandmen," the third caste; while the profanes (outsiders), generally, and particularly the Catholics (whom it is in the plan to subdue), correspond to the Pariahs or lowest caste. The A. P. A's., also under Masonic control, are simply an indiscriminate collective factor to help accomplish their designs, to be moved as pawns upon the board.

Masonry has pretty nearly reached the height of its ambition in this country as far as civil government is concerned. We do not live now under a pure republican government, but under a practical Masonic monarchy,—a masked monarchy. We may not have kings, dukes and lords, but we have Grand Masters and Noble Grands, who take their place in everything so far as aristocracy or autocracy is concerned, and they have more power than medieval kings or nobles ever had.

When complete political power is obtained by the Masons the crystalization into caste will begin. Immigration will be checked and the material of the orders will no longer be recruited from outsiders; but will, as in all the ancient aristocracies, descend from father to son. Bounds will be set between each order, and no promotion from a lower to a higher order as now. Every tyrannical government in the past has always sought to ally itself with a spiritual or church power in order better to control the masses, and Masonry has already formulated its plan for this. As old Lord Saltire cynically remarks in the romance of Ravenshoe: "Religion is necessary in the government of states," etc.

The religion they have selected for their purpose, and which they have openly avowed to be under their patronage, comes also from India, the land of caste. Thus we can see that the whole system tends backwards instead of forwards. This religion or system is Theosophy, so-called, a mixture of Brahminism and Buddhism, and no system could be better devised to deaden and enslave the masses than this. "By their fruits ye shall know them;" and he who reads the history of these religions will find they produce on the people an apathy worse in its effects than the fatality of Mohammedanism. Madame Blavatsky, the founder of this system, notorious for fraud and trickery of the spirit-medium variety, was, strange to say, one of the few female Freemasons.

What hope in a religious system that teaches as the ultimate goal of all human aspirations and strivings, simple annihilation or absorption, and the best oriental scholars are undecided yet as to which it teaches. They teach that by a good life you may obtain an end of reincarnations or metempsychosis, and be rewarded by Nirvana, or practical annihilation of individuality. The joke is that they also teach that you may become so bad that you utterly lose your soul. It dwindles away to nothing. Thus the good and the evil fare alike. This is certainly an approximation to the Rev. Jos. Cook's doctrine of the permanence of evil. These Theosophists say that they do not antagonize Christianity, yet they not only have separate temples of their own, but Lotus circles, or Sunday-schools; and one text-book that I have says that "Theosophy is that part of Masonry," etc.

While a Buddhist remarked that Christianity made a good outrigger to Buddhism, it is doubtful if many Christians would want an outrigger of Buddhism, especially as administered by a Masonic priesthood. In reading of the burning of De Molay and the Knight Templars by Philip the Fair, we do not have to read between the lines to find that they were the same greedy, avaricious and arrogant class that their modern imitators are seen to be. Later on the Teutonic Knights had to be suppressed for the same reason. The late chief of the French detectives in his book said that the first requisite for an appointment on the force was to get the endorsement of the Freemasons. We who study these things know it is the same in this country.

It is significant that while it is perfectly safe to talk against the Catholics here, it is not safe to speak against the Freemasons. Ostracised for my opinions, some of the few friends I have believe as I do, yet tell me that they dare not talk, as it would injure them; that their first duty is to their families, etc. Do the Masons like to have such a reputation at large? It is singular, if they are good men and good citizens, that they try to inculcate such terrorism.

Boston, Mass.

A MORAL REVIVAL NEEDED.

(I. J. Lansing, D. D., Park St. Church, Boston, in the Advance.)

At this very period when the Old Testament is being disparaged by certain critics, the demand for the application of its truths concerning God and law, righteousness and justice, duty and penalty, is becoming visibly imperative in our own and in all so-called Christian countries. The dangerous tendencies of thought and life, the threatened destruction of social order, hostility to government, the war of classes struggling for material spoils, all distinctly indicate that the true and necessary religious teaching should partake very largely of Old Testament characteristics. From the mandates of moral law, the threats of divine vengeance on disobedience, historic examples of ruin by sin, of deliverance by righteousness in the case of persons, families and nations, from the warnings and advices of prophets preaching righteousness, the lessons of the past and of all time need to be drawn and applied directly to present times and present deeds. Virile, stern, unequivocal statements of strong certainties are greatly needed.

A moral revival is such a one as I should suppose followed the preaching of Isaiah, of Jonah, of Savonarola, when men who are plunged into vice and immorality, recklessly reveling in the same, being warned, are arrested, awakened, alarmed, and, amending their conduct and their habits of action, "break off their sins by righteousness and their iniquities by turning to God," becoming virtuous, circumspect and godly.

The names which I have thus used are not intended to indicate that doctrinal, reformatory, organizing, affectional and moral revivals are either facts or terms mutually exclusive of one another. Each implies and embraces in some degree every other. Where a neglected doctrine is lifted up, all the other specialties appear, reformation, organization, emotion and improved conduct. Where organization is improved it is often the expression of a powerful affectional impulse or a reformed condition of life; and so of all the rest. But in classifying them, I only name their dominant characteristic.

To-day we need to preach and produce a better morality, laying stress on law, righteousness, behavior, obligation, duty, danger and the certain disaster which awaits the disobedient in this world as well as in that which is to come. Can we doubt or question that immorality, lawlessness, recklessness toward God and men are amazingly and increasingly prevalent? Taking the Ten Commandments as samples of moral law, manifestly and beyond a doubt, each and all of the ten are set at naught, broken and defied by increasing masses of men. Whatever the cause, the law of the Sabbath, a moral law, fundamental to personal and public order and well-being, is more generally despised and trampled on than ever heretofore. The law of the family is counted vain by the myriads who, in violating it, shamelessly, are either licentious or divorced. Rights of property are denied both theoretically and practically, and there is a decrease of conscientiousness about how money is gained, if only it be gained. Like wild beasts glowering over bones, great associations of men are hating others and bent on getting the lion's share.

The law of truth has been ignored in proportion as the sacredness of oaths has been discounted. Men who do not believe in the Supreme Being say in words, "So help me, God," and bear false witness before courts and committees to gain a present advantage. Sexual morality has become so unfashionable that literally armies of women and men utterly ignore it, and in theatrical shows, public advertisements, periodicals and so-called literature, their vices are openly encouraged. The official representatives of the majesty of the law are often criminals and protectors of criminals. So on through the chapter.

And yet when one looks straight at these facts, sees and states them, he runs into great danger of being charged with being discouraged or dyspeptic, and so losing his influence with the people who shut their eyes and assume, when self-blinded, to be doing their duty. I am sure that chief of police, in a small city, was nearly right when he recently said: "You preachers do not know much of the actual life of the people. You pray with your eyes shut, and you prepare your sermons out of books in your study with the curtains down." The giant preachers and reformers of the Old Testament were not pessimistic or discouraged, neither were they blind. They "preached righteousness in the great congregation" with vigorous directness.

The question with ministers is whether they will merely go on refining on their refinements, preaching what most people do not care about nor profit by, or whether they will look all the facts in the face, and all the people, too, and speak God's appropriate and majestic word. Many lament the lack of a general revival, and groan because there is none, when in truth the revival they are thinking about would be a consequence of a stirring announciation of the law of righteousness, and denunciation of common sins. Preachers should pray less in semi tones and preach more in thunder tones.

The moral revival which will save the people and the state must be sought with righteousness toward God as an end. How? By denunciation? Yes; not wholly but partly. But more by the distinct preaching, with all its sanctions, of the law of God, by righteous living, by bold and fearless leadership, by making it very difficult for a wicked man who means to stay wicked to remain comfortable as a church member by holding up the Bible standards of law and life, by preaching "righteousness, temperance and judgment to come." The multitudes in sin, from our silence think that we do not know that they are living so, or if we know, that we do not dare or do not care to correct them; or they have settled down to the belief that reform is not worth while, or if necessary, is impossible for them.

We need a Moral Revival. Society, the nation, the church all need it. And God's Word, history, a scientific thinking, present emergencies, plain duty and the kingdom of Christ all cry out for it.

WHAT MASONRY DOES FOR A MAN'S SOUL.

I am now an old man down near the river, and have spent the most of my life in the service of my Master as a minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. I wish to give to our readers a little of my experience and knowledge of what Masonry will do for a man.

Years ago, when in the prime of life and active work, I was asked to join the Masonic lodge; and the offer was made to me that if I would join, it should cost me nothing to take any degree, no doubt the object being to give character and add influence to the lodge, being urged and invited in various ways. I plainly told them I would not go anywhere I could not take the Lord Jesus Christ with me. And in later years I lived by a neighbor who was a Mason in good standing and who departed this life two years ago. As a neighbor and citizen, he was good and kind, always friendly and sociable, but no Christian. The time was when he enjoyed the life and power of God in the soul; but after becoming a Mason that life faded and died, and he was no longer found in the house of prayer. As a neighbor I visited him frequently and talked with him on the principle of Masonry. He claimed that a Mason in addressing God the Father as the supreme ruler and great architect of the universe included Jesus Christ. My answer was: "He that is ashamed of me and of my words, of him will I be ashamed before my Father and the holy angels." And "No man cometh unto the Father but by me."

Then during his sickness I visited him, and one day he said to me: "Elder, I have been a Mason for about twenty years, and to the best of my knowledge I have never heard the name of Jesus Christ used in the devotional exercises." I replied: "And yet he is the only way of life and salvation." He said: "Yes." And when nearing death and talking to no one in particular, he said: "We went to the gates and they would not let us in. They did not know we were wanderers from the feet of Jesus." And with almost the last breath he was heard to say: "Most Worshipful Grand Master," and other Masonic phrases. Thus he died and was buried with all the honers, pomp and show of Masonry, which I consider a disgrace to Christianity. May God help us as a church to ever stand true to the principles of truth, righteousness and reform, and in the name of Jesus Christ to stand before the world as a beacon light to guide immortal souls to the haven of rest.—Aquila Purtee, in the Christian Conservator.

THE COMMERCIAL VALUE OF PEACE.

Geo. May Powell, president of the arbitration council at a Peace Congress at Ocean Grove, N. J., this summer, said: "There is more money in peace than in war. The wholesale murder, lust, intemperance and general lawlessness of war are the hellish dams and sires of those spirits of anarchy which are the terror and the ruin of all the best interests of labor and capital. This is true in all financial relations of individuals, of communities and of states. In either of several recent strikes, the parties thereto have each spent more than the wages in question, and the commercial interests of the country have lost tenfold the aggregate shortage, and the questions at issue are far from settled. Therefore boards of trade and chambers of commerce and kindred organizations will make good investments of time, money and effort, to foster peace, to favor industrial and international arbitration, profit-sharing, co operative stores, postal savings banks, etc. The man with even a small sum in savings will not throw bombs, or carry the red flag. Public school savings banks are good elementary steps in this direction. Often, what to the careless observer has no bearing on the peace question, is vital to it. War creates rest day desecration, and there is no greater creator of anarchy than this desecration. Statistics show that the war doubled the intoxicants' consumption of our country. Conservative analysis of the United States Treasury returns on malt, fermented and distilled liquors, and on tobacco indicates that the retail intoxicants bill of our country is over one thousand million dollars a year, liberal allowance being made for that used for medical and mechanical purposes. This, however, represents the approximately pure. Police reports show that adulterated goods (?) in this line are quadruple the value of the pure. Here then is a bill of over two thousand million dollars a year, half of which is to be charged to war!"

The Pacific Ensign tells that Orange county, California, was once the home of the wine interest of that State. But suddenly a blight settled upon the vineyards and acres of vines had to be rooted up. New vines were set out, only to share the fate of the old ones, and the once prosperous business dwindled into insignificance. A German residing at a neighboring town accounted for the state of affairs in this way: "A number of years ago one of the W. T. C. U. 'vimmens' came to lecture to us on temperance. We would not let her have a place to speak in, and she went out on the street and prayed God to curse the town and break up our wine business. We don't believe much in God over there, but soon a blight fell on our vines and we had to dig them up, and now the red scale has come and I guess our place is cursed, sure enough."

TWO CHAPTERS IN THE HISTORY OF LABOR UNIONS.

COLORADO LABOR TROUBLES.

(American Citizen in Farm, Field and Fireside.)

Let me give you a short account of the strike at Cripple Creek.

I think it was in December or January when the wage question came up. The wages at that time were $3 50 for ten hours' work, but as times were in such a deplorable condition and money scarce, it was conceded by all reasonable people that there should be a slight reduction, and the mine proffered the miners of Cripple Creek three dollars for nine hours' work, or thirty-three and one-third cents per hour. The union rejected the offer and the strike ensued, the strikers taking possession of the mines and refusing to allow any one to work. Now take notice that this was a fair offer, and so admitted by all miners throughout the country, except a few "rule or ruin" miners. It was the best wages and shortest hours of labor offered in the world; the rest of us in the State were receiving but $2 50 for ten hours' labor.

The men owning the mines then attempted to get possession of their property in a lawful way, and as the officers did not dare serve warrants, the sheriff called on the Governor for troops, which were sent as requested. When the militia arrived at Cripple Creek the Miners' Union telegraphed the Governor as follows: "Why did you send troops? everything quiet here." To which the Governor answered, "Have been deceived by the sheriff; will withdraw troops immediately," which he did.

The union, finding they had the backing of the Governor and militia, organized a reign of terror in the camp. They built forts, entered private houses and seized arms; ordered American citizens to leave camp and never return; beat men over the head with guns; one at least died from his injuries; blew up the shaft and engine of one of the mines with dynamite, and by a miracle escaped killing those miners who were in the shaft at the time, and the strikers knew they were there and it was the evident intention of the strikers to kill them. They escaped into the air shaft and thus evaded the full force of the explosion, but it will take months to recover if they ever do.

All this time the law-abiding element was begging and praying the Governor to send troops to stop this bloody, unlawful work, but he refused; and not until a force of deputy sheriffs large enough to subdue the strikers was organized and he was afraid that his pets would get hurt, did he interest himself. He then went to Cripple Creek; and after a conference with the strikers he bore to the mine owners, from the strikers, a compromise as follows: seven hours and forty minutes of actual labor to constitute a day's work; three dollars as compensation; the non-union miners to be allowed to work thirty days providing there were not enough union miners to work the mines; after working thirty days the non-union miners either had to join the union or quit work.

Remember, these strikers for the most part are not moral men; they spend their time in vicious pursuits. Cripple Creek is full to overflowing of saloons, gambling houses and bagnios which are supported by these strikers. How would you, as a man and Christian, like to be compelled to fellowship with such a lot? And can you respect a man who would consent to be the bearer of such a disgraceful and un-American compromise? Of course the compromise was rejected and the army of deputies ordered to advance, seeing which, Governor Waite ordered out the troops to protect the strikers. Through his connivance the leaders of the strike and those who murdered men and destroyed property had time to escape, and they will go elsewhere to breed murder and sedition. The strike is dead and many of us thank God that it is so, for we still feel that we are true American citizens and are not compelled to obey the unjust and tyrannical order known as a Miner's Union.

I would prefer that you do not give my name in full, as it would endanger my life or liberty; for if I should be located by the union I would be ordered to leave, which order if not obeyed means assassination. But I am patriotic enough to submit to even that to have the truth known. It will not be the first time I have offered my life for personal liberty, as I am an ex-Union soldier. I hope you will publish this letter in the interest of truth and justice.

THE FROSTBURG STRIKE

The mining town of Frostburg, Maryland, is beautiful for situation.

"Set on an hill" it is seen from far.
"The hills, rock ribbed and ancient as the sun.
The vales, stretching in pensive quietness between"— these are at once the strength and the beauty of the town. It is the center of the soft coal trade, and annually hundreds of thousands of tons of the precious mineral are dug and shipped. Indeed, the town itself is built over some of the mines, which it is needless to say are at once the life and the wealth of the whole region. Your readers will doubtless remember that in conjunction with the recent miners' strike in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Illinois, the men at Frostburg also went out. Being in the town and the neighborhood this week, I was interested in learning of the strike, what it was for, what it cost, and what was the result. I inquired of persons in various walks of life and the universal verdict has been that it was wholly unjustifiable, wrong, and disastrous. In the spring of 1894 there was a meeting of mine operators and representatives of the miners of Cumberland. The former told the latter that owing to the financial and industrial depression, they were compelled to make a reduction of 20 per cent per ton for mining, that is from fifty cents, the usual price, to forty, but promising at the same time that when conditions improved fifty cents would be paid. The miners had every reason to accept this promise in good faith, and they did accept it, for a similar promise made several years ago was redeemed when business became better. In this way things moved satisfactorily for a couple of months. Miners' strikes elsewhere did not affect the men in the Frostburg region. Soon, however, affairs changed. A labor organizer and agitator came over from Pennsylvania and through his influence a strike was declared, sympathetic with those elsewhere. It is true the old contract stood and a large minority, especially of the older men, were strongly averse to a strike and some did not go out. The younger men however were hot for it. When the last strike was caused in 1886, these young fellows were "yet in kilts," as the expression is, and never having seen one in its disastrous effects, broke faith and quit work. Indeed, according to all reports, the men had no grievance, for not until two or three weeks after they laid down their tools was a meeting called to formulate grievances.

I inquired also the cost of the strike. To the miners it was about $65,000; to the coal companies from $700,000 to $1,000,000; to the State of Maryland $55,000 for maintenance of the militia called out to keep the peace, besides the cost of United States deputy marshals; and to the general public, the people who handle coal on the canal, in factories, steamships, etc., because the commodity could be obtained, a sum that will never be known. A half dozen coal companies had their work stopped or greatly interfered with for six weeks, the good name of the State of Maryland suffered, and untold wrong was wrought, merely because men broke their faith. Nothing was gained, and much lost. Moreover, the men returned to work, i.e., those who could get it, at the old price of forty cents per ton, and indeed before resumption, many declared their willingness to return at thirty cents. I am glad to know that all the twelve or fourteen ministers of the town were firm and outspoken in opposition to the strike. Now the trouble is a thing of the past, and affairs are becoming normal. Several have told me that business has so revived that if there had been no interference, most probably the wage reduction would have been declared off by this time. If the coal companies had broken faith, public sentiment would have condemned them, and in this case the miners justly failed to receive popular sympathy.—Lutheran Evangelist.

The total number of scholars enrolled on the public school lists of Chicago for September is 173,101. The high schools have 7,288, 2,000 more than for the same month of 1893. The grammar and primary schools have 165,369, the Deaf Mute and Waif's Mission 94, and the House of Correction 173. The new college preparatory starts out with 177.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Christian education and labor among young people.—The Papist demand for a system of arbitration.—The American system already provided.—The Pope as international arbitrator.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10, 1894

Last Sabbath was a very interesting day at the First Congregational church. The Sabbath-school, a large and flourishing one, held a rally just before the morning sermon, which, in addition to inaugurating the fall and winter campaign, was made to embrace a hearty welcome to Rev. Dr. S. M. Newman, the deservedly popular pastor of the church, who had just returned from his vacation, which poor health had made unusually long this year. The principal address was delivered by Justice Brewer of the U. S. Supreme court, who teaches a class of young men in the Sabbath-school, on the importance of Bible study by both young and old, and it would be difficult to find a man who can talk more entertainingly and instructively upon that subject. Letters of greeting were read from several old members of the church, now residing elsewhere, one of them being from Gen. O. O. Howard, who worshiped with the congregation in a hired hall before they were able to build a church. Prof. Bischoff, the blind organist of this church, has been for years one of the best known residents of Washington, and has few, if any, equals in this city in skillful handling of the pipe organ.

The Epworth League inaugurated their winter work with a consecration meeting, at which the leaders of the twenty-five chapters of the District of Columbia consecrated themselves to renewed work. The principal address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Hugh Johnson, who reminded those about to be consecrated that they represented an army of 750,000, and said: "On every Epworth League banner there should be inscribed: 'Loyalty to Christ and loyalty to his church.' We need consecrated, intelligent young men and women to assist in the Bible study among the young. A whole generation in the church exists, and the leaders should see that the opportunity is not lost."

The new executive committee of the district union of Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor met this week and named the several joint committees necessary to look after the work for the coming year and decided that the next mass meeting, to be held Nov. 16, should be a missionary rally.

On Sabbath, Sept. 30th, Cardinal Gibbons delivered a sermon on the labor question at Frostburg, Md. He emphasized what Bishop Keane had said in an interview the preceding Sunday: "That the contest between labor and capital in this country has come to a point where some middle ground must be taken by the authorities." He then said: "I earnestly hope that some efficient remedy will be found to put an end to the recurring strikes, and arbitration seems to be the most potent method that can be conceived of."

It will be remembered that in April last, the legate, Satolli, published an article in the "International Journal of Ethics," in which he insisted that the court of Rome should become once more —"a court of arbitration for the strong and a court of appeal for the weak." All this talk means papal arbitration—the interference of Rome in all disputes in this country. These Roman advocates are continually ringing the changes upon this word 'arbitration."

The Anglo-American system of laws has for a thousand years contained everything necessary in the process of arbitrating all disputes. If two parties have a controversy, they may at any time, by certain well-known methods, voluntarily submit their dispute to the arbitration of a third party selected and agreed upon by themselves, and the award of that arbitrator may be made binding, like the decree of any other sort of judicial functionary, by preserving a prescribed course, distinctly laid down in the code of every State. Arbitration is a voluntary settlement of a dispute out of court. It is also a process resorted to for settling disputes between nations —sovereign powers—over which no court has jurisdiction. Its essential feature is that it is voluntary, that it is a contract to abide by a certain decision. But what the papists and their allies want is to introduce a compulsory process under the name of arbitration, whereby one party may be compelled to stop his business and arbitrate at the instance of another party whose sole object is to cripple his opponent. An ordinary lawsuit would cover all this ground except the stoppage of business.

But that is the very point the Jesuits want to inject into our system. They want to make the process of arbitration an adjunct of the strike and the boycott, which are nothing but modern forms of excommunication. The bill introduced in the Senate of the United States last summer by Mr. George, of Mississippi, exactly met their views. If that bill, as originally introduced, had become a law, it would have thrown this government into conflict with its own subjects on terms of equality. In other words, it would have destroyed the sovereign capacity of the United States in respect to corporations and labor unions, and when disputes arose between the United States and such organizations, recourse to some foreign power would have become absolutely necessary to settle the matter. Here lay the great opportunity of the church—the papacy. Satolli distinctly declares in the article above referred to, that the papacy is the only power qualified to arbitrate in such cases. Everybody ought to read that article.

What these papist incendiaries virtually ask is, that this government surrender its sovereign function of adjudicating disputes between its subjects in the manner provided for in the Constitution. There appeared in the Pope's organ at Rome last summer an article on this subject which all ought to read. The Review of Reviews gives the following summary of it:

An important article is to be found in the Civilta Cattolica on the question of international arbitration in connection with the memorial which, as a result of the Chicago congresses, has been issued by the United States government to all the governments of the civilized world. This document prays that they will unitedly agree by mutual treaties to submit for settlement by arbitration all such international differences as shall fail of satisfactory solution by ordinary diplomatic methods. The Civilta hails the step as one of extreme significance, and speaks of it, indeed, as "little less than gigantic;" by it the question of international arbitration ceases to be a mere private matter, and has become a universal question in which all the governments of the world are interested. The institution, declares the Jesuit writer, of such a high court of international justice would of itself be sufficient to immortalize our century.... Public opinion must come to their support, and hence no time should be lost in cultivating popular sentiment in favor of this all important subject of permanent peace.

To the question of who is to arbitrate, the Civilta declares frankly that only one answer is possible. The Pope must act as arbitrator; he alone possesses in his person the indispensable qualifications:

"1. His power is spiritual and therefore more removed from mere political consideration than that of any other monarch.

"2 The Pope is habitually an old man and celibate, devoid of family ties and uninfluenced by passion.

"3 He is compelled to take as his model, in the eyes of the world, that divine Prince of Peace whose representative on earth he is.

"4. Whereas the increase of their temporal estates is the great aim and object of all sovereigns, the sole glory of the pontiff consists in open defense of truth and right.

"5. The decisions of the Pope are likely to be accessible to all, even to those who do not recognize his religious domination as being those of a great moral power.

"6 Seek and find, if you can," concludes the writer, "any man who can give higher pledges of integrity than these."

The temporal sovereignty over a little corner of Italy would be inconsequential compared with the vast influence suggested in the proposal of this papal organ. *

Twelve students were expelled last Wednesday from Purdue University on account of the recent hazing of young Parker, of Indianapolis. The faculty decided to dismiss all concerned. The victim of the hazing had declined to give the names of his tormentors. A large number of Purdue students held a meeting and passed resolutions that the collegiate body take formal action condemning all hazing practices, and discourage by word and example the participants in such disgraceful deeds.

—Rev. Dr. O. P. Gifford preached his farewell sermons in Immanuel Baptist church in this city, Oct. 7th, to large audiences. The church adopted a report of a special committee appointed to voice their expression of sympathy and regret. The report says: "Mr. Gifford came to us in December, 1891, and for nearly three years he has faithfully preached to us the Word of God and the Gospel of his grace. His sermons and expositions of the Scripture have been most excellent and timely, and during his ministry the church has been united, and many have professed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. He has been earnest and foremost in urging moral reforms in our city government, and fearless in denouncing evil. Tender in his sympathies, and kindly in his manner, he has endeared himself in many ways to many people, and gained a strong hold upon the community. He leaves us, not from our choice, but of his own accord, because he believes it to be best for his family and himself to change their residence. Therefore, be it resolved, that in parting with our pastor we express our confidence in him, and our love for him and his family, and warmly commend him to the church to which he goes, praying that the blessing of the Lord our God may be upon him."

REFORM NEWS.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO NEW YORK.

GREAT PROMISES AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS FOR THE EMPIRE STATE CONVENTION.

246 W. 36th St., New York City,
Oct. 11th, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—I am exceedingly busy today, but I must take time to write you regarding what is to be, with God's blessing, the grandest convention we have ever held in this great city. I was aware that I came bearing an unpopular truth; that most of the great church edifices of the city would not be open for the utterance of this truth within their walls; that not only those outside, but a majority of those within the churches would be against it. But to make any impression on the masses a large central church or hall must be secured; and there must be extensive advertising of the godly men who should speak. Will God open the door? Will it be possible in these times to raise the money needed? These and many like questions confronted me. But God had never failed; so committing all to him, the work of preparation began, with the light of victory in my soul.

The head winds blew yesterday but to-day all is calm and bright. The church is secured. Those willing to speak are many, and the money needed is at hand. The last man with whom I talked this morning gave me twenty-five dollars toward the expenses. He is a Wall street broker and doubtless handles millions. If his contribution did him as much good as it did me, he will be blessed indeed.

The place of our convention will be the Seventh Avenue United Presbyterian church (Seventh avenue, between 13th and 14th streets). The time set is Monday and Tuesday, October 29th and 30th. Next week an outline of the program will be given. It will be interesting. We will have some of those who have studied the lodge for years, for the principal speeches; and many new names will appear among those who will make the short addresses.

Let every friend in New York, eastern New Jersey and Pennsylvania, who can possibly attend this gathering, set down the date, and plan to come. Let those expecting to come write me that I may help arrange for their entertainment. While this convention is held under the auspices of the N. Y. State Association, those from other States will be welcome. We expect several speakers from New England and New Jersey. President C. A. Blanchard is invited.

I should like to write of some of the meetings I have been attending. At the Christian Alliance Tabernacle Dr. Simpson and his co-workers are holding a two weeks' convention. Sabbath evening the American theater was packed. It seats 2,200. It was announced that those having special lines of religious work which they wished to bring before the convention should be on hand at 2 o'clock to-day. I hope to find opportunity to speak of the N. C. A. work. Rev. Farr, of the the Alliance Training School, is to be one of our speakers.

Let me hear from you, friends. Will every one do his part in this earnest and thrilling time? I am sure you will answer YES; and come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

W. B. Stoddard.

ECHOES OF THE PACIFIC COAST CONVENTION.

On Saturday evening, Sept. 29, I landed at Oakville parsonage, United Presbyterian church. It is occupied by Rev. A. M. Acheson and family, who received me kindly and entertained me in a royal manner during my stay. May the Lord reward them.

Rev. A. has been the regular pastor here for nearly eighteen years. Now he has resigned to go elsewhere. His resignation takes effect the last Sabbath in October. With him and his family, as well as with his dear people, it means much to separate after so long a pastorate. The brother retires with the very best wishes of all his people.

I spoke in his church on Saturday night, to a small congregation, on the subject of secret societies. The pastor regretted very much that I had not been announced regularly so the people generally could have heard me. He urged them to have me return in the future and repeat the subject.

In the morning of Sabbath the 30th, I spoke for the pastor on the subject of infidelity. We had an excellent congregation. In the evening I spoke to the Y. P. S. C. E. society and also preached again to a good congregation.

Here was a day well spent. It is a strong church, and they are not afraid nor ashamed to show their colors. Where the pastor is true to God and the church, I find as a rule the people are true. "Like priest, like people."

From here I went to Rowland in Linn county. I was met at Halsey by Mr. Chas. Clark, who conveyed me to the appointment eight miles distant, and kindly entertained me. On the night of the 1st I spoke on the saloon evil to a fair audience. The next evening, on account of rain and a literary society at the Grange Hall, our crowd was not so large. There was excellent attention, and considerable interest was manifest. One farmer boasted of being an excellent Oddfellow, and said when he got the means to spare he thought he would join the Masons. I told him it looked foolish to me to see a man pay $35 for what he can buy for 50 cents, but so men will do.

From here I went to Scott's Mills in Marion county. This is a new town of one and a half years' growth. It is settled principally by the Friends.

Rev. John Henry Douglass, whom I knew in Ohio twenty years ago, has his home here. He is at present in the East on account of poor health. His son and his wife teach the school. Rev. Chas. Scott is the pastor of the church here, which numbers one hundred and forty members. Rev. L. J. White of the Baptist church resides here. He and his noble Christian wife are true reformers, who believe in showing their faith by their works. The Frazier family are all loyal to God on the line of moral reform. The Coulsons, Armstrongs and others are of the same stripe.

The Odd-fellows have a lodge, which I find is breaking into the church, notwithstanding their discipline plainly forbids it. If the church is of God, then it is sufficient for all purposes of reform and benevolence, and the Odd-fellows are not needed. When I was announced to speak here, some Odd-fellow was heard to use the vilest epithets. They actually threatened to maltreat me, but when I got on the ground they changed their minds for some reason.

The good people arranged for me to "beard the lion in his den." So they hired the hall occupied by the Odd-fellows, where I spoke two nights, first on the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and then on the lodge evil. I find a strong body of Republicans here, but quite a number of true Prohibitionists also. The address was listened to with marked attention.

On the 5th I called on Pastor Scott, of the Friends' church. I found him in sympathy with the work, both on the saloon and lodge questions.

Rev. Rhys Gwynn, of Wilhoit, was present and assisted in the services. The congregation frequently applauded, and the meeting was a success.

Many signed our constitution. Ten yearly subscriptions were secured for the Cynosure, and many friends were made for our cause. I was kindly entertained here by Revs. White and Armstrong and their kind families. May the Lord greatly bless our work here on the coast.

P. B. Williams.

WAKE AGAIN, WEST TENNESSEE!

A GOOD WORK BEGUN IN A CENTRAL CITY.

Jackson, Tenn., Oct. 4, 1894.

I came to Jackson, west Tennessee, Sept. 20th, to work for the Master in preaching and lecturing in reform work, and particularly to open up to view the anti-Christian character of the lodge system.

This is a pleasant city with about twelve thousand inhabitants. Three railways pass through it. It has electric lights and street cars. Water is supplied all through the city, forced by steam power from thirty wells of clear, soft water, affording an abundant supply. The farming country about is much better than in the counties south. The city has twelve churches for the whites and six for the colored people; two public schools for whites and one for colored; the last having about six hundred pupils, and the others eleven hundred and fifty. "Lane Seminary, "for Negroes, is located here. The Southwest Baptist University is quite a celebrated school of west Tennessee. The Methodists have a female college of several hundred students.

The Tabernacle that was built for Sam Jones' meetings, seating about 4,500 people, has been pretty well filled almost daily for two weeks, listening to the celebrated temperance worker, Capt. W. C. Dutton, who has succeeded in getting over two thousand names to the total abstinence pledge. He pleads also for prohibition. I was glad to hear him say that he should not try to organize a Good Templar lodge here as he has been in the habit of doing in many other places. Many drinking men have signed the pledge, and it is to be hoped that the nineteen saloons in the city will not be well patronized, and that they will ere long be wiped out. Mr. Dutton informed his hearers that in Mississippi there are but a few places where strong drink can be had; and he made a strong appeal to voters to work for a local option law in this State. God hasten the time when—higher than local option—we shall have clean, God like prohibition!

I called on Rev. H. W. Tibble, pastor of the first Baptist church, and soon learned his opposition to our cause. He said he did not want me, "to use his name to favor the work of the National Christian Association." Among other things he said: "Knight Templarism is purely Christian." Of course I demurred to such a claim, and showed him a big gulf between the two.

Next I found Rev. Mr. Harris, pastor of the colored M. E. church, having several hundred members. He was educated in Ohio. After a little conversation he declared himself "opposed to the whole thing" of secret societies. "But," said he, "our people are just full of secret societies, to their detriment." I gave him a copy of the Christian Cynosure and of the "Anti-mason's scrap-book," and do hope and pray that he may become so imbued with the truth on this subject as to testify publicly against secretism. I shall call on him again, but am thinking, however, that there is a power above him, a presiding elder, with whom I had a few words in another house, and who wore the lodge insignia. This influence, and a large number of lodge members, may form such a network of influences as may deter him from declaring "all the counsel of God," unless he shall have abounding grace. I intend, God willing, to yet give good counsel to that presiding elder.

Passing along a certain street I came near an elderly black man, and was drawn to speak with him. He invited me to a seat. He soon was, as I think, convinced that I was a real friend to colored people, and found that I was opposed to Masonry. After a little talk he said he was a Mason, or had been, but was not doing much at it now. He did not attempt to defend it, and in a manner opposed it. This man was a slave. His old master lives here in the city. He tells me that he was the first colored pastor and the first colored school teacher in Jackson.

I have preached three times, and this in three different congregations, and have an invitation to preach in the (white) Cumberland Presbyterian church.

To day, Oct. 3J, I called upon Rev. W. T. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist church (colored), and to my happy surprise found one who had been a reader of the Christian Cynosure for two years, although he has not taken it for some time. He seemed glad, indeed, to see a copy of the paper again, and began to make inquiries as to our success in the cause. Said he left the Masons and does "not belong to any secret clan." "I want you to give my people a good round on that subject," he said, and fixed the time for next Sabbath at 3 P. M. He wanted to have a house full for me.

Since the above I gave a lecture at the Macedonia Baptist church, which was listened to by a good congregation, which, by the invitation of the pastor, Rev. John Morgan—unexpectedly to me—contributed to my benefit. The pastor had no word of approval for Masonry, but thought some lodges were useful to help along church matters. By quite a number of his members I had personal commendations for my lecture. To-night I am to speak in the Bethel African M. E church, Rev. M. S. Finney, pastor. C. Powers.

CORRESPONDENCE

TO BISHOP JOYCE AND THE OREGON CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren:—I have been a thorough Methodist in sentiment for more than fifty five years. Methodism is always the same. God is the author of it through the Wesleys. The M. E. church has been a power in the world for good. I have always loved it so well that I never could be turned away from its good rules and doctrines. I will always honor it and pray that it may yet do much more good in the future.

In my judgment, if the ministers and members of the church had lived up to the real spirit of her good discipline, none of them would ever have gone into the selfish and worldly secret organizations, as so many have done, but would have given their money, their talents and time to the honor of the church of Christ in place of the lodges. We would have built more churches and better ones at less cost. We would have cut off all needless expenses in building our dwelling houses. We would have been economical in all our expenditures. We would not have violated our general rules in "the putting on of gold and costly array." By this time we would be able to give more than twenty million dollars annually for the support of the missionary cause. We would have had no worldly entertainments; no fancy fairs; no dramatic performances; no worldly socials; no church festivals to raise money; no church kitchens; no lottery cakes; no worldly picnics; no auction sales; no necktie parties or any other worldly performances.

If none of the above impediments had ever been in the M. E. church, I believe it would have been worth ten times as much as it is at present in every respect. I am radically opposed to the secret lodge system, with all the other impedi ments above named.

So I ask your honorable body to please give me an honorable dismissal from your conference and the M. E. church, properly accredited to the radical wing of the U. B church, with the understanding that I leave your honorable body with the most cordial feeling and kindest regards for your present and eternal welfare, and will give you aid as far as I can consistently in the future.

Samuel Mathew.

PITH AND POINT.

HOW BRO. FENTON TRAVELS.

A man spoken to on the train became much interested in secret societies. The subject seemed to be entirely new to him. He is an Episcopalian. His pastor, he says, receives the Sir Knights into his church on Easter day and preaches for them. We had the car to ourselves and one or two others all the way to Milwaukee. After reaching Milwaukee the train was well filled. I gave away literature until the news agent of the train interfered. Considerable interest, however, was awakened.—Wm Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.

NO MOPING IN OLD GENTRY COUNTRY.

These are close times financially. I am deep in a local prohibition campaign. We are issuing 3,000 of the Temperance Wave each month, giving us a better hearing than any three country papers. I believe there are sixteen papers published in Gentry. We have placed nearly 70,000 pages of prohibition, anti-Catholic and anti secret literature since the latter part of June. There is a large papal element in this and Nodaway counties. I would like very much to resume the anti-secrecy work, but unforseen financial environments have hampered me. But when one way closes up, I do not sit down and "suck my thumb," but move out on some other lines. I have plans, and if all goes well will yet stand in the forefront of the hottest battle on the lodge. If may be in a new direction entirely. I must bide my time until my girls are older. They are doing nicely in their studies. I read the Cynosure with profound interest and am watching the reform movements with ever increasing watchfulness. You may hear more of my work by and by; and in the meantime I wish for your headquarters ever increasing influence and success. The field is white, the reapers are few and the daylight is passing rapidly — M N Butler, Farlington, Mo.

Draw a big blue mark around this letter. Bro. Butler has a habit of rousing himself like Samson. We shall keep informed about him.

LITERATURE.

The Child, Physically and Mentally. Advice of a mother, according to the teaching and experience of Hygenic Science. By Bertha Meyer. Paper, 50c. Pp. 155. M. L. Holbrook Co., New York.

This is not so much a text book as a companion for mothers, written with a conscientious regard for the far-reaching consequence of its study. The author endeavors to indicate such helpful and hygienic rules for securing the physical and mental development of children, as mothers can readily understand and successfully practice. The points of infinite advantage and responsibility of the mother's station are carefully pointed out, and she is stimulated by this volume to arrest evil tendencies, heal those which promote disease, and encourage that which is naturally good in the child and urge it into healthful life. Pure air, cleanliness, and obedience are among the primary canons of child training. Every mother who reads this book will welcome it as a useful companion in her sacred calling.

Who Made the New Testament?—The answer to this question makes the No. 9 of the celebrated anti infidel library issued by H. L Hastings from the Scriptural Tract Repository, 47 Cornhill, Boston. In this argument for the authenticity of the New Testament Mr. Hastings first effectually answers the old story of the infidels about the work of the Nicene council in 325 A. D. He shows that the canon of the New Testament was settled by the Christian church long before that council; that numerous spurious or apocraphyl gospels had been rejected before that time, and reviews skillfully the laws of evidence which furnish an unfailing and complete answer to skeptics. This is a grand document for Bible students.

In the October Social Economist President De Garmo, of Swarthmore College, discusses "The Future of Economic Education" as the culmination toward which the classical and mathematical courses lead. Ex-Commissioner Bates adds his personal experience to that of those who have favored the eight-hour day. The number opens with an article by its editor on English roads and London streets, which after riding over for two months he pronounces to be the one thing in which England excels America. "De Foe and Malthus" compares the author of "Robinson Crusoe" with the author of the Malthusian doctrine, in a way that enrolls the former among political economists as the first demonstrator of the proposition that population creates its means of subsistence, and that with a population of one the support of life verges upon a miracle.

In The Preacher's Magazine for October a few of the contributors and their valuable papers are as follows: Rev. F. B. Meyer furnishes a sermon on "Jeremiah, Priest and Prophet," which is a most excellent contribution. Rev. H. G. Mitchell, D. D., an article on "Israel Often Reproved." Rev. Mark Guy Pearse—that prince of sermonizers—presents the first of a series of discourses on "Esther the Queen." "Counsels for Preachers" is by Rev. Joseph Bush; and a very concise and careful presentation of a very live theme is found in Rev. C. Harley Smith's article on "Biblical Giving." William E. Ketcham, D D, is the American editor, and the success of this magazine in the past has been largely due to his general editorial supervision.

The October Journal of Hygiene gives a continued account of the simple but unusual methods adopted by the German pastor Kneipp for hardening the constitution They are such as any one can use for themselves, strengthening their will-power as well as invigorating their bodies. "Physical Culture in France," "Ceylon and the Sinhalese," health notes, and hygiene for women make a interesting number.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

FACT.

Most deaf persons hear better in the midst of a modern din than when it is quiet around them. The noise of the cars in travel or the whirr of machinery in mills helps to make up the volume of sound necessary to reach their impaired organs.

The principal grain crop of Prussia is rye. Over 4,000,000 hectares were raised last year, being twice as much as of oats and four times as much as of wheat. Prussia makes over 1,000,000 tons of beet sugar, and yields one-half the world's supply of zinc.

One of the greatest natural curiosities in Central America is a water volcano, in Guatemala. Its appex is 14,450 feet above the level of the sea, and cultivated fields and forest trees extend almost to its summit. It occasionally vents forth torrents of pure, cold water.

A French statistician says that the number of men and women in France is more nearly equal than in any other country of the world, there being only 1,007 women to 1,000 men. In Switzerland there are 1,064 men to 1,000 women, and in Greece only 933. In Hong Kong, according to this authority, there are 366 women to 1,000 men.

Last week the locomotive of a B. and O. passenger train was attacked at Mt. Sterling, O., in a suit against the company for $500 for two horses killed by the cars. The constable chained one of the driving wheels of the engine to the track and locked it. The engineer then sent to headquarters for instructions and was directed to go ahead if the chain was not too strong. The chain broke and the train went on its way, but the railroad company will probably have a contempt case on its hands.

Between Philadelphia and Washington is a glue factory which "smells to heaven." A lady who was obilged to take a ride between those points always carried with her a bottle of lavender salts. One morning an old farmer took the seat directly behind her. As the train neared the factory the lady opened her bottle of salts. Soon the whole car was filled with the horrible odor of the glue. The farmer stood it as long as he could, then leaning forward he shouted: "Madam, would you mind fittin' the cork in that 'ere bottle?"

Fifty-one life insurance companies of the United States transacting ordinary business wrote in 1893 421,748 policies for $1,090,002,107. The terminations amounted to 284,479 policies for $775,-996,299, divided as follows: By death, 20,223 policies for $59,395,844; maturity, 4,808 for $8,999,241; expiry, 8,626 for $27,372,317; by change, 2,401 for $37,294,614. This makes a total for natural terminations of 36,058 policies for $133,062,016, or 17 per cent of the total amount. There were 37,678 policies for $113,842,507 surrendered, 126,107 for $305,424,149 terminated by lapse, and 115,592 for $224,627,704 were reported not taken, making the total chargeable mainly to hot-house forcing methods of 279,377 policies for $643,894,360. The gain in insurance in force in the year was 143,029 policies for $314,741,506, being about 29 per cent of the new issues and nearly 8 per cent of the amount in force at the beginning of the year. Industrial companies wrote 2,791,003 policies for $344,546,648; terminated 2,182,824 for $259,575,912, and gained in the amount in force 630,880 policies for $79,113,619, being about 23 per cent of the new issues and 13 per cent of the amount in force Jan. 1,1893.

Merit wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given this medicine a popularity and sale greater than any other blood purifier.

Everybody is Going South Now a days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

LONG STRING of diseases and derangements have their origin in torpor of the liver. Deranged appetite, constipation, headache, sour stomach, gassy belchings, indigestion, or dyspepsia, are due to sluggish liver.

MR. JOHN A. DEBERRY, U. S. Inspector of Immigration at Buffalo, N. Y., writes as follows: "From early childhood I suffered from a sluggish liver. Doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines afforded only temporary relief. I tried Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, taking three at night and two after dinner every day for two weeks and then one "Pellet" every day for two months. I have in six months increased in solid flesh, twenty-six pounds. I am in better health than I have been since childhood. Drowsiness and unpleasant feelings after meals have completely disappeared.

Respectfully yours,

John A. DeBerry

U. S. Inspector of Immigration.

Agents wanted BICYCLES ON EASY PAYMENTS

New or 2nd hand; lowest prices, largest stock; makers & oldest dealers in U.S. We sell everywhere. Catalog free

Sylph ROUSE HAZARD & CO. 4 G St. Peoria, Ill.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 18TH, 1894.

Entrance Examinations September 17th, at 2 P. M.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD. Pres.

—LODGE LAMP—

a monthly of choice articles on the SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM, which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

FARM FOR SALE.

A quarter section in Kearney county, Nebraska,

WILL BE SOLD AT A BARGAIN.

Description: Southwest quarter of Section 31, Township 8, North, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian.

ONLY $500 CASH FOR 160 ACRES.

Large bodies of cattle have ranged over and been herded on this and adjacent land. It is pretty well covered with grass. The soil as a whole is quite sandy, especially on the hills; the little valleys have the best soil.

It is near two railroad towns. Lowell is within two miles, and Hartwell is about five miles distant. All taxes are paid to date. Must be sold soon if possible. Address, W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ills.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Hasklnville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

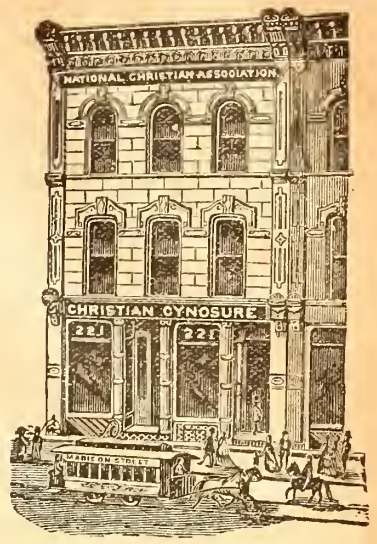
ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians



CHICAGO, 1880.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Wilmantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1894.

NEW YORK.

The annual convention of the New York State Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the 7th Ave. United Presbyterian church (7th Ave. between 12th and 13th streets), New York, beginning Oct. 29th, at 2 P. M., and continuing through the following day and evening. Able speakers will present the various phases of the reform. Rev. W. B. Stoddard, who may be addressed at 246 W. 36th St., New York, will arrange and report the program. Let all come who can. Pray much for this gathering. S. R. WALLACE, Pres.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Reformed Presbyterian church (G. S.), Sparta. It will convene at 7:30 P. M., November 15, 1894, and continue through the Friday following. President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, will be one of the speakers, Sparta is in Randolph county, on the Centralia and Chester and the Mobile and Ohio railroads.

There are many friends in this part of the State, and a very helpful time is anticipated.

J. R. WYLIE, Secretary. R. W. CHESNUT, President.

THE CONCLUDING PORTION of the poem on "Society," by Rev. Alexander Thomson, appears this week. The Cynosure readers have been highly favored by this contribution, which has presented in forceful and beautiful lines some of the Satanic evils that attack society.—Our former editor, Bro. Hugunin, and a new writer, Mr. Hooton, who is a discovery of the New England secretary, give us some substantial ideas on our reform: and in connection no one should fail to read Dr. Lansing's article borrowed from the Advance —Some spots are keeping warm spite of cold weather, as agents and lecturers report good meetings held or in prospect.—It is the boy's week in the Home department, and they will find a page worth reading and remembering. Next number is reserved for the girls.

THE NEW ENGLAND MEETING —The convention held last week at Franklin, Mass., and concluding on Sabbath, will not be reported in this number, as we go to press too early Tuesday for any account to be put in type. The program of the meeting as announced in handbills was as follows:

Monday, 7:30 P. M.—Topic: Worship. Address by J. P. Stoddard.

Tuesday—Topic: Narcotics, Tobacco, etc. Addresses by Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, National Lecturer W. C. T. U., and Elder Cyrus Cunningham.

Wednesday—Topic: The Holy Spirit. All-day meeting conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Seth C. Rees of Providence, R. I.

Thursday—Topic: The Christian Sabbath. Address by Rev. James H. Earle.

Friday—Topic: Prohibition, and Why God has a Controversy with the Nations. Addresses by Rev. J. M. Foster, Boston; and Dr H A. Gibbs, Dorchester.

Saturday—Topic: Christian Missions—Home and Foreign. Address by Rev. A. A. Hoyt.

THE THEOLOGY OF PROF. SWING AND OF THE LODGE.

The death of this celebrated preacher and the comments upon his life and work in pulpit and press have created a wide interest in the theological views he represented. But care is taken to avoid the question of creed while eulogizing an amiable life, cultured, philosophical and humane, and praising a pulpit work which already all men praised; and we refer to this avoided topic rather as an illustration than to make any argument upon it.

No one denies that the view of Christ and his atonement held by Prof. Swing were incompatible with the interpretation of Scripture adopted generally by the Protestant churches, although it was the instruction of his early life in the sterling canons of the Presbyterian church that made the fruitage of his later years gracious and beneficent to the sight of men. The change that came over his religious views could not destroy the currents of such a life. "He had long ceased to think," says Dr. Thomas, the Grand Chaplain, "of the old views he left behind in anything except an amusing light." "It was not his liberalism," said Dr. Noble of the Union Park church, "his great omissions in declaring the counsel of God, but the quality of his genius and of his personality and life that gave him his wonderful charm and power." "Certainly Prof. Swing's published sermons," says the Advance, "have shown that his place was not in a Presbyterian pulpit. If creeds and confessions mean anything at all, the sermons preached at Central Music Hall could not be legitimately preached in a church which ever named the Westminster Confession."

Dr. J. H. Barrows, of the First Presbyterian church, who directed the World's Fair "Parliament of Religions," and preached at the obsequies of Prof. Swing, gives an opinion which is self-contradictory, as reported in the papers: "He was an ethical preacher, a severe critic of the old-time theologians, yet in his inmost soul, I truly believe, loyal to Jesus. I think he held to the divinity of Christ, although he would probably not have gone the length of the Nicene creed that declares Christ to be the very God." If the Lord Jesus Christ was not "very God" he was the greatest of impostors, and a "loyalty" that refuses this claim is really like the loyalty of Judas.

Dr. Thomas said the day after Prof. Swing's death, "He was full of joy and hope and enthusiasm for the spread of the new truth." What this new truth might be is explained by Rabbi Hirsch, also a "liberal" in religion, in a discourse last Sabbath: "So Prof. Swing believed in the immortal God, but did not attempt to picture or portray him. He believed in the Christ, that symbol to millions of all the best the world ever saw or ever will see. Not the Christ that arose once, but the Christ that is always arising. In that Christ preached by Prof. Swing all must believe who believe in the continued life of love and of humanity. Christ is, after all, an ideal. We may call him Christ of Messiah, but each of us must have him in one form or another."

One of the last paragraphs written by Prof. Swing appears in the Ram's Horn and contains such doubtful words as these: "The espousal of the Son of man does not bring any answer to the inquiry whether Christ was a God." Such a question "is to be classed with the problems of astronomy or those of history." That is, a man may revere aud esteem Jesus the man as he may believe the facts of history or may look upon the calm stars and feel their peace; but he need go no further and ask, Did this man speak truly of himself as a lamb slain to reconcile rebels and lost men to the Father. The subtle distinctions which separate the human from the divine in our Saviour and ignore the latter are too attenuated to trust an everlasting fate upon.

It was by such philosophizing as is indicated in these extracts that we understand the comment of a city paper, "Dr. Swing had done much in the direction of popularizing Christianity." Such popularizing makes the "offence of the Cross to cease" says Paul.

We have referred at some length to this topic, but by no means exhaustively, because the principles of such philosophy illustrate the constant tendency of the lodge system. The religious tenets that circle about lodge altars have a germinant power—we might say a germ power. They are a subtle poison that permeate and diffuse, and attack the soul life, as disease germs attack the body life in the blood, disintegrating, breaking down little by little the texture, the fortitude, as it were, of vitality.

The fatal fiction of the Parliament of Religions was the proclamation that the divinities of man-invented systems, the philosophies of life and hopes for the future which they teach, are on an equality with Christiany. That is, religion is not true because Jehovah Christ is its center, but because it is agreeable to human philosophy. So the lodge provides an altar which has a corner for every sacrifice, a divinity that answers to every name, like Pope's "Jehovah, Jove, or Lord." It is constantly making religion and worship an affair of human taste and preference and not of divine command and revelation. Christ can have no place at such altars, no part in such worship. It is Gentile worship, "and the things which the Gentiles sacrifice (1 Cor. 10: 20) they sacrifice to devils and not to God."

HOW A SUBLIME PRINCE IS BURIED.

The Kansas City Star not long since published the following particular account of a burial service according to the Kadosh ritual of the Scottish rite. It closely resembles the formula prescribed by Albert Pike, and by which he was buried at midnight in a Congregational church at Washington, D. C. The strange performance was as follows:

The funeral services of a Knight Kadosh were held in the chapel of the Masonic building, 912 Walnut street, at 9 o'clock last night, over the body of Day K. Smith, who was a Mason of the thirty-second degree. The services, according to the ritual, should have been held at midnight, but there were so many friends who wished to witness them, that the hour was changed for their convenience. The coffin containing the body was placed on a trestle in the center of the chapel. Nine candlesticks, four feet high, stood in three triangles on the east, west and south sides of the coffin. Each one bore a lighted candle, and the chapel was not otherwise lighted. On the head of the coffin there was a chaplet of white roses, and below it the insignia of the order and the sword of the dead Knight in its scabbard. On a tablet near the coffin there was a skull wreathed with evergreens and surrounded by seven large candlesticks, with candles unlighted. At the head of the coffin stood a black iron Passion cross, five feet high. The room was completely draped with black curtains suspended from the edge of the balcony and from a wire across the stage. The spectators, both men and women, were admitted only to the balcony, and at 9 o'clock exactly, when the service began, the doors of the chapel were closed and locked so that no one could disturb the service by entering. Then the Knights to the number of about a hundred entered one after another as "silently as shadows," and ranged themselves on the west, south and north sides of the coffin in a semi-circle, facing the east. They wore long black gowns and hoods. After a moment of silence a few plaintive trumpet sounds were heard in an adjoining room, and the service began with this recitation:

"Dear Brethren and Knights of the Holy House of the Temple, it has pleased our Father who is in heaven to take away from among us the living soul of our brother, Sir Day Kellogg Smith, and to leave unto us his body, of which we are about to dispose according to our ancient Knight custom; but we are first of all to hold a judgment on the Knight whose mortal remains lie before us.

"It is midnight and the grave is ready. Our brother has finished his earthly probation. Let us look back upon his life, and see how he has stood the test. If any one of you, or any one who hears me, can accuse of grave wrong this Knight now dead, let him stand forth and so declare."

There is no accuser. The service continued in this way, interrupted at intervals by hymns. The first was "Rock of Ages," chanted by a hidden choir, and the last "Nearer My God to Thee." The service lasted forty-five minutes, and at its close all the candles but one were extinguished and the Knights knelt around the coffin in prayer. The Grand Master then striking three times with an iron hammer on the Passion cross recited this blessing:

"I bless thee, O dead brother, in the name of Almighty God, in the name of the Holy House of the Temple, and in the name of the Knights and brethren here assembled. May the light of the face of God shine upon thee and bless thee! Amen!"

The remarkable thing about the above funeral ceremony is that it was purely heathen in its conception as in its performance. There is in it not the slightest allusion to Christ or to Christianity; and, except for the hymns sung, it was far more appropriate to a land where Buddhism or Shintoism prevail, than to a land of Christian enlightenment.

Had some of the learned Hindus, who came last year to the World's Parliament of Religions, united in similar ceremonies over the body of a deceased friend, the occurrence would have deserved but a passing remark. But when professedly Christian men, and especially Christian ministers, unite in the celebration of religious rites that wholly ignore the Lord Jesus and his blessed Gospel, it is time for his people to make their united protest—not against the right of these men to be heathen, if such is their choice, but to be such while calling themselves ministers of Christ.

—Pres. C. A. Blanchard is expected at the New York State meeting.

—Brethren Arnold, Chesbro and Terrill are issuing a daily during the sitting of the Free Methodist General Conference at Greenville, Ill., an enterprise that does them great credit. Beside its great value in facilitating business on the floor of the conference, it puts every reader in such direct communication and sympathy with the body as could be secured in no other way. The Cynosure is thankful for a copy, and hopes the venture will be in every way successful.

—A card from Bro. J. P. Stoddard, written Friday, says that a blessing has come upon the N. E. Convention at Franklin, increasing from day to day. More and better things for truth and salvation were expected from that day to the close.

—Rev. L. O. Hohenstein, pastor of the German Lutheran church on Jefferson street, Peoria, Ill., is giving a course of lectures to the young men's society of his church, on the evils of secret orders. He has now addressed them three times on this subject, and purposes a thorough discussion of the lodge and all its devices and temptations.

—Missouri presents another lodge complication. Masons have helped to put down labor unions; now the latter want to down the A. P. A. The State Federation of Labor, meeting in Kansas City on the 3d inst., adopted resolutions condemning the American Protective Association and calling on all true union men to "wage war upon religious intolerance from whatever source it may spring."

—Thousands of readers will greet the New England letter this week with animation. It does not mean, however, that health is restored to Miss Flagg's home. Her father is probably slowly sinking out of life; we do not understand that there is any hope of his recovery. But in the intervals of relief from care of her helpless parent Miss Flagg has resumed her pen. God grant that, severe as the day of trial may be, his grace may yet more abound to her.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Rev. L. G. Jordan, our eloquent colored brother, now pastor in Philadelphia, is one of the executive board of the new "Men's National Christian Prohibition Union" whose headquarters are in New York city.

—Rev. C. B. Ebey, of Los Angeles, chairman of the Free Methodist churches of southern California, is now attending the General Conference at Greenville, Ill. He was formerly pastor in this city, and closely identified with the N. C. A.

—Rev. Dr. John A. Wilson, late pastor of United Presbyterian churches in St. Louis, Mo., and Wooster, O., was inaugurated professor of Church History in the Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., last Wednesday evening. Dr. Wilson is author of a pamphlet on college secret societies.

—Rev. A. J. Jutkins, well known in this city as pastor, presiding elder, founder of Lake Bluff Assembly, and prime organizer of Prohibition work in Chicago, is about to leave Illinois for a permanent residence in California. In connection with Prohibition, Dr. Jutkins recognized the anti-secret reform as of primary importance, and always manifested a friendly sympathy with the movement.

—Rev. Ira D. Stone, now pastor of the Congregational church, Plainfield, Ill., secured the prize for the best oration on the evil of secret societies, at the Illinois State Convention, held in Elgin in November, 1889. During his seminary studies he was secretary for the Students' Bureau. His work at Plainfield has been quite successful; sixteen having united with the church during his pastorate of nine months. He was lately married to Miss Beulah Cavanaugh of Wheaton.

—Florence Nightingale, whose name is first of a host of noble women who have risked all to abate the horrors of war, is now seventy-four years of age, and in very poor health. She lives in a quiet spot in the west of London, but even her neighbors, it is said, do not know her. An American who recently visited her found her rooms fairly filled with pictures, books, medals and bits of bric a brac that have been presented to her from time to time. "I am constantly being remembered," she said, "by kind friends who are personally unknown to me, but whose kindness touches me more than I can say. I wish you would thank my American friends for their kind words that are constantly coming to me. If I have done good in my life I am being fully rewarded now. What gratifies me above all is that all my hopes have been fulfilled. But it still horrifies me when I think of how our men were treated when they were ill or wounded at the time of the Crimean war.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

The death of Dr. Holmes—Girls' Greek letter societies at the Boston University—Sir Henry Vane—Nameless heroes,

The gentle "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" has gone at last, leaving behind him a rich legacy of genial humor, of trenchant satire on human follies, and pervading all, a strong, sweet humanness peculiarly his own. That famous group of writers of whom he was the last, who have made the banks of the Charles classic ground for all time, were in every sense well-born, inheriting physical as well as moral stamina from their Puritan ancestry, and refuting by their pure and temperate lives the abominable notion conceived in the Byron and Shelley era, and defended by such writers as Ouida, that genius and license are synonymous. Emerson, Lowell, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes!—never was there such a group before in ancient or modern days, knit together by bonds of friendship so close; so loyal to their highest instincts, genial, kindly, unpretentious, each one every inch a king in the realm of letters, but ruling less by force of mere genius than those qualities of heart and mind without which the public may give the meed of admiration but never of love

Of all that group Holmes was the most many-sided. He was humorist, wit, poet, philosopher and scientist, though his contributions in the latter department have been quite overshadowed by his fame in other lines. Young writers may take a lesson from the fact that Dr. Holmes not only never allowed any slovenliness to mar the exquisite purity of his style, but was always singularly careful to give the printers nothing but neat, exact, careful copy. The pure gold of his character showed itself in little things. As Walter Besant writes from the other side of the Atlantic, "We have lost in Oliver Wendell Holmes that rarest of his kind—a man of letters loved by all the world." Dr. Holmes had no desire for the pleasures of hunting or fishing. He was almost a Brahmin in this respect, hating to take life in even its lowest forms. It is related that he refused to take a trip to the Adirondacks in company with Lowell and Emerson when he learned that the latter had purchased a rifle. "I shall not go," he remarked, humorously; "somebody will get shot." Speaking of Emerson, a friend tells me that he shall never forget his first view of the Sage of Concord. It was over forty years ago and at a parade of some kind. Emerson was marshal, but having no ear for music he strode on ahead of the procession, in a manner funny to the spectators and embarrassing to the musicians; not making the least attempt to keep step to the music, and probably wishing with all his heart that he was out of the pageant, and safe in his study, musing on the Over Soul, or some other equally profound and metaphysical theme.

One of the Boston dailies is out with a very graphic and minute description of an initiation into one of the girls' Greek-letter societies at the Boston University, from which it appears that the skull and cross-bones with other appropriate and pleasing lodge emblems are as much a part of the ceremony as with their brothers at Harvard or Yale. It is a pity that the higher education has its limits, and will not supply the brains so evidently lacking in these young women.

A bronze portrait statue, heroic size, of Sir Harry Vane, who figured so prominently in the early pages of Boston's history, is to be set up in one of the rooms of the new Public Library. He is represented as habited in the picturesque Louis XIII. costume, breeches, high riding boots with long spurs, the plumed broad-brimmed hat with which pictures have made us familiar, and a long sword and cane. The end of his cloak is gathered up on the left arm as if he had just dismounted. The grave, strong face, with its long hair and pointed beard, is worthy of the hero of Milton's grand sonnet,

"Vain, young in years, but in sage counsel old."

Altogether it is a noble statue, and worthy of its place. But looking at the figure of this gallant, dashing nobleman, it is difficult to think that we are separated from him and the times in which he lived by less than three hundred years. Are manners and dress very intimately connected after all? This man with the martyr spirit, on whose "firm hand" Milton represents religion "leaning" as on that of "an elder son," was not a whit less heroic because he wore this cumbrous, and to us moderns, ridiculous dress.

That the spirit of self-sacrifice, the noble impulse to do one's duty in the face of death which allies man to the divine, has not yet died out, was abundantly proved the other day when an unfortunate line-man through some unexplained accident was electrocuted in the sight of a horrified crowd of spectators, and a comrade going to his rescue met instant death; but, undeterred, others sprang forward to fill the breach. They were only common linemen, nameless heroes, but heroes every one, and worthy of being breveted on the spot, only theirs was a higher, a more refined form of courage than that displayed on the battlefield. ELIZABETH E. FLAGG

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The Brethren church (sometimes known as Dunkards) have a mission church in Washington, D. C. It numbers twenty-six members. A mission school with seventy-five pupils is connected.

—Rev. Joel Martin, general missionary for Northern Michigan, is engaged in personally visiting the home missionary fields of the Upper Peninsula. He is receiving a warm welcome and finds a needy field.

—After a pastorate of seventeen years Rev. A. M. Acheson, of whom Agent Williams speaks in his letter this week, has been released from the charge of Willamette congregation in Oregon U. P. Presbytery.

—The forty-eighth annual meeting of the American Missionary Association will be held in the First Congregational church, Lowell, Mass., Oct. 23-25. Rev. Charles H. Richards, D. D., of Philadelphia, will preach the sermon.

—A resolution was passed at the late United Brethren conference in Lebanon, Pa, excluding Santa Claus from all Christmas festivals. The resolution was agreed to unanimously. But something more is needed to keep the old fellow out.

—The East Michigan Free Methodist conference adopted the following: "We believe all secret societies, from Masonry down, are unscriptural, and opposed to just and equal rights between man and man, and that they are corrupting both church and state."

—The Wisconsin Baptist Association meeting in Janesville, Wis., demanded that the government cease aiding sectarian schools among the Indians. For several years the Baptists have refused such aid. In the last eight years, however, the government has put in the hands of other religious bodies $4,500,000. This the Baptists declare is contrary to the Constitution and provocative of religious controversy and political corruption.

—The ninth General Conference of the Free Methodist churches assembled at Greenville, Ill., Wednesday. This body numbers of 103 members. In addition to the three general superintendents there will be fifty ministers and fifty laymen, each conference having an equal number of clerical and lay delegates. They represent twenty-nine annual conferences. Four women have been elected, one from each of the following conferences: Wisconsin, Southern California, Pittsburgh, Wabash. In three conferences the first reserve is a woman and may be called upon to take a seat in the general conference.

—The remarkable all-summer, evangelistic tent campaign in the Wyoming coal field in Pennsylvania has just been brought to a successful close. The work began in April by various meetings for prayer and consecration. May 20th, Mr. Moody, Major Whittle, Messrs. Bliss Stebbins, Sankey and Jacobs were on the field, some of them remaining all summer; and the tent work closing Oct. 1, with monster meetings at Scranton. During the summer the tents have remained about two or three weeks in a place; the audiences have been immense; pastors and Christian people of all denominations have co-operated; but the great majority have been habitual non-church goers. The whole region has been moved to a marvelous degree, and incalculable results have followed. Arrangements have been made for a similar campaign by Mr. F. Schiverea next summer.—Advance.

—In the reports presented to the American Board at Madison, Wis, last week, the summary for 1894 shows the number of missions among unevangelized nations to be twenty; stations, 100; out stations, 1,107; places for stated preaching, 1,429; average congregations, 69,151; American laborers employed, 571; native laborers, 2,870; total, 3,441; number of churches, 421; church members, 40,187; added during the year, 3,055. The whole number under instruction in the educational department is 50,400; actual contributions of money amount to $89,140. Dr. C. H. Daniels, of Boston, secretary of the home department, reported that forty-four new missionaries have been sent to the field during the year, of whom thirteen were men, including three physicians and one printer, eleven the wives of missionaries, and twenty single ladies, including one physician,

The Home.

BEAUTIFUL CHILDHOOD.

Beautiful childhood, fresh and free,
Fair as a lily, blithe as a bee;
Free from the weight of the world's dull care,
With beautiful spirits, light as air;
Gambol and play in your childhood's glee,
Youth is the time to be merry and free.

While you are merry, be wise, be wise,
Let your bright hopes like the lark arise;
He sings as he soars in the bright blue sky,
And fills the clear air with rich melody;
Gambol and play in your childhood's glee,
Ever be wise, while you're merry and free.

Oft will the tempters sing, and say:
"Away to the revel, away! away!
The ruby wine sip, and laugh at care,
And scoff at the friends who say 'Beware!'"
Gambol and play in your childhood's glee,
But heed not the tempter, whoever it be.

Touch not the glass though it sparkles bright;
O'er the flower of youth it spreadeth a blight.
Never can wine true pleasures bring—
Like a beautiful serpent, it charms to sting;
Gambol and play in your childhood's glee,
But ever the charms of the wine cup flee.

—John Hilton.

"WHERE IS MY BOY TO-NIGHT?"

One by one Ray Lewis placed his garments in the black valise that had not been used for years, and as he closed it, gave a deep sigh. He put his hat and coat on, and as he passed through the kitchen, slipped a note under the tablecloth. He went to the barn and patted Nellie, the horse, and then, with the valise in hand, started for the station.

What did all this mean?

For three years Ray had delivered the daily papers, and his father had given his consent to Ray buying a bicycle with the money he had saved during that time.

Mr. Lewis had been without work the entire fall, and the time was at hand when the taxes on the home must be paid. But where was the money to come from?

The day after Ray had selected his bicycle, Mr. Lewis, in a kind manner, demanded the money of Ray, in order to pay the taxes, which Ray refused to do, and one word brought on another until Mr. Lewis grew angry.

Ray was but fifteen years old, and, like most boys of that age, did not like to have his plans interfered with. It appears he did not realize, as his father did, in what circumstances the family was situated; nor did he realize, until it was too late, what he had done when he took the train the next day for Winchester unknown to any of the family.

Father had gone over in town, mother was attending a missionary meeting that afternoon, and Florence and Helen were at school. Ray did not come home at the usual hour; supper time came, but he did not make his appearance, and thinking he had been delayed in delivering his papers, Mrs. Lewis saved a portion of the evening meal for him, but told Helen to clear off the table, and in so doing, she discovered the note Ray had placed there that afternoon, which read that father had been too severe with him, and he had concluded to work his way through the world as best he could.

Mrs. Lewis and the two sisters wept bitter tears that night, but the father said he would soon tire of working his own way and would return and be willing to submit to his requests. The mother begged to have him telegraphed for, but Mr. Lewis would not do so.

Weeks passed by and no sign of Ray, nor even a letter.

When Ray reached Winchester he purchased a ticket for Newark and left on the steamer that night. He read awhile, but nothing would interest him. He was thinking of home, and wondering what his father thought of his leaving; and he wiped a few tears away when he thought of his mother. Would this affair grieve her? He began to wish he had given the money to his father and remained at home, but go back he would not. He slept a few hours toward morning and arose as the steamer was nearing the city.

A week from this time we see Ray delivering papers in Newark. He had purchased a route with the money he refused to give his father, but he could scarcely clothe himself and pay his board with his earnings, and more than one night went to bed hungry.

Months passed by and a year. Ray was carrying a burden the outside world knew nothing of. How he longed to see his mother! It was Christmas Eve, and as he passed one of the large churches, he saw it lighted, and entering, learned they were having their Christmas exercises. The last on the program was a song by Elsie Wakefield. A young lady arose, and the song, "Where is my boy to-night?" so familiar to all, was what she sung.

The words seemed to pierce his heart through and through as he thought of his own dear mother's wandering boy, and that night he resolved to return home as soon as he could sell his route (which he was successful in doing), and which money he would give to his father when he reached home.

He stepped off the train a week later in the village, with the same black valise, and his heart beat fast as he neared his home. He went to the back door and rapped. Helen came to the door, and in an instant had her arms around his neck, and both sisters wept for joy and grief. Helen had been ironing and Florence was making cookies. Where could mother be, and why was she not attending to this work as was her custom?

"And where is mother?" said Ray.

Both sisters were silent, and when Ray asked the second time, Florence, amid tears, said: "Mother is in heaven."

And when he leaaned how she had lost interest in everything after his disappearance from home, and that she had died of a broken heart, he then realized what sorrow he had brought to a once happy home.

"And she left a message for you in case you returned home," Florence continued. "Tell Ray I forgive him."

Mr. Lewis also forgave his son; and when Ray retired that night, he knelt by his bed as in former days, and asked God's forgiveness and guidance in the future.

The next morning Ray went to the barn to feed Nellie, but was surprised to find her gone, and he soon learned the meaning of it all. Nellie had been sold to pay the taxes. He could in time earn enough to buy the pet animal again, but his dear mother would never return to their home.—Ruth Hathaway in Christian World.

ARMOR PLATE.

In these days it is more important that America have armor-plated boys than warships. A boy needs to be ironclad on:

His lips—against the first taste.
His ears—against impure words.
His hands—that they handle not.
His forehead—against an impure kiss.
His heart—against irreverence and doubt.
His stomach—against rich, enervating food.
His feet—against keeping dangerous company.
His eyes—against dangerous books and pictures.
His pocket—against covetousness of blood money.
His tongue—against liberal or cowardly sentiments.

The Christian armor on her citizens gives more security to the nation than all the nickel alloy or Harveyized plates can on her ships.—Selected.

FALSE SHAME.

Boys, rid yourself of that false shame that makes you shrink away when there is a book to be picked up, a door to be opened, some one to be assisted.

I recently saw a young woman returning from a shopping expedition laden with a number of packages. Suddenly she tripped and one of her purchases fell to the ground. Behold her in a most awkward predicament when a bell rang, and on the instant a bevy of boys rushed from a schoolhouse near by.

Their bright eyes grasped the situation at a glance—the young woman standing helplessly, arms and hands encumbered, the little brown parcel lying at her feet. Their kind hearts told them what to do, but shame, fear, a sort of cowardly timidity held them back. With one accord they stopped, looked at one another, then passed silently on. There was not a lad in that crowd whose fingers did not actually itch to pick up that bundle, yet not one dared to do it.

Boys, I beg of you, let your hands, your feet, your voice, be the willing agents of that great master of politeness, the HEART.

You see an aged person trying to mount the steps of a car. Your heart whispers, "Help." Obey its impulse; go offer your strong young arm. Your teacher drops a pencil; quick as a flash return it to her. Your very willingness will make her feel stronger and better.

The truly polite boy is a good son, for politeness teaches him the duty and respect he owes to his parents. He is a grateful brother to his sisters, always returning a pleasant "Thank you" for any kindness received at their hands.

This world would be better and brighter if our boys would obey as readily as they FEEL the charitable impulse that rises in their hearts to assist the helpless and lend their stength to the weak. It is this prompt courtesy that will transform the awkward, boorish lad into the polished, ever graceful gentleman.—New York Observer.

WHAT GOD GIVES A BOY.

A body to live in and keep clean and healthy, and as a dwelling for his mind and a temple for his soul.

A pair of hands to use for himself and others, but never against others for himself.

A pair of feet to do errands of love and kindness and charity and business, but not to loiter in places of mischief or temptation or sin.

A pair of lips to keep pure and unpolluted by tobacco or whisky, and to speak true, kind brave words; but not to make a smokestack of or a swill trough.

A pair of ears to hear the music of bird and tree and rill and human voice, but not to give heed to what the serpent says, or to what dishonors God or his mother.

A pair of eyes to see the beautiful, the good, and the true—God's finger-prints in the flower and field and snowflake—but not to feast on unclean pictures or the blotches which Satan daubs and calls pleasure.

A mind to remember and reason to decide and store up wisdom and impart it to others, but not to be turned into a chip basket or rubbish heap for the chaff and the rubbish and sweepings of the world's stale wit.

A soul as pure and spotless as a new-fallen snowflake, to receive impressions of good and to develop faculties of powers and virtues which shall shape it day by day, as the artist's chisel shapes the stone, into the image and likeness of Jesus Christ.—Morning Guide.

THE POWER OF SAYING NO.

Somebody has said that to give a young man the power to say No, is a grander gift than giving him a thousand pounds. There is a large family of the Pliables in existence—folks born without backbones. I like a youth who can look one in the face, and if a thing is a lie say so, and if it is true hold to it though all the world is against him. You will get such boys as these from Bands of Hope, for if they say No in connection with drink they can say No in connection with other things. I will give you an illustration of what I mean.

A little fellow who had been brought up a staunch teetotaler was about to be apprenticed. The foreman offered him a glass of beer. The little fellow said:

"I never touch that stuff."

"Hullo, youngster," replied the foreman, "we have no teetotalers here."

"If you have me you'll have one," returned the boy.

The foreman was irritated, and holding up the glass of beer, he said:

"Now, my boy, there's only one master here; you'll either have this inside or outside."

The little fellow said: "Well, you can please yourself. I brought my clean jacket with me and a good character. You may spoil my jacket, but you shan't spoil my character.—Rev. Chas. Garrett.

Recent medical statistics in Switzerland show that fifty per cent of the young men who would otherwise be eligible for military service are rendered unfit by excessive drinking.

A HERO.

A few years ago a fire broke out in a charming little Swiss village, says an exchange. In a few hours the quaint frame houses were entirely destroyed.

The poor peasants ran around wringing their hands and weeping over their lost homes and the bones of the burned cattle.

One poor man was in greater trouble than his neighbors, even. His home and cows were gone, and so also was his son, a bright boy of six or seven years. He wept and refused to hear any words of comfort. He spent the night in wandering sorrowfully among the ruins, while his friends had taken refuge in the neighboring villages.

Just as daybreak came, however, he heard a well-known sound, and looking up he saw his favorite cow leading the herd, and coming directly after them was his bright-eyed little boy.

"Oh, my son! my son!" he cried," are you really alive?"

"Why, yes, father. When I saw the fire I ran to get our cows away to the pasture lands."

"You are a hero, my boy!" the father exclaimed.

But the boy said: "Oh, no! A hero is one who does some wonderful deed. I led the cows away because they were in danger, and I knew it was the right thing to do."

"Ah!" cried the father, "he who does the right thing at the right time is a hero."—Our Dumb Animals.

HE WAS A GENTLEMAN.

A few days ago I was passing through a pretty, shady street where some boys were playing at base ball. Among their number was a little lame fellow, seeming about twelve years old—a pale, sickly-looking child, supported on two crutches, and who evidently found much difficulty in walking, even with such assistance.

The lame boy wished to join the game, for he did not seem to see how much his infirmity would be in his own way, and how much it would hinder the progress of such an active sport as base ball.

His companions, very good-naturedly, tried to persuade him to stand at one side and let another take his place; and I was glad to notice that none of them hinted that he would be in the way, but that they all objected for fear that he would hurt himself.

"Why, Jimmy," said one at last, "you can't run, you know."

"Oh, hush!" said another—the tallest in the party; "never mind, I'll run for him," and he took his place by Jimmy's side, prepared to act. "If you were like him," he said, aside to the other boys, "you wouldn't want to be told of it all the time."

As I passed on I thought to myself that there was a true gentleman.—Ex.

TEMPERANCE.

LICENSE AND LIQUOR.

Every voter who casts his ballot for license practically throws his own mantle of character and respectability about the traffic and endorses its work.—Geo. S. Foster, M. P.

The saloon is the organized expression of Satan's kingdom on earth. Yet we license three hundred thousand men to make drunkards, put their gains in our coffers, their servants in power, their greed in government.—Mary T. Lathrop.

Under the pressure of high license, and to make the establishment pay back that large fee, saloon-keepers are tempted to introduce other features, to marshal other forms of vice and to link gambling and harlotry with liquor-selling so as to swell the receipts.—Rev. Herrick Johnson. D. D.

There is a phase of the question to which we wish to call the especial attention of our farmer friends. It is this: License money does not decrease your taxes one cent; but the saloons do increase your taxes enormously. You are not taxed to build sidewalks, light the streets, or do any of the things it is claimed the license money does for the town. But you are taxed, and that right heavily, to pay the county's bills for courts, jails, poor-houses, care of the insane and things like that. What do these courts do? Examine the docket of any county where liquor is sold and see if whisky is not at the bottom of fully one-half the criminal cases.—Mary Allen West.

WHAT THE TRAFFIC PAYS.

Placing the cost on one side of the ledger and the revenue on the other we have the following balance sheet of the liquor traffic in account with the people of the United States for one year.

Internal revenue (1890).....	$107,695,909
Customs revenue (1880).....	8,518,081
State and Local License.....	41,272,000
Total.....	$157,485,990
Drink Bill (1890).....	$1,131,863,382
Loss of Protective Power.....	580,000,000
Pauperism.....	9,129,600
Crime.....	46,822,000
Insanity.....	6,713,000
Sickness, caused by drink.....	109,500,000
Total.....	$1,984,027,982

The balance against the traffic on this basis of estimating is, therefore, $1,826,541,992, so that the traffic pays back only about eight cents on the dollar of its cost.—Wilbur F. Copeland.

A STUDY IN HEREDITY.

A specialist in children's diseases, who has for twelve years been carefully noting the difference between twelve families of drinkers and twelve families of temperate ones, reports that he found the twelve drinking families produced in those years fifty-seven children and the temperates sixty-one. Of the drinkers twenty-five children died in the first week of life, as against six on the other side. Among the children of the drinkers were five who were idiots, five so stunted in growth as to be really dwarfs, five, when older, became epileptics; one, a boy, had grave chorea, ending in idiocy; five more were diseased and deformed, and two of the epileptics became by inheritance drinkers. Ten only of the fifty-seven were normal in body and mind. On the part of the sixty-one of the temperates, two only showed inherited nervous defects; five died in the first week of weakness, while four in later years of childhood had curable nervous diseases; and fifty were in every way sound in body and mind.—National Temperance Advocate.

The Salvation Army has already secured 250,000 signatures to the great Polyglot Petition to be presented to the governments of the world by the heads of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The Wine and Spirit Gazette estimates that there are 198,186 voters in the State of New York directly dependent upon the liquor traffic, and says "a little mutuality among this vast army would enable them to absolutely control any election in the State."

A drunkard raised from the gutter, who does not rise to a higher level of spiritual life than is represented by a church whose board of deacons is in favor of high license and whose preacher is non-committal on the saloon question, will go back to the gutter as sure as he is born.—John G. Wooley.

In India certain regiments with five thousand five hundred and ten men were placed under observation. They were divided into free drinkers, moderate drinkers and abstainers. It was found that the deaths of the former were forty-one per one thousand. Of the moderate drinkers twenty-three per one thousand, and of the abstainers only eleven per one thousand.

The St. Louis Republic says that "Experiments have been made by Dr. Buchner in submitting working bees to a regimen of alcoholized honey. The effect is astonishing, and much the same as in mankind. Not only do they lose the inborn hereditary instinct for work, but they will steal. The hierarchy instinct is quickly lost also. They revolt against their queen and commanders, and give themselves over to idleness, brigandage and pillage until they are cast out by their fellows. Alcohol makes veritable anarchists of them."

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON IV.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Oct. 28.

SUBJECT.—A Paralytic Healed.—Mark 2: 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins."—Mark 2: 10.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Mark 2: 1-12. T.—Psalm 130. W.—Isa. 43: 14-25. T.—Col. 2: 6-15. F.—Acts 13: 32-39. S.—1 John 2: 1-12. S.—Psa. 15: 1-11.

(Notes from the S. S. Lesson Illustrator.)

Capernaum. No city in Palestine enjoyed so much of our Lord's presence. Never was there a people so highly favored and never was a people who appear to have become so hard. Matt. 11: 23, 24. It hardens men's hearts to hear the Gospel regularly, and yet deliberately prefer the service of sin.—Ryle.

After some days. After the healing of the leper, and when the excitement concerning the miracle had quieted down. For a time he was compelled to avoid the larger towns. Mark 1: 45.—Peloubet.

It was noised. He came to Capernaum without observation, but the more he sought to lie hid the more he was noticed. Honor flies from them that pursue it and pursues those that fly from it.—Burkitt.

Gathered together. Where Shiloh is, there shall the gathering of the people be.—Henry. Among the audience were scribes, Luke 5: 17, to see if they should unite in the new movement and turn it to their own purpose, or take measures against it.—Geikie.

Palsy. A disease painful in its perpetual restlessness, and miserable in its hopelessness. A fit type of that deeper disease of which it is so suggestive. A disease which the natural forces of the body are not able to throw off is not amenable to the science of medicine. So neither can the sinner of himself, nor by any human power, expel sin from his soul.—Pentecost. Kindly neighbors lifted the four corners of the couch or mattress on which he lay, and bore this helpless man to Jesus. If four men are needed to bring one man to Jesus, let four men do it. You are less than a fourth of a Christian if you are not willing to be one of the four to bring a palsied one to the presence of Jesus.—Trumbull.

Uncovered the roof. Eastern houses are different from ours. Rafters are laid on the top of the side walls, about three feet apart, and on these short sticks until the whole space is covered. Over these brushwood is spread. A coat of mortar comes next, burying and leveling all beneath it; on this is placed earth, rolled flat and hard. It is easy to break up a roof and is often done. The earth is scraped back and the thorns and short sticks removed, till an opening of the required size is made.—Geikie.

When Jesus saw. Their end was gained. Nothing ever attracted the compassionate Saviour so surely as the sight of suffering. No matter what he was doing, that had the first claim on his attention. Again and again, he allowed himself to be interrupted and broken off in his speaking without a sign of impatience, to heal the sick.—Luckock. That was just like him. He always sees the best of us. He never takes other than the best view of our life and its endeavors.—Parker.

Their faith. The faith of the sick man and his friends. It was with the sick man's own consent and doubtless at his own instance that he was brought.—Morison.

Sins be forgiven. It would seem that the man was conscience-stricken. What if the stroke of paralysis was the result of past excesses? What if the loss of vital energy had been produced by a course of enfeebling indulgence? We can see his terror in the presence of the Great Searcher of men. Matthew hints at this, for he puts into our Lord's mouth words of fatherly love and encouragement. "Son, be of good cheer." Matt. 9: 2.—Luckock. Jesus now unfolds an additional truth in connection with sickness and healing, the principle that back of the sickness is the deeper root of sin; and that its removal is indispensable to any permanent undoing of the evils of humanity.—Simpson.

Speak blasphemies. The sin of blasphemy is committed when what is unworthy of God is ascribed to him; when what is due to him is withholden; and when what exclusively belongs to God is applied to those who have no right to it. Mark 14: 64.—Bengel. How can sins be rightly remitted, unless he, the person against whom we have sinned, grant the pardon? 1 Sam. 2: 24.—Irenaus. One cannot forgive offenses committed against another.—Wakefield.

Why reason ye? Human reason is vanity. These doctors were sitting in judgment on Jesus, bringing him before the bar of their reason. That reason was partly right and partly wrong. Right in the conclusion that no one but God could forgive sins; wrong in judging Jesus to be a blasphemer, because they did not know that he was "God manifest in the flesh," and that God only can forgive sins in connection with this incarnation of himself. Had they known and recognized this fact, they would have avoided their sin. This is the trouble with all mere human reasoning in matters pertaining to God and religion. Man has not, without revelation, the data on which to reason correctly.—Pentecost.

Easier to say. It is no easier to pardon than to heal; but it is much easier to convict a man of imposture who falsely claims the power to heal than him who falsely arrogates the power to pardon.—Godet. By doing that which is capable of proof, I will vindicate my right and power to do that which is incapable of being proved. It would be easier for a man equally ignorant of the French and Chinese languages to claim to know the last than the first. In the one case multitudes could disprove his claim; in the other scarcely a scholar or two in the land.—Trench. He not only shows his power here, but he shows an unrivalled, an infinite ease, in the exertion of it. For he lets his enemies, as it were, choose the way in which it should be manifested; signifying that with him it made no difference. Deut. 32: 31.—Miller. Christ came as a witness to heavenly facts about God, and the immortality and destiny of the soul, and miracles are the authentication of his credibility. They are God's signature to his testimony.

He arose. We cannot doubt that to the end of his days this man would thank God for his palsy. Without it he might never have seen Christ at all. There is a needs-be for every cross. Every sickness and sorrow is meant to call us nearer to him.—Ryle Contrasts his previous helplessness, "borne of four," with his present activity. He now carries the bed which had carried him, and "the proof of his sickness became the proof of his cure."—Cambridge Bible Happy he who seeks his help in Christ. For his love there is no man too mean, for his power there is no misery too great; the condition of his help is for no one too hard.—Rautenberg What is sin but a universal palsy of the soul and utter inability to help itself, to break of evil habits, to walk in the way of God, or to take one step towards him? Grace can repair all in a moment.—Clark.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The German Baptists (Dunkards) opened their college building at Los. Angeles, Cal., for a prohibition meeting lately, and the chapel was filled with an intelligent audience.

The concerts of the Knoxville College Glee Club, which are being held in the United Presbyterian churches of Pittsburg and neighborhood, are giving great satisfaction. The entertainment is of a high order, and the proceeds are for the worthy object of assisting in replacing the college building recently burned.

It seems that Louisiana is the most illiterate State in the Union. And this is so because the white population is becoming more illiterate. The colored people are making some gain, but their boasted superiors are going down. What about the native superiority of the better blood? It is stated that in the decade ending with 1890, over 40,000 white children grew up to maturity unable to read or write!—United Presbyterian

Johns Hopkins University has secured a large portion of the exhibit of the Charities and Corrections Bureau of the World's Columbian Exposition. The material consists of books published on the subject of charities and corrections, penology, etc., models of public institutions, a number of charts, maps, and drawings illustrative of the methods pursued in the administration of charities and corrections, besides a large number of photographs of interest and importance in the study of these subjects. It will be the first working laboratory of this science to be established in the United States, if not in the world.—Boston Transcript.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF AUGUST, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER, WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The

PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

News of the Week.

WASHINGTON.

It is said at the State Department that American and other commerce is more seriously menaced by the decision of the Chinese Government to impose a transit tax on goods than by anything that has occurred since the war began.

From present indications the Civil Service Commission will be busy with the investigation of cases of assessments for political purposes for some time to come.

CHICAGO.

The new four-mile crib has been completed. The work of building the tunnel and crib has been in progress four years and it has cost the city $2,000,000. The crib has a total capacity of 140,000,000 gallons of water daily. Although incomplete it has been in use for two years.

(Continued on 16th page.)

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances for the Lodge Lamp:

H E Hunter, S F Proctor, C A McMillan, D H Harrington, J A Milligan, A Gummer, Mrs E M Livesay, Mrs N E Nutting, J Dorcas, Mrs W H Fischer, Rev A T Ayers, Rev H J Becker, Mrs A C Hand, N Mendenhall, C Kennicott, W Patterson, P B Williams, R Gunn, J P Phelps, S C Hart, Rev E F W Stellhorn, J Bittinger, Mrs E Hinsdale, R D Nichols, Rev W O Dinius, E Brakeman, Rev J B Galloway, R Park, Rev D Molyneux, E S Bogle, J McFarland, Mrs L B Oliphant, J Ferguson, R L Park, L B Lathrop, Rev C R Hunt, W P King, R Park, E Sutton, B T Pettengill, Rev M A Gault, Miss S E Logan, M L Worcester, Prof H F Kletzing, W B Stoddard, Rev R A Browne, N R Corning, W Hoverstock, E A Cook, J G Scott, N P Eddy, W H Cox, J P Stoddard, J M Chambers, Dr R E Rose, Eld I Hyatt, Mrs E H Candee, Mrs M M Shaw, T Hudson, Rev H Ph Wille.

Keep Warm.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., of Buffalo, N. Y,. intend to keep their customers warm, because they are kept so, filling their orders. See advertisement of the Chautauqua Oil Heater. This company are progressive, pushing business men. They have gone to the front rapidly, and will stay there if new ideas, energy and fair dealing will accomplish it. We are surprised each year with their magnificent offers, but none have been more astonishing than the opportunity now given to get the most perfect heater made. Those who received one of these heaters last season speak with words of highest praise. It is extremely useful and is also very ornamental. They create wonder with the great value they give for so little money. A customer once is a customer always with them.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	55½	@	56
Winter No. 2	51		52½
Corn—No. 2	49	@	50½
Oats—No. 2	28¾	@	31½
Rye—No. 2	47½	@	48
Bran per ton	13 00	@
Hay—Timothy	7 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	22
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	14	@	17½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 43	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	6 00	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	55	@	63
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 50	@	6 10
Common to good	2 00	@	5 25
Hogs	2 25	@	5 45
Sheep	1 20	@	3 35

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	55⅛	@	57¼
Corn No 2	56
Oats	31½	@	39
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	15		20
Butter	13	@	25
Wool	19	@	25

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25	@	5 25
Hogs	2 75		5 72
Sheep	2 00	@	3 25

"Chautauqua" Oil Heater Free With A Combination Box of "Sweet Home" Soap.

Central draft round wick burner. Absolutely odorless. Height, 3 feet, Dia. of drum 8½ inches; weight, 30 pounds. One gallon kerosene lasts 12 hours. The laundry and toilet soaps, "Boraxine" and "Modjeska" toilet articles, if bought at retail would cost, - - - - - - - - - $10.00 } You Get All For $10.00.
Heater, worth at retail, - 10.00 }

We will send Box and Heater on thirty days' trial; if satisfactory you can remit $10.00 if not, hold goods subject to our order.

See Christian Cynosure Oct. 11 issue.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co. · Buffalo, N.Y.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Terms:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers. 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2 50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and coucil. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

HOOD'S

Sarsaparilla is carefully prepared by experienced pharmacists from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipssisewa, Juniper Berries, and other well known vegetable remedies. The Combination, Proportion and Process are Peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it strength and curative power Peculiar to Itself, not possessed by other medicines. Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Sores, Boils, Pimples and all other affections caused by impure blood; Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints. It is Not What we Say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla Does, that Tells the Story — Hood's Sarsaparilla

CURES

Hood's Pills are gentle, mild and effective.

LITERATURE

—ON THE—

ROMAN QUESTION

TAKEN FROM THE

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.

FRANKED ENVELOPES

Address,

Rev. Green Clay Smith,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf..... 1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.

Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE	TEACHER'S QUARTERLY	5c.
" " "	SCHOLAR'S "	3c.
" " "	INTERMEDIATE "	3c.
" " "	PRIMARY "	3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Home and Health.

HOW TO SAVE SHOES.

Mr. John S. Maxwell, a shoe merchant in Des Moines, Iowa, in a quaint poetical advertisement, gives the following as the treatment of shoes:

"If you do not want your shoes to spoil,
Give them a frequent coat of oil (neatsfoot);
When the souls are nearly through,
A new half soul will them renew;
All kinds of gloss are sure to spoil,
Unless preceded by the oil.
If you do not oil them they're sure to crack,
And then you'll want to bring them back;
No fine outfit is quite complete
Without nice shoes upon your feet."

SURE CURE FOR HICCOUGHS.

"Why don't you stop that hiccoughing?" asked a man of a friend who was convulsed with the annoying convulsions in the street near the Astor house the other day.

"Stop them," gulped the other, "I—I—wish I could. Held my breath—15 minutes—drank nine swallows—water; nine times. Tried to scare myself; made believe—lost my watch. No good. They won't go."

"Will you buy, if I cure them for you?" asked the first speaker, laughing at the frequent interruptions in his friend's descriptions of his troubles. The other gasped an affirmative reply and the two entered the rotunda.

"Give this man a heaping spoonful of powdered sugar," said the friend to the barkeeper. The man did so. "Now swallow it," continued the speaker to the victim of hiccoughs. The latter assayed to do so, and succeeded after some little effort, for it is not an easy matter to swallow a mouthful of powdered sugar. When he mastered it, he looked inquiringly at his friend.

"Well, where are your hiccoughs now?" remarked the other with a smile.

"They seem to have gone," he replied, "but they'll come back again, I suppose, after a little while."

"If they do," said the friend, "it will be the first case I know of where powdered sugar has failed to give relief for hiccoughs. If one spoonful of sugar wont do it, two certainly will. So far as I know, it's a postitive remedy.—New York Herald.

A GOOD CURE.

Addison tells, in the Spectator, an old story of an emperor who had dyspepsia, and his doctor ordered a hole bored in an axe-handle and some medicine poured into it instead of into his mouth. Then the emperor was ordered to use the axe in chopping till his hands became moist with sweat. This, it was said, would cause them to absorb the drug and produce a cure. The story goes that the prescription succeeded, and that his majesty became sound and well once more in his digestive organs.

"Doctor," said a patient to his consulting physician, "I believe there is something wrong with my stomach." "Not a bit of it," replied the doctor; "God made your stomach, and he knows how to make one; the only trouble is that there is something wrong with what you put into it."

We never know of but one case in which advertising did not pay. It occurred in Chicago. A burglar overlooked eighty dollars in a bureau drawer, and the paper so announced. He returned the next night, and not only secured it, but a suit of clothes besides.—Clothier and furnisher.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, which has outlived and superseded hundreds of similar preparations, is undoubtedly the most fashionable as well as economical hairdressing in the market. By its use, the poorest head of hair soon becomes luxuriant and beautiful.

If you want a reliable dye that will color an even brown or black, and will please and satisfy you every time, use Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

Cleaning House.

Hard work or easy work, just as you choose. If you find it hard work, it's because you won't use Pearline. You'd rather waste your time and your strength with that absurd rubbing and scrubbing. Of course it's hard—that's why Pearline was invented, that's why Pearline is a household word. You don't know how easy it can be, until you let Pearline do the work.

Then house-cleaning slips right along. It is over before you know it.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 333 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

 Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

THE ADVANCE

—IS—

A WIDE AWAKE

RELIGIOUS FAMILY PAPER.

Especially Representing the Congregational Churches of Our Country.

It celebrates the commencement of its 28th year by changing, October 1st, to the popular magazine form, and expects to give a fine portrait of some prominent divine of national reputation as a weekly feature of great value.

During the coming year another serial by "PANSY" will appear. Its Sunday School Lessons, Household and other departments will be kept up to their already high standards, and new and pleasing departments will be added. Subscription price $2.00 per year. If strictly in advance, $1.75.

Trial Offer, Three Months 25 Cts

The Advance,
215 Madison Street, - - Chicago.

N. B.—New subscribers will receive the paper from now to January 1, 1896, for the price of one year. Sample copies sent free on application.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, The Roman Catholic Practice of Auricular Confession. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A Warning to America. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the Secret Societies of France. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Babies

ought to be fat. They are sickly when thin and thin when their food does not nourish them.

Scott's Emulsion

the cream of Cod-liver Oil and hypophosphites, makes babies fat and well, strengthens growing children and nourishes mothers. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

WATERTOWN AND BEES.

Watertown, Wis., is old and staid and well established. It was at one time the second city in size in the State. The country round about runs to barley raising, and Watertown is one of the large markets of the country for that grain. The town has large manufacturing interests and makes flour, shoes, beer, malt, cigars, boilers, cheese—but the specialty of Watertown is beehives. A beehive is simply a box, and anybody can make a box. Any beekeeper can and does make beehives, but aside from the hives made by beekeepers there are 100,000 factory-made hives sold yearly in the United States. Of this number above 25,000 are made in Watertown. Nearly all of the balance are made in Medina, Ohio, and Jamestown, N. Y.

The number of individuals constituting a hive or colony of bees is not known in Watertown, but experience has taught that a box eighteen inches long, twelve inches wide and ten inches deep will house an average settlement. Bees are communists and they never allow their communities to grow beyond that point where every man is personally acquainted with every other man in town and can work with him peaceably.

The Watertown beehive is filled with frames, eight in number, like narrow picture frames. Within these frames the bees build their comb, beginning at the top and working down, and fill the cells with honey for the raising of their young and for food during the winter strike. When they have provided for themselves and their families, including their queen and her suit of lovers, the drones, they are ready to work for humanity. Here is where the grocery store honey appears, put up by the bees themselves in pound packages, in frames that look like an early spring strawberry box, with the bottom out. A box containing twenty-four of these frames is placed on top of the hive proper, and when the bees have supplied their home with about twenty pounds of honey they begin to store their surplus in the frames above.

LEADS THE WORLD IN HONEY FRAMES.

In the making of these frames Watertown leads the world. Between thirty and forty millions of factory-made frames are filled yearly by the bees of the commercial world. Of these Watertown makes between twelve and fifteem millions. They are shipped all over America, England, France, Australia and South Africa. There is no protective tariff on honey frames.

The bee is justly celebrated for his industry, but there is a large element of chance in his work. His assignment is like that of a newspaper reporter writing politics. He (the bee) investigates every blossom. Sometimes he gets honey and more often he does not, and he goes home with all kinds of pollen on his legs. In a good season, when blossoms are plentiful, a colony of bees in a Watertown hive will gather twenty pounds of honey for their own use and forty pounds for humanity. In laying up his surplus honey the bee is largely aided by man's invention. There is an artificial "foundation" for honey comb made exclusively in the town of Hamilton, Ill., and sent from there to beekeepers all over the world. It is made of wax pressed into thin sheets and covered with indentations, from which the bee builds the pendant honey cells. A strip of this "foundation" is pasted in each frame, and the bee can thus proceed at once with honey-making, being saved the time and labor of gathering the wax and building the foundation.

There is no such article in the market as artificial or imitation honey in the comb. The imitation, if it ever should be made, would cost much more than the genuine article. The Watertown hivemakers say the newspaper articles describing artificial honey are all "fakes."

CURE FOR BEE STINGS.

In connection with the business end of a bee it is well to know that wherever a bee sting is possible the cure for it is always at hand. Take three kinds of grass or weeds, bruise them together and apply to the sting. The pain will cease at once and but little swelling will result. This is a "Spoon River" remedy, and the writer knows it to be infallible.

In the region of Wisconsin honey is made almost entirely from clover and basswood blossoms. This year it is entirely basswood, as there was no clover. In the far west the alfalfa blossom is the chief source of honey, and in California buckwheat honey is first.—Chicago Herald.

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

Cures OTHERS, WILL Cure You.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT.

Our Michigan colporteur and agent, Mr. Jasper J. Tucker, has begun his labors and had some success in securing subscribers and selling books. He spent two days at the Methodist conference in Jackson. He writes:

"I found some of the ministers who knew Stephen Merritt, and spoke very highly of him, but others said he was a crank, and one, a Mason, said he had a screw loose in his head.

They got well stirred up with my being there with such books and papers. God helped me, and I dared any of the ministers to take the Bible and sustain the order against my condemnation of it, but they dare not undertake it. I sold a few books and got some subscribers for the Lodge Lamp. I had a chance to give many to the preachers and others. It is doing good and will help to open their eyes."

The Association would heartily commend Bro. Tucker to all who need the services of a godly man, a seceder of three degrees, to canvass their communities. His address is Spring Arbor, Mich., though letters addressed to this office will reach him.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next.....	$ 25
To January, 1896.....	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal.....	3.00

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

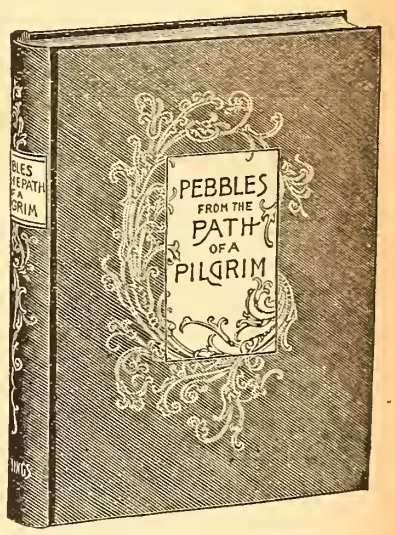
The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.



Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK (Continued from 13th page).

The secretary of state has granted a charter for the incorporation of the John Crerar library at Chicago, without capital stock, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a free public library according to the last will and testament of the late John Crerar. This library has a fund of some $2,000,000.

CASUALTIES.

The storm which broke upon New York shortly after midnight, Wednesday night, did great damage on sea and land. The tracks of the New Jersey Southern Railroad were covered with sand washed upon them by the waves.

Mrs. John C. L. Miller and her ten-year-old niece were murdered at their home near Liberty, Ill., Wednesday night. The husband of Mrs. Miller was absent at the time of the tragedy. It is thought that robbery was the object of the murder, as $60 is missing from the home.

Four men were killed, two fatally injured, and several others painfully burned by a disastrous boiler explosion that occurred at the Henry Clay Colliery, Shamokin, Pa. The entire steam supplying plant of the mine, consisting of thirty-six boilers, was totally demolished. The Henry Clay, Big Mountain Sterling and Peerless Collieries will be unable to resume operations for at least a month.

A tenement house fire, thought to be of incendiary origin, in Boston, Thursday, caused eight of the inmates to hurl themselves from the building, with the result that two are dead, two are fatally injured, and four are seriously hurt.

Thursday morning a seven-story building in course of erection in New York was blown down by the gale. It crashed through a two-story building demolishing it completely. Two families with boarders were all buried in the ruins, six persons being killed outright and fifteen injured.

The explosion of a boiler of a saw-mill twenty miles west of Dexter, Mo., killed three men and seriously wounded another. The cause was low water in the boiler. The explosion was terrific, the top of the building being blown upon a hillside some distance away.

A nothwest gale of exceptional force swept over Newfoundland Wednesday night. The storm was very severe at St, Pierre, Miquelon, where 200 lives were lost and great damage was done. A heavy sea was running in the harbor. All the vessels put out extra anchors but not less than fifty dragged their anchors or parted their cables and were thrown upon the shore. No assistance could be rendered the shipwrecked men from the shore. A number of them who jumped overboard and attempted to reach the shore by swimming were drowned, while others were swept into the sea by the waves coming over the vessels and were not seen again until their bodies were cast upon the beach. The wrecked vessels were part of the fishing fleet that had put into St. Pierre from the banks to repair damages they had sustainsd during the heavy storm of Sept. 30.

A furious northwest gale struck Lake Ontario, Lake Erie, and Lower Lake Huron Wednesday night. Several boats are known to be disabled and helpless on the lakes. The only report of loss of life comes from Oswego. A vessel thought to be the Hartford foundered with all on board. Elsewhere several sailers were injured during the storm.

COUNTRY.

Natural gas was struck on the farm of Andrew Myers, three miles east of Princeton, Ill., while boring for artesian water. It is of high pressure and the field is considered valuable.

The organization of a civic federation to secure the enforcement of law in Toledo, O., is now assured. It is the outgrowth of the enormous number of gambling houses and wine-rooms in the city and the open violation of the Sunday law. Articles of incorporation were filed last Thursday at Columbus and the executive committee here is mapping out work for a vigorous campaign.

FOREIGN.

Professor Leyden, the distinguished specialist, has just returned from Spala, where he has been in attendance upon the Czar in conjunction with Professor Zacharlin. Replying to the request for a definite statement as to the nature of the illness of the Czar, the Professor said distinctly: "His Majesty is suffering from Bright's disease." He added, however: "But the disease is, as yet, in a mild form, though complicated with diabetes. The latter is causing difficulty in breathing."

The Upper Hungarian Diet has adopted, by a majority of three, the bill granting liberty of worship to all religious beliefs.

Shan-Kwan, where the Japanese are reported to have landed 40,000 troops, is directly on the railroad building from Tien-Tsin to Moukden, and is of great strategic importance. In fact, the opinion has been expressed that if Shan-Kwan is captured there is nothing to prevent the Japanese from marching on Pekin. A Japanese fleet was reported to have been sighted off Shan-Kwan on Sept. 28. A letter received here from Tien-Tsin says that during the progress of a large fire there on Friday last the Chinese merchants protected the settlement and are now patrolling the streets from sunset to sunrise. A dispatch from Shanghai dated confirms the report that rebellion has broken out 100 miles from Hankow. The rebels were fairly armed and very reckless. They attacked the government buildings, which were feebly defended by local troops. The latter were soon defeated, many of them being killed and others joined the rebels. Two mandarins were killed. The Chinese officials no longer deny that the Japanese fleet commands the Gulf of Pechili. The Japanese Admiral pays a weekly visit to every important station on the gulf and makes his inspection leisurely. Eight Japanese cruisers sounded the entrance to the Harbor of Wei Hai Wei for three hours Saturday last and then went across to Port Arthur, where they made observations without getting within range of the guns of that place. The Japanese have occupied the south bank of the Yalu River after driving back the Chinese.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.
"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.
"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.
"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.
"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.
"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.
"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.
"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

A World's Tribute.

America Leads the Nations in the March of Progress.

Among the wonders of the World's Columbian Fair the grandest was the exhibit of American products. The Exhibition was, in this respect, an object lesson of the grandeur and glory of the Republic. Among the exhibits from the United States no article of its class stood so high as

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

The Chief Chemist of the Agricultural Department at Washington, backed by an intelligent jury at the Exposition, found it strongest in leavening power, peerless in its purity and beyond comparison in uniform excellence, Received Highest Award At the World's Fair.

The award is a matter of official record.

Nothing could settle so decisively the immeasureable superiority of Dr. Price's over all other powders as the great honor bestowed at Chicago.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mar 95

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 7. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,278.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Delegates to the Annual Meeting..... 8
Not by the A. P. A..... 8
Strikes and Unions..... 8
Gen. Howard on the Canteen..... 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Desolator of Alaska. 2
The Word of God against the Lodge..... 2
We Have to Adjourn.. . 2
Despotic and un-American Orders..... 3
SELECTED:
Ingersoll and the Press Club..... 3
Papacy in Europe..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 5
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
REFORM NEWS:
Plans for the N. Y. Convention; Bright Days for Reform..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
The Lodge or the Church —Which? A Railway Discussion.....5,6
LITERATURE..... 6
LODGE NOTES..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES.....15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

Sometime it will be as impolitic to call a man a Freemason in this country as in Spain. Last week the Queen Regent of that country brought suit through government officials against the proprietors and managers of several Roman Catholic papers, who have published the report that through her influence the young king had been enrolled as a Freemason.

The great building which collapsed in New York during the storm of Wednesday night had barely been completed. During the afternoon of the previous day the last nail had been driven and the roof covered with evident rejoicing on the part of the workmen. Flags were displayed, and, to crown all, two kegs of beer were taken to the roof and quaffed with great hilarity. Not ten hours later the whole structure had gone down in a wreck, and half a dozen lives crushed out in the ruin.

Frank G. Carpenter, a correspondent whose intelligent and entertaining letters on Corea and China are helping American readers to understand the situation in those countries at this interesting juncture, speaks highly of the missionaries in the former country. "The missionary force in Corea," he says, "is large and it has done a great and good work. I don't believe there are more earnest, active and intelligent missionaries anywhere than you will find in this country. They have a strong hold upon the people, and they are thoroughly respected by the king. The headquarters of the missions are in Seoul. The work is chiefly done by the Presbyterians and the Methodists as far as the Americans are concerned. The French Catholics have a large force at work among the people, and there is also a mission of the Church of England, which is, I think, managed from London. The American Presbyterian mission consists of something like twenty people, and the most of the missionaries have wives and families. The Methodist mission is equally as large, and both have hospitals and schools."

No one should accuse the Baroness Burdett-Coutts as lacking in philanthropy. Her benevolence is as well known as her wealth. She has spent many years of her life and a large part of her great fortune in promoting the interests and ameliorating the condition of the working classes. It is no wonder therefore that she is indignant at the London Painters' trade union. That body, through its officers, lodged a complaint against her that her stables were being painted by non-union men. In a spirited reply she informed the insulting meddlers that her own stable men were painting their building, and denounced the "monstrous and intolerable oppression which the union claims to have the right to practice, and which would deprive every workingman of the right to work out his own advancement by his own energy and rob him of the birthright of personal liberty."

The Northern Pacific railway company follows the lead of the Union Pacific in ordering politicians out of its employ. The letter sent to all employes lately, says the company "does not desire to take any part or interest in politics on account of the strife it would engender." All employes must therefore refrain from taking active part in politics, and if any accept a nomination they must resign. If the company had based its reason for such an order on the obvious difficulty of serving two masters, its action would have been much more consistent. The intention is evidently to forestall the political effort of Debs in the A. R. U., and other orders. That might provoke strife, but not greatly hinder the work of the road. But when a man goes to work for an office he cannot be relied on to mind switches or run a locomotive at the same time, under modern election methods.

James Anthony Froude, the English historian and magazine writer, died Saturday morning at the age of 76. His greatest single work is the history of England, which is remarkable for a brilliant and dramatic style, and for a kind of special pleading which detracts from its trustworthiness. While his unsparing characterization of Mary, Queen of Scots, has probably caused a better appreciation of a woman whom old Dr. John Lord used to say was "a cross between Catherine de Medici and old Jezebel," his deification of Henry VIII. is regarded as dramatic rather than truthful. His genius was bold, original, and unconventional. From the time when he broke with the Established Church in 1848, and scolded the Irish as the authors of their own misfortunes, to the publication of the Carlyle memoirs, his critics have been many and unsparing, yet all yielded to the greatness of his genius and dreaded the club of his iconoclasm.

A Masonic rebellion impends in Italy. It all comes from the position lately taken by the Italian government, through its prime minister Crispi, which looks to a reconciliation with the papists. Crispi is a Freemason and such action on his part is intolerable to the lodges. The New York Times quotes the Figaro of Paris in the case to this effect: "Signor Crispi is about to be expelled from the fraternity of Freemasons, of which he has long been a member. For some time past his political attitude has excited a good deal of hostility in the lodges. His recent speech at Naples especially is held by many to constitute direct advances to the Vatican, which is the last Masonic apostasy. A movement for Signor Crispi's expulsion soon arose. The lodges of Turin and Milan have united in petitioning the Grand Master of the Italian lodges to this effect, and these will most probably be supported in their demand by others. Should the council of the order refuse to pronounce the expulsion, a secession is expected. The majority of the lodges would then sever their allegiance to the Italian Grand Master and place themselves under the rule of the Grand Orient of France."

Dr. Parkhurst and the Lexow committee are a grief to Tammany. Day after day some new corruption is dug up and spread out all vile and foul smelling in the mid-day sun. Some effect is seen in the refusal of Mr. Strauss, the Tammany nominee for mayor, to run; and the daily more obvious fact that Mr. Hill may not be next governor of New York. John W. Goff, the able and uncorruptible lawyer who has pushed the examination of witnesses before the Lexow committee, is candidate for a responsible judicial office, and good men hope to elect him. Dr. Parkhurst received a letter the other day from a former officer in one of the criminal courts of the city, who says he was appointed by a judge who was a member of the Tammany secret society. He was compelled to pay $20 amonth to a relative of the judge, and the bargain to that effect was made in the victim's own house, in the presence of witnesses. A large number of policemen and officials, who have been implicated in the frauds proved before the inquiry, have been arrested, and the usual resort of bribery is now the only one remaining, if they escape the punishment due their crimes.

In Chicago some secret power of lodge or saloon is making a joke of the hard work of the Civic Federation. The indicted gamblers have an understanding with the prosecuting attorney and are having little trouble in escaping from fine and imprisonment. The proximity of election is not favorable to the prosecution, but the Federation has resolved to continue the fight to the end. Some of the judges have shown a loyal spirit in this effort to enforce law against a most dangerous, lawless and corrupt gang. Good men of all parties have in this connection endorsed the nomination of Orrin F. Carter by the Republicans for county judge. Mr. Carter graduated from Wheaton College in 1877; and in various responsible positions, as superintendent of schools and prosecuting attorney of Grundy county, Ill., and attorney for the Chicago Drainage Board, he has been a man of unquestioned probity and ability, always devoted to the best interests of the public. His candidacy, says the Record, our independent press, "stands for the non-partisan and able administration" of the office.

THE DESOLATOR OF ALASKA.

BY JOSIAH W. LEEDS.

A rather long article, treating of the woes brought upon the aborigines of this country by the white men's liquor, had just been written and mailed by the undersigned to the National Temperance Advocate of New York—reference to the sorrows of the Alents in the same connection having only been omitted because sufficient upon the general subject seemed to have been aready said—when the reference to the present lamentable state of affairs in that far-away district, mentioned in the letter of the Cynosure's Washington correspondent, was read. The convicting tale that he tells had its initial chapter written immediately upon the acquisition of the Territory of Alaska from Russia in 1867. The demoralization of the native Alents, it is humiliating to admit, began only when the country which had heretofore been known as Russian America was transferred to the government of the United States.

Now if we will turn to the Board of Indian Commissioners' Report for the year 1869, we will find there the report of Vincent Colyer, special Commissioner to Alaska, in the course of which he makes the following accusatory language:

"Nowhere else that I have visited is the absolute uselessness of soldiers so apparent as in Alaska.....The soldiers will have whisky, and the Indians are equally fond of it. The free use of this, by both soldiers and Indians, together with the other debaucheries between them, rapidly demoralize both, though the whites, having the larger resources and being better cared for by the government, in horses, clothing and food, endure it the longest."

It was in the spring of the following year only, and but three years after we had taken from Russia the fee to this vast territory, that Commissioner Colyer, in a letter to Pres. Grant at that time, admitted that the bombardment of Wrangel was brought about as the result of a mere fracas, in which two half-drunken discharged soldiers seized an Indian in the town, and brutally beat and stamped upon him. Mayor Dodge, of Sitka, testified that some of the officers drank immoderately of liquor, one or two of them having been drunk for a week at a time, and that the Kake war arose out of a pure incident of drunkenness,—the kicking of an Indian by a drunken soldier. It was the testimony of Collector Kapus also, of the port of Sitka, that liquor was readily smuggled into the country, the government vessels not being able to patrol the shallow waters of the numerous inlets along the coast. A quarter of a century has gone by, and to-day we find Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin detailing, after his late official visit to Alaska, how he found liquors openly sold throughout the country, illicit distilling carried on in various places, and the saloons freely dealing out intoxicants on the first day of the week, when the law says they must be closed. Can the condition of affairs, indeed, ever be markedly different so long as the right to deal in the debauching and deadly drink is permitted at all?

One further extract I make from the papers of that first decade of United States civilization in the Territory of Alaska. Writing to Commissioner Colyer, Mayor William S. Dodge, of Sitka, averred that the conduct of certain military and naval officers and soldiers has been bad and demoralizing in the extreme, not only contaminating the Indians, but in fact demoralizing and making the inhabitants of Sitka what Dante characterized Italy—"A grand house of ill fame." He further states, on the authority of Medical Director Bailey, that within six months after the appearance of the troops at Sitka, nearly the whole of the Sitka tribe, some twelve hundred in number, were suffering from venereal diseases, from which many of them eventually died.

The record of moral disaster in the territory from that day to this has been continuous. As late as last week I was reading the account of a mission station for the native boys and girls, established by Friends on Douglas Island in Yukon Inlet. "It will be almost certain death," writes one of the caretakers, "to all that is good if they go out into the element that they will have to associate with here. The natives are not half so much to be dreaded as the bad white men." I think it was two years ago that a previous teacher sent out by the Friends, a man of excellent reputation, met his death at the hands of liquor-dealing white men, whom he had incensed because of his opposition to their nefarious designs and actions. The recent opening of the mines in various localities of Alaska have introduced an element, which, in association with the liquor so readily to be had, has operated to intensify the prevalent evils. It is surely the duty of our government to make absolutely prohibitory the sale of all intoxicating liquors in the territory. May it be written in the book of Revised Statutes by the incoming Congress, and may the people will it so!

Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORD OF GOD AGAINST THE ORDERS.

FROM THE ADDRESS OF REV. T. P. CONNOR, AT THE PACIFIC COAST CONVENTION.

All secret oath-bound orders are unscriptural. If this can be proved, then all who believe the Scriptures are enjoined from going into fellowship with them. Therefore I shall try to prove the statement from the Word of God.

The first text is Lev. 6:4: "If a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil or to do good, whatever it be that a man pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him, then he shall be guilty of one of these." From this text alone a man is guilty before God who swears, it matters not whether it be for an evil or for a good purpose, if the object of it be hid from him at the time of taking the obligation.

For a scriptural illustration of those who have been foresworn, or bound by an oath to a particular thing, and that thing unknown to them, let us first notice the case of Jephthah. He took an oath that, if he was successful in destroying the children of Ammon, on his return home he would offer up as a burnt offering the first thing that met him, and we are told in this case the Lord gave Jephthah success and that he smote them with "a very great slaughter." On his return, when nearing his own house who should come to meet him but his daughter, an only child. Mark you, this vow was made unto the Lord: and yet it is considered a rash vow, for it contains an unseen subject as a sacrifice, and then the object or subject that presented itself was a human being, and one that was innocent; and a human sacrifice was forbidden, for God said he abhorred the sacrifice made to the god of Molech.

A second illustration is the oath of Herod the king recorded in Mark 6: 21–23: When the damsel pleased the king, he said unto her, "Ask of me whatsoever you will and I will give it, even to the half of my kingdom." He bound himself to the obligation by an oath in the presence of his honored guests; but not knowing what the request would be, for that was hid from him. In this lies the sin of Herod, because he acknowledged John the Baptist to be a good and just man, and he obeyed him in many things. The record says that the king was exceeding sorry, "but for his oath's sake and for the sake of them which sat with him," he would not reject her, and he ordered the execution of John. In this we see that Herod sinned in taking the hidden obligation, and this led to a second sin; to-wit, the shedding of innocent blood, which is murder in first degree.

In these two illustrations we see that it was wrong to take an obligation respecting that as yet they knew not; and in keeping the obligations led to a sin condemned by the law of God as given by Moses, and also all civil law of every civilized nation under the sun. Therefore all oaths whose final ending is unforeseen should be intelligently and conscientiously avoided.

Secret oath-bound societies set up a government and authority which is contrary to all well-ordered civil government, for they administer oaths to their subjects and add penalties and even death penalties to some of the violations of their laws, which alone should rest in the governments. They also demand allegiance to their institutions by their subjects, even if it brings the individual in conflict with his country; of which we have had many illustrations during the years past. For instance, the "Jesuits," the Masonic order, Knights of the Golden Circle, the Clan-na-Gael, the Anarchists, and many others have come directly in antagonism with the law of our land and true liberty.

Again, they set up a standard of religion in their rituals contrary to the Scriptures, for in all their ritualistic prayers and ceremonies the name of Christ Jesus is omitted or dishonored. Their burial ceremonies are idolatrous and heathenish. Their salutations to their officers are contrary to the Word of God, especially in addressing the chief officer calling him "Most Worthy," "Worshipful Master," and like terms. Since they do not allow the name of Christ Jesus in their ritual for fear of offending the Jews and other opposers of Christ, they are anti-Christian, and set up another standard of religion contrary to the Word of God.

I do not understand how any one professing to be a converted Christian can join in such a brotherhood, or order, whose oaths are at variance with the Word of God, whose practices or acts are dyed in sin and crime, which are opposed to all well-ordered civil governments, and whose religious ceremonies are anti-Christian, Jesus says (Mark 8:38): "Whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him shall also the Son of man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels."

WE HAVE TO ADJOURN.

BY PROF. S. M. HILL, LUTHER ACADEMY, WAHOO, NEBRASKA.

Protestantism in its present condition is a house divided against itself, and our Lord says such a house shall not stand. From that I conclude that unless we Protestants cease our wrangling we have written our own death warrant and God Almighty has set his seal thereunto.

Bro. A. M. Paull speaks for the Baptists that they dare not cease.....We have to "adjourn," and if our good Baptist brethren will not abide by it, we will all have to join our forces and compel them. That was done in Utah fifteen years ago, and it worked excellently. They were made to feel that they had no right to cause dissension in our ranks right in front of the enemy. Bro. Paull speaks of "soul liberty." The rest of us Protestants prefer the term "liberty of conscience." And that was proclaimed by the Monk at Worms long before Bro. R. Williams was a baby. And the cause of the "Disintegration of Protestantism!" Is it liberty of conscience? Is it the right of each one to exercise his private judgment in religious matters? The Romanists say that is the cause.

But that is not the cause. The cause is one of the Roman errors that we have as yet failed to purge ourselves from. Rome demands that every Christian shall conform with its tenets and all belong to one, i. e., the Roman organization. They recognize no other form of Christianity.

And we try to do likewise. "The world for Christ and Methodism!" is an expression for the same idea. Sending missionaries into the field of other denominations, and inducing members of other denominations to join our own, attempting to show that union around "an apostolic episcopate," or about "the apostolic mode of baptism," is the only possible way of union—all of that is but the application of the Roman idea. The very first pre-requisite for a Protestant union is mutual recognition. Until our Baptist brethren cease demanding that the other Protestants shall yield their interpretation of the Bible and accept that of the Baptists, until then there can be no Protestant unions. They must recognize that we also have the same right to our opinions as they have to theirs, and not brand us as heretics and perverters of the Gospel because we please to differ from them.

Upon this first idea as a basis we have division of territory as the next step, so that no place is compelled to have more church organizations than it can support. Just think of all the struggling congregations and mission places that try to support four or five ministers where one or two could tend to the work. And very many in their zeal fail to see the ridiculous folly of such a procedure. But that is our punishment and it will not cease until we have that "adjournment."

The third step will then be the abolishment of proselytism, that curse upon the religious life of our age. Proselytism is the struggle for supremacy, a union of the lamb-within-the-lion order. It is the policy persistently pursued by the Roman church, and we should not imitate her. In case we are attacked, as we always are by the Roman church, it can be used as a retaliatory measure in self-defense. But we should never use it against one another.

Bro. Paull may rejoin that such an arrangement would be a blow at "soul liberty." But what is human liberty after all but a series of restrictions along the line of the Golden Rule? We are not allowed to let our cattle roam at large to the damage of our neighbor; we are not allowed to go into his field and reap his harvest. Why should we then do that in our church work which the law of both God and man forbids us to do in every-day life? Bro. Paull, we must come to an adjournment. "Remember the fate of the Kilkenny cats."

DESPOTIC AND UN-AMERICAN ORDERS.

BY REV. C. POWERS.

At a re-union of old soldiers at Bethel Springs, Tenn., a Republican nominee for Congress made an eloquent and patriotic speech on the democratic character of our government which we should all cherish and maintain. He said, "No princes or princesses are here. There are no lordly titles of nobility in our government; and that is the government for me." I could breathe an amen to that; but my thoughts were almost choking me while the speaker was drawing the picture of the good in such terms that I could but contrast it with the evil.

Masonic government is wide-spread and strangely popular with thousands, and is notoriously a despotism. It has rulers with no acknowledged responsibility to those who are ruled. They have unconditionally sworn to obey, whether right or wrong. And these rulers have "lordly titles" corresponding to their despotic power. With them it is "Worshipful Master" or "Most Worshipful". Instead of "Mr. President" it is "Sublime Prince" or "Sovereign Grand Inspector General." Put these along with "Grand Inspector," "Inquisitor Commander," etc., and scores of other titles of like blasphemous and boastful nature. These are not secrets of the orders. In our American government we have chaplains; in Masonry they have "High Priests," and "Grand High Priests," and the like.

Yet it is not the title alone that we deplore. In "Worshipful Master" there is the idea of despotic power, all un-American, and dangerous to tolerate. Notice the claims of Masonic writers. Mackey's Masonic Jurisprudence, page 344, says: "As a presiding officer the Master is possessed of extraordinary powers, which belong to the presiding officer of no other association." Chase's Digest of Masonic Law, page 380, says: "The powers and privileges of Masters are by no means limited in extent." Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry, page 296, says: "The power of a Master in his lodge is absolute."

There then is absolute despotism on the one hand, which implies absolute slavery on the part of the governed. Yet this despot and his dupes are alike slaves to the Grand Lodge, which is the center of Masonic government. Here the Master is not merely "Worshipful Master" but "Most Worshipful Master," a title which could not be rightfully applied except to the Creator of the universe. The despotic powers of a Grand Lodge is akin to the above God-insulting Masonic title, as may be seen by any one taking the pains to consult the authors above referred to. To give a sample quotation: "The government of Grand Lodges is completely despotic. While a Grand Lodge exists it must be respected and obeyed without examination by its subordinate lodges." And the Lexicon goes on to say that if a Grand Lodge should decree contrary to the ancient constitutions, "there is no redress for its subordinates;" but the only way to reach the offending Grand Lodge would be revolutionary action of other d Lodges against it.

Reader, do you ask, is it possible that such abominable laws exist and are in force all around us, and in every commonwealth of these United States? It is even so. In the language of the late President Jonathan Blanchard: "We have such a machine of horror in every State and Territory of the United States, and I believe in every political jurisdiction in the whole world! And yet so effectually was this terrible scheme concealed beneath glaring pretensions of religion and charity, and coarse merriment and lying legends, and gaudy finery, and sounding titles and cautious concealment, that the nations did not turn pale and tremble when this machine of mischief was set up among them." "As a political engine it is what the patriot, Samuel Adams, called 'That solecism in politics an Imperium in Imperio,'—a government within a government. In it we have a secret empire in our midst, having its own laws, oaths, officers and courts, and claiming the right to inflict death on its subjects who disregard them. Being thus a secret organization, like those of bandits and burglars, with signs and tokens of recognition which they are sworn by shocking penalties to regard, everywhere and anywhere they may be received, they can draw all power to themselves; and, as they have often done, defy and defeat our laws and government, in the very courts set to execute them."

Would to God that the talented and eloquent speaker referred to might be of the same mind of that eminent statesman, Daniel Webster, who said, "It is my opinion that the future administration of all such oaths, and the formation of any such obligations, should be prohibited by law."

That clear-headed and great-souled statesman, Charles Sumner, said: "Freemasonry must be destroyed if our country is to be the home of the free as our ancestors designed." And one of our early Presidents, John Quincy Adams, said: "I am prepared to complete the demonstration before God and man that the Masonic oaths, obligations and penalties cannot by any possibility be reconciled to the laws of morality, of Christianity, or of the land." Oh, for men of sentiments like these to fill our legislative halls and defend our country from the attack of the secret empire!

McNairy, Tenn.

INGERSOLL AND THE PRESS CLUB.

(Inter Ocean, Oct. 15.)

To many it may seem strange that the Press Club of Chicago, which by those who do not know better is believed to represent the most matured and best thought of the profession of journalism, frequently invites Colonel Ingersoll to lecture upon a subject and in a manner that is insulting to the intelligence and aggravating to the feelings of those who—and they form an immense majority of civilization—believe in the existence of God, in a written revelation of his character and purpose, and of the spiritual and temporal dependence of man upon him. This action of the Press Club is not representative of the newspaper people.

There is also a school of oratory in which Mr. Ingersoll easily is chief. None is equal to him in command of the fleeting sympathies. Tears and laughter answer to his call. While he talks he is monarch. We do not care to dwell upon his limitations. Logic, philosophy, argumentation are qualities that not always are developed by or in the brilliant rhetorician. It is sufficient to say that Mr. Ingersoll does not rank among skeptics with Voltaire, or with Renan, or with Huxley, or even with Hume. Religiously, or irreligiously, he is the philosopher of the jejune. And to-day it is, as in all other days it has been, the fashion of the jejune to affect what goes in cant as liberalism, but which is the extreme of intolerance, inasmuch as it seeks and delights to offend the sensibilities of Christendom.

Certainly we do not care to defend the central fact of Christendom against the atheism of Mr. Ingersoll or of his admirers in the Press Club of Chicago. Lord Bacon, Voltaire, Napoleon, and Kant in brilliant aphorisms have confirmed the edict of David, King of Israel—"The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." There is no member of the Press Club who can stand on any side of this quadrilateral of immortal intelligences, nor can Mr. Ingersoll himself.

There are subjects upon which Mr. Ingersoll lectures without offense to the deepest and—whether he believe it or not—the holiest sentiments of mankind. We say mankind advisedly, for Cicero and Marcus Aurelius, Confucius, and Bacon, Burke and Renan, Strauss and Gladstone alike are exponents of sentiments which Mr. Ingersoll delights to ridicule. But the gentlemen who direct the affairs of the Press Club do not ask Mr. Ingersoll to lecture upon unobjectionable topics. They seem to take delight in parading themselves as fautors of attacks upon sentiments and opinions that are cherished as sacred by at least eight-tenths of all the citizens of Chicago and of more than eight-tenths of all that is brainy, all that is constructive, and all that is decent.

As to the lecture itself, it was but a rehash of the Ingersollism of twenty years ago. Jokes that have become stale by repetition, sarcasms that are shattered by frequent hurling against impregnable conviction, philosophies that have been pricked into collapse, enlivened by rhetoric whose charm "age doth not wither nor custom stale," were Mr. Ingersoll's offering. We regret that it is only in bitterness that Mr. Ingersoll increases with age. By nature he is of a sunny temper.

PAPACY IN EUROPE.

(Rev. R. Sailliens, Paris, France, in the Missionary Review of the World.)

It cannot be denied that there is, at the present time, a revival of Roman Catholicism in this Old World of ours. In Great Britain every one knows that the Romish clergy have of late assumed a boldness, a spirit of propagandism, which becomes a danger to the country. Convents and monastaries are being established on all sides; there are forty of them in the county of Sussex alone. Churches and cathedrals are be ing erected, and "conversions" are taking place. In the Anglican church there is an alarming progress toward the popish rites and superstitions, thousands of churches having adopted during the past few years the use of candles, early celebration of the mass, incense, confession, etc. The Romish clergy in one diocese alone (that of Salford) boast of 900 "conversions" during the past year. Who could have expected such things in the land of Cromwell and the Covenanters?

In France the death-fight between the republic and the church, which found its expression seventeen years ago in Gambetta's celebrated utterance "Le clericalisme voila l'enemi!" ("clericalism is the foe") has come to a sort of truce. The people are not, to any considerable extent, more religious than they used to be; fashion, pleasure and immorality hold the sway in Paris and our large cities more than ever. But there is, at the same time, a curious sense of respect perceptible even in the most worldly newspapers, for the things which pertain to religion, and especially to the Romish religion; the pope and the priests are not derided and abused as they were a few years ago; the pope's encyclical letters and speeches are carefully reported and commented on. Following the lead of the late Cardinal Livigerie, the bishops have become reconciled to the republican form of government, and the pope has encouraged them in this new departure. The great reform which the Liberals under Napoleon III. were clamoring for, and which the early republican governments held out as imminent—the separation of church and state—has been shelved by all parties except by the Socialists, who as yet do not count. The Boulangist agitation revealed the fact that the masses of the people crave for a strong government which must of necessity lean upon the church; and though Boulanger is dead, Boulangism is still alive—i. e., the reactionary tendency which must end in clerical rule.

In Germany, statistics show that the Roman Catholic population increases in the Protestant parts of the country. The culturkampf (war against Rome) has been abandoned long ago, while it was but recently that the young Protestant emperor was seen at the Vatican paying his respects to Leo XIII.

Even in the Slavonic countries, submitted to the Greek church, Rome is making some progress. For the first time an ambassador of the Vatican is accredited to the court of the czar, who persecutes the Stundists to death. And a party for reunion to Rome is said to exist in the "orthodox" church.

What are the causes of this recrudescence of Rome?

In Protestant countries we are afraid the main cause is the weakness and loss of power of the evangelical churches. As they have grown rich and prosperous, the Protestants have forsaken, to a great extent, that puritanic spirit which was the strength of the Reformation. From their primitive simplicity of worship they have come down to elaborate services, beautiful and luxurious buildings which are imitations of Roman Catholic mediæval architecture, and thus have led their sons and daughters to the very threshold of Rome, with which Protestants will never be able to compete, try as they may, for finery, music, and display. Moreover, it is sadly evident that, in Great Britain especially, the work of the Reformation did not go deep enough, and that many Romish errors—such as baptismal regeneration and apostolic succession—were left in the Prayer-book as seeds for future apostasy. Wherever a notion of a visible universal church is entertained, logic must lead to the Roman Catholic position.

But we believe that the main cause of this reaction toward Rome in Protestant lands lies in the fact that the Bible does not hold in those countries the same place that it did three centuries ago. Then people turned away from the infallibility of a man to the infallible Book; but now the Book is no more deemed infallible; the "higher" criticism has submitted it to an ordeal as severe as that of the Inquisition in times past. The Inquisition burned the Bible, but the higher critics are tearing it to pieces. And yet there is a craving in the human soul, and especially in the soul which has come into contact with the Gospel, for a moral certainty, for a divine, infallible authority.

In France the reasons for this revival of Catholicism are many. The first is, the shallowness and powerlessness of what is called "free thought," with which, at one time, our leading politicians had foolishly hoped to replace the old superstitions. People will rather eat decayed food than nothing. "Free thought," materialism, positivism, agnosticism, or whatever name modern infidelity assumes, is nothing. It gives no hope for the future, no strength for the present. Under the secular influence of the schools a new generation has grown, utterly ignorant of God, and tremendously materialistic. Learning has not been the panacea which it had been hoped it would be. Crime, drunkenness, lawlessness, have increased in proportion with the number of schools. There have been more divorces in France during the past five years than in England in thirty years. Illegal unions are numerous, infanticide common, and there is a decrease in the population of about twenty thousand souls every year.

No wonder that those who think and who retain some love for virtue are afraid of such a state of things, and, for want of a better one, appeal to the Roman Catholic religion as the only power which can stay this tide of immorality, of which she has been the main factor.

Another cause of the Roman Catholic reaction in France is the marvellous skill of the present pope in adapting himself to modern phraseology and aspirations. History shows us that "Rome never changes," and yet, serpent like, it has a wonderful ability to change its appearance, to insinuate itself in the confidence and love of the peoples by a seeming concession on almost every point of importance to them. The republican form of government, for instance, seems to have rooted itself in the French soil, and to have become a permanent institution in this country; the pope has issued commands to the French bishops that henceforth they should accept the established government and not identify themselves, as they had done before, with the dead and gone monarchies. What is called the "question sociale"—i. e., the questions of capital and labor, of rich and poor—is agitating the minds of our people, as everywhere. The pope has carefully prepared an encyclical letter on the question full of liberal sentiments and evangelical utterances; and a host of Roman Catholic lecturers and journalists, priests and laymen—foremost among whom are L'abbe Garnier and Count de Nun—have gone to work among the masses with the aim of forming a Socialist-Catholic party. Thus we may foresee the most stupendous combination that could ever have been dreamed, and which, if really consummated, will be full of danger to the future of the world—the marriage of red democracy with papacy, the beast whose deadly wounds have been healed, at least in appearance, and which seems as strong as it ever has been.

As I am writing these lines our daily papers are publishing an encyclical letter of the pope—his swan's song, as some say—which exhibits that wonderful craftiness of which I have just spoken. It is an appeal for reunion, especially directed to the Greek and Anglican churches. "Speaking to those nations which have for the last three centuries been separated from the church, the pope shows that there is no certain rule of faith and authority left to them. A large number among them have overthrown the very foundations of Christianity by denying the divinity of Christ and the inspiration of the Scriptures."

Is it not the wonder of wonders that the man who incarnates that awful system by which the Bible has been burned, and its disciples, even to this day, persecuted to death; that system which has established tradition above the Bible, has contradicted every Bible doctrine and tried to silence every Bible preacher, should now dare to stand before the world as the advocate of the Bible against—the Protestants! And yet, it is, alas! but too true that Protestantism to a large extent is no more the religion of the Bible. This accounts for the boldness of Rome and for her success.

We, the French Evangelical Christians, can never be deceived by this pretended "angel of light." We know that Rome is the responsible instigator of those very evils against which our deluded people are trying to find a remedy in her. We know that immorality, infidelity, lawlessness, are the offspring of Roman Catholicism. Idolatry and atheism are not so far apart as it seems, and the same people may pass with astonishing swiftness from one to the other.

I shall give, on this point, the testimony of a priest.

Some time ago I visited the great shrine of the Virgin at Lourdes, a little town in the Pyrenees, where the "Mother of God" is said to have appeared to a young shepherdess. A beautiful cathedral, which has cost one million dollars and more, has been erected near the spot; the grotto from which the miraculous water springs has been decked with marble, and every sign of lavish and idolatrous devotion may be seen there. On the day I was present, over twelve thousand pilgrims had come, by a hundred trains, from all parts of France, some having traveled five or six hundred miles. At the railway station young men belonging to the patrician families—young dukes, counts, and barons of the purest blood—were in attendance with sedan chairs and portative beds, to take the sick and the lame from the trains and carry them to the shrine, thus gaining for themselves indulgences. I shall never forget the sight of this motley crowd surrounding the beds of the sick, and many among themselves bearing marks of leprosy or some other foul disease—men, women and children, twelve thousand of them, hugely pressed in front of the cave, lifting up their arms to the gilded statue, crying, shouting, singing, led by the priests! I shall never forget these women kissing the ground, raising up with dust on their lips, then kneeling down to kiss the ground again; others stooping on the fountain to drink a little water. I saw a poor paralytic carried by four stout priests into a little recess in the rock, and there plunged bodily into the cold water, while he was shouting to the Virgin with an earnestness, and an eagerness, which reminded one of Baal's prophets * * My eyes were moist with tears as I beheld this host of my countrymen thus deluded; meanwhile I vainly waited for a word on the part of those bishops and priests—a single word—about Christ and the forgiveness of sins through him. As I was thus looking on with evident emotion a young priest whom I had met in a hotel before came up to me.

"You seem to be moved," said he, "by this wonderful sight."

"Yes, I am," I answered. "But what moves me is to think that there is so much faith wasted here. To think that twelve thousand people may have found time and money to come so far to seek temporal blessings which they will not receive, while they might in their own homes receive from God himself, through Jesus Christ, eternal life! Do you, sir," said I earnestly to my friend—"do you really believe in this?"

The young priest looked at me gravely, and was silent for awhile. Then he said:

"No, I do not believe that the Virgin appeared here, nor that the faith of these poor people will be rewarded. I deplore this superstition as you do; and there are others among us who deplore it also. I believe," he said, growing bold, "that this place is the greatest school of infidelity we have in France. People come here on the promptings of their ignorant parish priest, full of expectations. They have, in some cases, borrowed money for the journey. They have laid all their stakes on this card. They pray, they sing, they drink the water, they dip themselves into it * * but they are not healed. Then they lose faith, not only in Lourdes, but in religion altogether, and they return home, saying: 'There is no God.' So while these people pray that they may be healed, I pray that they may not become atheists."

Thus spoke my friend, the young priest. Then I said to him:

"Why, then, do you remain in a church which holds such things?"

"Well," he said, rather embarrassed, "we are not bound to believe or to teach that the Virgin has appeared here. The bishop of this diocese has made an inquiry which he has found satisfactory, and so the pilgrimage has been permitted; but so long as the Holy See has not pronounced, we may or may not agree with the bishop in this case. It is not a matter of faith."

"And how can I respect a church which is thus double-sided? a church which gives the enlightened freedom to reject the superstitions which she lays upon the poor people, and manages thus to keep in her fold, in apparent unity, men like Montalembert, Father Gratry, and others—spiritual, true Christian men, who would have scorned to believe in such childish things—and Bernadette Soubirous, the shepherdess to whom the Virgin appeared?"

"Well, the poor people cannot undertand the sublime doctrine of the Gospel without some materialization of it!"

"Is that so? Did ever Jesus stoop to forge false miracles to satisfy the common people?"

My friend did not answer; but before I left him I tried to show him the beauty of the Gospel simplicity and artlessness. We parted, both deeply moved; and I dare to hope that a good work was begun in his soul.

In these times of infidelity the temptation for evangelical Christians who do not sufficiently know Rome is to accept a kind of a compromise with her; to look upon her as one of the forms of true religion; one of the things which, on the whole, make for purity and godliness. This temtation is a most dangerous one. We are fully aware that there are Roman Catholic dignitaries who evince a great love for souls and for God; we do not judge them; we hope they are sincere; we leave them to God and their own consciences. But, as a system, popery is the masterpiece of hell. It is a wonderful adaptation of paganism to Christianity; sensual in her worship, loose in her ethics, crafty and grasping in her politics—such is the Church of Rome. Her tendency everywhere has been to degrade and pollute mankind. Like the magician Circe, who changed Ulysses' companions into swine, Rome changes the noble aspirations of the human soul into selfish, base, and corrupted desires. She wrecks the virtue of young men and young women who come to her for protection; desecrates the home, enslaves the mind, darkens the soul. Do not judge Rome on that which she allows you to see of her in Protestant, enlightened countries; go to Portugal, go to Spain, to Italy, to Corsica, wherever she is uncontrolled by a dissenting religion.

But how shall we oppose her growing power?

I am fully convinced by my experience as a missionary for twenty years among my own people, that it will not be by clumsy imitations of her gorgeous display, but rather by a return to the primitive simplicity of worship manifested in the Upper Room. To worship God in spirit and in truth, and not in beautiful temples, the cost of which would support two or three missionaries for a whole lifetime; to invite, and not to include, the poor, the sinner, the outcasts, who now find it so difficult, even if they would, to sit in our refined places of worship—such seems to me the imperative duty put upon us if we do not wish to see the masses go to Rome, which to them appears so much more democratic than ourselves.

I have also a deep conviction that it is only through the Bible—as the Reformers did—that we shall withstand popery. Anything, however pious in tone, that helps to destroy the people's faith in the Bible as an infallible Book, works on behalf of Rome.

Finally, let us preach Christ. His free forgiveness. His atoning blood. Ethical, political, or social preaching—"sermons for the times," as they are sometimes termed— will not prevent the drift of the masses toward the old system. But the upholding of the Crucified—I have seen it, thank God, hundreds of times—will always prove the power of God unto salvation.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

An Ancient House goes down.—The microbe as a text.—The Ishmailite A. P. A.—Reformers, this is for your health.

One of the notable recent failures is that of the University Press of John Wilson & Son at Cambridge. It was a matter for surprise that this venerable firm, which was established in 1639, and has been doing business uninterruptedly for 255 years, should be compelled to assign, having weathered every financial panic till now. As there are over 300 hands on its pay roll, it is hoped that a settlement will soon be reached, and this, the oldest printing establishment in America, be able to go on with its work uninterrupted.

"All microbes die in a few hours in the sunlight." So says a prominent Boston physician. Clothes need not only to be thoroughly aired but to be placed in a bath of sunshine. Instead, we stuff them away in dark, ill-ventilated closets—exactly the conditions suited to the development of the deadly microbe as well as to help on with the work of the festive moth. That sunshine is the most effective as well as the cheapest germicide in existence is a truth that many housekeepers have yet to learn, but it is so much like salvation without money and without price that we are apt to treat it with the same neglect.

I notice that candidates for political offices are making haste to disavow all connection with the A. P. A. If they hold aloof from this un-American secret order, whose bitter fruits are already beginning to be manifest, they might be commended. As it is, the ludicrous hurry which they are in to disavow the imputation savors more of a weakness of backbone than anything else.

John B. Willard in a recent number of the Transcript calls attention to the fourth Beatitude, "Blessed are they that do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled, "and applies it to that exhilarating and inspiring influence which, taking up unpopular reforms, has upon the hearts and lives of those who "hunger and thirst" for even such a limited "righteousness," and illustrates his position by the fact that the early anti-slavery reformers were blessed with health and long life beyond the average. Christian Science, "falsely so called," could never have obtained the power it has were it not that underlying its delusive teachings is this great truth, that a healthy soul breathing hourly the elixir of a noble and unselfish purpose will dominate the body. I have myself been often struck with this same fact in regard to the anti-secret reformers who are the spiritual, and in many cases the lineal, descendents of the early Abolitionists—men and women of whom the world was not worthy. This is of course only a secondary and lower sense in which "they who hunger and thirst after righteousness;" who cannot sit down and fold their hands in idle supineness, saying with Cain: "Am I my brother's keeper?" when they see him naked and hungry, or his soul going to perdition through the greed of evil men, and the indifference of society thereto, "shall be filled." But it is perfectly legitimate, for the greater always includes the less. I am inclined to think that one of the best recipes for vigorous health and long life is to plunge at once into some unpopular reform,—not in any dilettante fashion, but so as to run the risk at least of being roundly persecuted for righteousness sake. We are overrun with rules for keeping healthy. Why not try this? It will be found, if faithfully tried, worth more than Dr. Brown-Sequards' Elixir of Life, even if it had proved all a foolish public expected.

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

REFORM NEWS.

PLANS FOR THE NEW YORK STATE CONVENTION.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING PROMISED.

246 W. 36th St., New York,
October 18, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—I send herewith the program for our approaching convention. It speaks for itself.

As I had hoped at my last writing, I found opportunity to call the attention of those attending the Christian Alliance Convention to the work of the N. C. A. There were many seeking to bring their special lines of work before the convention. On sending my card to the chairman, I was called to the platform and given the same time granted the other special workers. My remarks made some uneasy, but I think were generally received with approval. Prof. Farr of the training-school has invited me to address his class for forty-five minutes next Wednesday morning. This is a rare privilege. These young missionaries may carry the truths thus received to the ends of the earth. The two weeks' Christian Alliance Convention, closing last Sabbath, was in some ways the most remarkable of any held by this body of stirring Christian workers. In attendance it was probably second to none. There was no great demonstration, but a steady, well-planned going forward.

Last Sabbath was the crowning day. There were meetings in the American Theater and Tabernacle. Over sixty thousand dollars were pledged for missions. It is largely to be raised by the comparatively poor. Servant girls pledge fifty dollars, and in some instances more.

To-day I called on Rev. M. Stolpe, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of this city. He is strong in adherance to the principle of this church opposing the secret societies, but has been puzzled to find a brother minister belonging to the Masons and claiming that a man must be a Christian to be a Mason. He hopes to arrange for me to address his young people to-morrow evening as they are then to gather in the church.

Rev. Jacobson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church in Brooklyn, having nine hundred members, will arrange for me to address his people Thursday evening, Oct. 25. Pastor Magnusson of another Swedish church, 392 McDonough St., Brooklyn, will arrange for me to address his people on the evening of Nov. 1.

Much of my time for the past week has been used in seeing friends and arranging details of the convention. All have received me kindly and expresssd a willingness to help what they could. Time does not permit general mention. Brother Stephen Merritt has had no reason to regret the firm stand he has taken in renouncing and denouncing the lodge. He has received some persecution, but rejoices in it all. We shall hear from him at the convention if he is in the city. Unless his engagements are changed he will be compelled to be away. We shall have more speakers than time, and best of all, God by his Holy Spirit will be with us. W. B. Stoddard.

BRIGHT DAYS FOR REFORM.

ENCOURAGING MEETINGS FOR THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT, BUT A GRIEVOUS LEGAL DECISION.

Sunny Side, Oregon.

From Mt. Angel I came to Sunny Side and was welcomed by Rev. F. M. Sumner of the Free Methodist church, in which I spoke on Saturday night to a good congregation. The theme was "The Evils of Intemperance." From the amount of noise on the way home one would think the lecture was needed, and that it took effect. I spoke on Sunday morning on Infidelity to a large crowd. There was quite an interest taken in the subject. At night I spoke on "Secret Societies." The house was crowded and the very best attention was given. I think good was accomplished.

Here and at the last place I spoke more than seventy signed our constitution, eleven subscribed for the Cynosure, and seven for the Lodge Lamp. This was a grand meeting. Victory through Jesus.

On my way home I received the long-expected decision from the Supreme Court, which favors the liberals. The decision was given by the new Judge, Wolverton, Judge Moore dissenting. The decision is in the Philomath College case. It was decided once in favor of the old church. The liberals were granted a re-hearing, and had the case been settled before Judge Lord retired from the bench, I am sure the old church would have gained it again. There are only a few churches in the State which were built before the division. Most, if not all, of those are free for all denominations. So our people will not be greatly effected by the decision, except to discourage their confidence in men. First, in a judge for giving such an unjust decision, and next, in people calling themselves Christians in using property in which they have no financial interest whatever. I am credibly informed that two thousand feet of rough lumber is about all the liberals have in the building.

The case will be tried again later on, at a bar where lodge influence will be relegated to the rear, and then the parties who have used property that did not belong to them will need the crape they have hung on others' gates to wipe the perspiration from their guilty foreheads.

I am informed that one Odd-fellow has left the lodge here since our convention. I wonder how much this will place to my credit in the Philomath lodge.

Let us turn on the light, friends. The harvest is great. The reapers are coming to join us in the good work. P. B. Williams.

OTHER REPORTS FROM OREGON.

Scott's Mills, Ore., Oct. 6, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—The nights of October 4th and 5th will long be remembered by many at the little village of Scott's Mills, because of the lectures delivered here on those dates by the Coast Secretary of the N. C. A., Rev. P. B. Williams. The Lord was with us, and enabled Bro. Williams to powerfully present the truth, and we realized that the victory was ours. To any who are interested in treform work here on the coast, I would say you will do well to correspond with and secure the services of this dear brother, whom I can confidently recommend as being thoroughly competent to ably present and successfully defend the cause which is so dear to him. (Rev.) L. J. White.

Wilhoit, Clackamas Co., Ore., Oct. 8, '94.

Editor Christian Cynosure: — Recovering from a temporary illness I attended the lecture of my friend and brother, P. B. Williams, on the evening of the 5th inst, and found him well and in good courage, although some threats had been made. But "the wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are bold as a lion." Bro. Armstrong, of the Friends church, and Bro. L. J. White, pastor of the Baptist church, with his wife, were there. It was hard to tell which is most interested in the reform. The congregation was large, and most of the Odd-fellow lodge was present and stood the sledge-hammer blows of truth from your lecturer for a time, but one of the lodgites left the hall. At the close, the howling began. They said your lecturer was working for money, and that he was a liar, etc. It does not take a very brave man to kick a dead lion. What he told them was from their own authorities. I tried to reason with them, but they were talking four at a time, like a lot of Esquimaux or Chinese Highbinders.

Bro. Armstrong preached last Sabbath a very able sermon from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, with power, and seldom can you listen to more Scripture expounded in one sermon. May the good work go on.

(Rev.) Rhys Gwynn.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LODGE OR THE CHURCH—WHICH?

Fairfield, Neb., Oct. 11, 1894.

Last Lord's day there was buried in our city cemetery a man who had belonged to the Christian church, and to five different orders. He was a Freemason, Knight of Pythias, an Odd-fellow, a Workman and a Woodman! The time of his funeral service was so nearly upon the time of the church services in town (1 o'clock P. M.) that many could not attend both. Almost all the seats in the auditorium were occupied by the men who belonged to the above orders. His brethren and sisters of the church were almost entirely crowded out. Many women had to stand through the whole service.

At the grave the lodges took full possession, and the Christians had to stand back. Many members of these lodges were ungodly, sinful men—men who have no interest in Christianity. Although a member of the Christian church, the funeral was conducted by the pastor of the Congregational church, and in his house of worship. This was contrary to the wishes of the widow of the deceased, and others of the family. His own pastor was not invited to have any part in the exercises, nor even to a seat in the auditorium.

The preacher who conducted the memorial service is a member of the Masonic fraternity and wore his "lamb-skin apron" during the progress of the service. The representatives of the various orders were more or less uniformed. Some of them carried spears and a few had swords at their sides, and some wore the gorgeous but ridiculous plumes upon their hats. What child's play! What flummery! Oh, for a Don Quixote to burlesque this foolishness until it would hide its face in shame and bury itself so deep that the trumpet of the resurrection will not arouse it from its sleep!

In his sermon the preacher said the deceased had not been a very active member of the church. This was true. How could it be otherwise? How could a man divide his time, money and interest between five secret orders and have much left for the church? He had to give five parts to the human orders, and one part to the Divine organization. The preacher said he had gone through the various degrees that led up to a sublime Master Mason and now he had entered upon the highest possible degree in heaven. He spoke of God as the Sublime Master of the universe, or words to that effect. Now I protest against this attempt to resolve heaven into a lodge and make God its grand master. It borders upon blasphemy.

Members of the church abandoned their duties to train for the funeral. An elder in the church to which the deceased belonged, abandoned the Lord's supper that he might go to the hall and train for the funeral. Jesus said: "Do this in memory of me," but said elder disobeyed his Lord's divine command that he might conform to the demands of a human institution. He said by his example that the lodge is superior to the church. Is it any wonder that members of the lodge substitute lodgery for religion, when officials in the church give the lodge precedence? That same elder went the following week to attend a meeting of his order at the State capital. I wonder if he ever attends the State missionary conventions of his church.

I cannot think of these lodges as otherwise than sinful. They rob the cross of its glory and Christ of his allegiance. They have the same burial service for the wicked as for the good. They are clannish and selfish. They dissipate the means and energies that should be devoted to the promotion of the Gospel of Christ.

Simpson Ely.

A RAILWAY DISCUSSION.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Editor Christian Cynosure:—As I came here on the B. & O. train, a little discussion arose which by God's help turned out to the silencing of the adversaries, and a complete victory for God. A portly gentleman from Pittsburgh got on the train with me at Chicago, and being rather talkative, and as I was nearest him, he proceeded to entertain me as we rode. At last he spoke of the City Hall at Philadelphia and the Masonic ceremonies at the laying of the corner stone, saying that he was there; also he said he was present when the Masons laid the corner-stone of the Masonic Temple in New York. I replied that there was no objection to Masons laying their own corner-stones, but I objected to any organization laying the corner-stone of a public building, and gave my reasons.

He at once began the usual tirade of the ancient and honorable institution; but I reminded him that history would not bear out his statement. He declared that Masonry originated at the building of Solomon's Temple, to which I replied in the words of Grand Master Parvin's address at Keokuk, and told him that Freemasonry in its present form had only existed since A. D. 1717. He reiterated his statement and I demanded proof. He appealed to another, who said, "I am not a Mason but I am an Odd-fellow." The Pittsburgher proceeded to tell him that I knew nothing about it, and attacked the church. Of course the other man agreed and they had a good time telling how good these institutions were, till the Mason said, "I suppose you are one of these cranks who are determined to fight everything that don't suit you." I said that as long as sin was in the world we expected to fight it, until the lodge, intemperance, etc., were no more.

He then said, "I shouldn't be surprised if you thought there was only one way to heaven," and added there were many churches that did not agree on it. I replied that there was only one way to heaven and that was through salvation in our Lord Jesus Christ. He sneered, and as I quoted Peter's words, he said "The lodge was a much stronger brotherhood than the church and they would help each other more, therefore it was better." Repeating the Master's obligation, I said, "Yes, they are very good to each other." He did not like that very well, but upon being asked to deny that he had taken it, refused point blank to either affirm or deny, saying that he ought not to discuss it. I answered, "It is a very good thing sometimes to keep the jewel."

He then said I was one of those cranks that worked with the house that had out a sign, Anti-secret Tracts, etc. I replied that I was in perfect sympathy with them. "Well," he said, "you are only helping us along." If that's so, I answered, don't you want to help us a little, say $5 or $10, to do more work? No, he did not. Said I, "It seems to me you ought to be willing to do it if we help you so." But he couldn't see it so. I said, "Thats it. You say that, but your own actions show that you do not believe it."

So he said no more: but a man across the aisle next took up the controversy and began about their benevolence. I said that there was no benevolence or charity, but only the same as insurance. This brought out a storm of protest from three or four, but I quietly drew the comparison and showed them to be exactly the same in principle; however, the first Odd-fellow and Mason would not have it so. They said that insurance was cold and dead, while lodge charity came from the heart; but I insisted that it was the same.

Then the last speaker took up his attack on the church, and said that the lodge does more for its poor than the church, and reiterated his statement. This roused a listener, who turned and said, "Do you not take an obligation when you enter the lodge to do this?" He said they did.

"Does your charity extend beyond your obligation?" They hesitated, then both answered that it did not, and could not.

I answered at once, "Where there is an obligation to do a thing, there is not nor cannot be charity; therefore there is no charity in the lodge." They tried to dodge it and again attacked the church; while we replied that as far as the church was concerned there was no such obligation except in so far as that we were to love our neighbor as ourselves; that it was simply moral. We were to fear God and work righteousness. The Pittsburgher began again, "Who is God, that I should fear him? I know no God, nor do I want a God that I must fear."

The other insisted that lodge insurance was charity; but upon being shown that there could be no charity where an obligation existed, they answered nothing, and left the field, being totally unable to answer a word. After a few moments of silence Mason No. 1 rose and walked to the other end of the car, saying as he did so, "Well, you may have your church if you want it, but I'll take the lodge."

I am sorry I cannot remember the name of the gentleman who assisted in the controversy. He is a traveling salesman, and is a member of the A. P. A. We talked about it for a short time, and he said he had not attended a meeting for over a year, and agreed that that order was wrong in principle and utterly un-American. He seemed to be a very sensible and earnest young man, able to comprehend sound reason and to accept logical conclusions. May God bless him and cause him to see clearly and face the foe in every form.

May God bless you all and make your labor for him profitable to many. Yours, R. E. Rose.

LITERATURE.

Our Journey Around the World. An illustrated record of a year's travel of forty thousand miles. By Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, with a supplementary portion by Mrs. Clark. Pp. 641. Sold by subscription only. A. D. Worthington & Co, publishers. Hartford, Conn.

Dr. Clark has become, through the Christian Endeavor movement which he introduced, one of the best known American preachers. Frequent requests that he visit the societies in other countries, suggested a trip around the world a year or two since; and it was with the purpose of advancing that movement, and visiting missions in order to acquaint the young people of the churches in America with their needs, that the journey was undertaken. Mrs. Clark and a son accompanied him. This beautiful volume is not a record of the meetings he attended, but a story of the scenery, of the people and their history and habits, and the incidents of the journey. It is attractively written, for Dr. Clark remembered the hundred thousand young friends of his who would wish to read the sketch; and it is finely illustrated, and has a chart of the whole long journey. Others have been around the same circle, and each has seen the same object from a different standpoint of experience. Wm. H. Seward's great work is a stateman's glance at the countries that are wheeled into the sunlight every twenty-four hours. Carter Harrison viewed men and their homes as a Chicago mayor who could see sharp points in a political campaign among the slums. But Mr. Clark saw all with thoughts of the immortal life and the Saviour, who gave himself freely for the ransom of all these teeming tribes of earth. The volume has, therefore, a peculiar interest and value for the young Christians in American churches, who are more and more loudly to hear the Macedonian call from all these realms of earth where now Satan's seat is. While it will interest and instruct it will inform them also of people for whom they are praying, and arouse in many hearts the desire to go also to the ends of the earth with the everlasting Gospel.

The Theater. An essay upon the non-accordancy of stage plays with the Christian profession. By Josiah W. Leeds. Pp. 85. Price, 15 cts.; paper. Scriptural Tract Repository, Boston.

Few America writers have given so much and so earnest thought to the character and influence of the theater upon our American life as the Quaker philanthropist of Philadelphia, whose labors to create a wholesome public sentiment against the vices that destroy society have caused many to bless his name. He lately secured in Philadelphia the suppression of the indecent pictures which the low theaters thrust everywhere before the public eye. The volume treats the subject dispassionately and in style quite removed from the sensational. The secretary of a large conference once preaching on the evils of the theater made large use of this book, and acknowledged his great indebtedness to Friend Leeds in a very complimentary way. Being of an impetuous temper, the study of the book calmed his zeal, and enabled him to speak to much greater effect. The volume can be had in Boston or of the author at 528 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A very entertaining pamphlet is "Autobiographical Sketches and Personal Recollections," by the Boston philanthropist, Geo. T. Angell, president of the American Humane Education Society. If any one wishes to learn how success can be won from the most difficult surroundings through grace, perseverence and genius, they should read this valuable pamphlet. It contains, beside the record of a useful life, numerous articles from Mr. Angell's pen on kindness to animals, the labor question, etc. Mailed to any reader for ten cents from the society's office, 19 Milk St., Boston.

While their elders are reading Prof. Sloane's new Life of Napoleon in the Century, boys and girls will have an opportunity of getting the same historial facts set forth in story form in Elbridge S. Brook's "A Boy of the First Empire," in St. Nicholas during the coming year. "A Boy of the First Empire" is said to be a truthful and accurate account of Napoleon's life, based upon the best authorities and verified by all the latest information. It will be richly and carefully illustrated.

A Temple of Knowledge, made of curiously sawed blocks, is a scheme of entertainment and amusement devised by Mrs. Alice J. Chamberlain of Galesburg, Ill. It is after the model of the popular dissected maps invented and manufactured by our reform friend and brother, Rev. E. J. Clemens of Clayville, N. Y. These temple blocks teach the commandments and books of the Bible in order and a map of Palestine is on the reverse side.

It is an agreeable story which Mark Twain is quoted as telling about himself. It gave him real pleasure, he said, to hear that his works were almost the only thing which Mr. Darwin read during the last years of his life, till he heard that Mr. Darwin suffered from a kind of mental atrophy and was forbidden to read anything but absolute drivel.

The National Christian Association, its history, constitution, by-laws and roll of members, has just been issued from the N. C. A. office in a neat pamphlet. In addition are portraits of Dr. A. J. Gordon, Dr. B. Carradine and President Jonathan Blanchard with testimonies.

The copyright of Uncle Tom's Cabin expired a year ago, but Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe is still allowed a bonus from the sale of the work by her publishers.

LODGE NOTES.

WHAT THE LODGES ARE DOING.

Missouri Freemasons have re-elected John D. Vincil grand secretary of the Grand Lodge.

At Durham, N, H., a monument to Major General John Sullivan was dedicated under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of Masons of New Hampshire.

The Grand Lodge of Colored Masons held three sessions lately at Jacksonville, Ill. J. G. Jones, of Chicago, denounced the national compact Masonry scheme.

At a recent session of the Grand Lodge Knights of Honor of New York a resolution providing for the admission of females into that order was almost unanimously voted down.

A new secret organization, "The Royal Neighbors," was instituted at Dubuque, Iowa, Oct. 11. It is composed entirely of women and is an offshoot of the Modern Woodmen. There are nearly 100 charter members.

There are 316 Good Templar lodges in Illinois, with a membership of 10,801, besides 38 juvenile lodges, with 1,773 members. Dr. D. H. Mann, of New York city, is "Right Worthy Chief Templar of the World."

The Grand Lodge of Tennessee Knights of Honor met in Nashville on the 10th. The reports of the Grand officers show a net loss of 581 members during the year. There are 119 lodges in the State, and the number of members is 6,180.

In the Grand Councils of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey American Legion of Honor, there was reported to the Supreme Council, on June 30, 1893, a membership of 30,736. June 30, 1894, in these same jurisdictions, the reports of the Supreme Secretary show a loss of 938, leaving a net membership of 29,798. During this period there has been a total of 3,382 suspensions in these Grand Councils, and 2,886 initiations.

Kansas Odd-fellows have renounced the title in the Deboissiere Orphans' Home at Ottawa, Kan. A wealthy Frenchman, Deboissiere, gave an estate valued at many thousands to the Odd-fellows for a home for orphan children of members. In order to care for the property it was necessary to levy a per capita tax of $1.25 on 23,000 Odd-fellows in Kansas. This tax became a bone of contention which became so hot that property was given up to save the lodge from a serious split.

The corner stone of the Iowa soldiers and sailors' monument was laid lately at DesMoines with imposing ceremonies and appropriate addresses. There was first a short parade of the Grand Army, headed by Commander Newman and staff, Woman's Relief Corps, companies of the Iowa National Guard, Sons of Veterans, and the Masonic order, followed by carriages occupied by Gov. Jackson, ex-Senator James Harlan, the orator of the day; ex-Gov. John H. Gear, Col. D. B. Henderson, members of the monument commission, and other prominent citizens. Invocation was offered by Grand Chaplain Colzier, of the G. A. R. The stone was laid in accordance with the ritual of the Masonic order, Grand Master L. E. Fellows and other magnates of the order officiating.

The Favorite Medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used in our family for several years, and has done us all a great deal of good. We have always recommended it to our friends as our favorite medicine, and one that we know will do them good, and that the money they pay for the medicine is well spent. LOGAN MITCHELL, Marshall, Ill.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

CURES OTHERS

BAD COUGH, SPIT UP BLOOD,—CONSUMPTION.

MR. K. C. MCLIN.

K. C. McLIN, ESQ., of Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Va., writes: "When I commenced taking your 'Discovery' I was very low with a cough, and at times spit up much blood. I was not able to do the least work, but most of the time was in bed. I was all run-down, very weak, my head was dizzy, and I was extremely despondent. The first bottle I took did not seem to do me much good, but I had faith in it and continued using it until I had taken fifteen bottles, and now I do not look nor feel like the same man I was one year ago. People are astonished, and say, 'well, last year this time I would not have thought that you would be living now.' I can thankfully say I am entirely cured of a disease which, but for your wonderful 'Discovery,' would have resulted in my death."

WHY NOT YOU?

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE POT TEA

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

LODGE LAMP

a monthly of choice articles on the SECRET : SOCIETY : SYSTEM, which the National Christian Association proposes to publish if the demand fo such a paper is such as to warrant its issue.

Annual subscription 20 cents.

Clubs of 20 for only $2.00.

Send in your pledge to take 20.

☞Money to be sent when you are notified that the plan is successful.☜

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

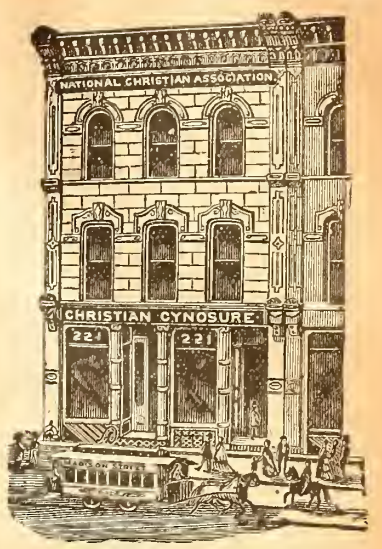
ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians



CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wa[illegible] Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dilion, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Seliew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1894.

NEW YORK.

The annual convention of the New York State Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the 7th Ave. United Presbyterian church (7th Ave. between 12th and 13th streets), New York, beginning Oct. 29th, at 2 P. M., and continuing through the following day and evening. Able speakers will present the various phases of the reform. Rev. W. B. Stoddard, who may be addressed at 246 W. 36th St., New York, will arrange and report the program. Let all come who can. Pray much for this gathering. S. R. WALLACE, Pres.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Reformed Presbyterian church (G. S.), Sparta. It will convene at 7:30 P. M., November 15, 1894, and continue through the Friday following. President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, will be one of the speakers, Sparta is in Randolph county, on the Centralia and Chester and the Mobile and Ohio railroads.

There are many friends in this part of the State, and a very helpful time is anticipated.

J. R. WYLIE, Secretary. R. W. CHESNUT, President.

PROGRAM FOR N. Y. STATE MEETING.

OPENING SESSION, MONDAY 2 P. M.—Scripture lesson and prayer, Rev. James Parker, of Jersey City.

Address of welcome, Rev. S. R. Wallace, of Syracuse, N. Y. Response, Rev. A. H. Tate. Short addresses, Rev. C. S. Everson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Rev. R. T. Wylie, of Newark, N. J., and others.

MONDAY EVENING.—Address by Rev. J. W. Tamblyn, of Brooklyn, and Rev. J. P. Stoddard, of Boston.

TUESDAY A. M.—Testimony and Praise service. Lodge charity discussed by Rev. A. S. Biddle, Jersey City, Rev. James Mathews, New York, and others.

AFTERNOON.—Addresses by Rev. F. W. Farr, of the Alliance Training School, and President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College.

Unfinished business followed by an open Parliament. Persons desiring to speak either for or against secret societies will be given five minutes.

EVENING.—Address, "The duty of Christians respecting the lodge," President Chas. A. Blanchard.

Music will be directed by W. H. Bell, Prof. J. A. Adams, and Miss L. Shepard.

Any desiring further information can address Rev. W. B. Stoddard, 246 W. 36th St., New York City.

STRONG WRITING characterizes our present number. Friend Leeds is universally posted. Remote Alaska with its tribulations is near to him as the young men of Philadelphia from whose eyes he has had removed the vile theater bulletins. Prof. Hill writes upon the adjournment question from the standpoint of large experience in the Augustana Synod as missionary among the Mormons and instructor of young men. The address of Rev. T. P. Connor and the vigorous article of Bro. Powers gives new and able views of the reform. The selections from the Inter Ocean and the Missionary Review are remarkably strong documents. The latter is of thrilling interest. The correspondence of the number commands attention from every reader. Prof. Ely is connected with Fairfield College, Nebraska, and Bro. Rose is a dentist who knows how to extract bravado and self-confidence from Masons as well as teeth from aching jaws. Our girls have a place in the home reading this week. Will not some of our young readers write us any suggestions for a better paper?—For next week we promise a strong article on Prof. Drummond's latest work and some of the speeches of the Franklin convention.

A VEXATIOUS ERROR occurred in the last Cynosure. Through misunderstanding it was announced that the poem on "Society" by Bro. A. Thomson was concluded. We are thankful to say that this is a mistake and our readers will be favored with several installments more.

DELEGATES TO THE ANNUAL MEETING of the National Christian Association continue to be appointed, although there has been little effort to secure them. The Illinois Synod of the United Presbyterian church, meeting at Ellison on the 9th inst., appointed Rev. J. A. Duff of the Second U. P. church of this city to be its representative. The presence of a dozen or two delegates from friendly religious bodies to take part in our next annual meeting it will be a mutual blessing. This work belongs to the churches until the lodge is barred from their membership. By some such method of delegation the co-operation of the churches may be secured.

NOT BY THE A. P. A.—In reviewing the present situation of Europe and the recent gains of Romanism, a French evangelist of excellent judgment and earnest spirit says that the power of the Jesuit will not be overcome by any such factious methods as are proposed by the secret American Protective Association. He adds: "Rome has many weapons—money, genius, tradition, beauty of forms. It appeals to the lower nature of man, dispenses with the necessity of a second birth, renders sin easy. It deifies mankind, as all heathen religions do. It must, therefore, have a great measure of success, as it corresponds so marvellously to man's natural cowardice and deprivation. But if we are faithful to the Bible and to the Crucified, we need not fear defeat; all true Nathaniels, all the sincere and noble hearts who are seeking a real Saviour, will come out of Rome to meet us. The true sheep know the Shepherd's voice, and, hearing it, follow it."

GEN. HOWARD ON THE "CANTEEN."

The report of Major General O. O. Howard, commanding the Department of the East, with headquarters on Governor's Island, New York, were made public at Washington last week. His recommendations are of interest, since he occupies a unique position among army officers, and he will in a few weeks retire from active service. What he says upon the pernicious influence of the established army "canteen" or "post-exchange," and what the medical director says about the Indians as victims of the vicious habits of the whites, are so strongly confirmatory of the position long held by the Cynosure and its contributors, that we give place to a portion of the Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Gen. O. O. Howard's pronounced views on the subject of temperance are so well known that it is not surprising to find he condemns with unsparing words the canteens or "post exchanges," as they are termed in orders and regulations. He ascribes the increase in court martials largely to the consumption of beer at these exchanges, and quotes the Department Inspector as anticipating that cases of rheumatism and gout in the army will be increased from the same cause. General Howard's objections to the canteen system are not softened by the fact that the profits are turned in to provide luxuries for the men's messes. He thinks this is bad education for men whose profession is to be one of self-denial and sacrifice. He urges once more that, if the post exchanges are to be retained, at least 40 per cent of the profits should go towards founding a post library.

THE MEDICAL DIRECTOR'S REPORT.

The Medical Director's report, which General Howard appends, notes the fact that where whites and Indians served together there were more cases of sickness among Indians than among whites, and there was a larger proportion of disease arising directly from vicious habits. The colored troops had shown a strong tendency to rheumatic complaints and a characteristic freedom from diseases resulting from the alcoholic habit. The director general suggests that it would be nothing more than justice that a difference should be made in the pay and allowances of those suffering from diseases brought on by their own vicious self-indulgence and those suffering from injuries received or disabilities contracted in the line of duty. How serious this question is, he says, may be judged from the fact that from diseases brought on by misconduct, between ten and eleven thousand days' labor were lost by the troops in this department during the past year.

General Howard's recommendation to increase the army, even to the extent of doubling its size, must be deplored. If our government possessed a department for the conservation of peace, as was set forth with some elaboration of detail by Dr. Benjamin Rush a century ago, we, as a people professing the Christian name, would be much better protected from the outbreaks and the eruptions of war, internecine and international, than we ever can be by providing the engines of defence and destruction, and by sedulously cultivating (as is now so notably the case) the military spirit. For this thing is fostered by the government even as is the traffic in strong drink. A license to deal in the latter is receivable for cash that shall pass into the United States Treasury.

The War Department not only encourages the military parades and spirit of secret societies, by sending officers to review them, but it will detail officers, upon receiving an application, to teach the boys and young men of our public schools and colleges the art of war; while it was but a little while ago that, by special permission of the Secretary of War, a Boys' Brigade company in New York, attached to one of the churches, was furnished with Burnside rifles. Anarchy and Rome may indeed threaten us, but the sword, bayonet and needle-gun are not the Christ-appointed weapons to withstand them.

STRIKES AND UNIONS.

The attempt of E. V. Debs to revive the American Railway Union brings that unique and unscrupulous agitator again into notice. Since the failure of his big strike he has been chiefly occupied in the United States courts, whose decision is postponed beyond all reasonable time.

Debs has declared publicly against strikes, and in the meeting of locomotive firemen in Harrisburg, Pa., September 12, he is reported as saying that he intended to retire from active participation in labor organizations, as he was tired out with the work of twenty years. He has caught his wind again, however, and is ambitious to try the game of Napoleon once more. The railway firemen whom he addressed have little sympathy with his methods. They denounced all violations of agreements with railroad companies as irrational, fanatical and injurious to both employer and employe. This is regarded as a direct reference to the "sympathy" strikes. They further insist that members shall live up to the laws of the order and the contracts under which they are working at all times and in all places. And finally "demand" that other labor organizations shall not interfere with their order. This is a direct notice to the A. R. U.

J. R. Sovereign, the figure-head who stands for the Knights of Labor, has also a new revelation as to strikes. At a meeting of his order in Buffalo he said he was decidedly opposed to strikes. Moreover, he said all strikes were illegal and all strikers criminals. This takes the color out of Judge Jenkins' famous definition of a strike which Judge Harlan of the Supreme Court revised the other day. But such vaporings show that the Knight of Labor leader is utterly unreliable in his judgment as well as in moral conviction.

The American Labor Union, which was organized July 17, just as the Debs strike was expiring, has since been incorporated. It is managed by members of the Populist party in this city.

AND IS NOT A SECRET SOCIETY

The principle upon which this organization relies to hold together the working men is not the dread of perjury, or the fear of a clubbing by union men, but the higher conviction that all laboring men are interested in the enlargement of the privileges of labor. The concern of one is the concern of all; and labor is to be arrayed on this line. This sounds well as a sentiment, but at the same time experience demands that the individual must often make great sacrifices for the good of many. "One man must die for the nation," prophesied Caiaphas. The new Union, however, puts their case fairly before the secret union men. They are, it tells them, overborne with taxes, assessments, bosses, walking delegates. They must throw off this incubus of lodgery before they can succeed. If it will continue this testimony it surely has a mission, and all good men will aid it.

—"Danger Signals," the new book published by the New England Association, is having an excellent sale.

—Norfolk, Virginia, preserves a relic of anti-Morgan days in one of her by-ways which is called Freemason street.

—Finland sets the world an example which nations more prosperous, more enlightened and more responsible, would do well to follow. The parliament of that remote land has passed a law forbidding railway traffic and mail delivery on the Sabbath.

—Several addresses before the late New England convention at Franklin, Mass., are promised for the Cynosure. Secretary Stoddard has been assisting Miss Flagg at Wellesley a day or two since the convention closed and has been delayed therefore about reporting it for our readers.

—The Herald of Peace, London, contains a full report of the recent peace congress at Antwerp. Dr. Benjamin Trueblood of Boston, secretary of the American Peace Society, was present and took an active part. With him were Mrs. Belva Lockwood of Washington, and F. Ormsby representing America.

—A new branch postoffice was lately opened in the Masonic Temple building in this city. The general postoffice is only a few blocks away. We doubt if there is another instance in the country where a branch is located so near to a main office. Postmaster Hesing has been over-persuaded by the Masons to patronize their building.

—The large community of Swedes in Jamestown, New York, and vicinity is feeling the sharp aggression of the lodges, and one of the pastors, Rev. P. Martinson, has applied to Rev. M. C. Ranseen, vice-president of the National Christian Association, for relief. An effort will be made to secure these friends an able speaker. There are two large Swedish churches in Jamestown. One of them is erecting a new house of worship which will be one of the largest among the Protestants of America.

—The late Indiana Yearly Meeting of Friends considered the influence of secret societies upon the church in connection with a memorial from Long Lake quarterly meeting. The American Friend says: "Some discussion upon the question showed a unanimous opinion that for a Christian such societies are useless and do not promote spirituality in the church; no minister nor elder should make such connections; some Friends urged carefulness in dealing with the question. It was decided to send to Long Lake some instruction in the matter."

—The Free Methodist General Conference, meeting in Greenville, Ill., had a long discussion on the ordaining of women. The vote taken last week was 35 for to 65 against the proposal. The subject has for years been agitated in the conference and in the columns of the Free Methodist. Rev. B. T. Roberts, the father of the church, favored the measure, and wrote a book urging its adoption. Rev. W. T. Hogg, president of Greenville College, was re-elected one of the superintendents of the church. He declined, and Rev. B. F. Jones, editor of the Free Methodist, was elected.

—The Knight Templar idea of Sabbath observance appears in an editorial in the Legal News from which we quote: "To us who live in Chicago, it seems behind the age to make the publication of a Sunday newspaper a crime. The Sunday newspapers of our city are not only great religious teachers but educators of the people. The desire to get and read these papers on Sunday morning is intense with the mass of the people. The proportion, even of church members, who do not read Sunday papers is very small." This is the standing of this "most Christian" rite of Masonry.

—Rev. N. R. Johnston, of Oakland, writes to the Christian Nation about the moral rating of some of the California lodges, thus: "The morals of the average secret society in California, if not elsewhere, may be inferred from the fact as found in the papers at the time, that during the late annual meeting of the 'Native Sons,' the citizens of San Jose gave a 'Sunday morning breakfast' to the visiting Sons which was much like a Bacchanalian feast. The San Francisco Chronicle of the next morning said: 'At the end of an hour every table was flanked by scores of bottles with patent stoppers, and bearing an inscription strongly suggestive of hops.'"

—Now it is the turn of the old, substantial New York Observer to amaze us by adopting the small page form. Old Dr. Prime saw the innovation from afar, but begged that it might delay until his sun had set. With the new form is a new dress of handsome type throughout. The editors, Wendell Prime and Dr. Charles A. Stoddard, a son and son-in-law of Ireneus Prime, announce their names, and promise to adorn with freshness and beauty the strong walls of conservitism which the Observer has been building for seventy-two years. Now let the steadfast old paper take hold of some of the reform handles that are temptingly projected from every side of church and society, and never fear a galvanic shock. It will give new life and vigor to every page.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

PERSONAL NOTES.

—Rev. W. H. Chandler, of Wheaton College church, is conducting revival services at Highland, Kans., for two weeks.

—Bro. Lucius Woodruff, the Binghamton, N. Y., manufacturer, and treasurer of the New York Association, was a delegate to the Free Methodist General Conference, and served on important committees.

—Dr. F. J. T. Fischer, of Elmhurst, Ill., brother of Prof. H. A. Fischer of the N. C. A. finance committee, is gradually recovering from an attack which was at first thought to be certainly fatal. Much prayer has been made to God in his behalf.

—Dr. Nathan Brown, who was a most able advocate of the effort against the pagan worships of lodgery while editing the American Baptist, and who closed his life in mission work in Japan, was second cousin of John Brown, of Harpers' Ferry fame.

—Rev. S. F. Porter, after a few days' tarry with friends in Kingston, Ill., starts for the South in his good work of college visitation about the middle of this week. Our prayers will follow him in his loving labor for the young men and women in our schools.

—Rev. A. J. Chittenden returned about the middle of the present month to his home in Mill River, Mass., from a short vacation, which was shared by his wife and daughter. He has written on the "adjournment question." His many old friends in Illinois will be well pleased to read his vigorous sentences next week.

—Rev. A. J. McFarland, of St. Johns, Nova Scotia, who is visiting the Reformed Presbyterian communities of this country, spent the Sabbath lately at Syracuse, N. Y., and spoke in the Covenanter pulpit lately occupied by Rev. S. A. Wallace, morning and afternoon, and in the Wesleyan church in the evening. Bro. J. B. Knappenberger, pastor of the latter, was holding special revival services, but gave way to the message on the exaltation of Christ in the nation.

—Ex-President Julius H. Seelye, of Amherst College, though disabled from professional work, yet is doing valuable service by his philosophical and ethical lectures in Amherst College. Two years ago he issued an admirable monogram on "Duty." Another similar treatise has just been published on "Citizenship," treating on international law in peace and war, national law, public and private. It gives a full and most intelligible treatment of the problems of our modern civilization.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Hon. J. W. Foster on Asiatic missions and the responsibility of American churches.—The Commissioner of Education gives some interesting statistics —Dr. Bartlett is leaving the pulpit.—Indian schools must learn self-dependence

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17, 1894.

Hon. John W. Foster, ex-Secretary of State, recently returned from a nine-months' tour of the world, during which he visited Palestine, Syria, Egypt, Ceylon, India, Burmah, the Straits Settlements, Malay Peninsular, China, Corea and Japan, paying special attention to missionary work at each place visited. At the request of the Washington Presbytery he delivered a lecture on foreign missions this week. Mr. Foster has long been an ardent advocate of foreign missions, and the observations made on his trip have added to his ardor. He stated that he was proud to find that most of the missionary work in Asia was being done by Americans, the Presbyterians and Congregationalists leading. He gave his own church some good-natured raps in his appeal for increased missionary contributions. He said: "It is an astonishing fact that out of 7,300 churches of our denomination, 2,224, or nearly one-third, gave absolutely nothing for foreign missions, and that the average contribution per member of our churches is less than 83 cents. The contributions of the small society of Friends or Quakers is reported to be $5 per member. Such a rate by the Presbyterian churches would give the board the handsome sum of $4,500,000, and in the light of the facts, such is not an unreasonable expectation. Ours is probably the richest denomination in America. It should be our pride as well as our Christian duty to set a worthy example to our brethren of other churches and thus incite them to good work."

Concerning the necessity for additional activity in missionary work in Asia, Mr. Foster said: "It is the testimony of intelligent observers, both heathen and Christian, that the nations of Asia are destined to abandon their old faiths. Whether they become Christian, or infidel depends in great measure upon the churches in America. God grant that we may so meet this heavy responsibility that when the great multitude of all nations and kindreds and people and tongues stand before the throne and before the Lamb, we shall receive the welcome judgment, 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'"

For some years it has been the custom of the Congregational Club to give a dinner after its fall business meeting, and to have some prominent man deliver an address upon some live topic. This year Hon. W. T. Harris, U. S. Commissioner of Education, was the club orator, his subject being "The influence of the higher education of a country upon its elementary schools." It is impossible to do justice to Mr. Harris' address in the space at my disposal, but some of the statistics he presented tell their own story in an interesting way. For instance, he said: "Reducing our average schooling to European standards, we find we are not giving so much education to our people as Germany is to hers. But we seem to secure a larger whole number that gets into the schoolhouse for some portion of the year than any nation in Europe. Moreover, we have increased this enrollment in the course of twenty years from 20 to 23 per cent of the whole population, besides increasing the average attendance from 79 days in 1871 to 89 days in 1872;" and again, to prove that the people of the United States are not being over educated: "in 1892 there were 14,165,182 children in the elementary schools, 402,089 pursuing the secondary course of study in public high schools, private acadamies and preparatory schools, and 147,662 pursuing the courses of higher education in colleges, technical and professional schools, including normal schools." Taking those figures as a basis Mr. Harris estimates on an average that our people receive about one-half of an elementary education. Mr. Harris was introduced to the club by Justice Brewer, its president.

It is generally regretted, not only by the membership of his church (the largest in Washington), but by citizens generally, that failing health has compelled Rev. Dr. William A. Bartlett, who has for more than twelve years been pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, to give up active ministerial duties for a time. During Dr. Bartlett's pastorate the membership of the church has more than doubled, notwithstanding the withdrawal of a considerable number who have attached themselves to the two young churches established by his own members, both of which are now in a flourishing condition. Dr. Bartlett has been foremost in working for a number of charities and moral reforms outside of his church. He will preach his farewell sermon the second Sabbath in November.

The following letter from Acting Indian Commissioner Armstrong to the superintendent of one of the largest Indian contract schools is self-explanatory: "I would suggest to you, as well as to all of the religious orders which have contract schools on the reservation, that you prepare yourselves for still further reductions next year, as the tendency now is to gradually do away with contract schools and to place Indian children as far as possible in public schools, and in State agricultural and normal schools. The last Congress directed the Secretary of the Interior to report to the coming Congress the best means of abolishing contract schools. The only way it can be done is by gradual reduction." *

Among the candidates before the Civil Service Board in Wisconsin for examination was Julia Wheelock, a full-blooded Indian, who is to be a teacher in the Indian schools. She is the first Indian ever examined by the board. Of 1,300 Menomonie Indians in Wisconsin, 520 can read and write English; $3,600 was expended by them last year for church purposes and books.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

The Home.

THE LITTLE MAID'S SERMON.

A little maid in a pale blue hood,
In front of a large brick building stood;
As she passed along her quick eye spied
Some words on a letter-box inscribed;
'Twas a box that hung in the vestibule
Outside the door of the charity school.

"Remember the poor," were the words she spelled,
Then looked at the dime her small hand held;
For chocolate creams were fresh that day
In the store just only across the way;
But gleams of victory shone o'er her face
As she raised her eye to the money place.

But her arm was short, and the box so high,
That a gentleman heard who was passing by,
"Please, sir, will you lift me just so much?"—
For the tiny fingers could almost touch.
The stranger stopped, and he quickly stood
By the sweet-faced child in the pale blue hood.

As he lifted her, she gently said:
"Would you mind it, sir, if you turned your head?
For you know I do not want to be
Like a proud, stuck-up old Pharisee!"
He humored the little maid, but a smile
Played o'er his face as he stood there the while.

"Excuse me, child, but what did you say?"
The gentleman asked, in a courteous way,
As he took in his the wee, white hand;
"I believe I did not quite understand."
"Oh, sir, don't you know?" Have you never read,"
Said the child, amazed, "what our Saviour said?

"We should'nt give like those hypocrite men,
Who stood in the market-places then,
And gave their alms just for folks to tell,
Because they loved to be praised so well;
But give for Christ's sake, from our little store,
What only he sees, and nobody more.

"Good-bye, kind sir; this is my way home;
I'm sorry you'll have to walk home alone."
That gentleman passed along, and thought
Of large sums given for the fame it brought,
And he said: "I never again will be
In the market-place a Pharisee;
She preached a sermon true and good,
The dear little maid in a pale blue hood."

—Susan Teall Perry, in Exchange.

HOW ONE GIRL EARNED HER LIVING.

Breadmaking sometimes pays better than more ambitious work. A bright little girl in an interior city recently found it so. After being brought up in comfort and well educated, she was left almost immediately at the end of her school days dependent on her own resources. She was an "accomplished" young woman, but her accomplishments were all amateurish. Not one of them would be taken seriously enough by those about her to enable her to make a comfortable living. She tried teaching music. The few children in the neighborhood whom she could get as pupils gave no sufficient income, and she had neither the reputation nor the ability to command the attendance of more advanced students. Then she tried dancing school. The hall was rented and furniture secured, but before the dancers were fairly started on their lessons the demand for ready money broke up the enterprise.

The next turn was to a cooking school. Surely there were lots of girls about who would be glad to have her tell them how to make angel cake and to can peaches. She had learned how to do these things in Boston "just for fun" in her prosperous days. So she asked them to come and see her exhibit her cooking abilities. But nobody came. Then the girl went home in despair.

She had a little room in a quiet boarding-house. There she sat down to think over her troubles. Maybe she had a good cry; she doesn't say anything about that. At any rate if she did she got over it, and began to do some serious planning, and very soon some serious work. Nobody seemed to want her to tell them how to do things. Perhaps they would like to have her do things herself.

So she went to the woman in whose house she lived and begged the use of the cellar kitchen to work in. This was good-naturedly granted. The girl went to work there to make some Boston brown bread. She was sure she could make better bread than was sold by any baker in that town. When a goodly number of delicious-looking loaves were ready for market she wrapped them neatly and carried them about from house to house, leaving them as free samples, together with an addressed postal card and a notice that bread like the sample could be obtained by the use of the card.

More postal cards came back to her than she had dared to hope, and within a few days she was doing a "rushing business." There was no denying the fact that she made good bread, much better than that the bakers sold, and everybody who tried it, and who liked brown bread at all, accepted her as their brown bread purveyor.

Still her ambition was not satisfied. She wanted a more regular demand for her goods, and here is where she found it. In that town, connected with a large store is a restaurant—quite the fashionable place, indeed, for lunching, high in favor both with women shoppers and busy lawyers. She convinced the managers that she could give them better bread than they were getting, and they were as anxious to have the best bread as she was to have their money. So they engaged her to supply their tables, and before long they showed appreciation of a good thing by paying her ten cents a loaf, when the bakers only charged 8.

The contract with the restaurant still holds good, and in addition one or two of the city clubs use her bread. The cellar kitchen—for its owner is proud of the girl's achievement and still lets her work there—now has an almost constant fire, and in the corner are barrels of flower, and boys with barrows have taken the place of the girl with her armful of loaves. Just how much are her profits it wouldn't be fair to tell. She has a right to her business secrets, but she isn't having to put off paying her board bill any more, and she wouldn't change places with any dancing school teacher she knows.—New York Tribune.

EDUCATE THE GIRLS.

Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer declares that the education and training of girls is the highest blossom of modern free civilization. "Nothing," she says, "so grieves aching hearts and heads as to be eternally bored." As a remedy for this, parents should place before their daughters some worthy ambition, a goal that must be reached through energy, perseverence, and patience. The girls must bring music and art—the cultured and beautiful side of life—into our homes. To them are often left the finer duties which the sterner questions of life prevent a man from attending to. Life calls upon the girls for its best, therefore educate them to answer the demand."

The best equipment for the girl who wishes to be self-supporting, the most sensible provision against reverses of fortune, is a thorough education. In the profession of teaching the possession of a college diploma is becoming indispensable, while, if overcrowding of this calling is to be remedied, it must be by the means that gives to each the opportunity to develop her individual bent and fits her for thorough and commendable work in the chosen occupation. As for those who take up "woman's distinctive and most valuable work," statistics prove that the proportion of marriages among college-bred women not only compare favorably with that among other women, but that the rate is steadily increasing. That they do not consider marriage a failure is shown by the fact that divorce is practically unknown among them. Moreover, a greater proportion of the children of educated women survive the perils of infancy. The ancient myth that higher education unfits women for the great responsibilities of wifehood and motherhood will soon be forgotten, since the college girl leaves the college in every way stronger than when she entered it, ready to take up the duties of life in an earnest, conscientious way, and bringing to bear upon their smallest details the strenth of an enlightened and disciplined mind. "It is too late in the world's history," wisely says President Dwight, "to think that a woman's mind is not of as much consequence as a man's mind, or that, whatever may be her peculiar sphere, she is not to be richly, broadly, thoughtfully educated, as well as he."

This one thing I write unto you, love-bewildered girls: All men make good lovers while they are about it. The expressions of courtship go for little. How many roses does he bring? How many kisses does he give? These are not the questions. Are his vows ardent? Are his letters affectionate? These matter less than it would be possible to make you believe. But what kind of a son is he to an aged or lonely father? Is he patient with an unattractive, an ailing, even a nagging mother? Do you know how he treats his sister?—E. Stuart Phelps.

YOU WILL NEVER BE SORRY

For living a white life.
For doing your level best.
For being kind to the poor.
For looking before leaping.
For your faith in humanity.
For hearing before judging.
For being candid and frank.
For thinking before speaking.
For harboring clean thoughts.
For discounting the tale-bearer.
For being loyal to the preacher.
For standing by your principles.
For stopping your ears to gossip.
For the influence of high motives.
For asking pardon when in error.
For being as courteous as a duke.
For bridling a slanderous tongue.
For being generous with an enemy.
For being square in business deals.
For sympathizing with the oppressed.
For giving an unfortunate fellow a lift.
For being patient with cranky neighbors.
For promptness in keeping your promises.
For the dollars you have given to missions.
For putting the best possible construction upon the doings of others.—Epworth Herald.

THE LIGHT THAT IS FELT.

Tender child of summers three,
Seeking her little bed at night,
Paused on the dark stairs timidly.
"Oh, mother, take my hand," said she,
"And then the dark will all be light."

We older children grope our way
From dark behind to dark before;
And only when our hands we lay,
Dear Lord, in thine, the night is day,
And there is darkness nevermore.

Reach downward to the sunless days,
Wherein our guides are blind as we,
And faith is small, and hope delays;
Take Thou the hands of prayer we raise
And let us feel the light of Thee.

—John G. Whittier.

TEMPERANCE.

THEY FOUND THE WHISKY.

As nearly every one knows, the law against introducing and selling whisky in the Indian Territory is very pointed in its prohibition and provides heavy penalties for it violation. The enactment is not only Federal, but tribal. Judge Parker, of the western district of Arkansas, holding court at Fort Smith, Ark., which court at one time held jurisdiction over the entire Indian Territory, was very emphatic in his charge to the jury concerning this crime, which he stated was the cause and root of at least seventy-five per cent of all other crimes. His sentences against old offenders often ran to the extreme penalty of five years in the penitentiary at hard labor.

Notwithstanding the numerous arrests and convictions, the illicit traffic showed but little abatement because the profits were enormous and sales easily made. Rectified goods bought at $1 per gallon would readily sell at $1 per pint, and as it was but a short distance from the source of supply to the place of demand, the profits were such as to make violators willing to take the risk.

Every scheme that human ingenuity could think of was concocted to hide large quantities in the far interior. Barrels of cheap whisky would be buried in turnip patches and the ground sown with seed that soon covered every vestige of the burial. Quart syringes with long tubes were the mediums used to extract the liquor. This tube fitted in a rubber one that was affixed to a hole in the head of a barrel, when by drawing back the rod the quart was drawn, to be again injected into a jug or bottle. This barrel was never approached the same way or by more than one person, so as not to leave any paths. The vigilance of the deputies, however, kept pace with the ingenuity of the outlaw, and it was only a question of time when the latter was transported to the pen.

But there was one point located about ten miles northeast of Muscogee that defied the efforts of the officers to procure sufficient evidence to convict. This joint was a plain log house, situated near a small creek, but out on the open prairie, and was kept by two women of disreputable character. The leader of the two was a woman named Cunningham, a large, very fleshy person with a wicked, sensual-looking face, that held two small, keen black eyes. This woman was white. Her companion, who went by the name of Annie, was a small, slender Indian woman, completely under the control of the white woman.

Deputy after deputy went to the house and searched it thoroughly. They examined the ground for the planted barrels, they dragged the creek for sunken vessels of liquor, but they found nothing. The Cunningham woman protested against these visits, and was very voluble in her denials concerning the keeping or selling liquors. After the search she would guy and curse the baffled officers, who returned crestfallen indeed. The joint seemed to get worse and whisky got to be very plenty; but there is a Freemasonry among the buyers and sellers of whisky in the Indian Territory, and all the schemes of the officers to send men there to buy whisky miscarried. The woman would have nothing to do with strangers, but cursed and reviled them for even asking her to sell them liquor, denying any knowledge of the whole affair. Yet there was not the least doubt that she sold large quantities.

It was on a beautiful May day in the year 1881 that Chief Deputy Huffington, of the Fort Worth Court, rode out of Muscogee, accompanied by Deputy Sam Sixkiller, one of the best and bravest officers that ever rode the Indian country. The prairie was beautiful to the eye with its carpet of green and redolent with the odor of wild flowers, but the scenery had no place in the minds of these two men, whose horses were headed toward the log house on the prairie, whose inmates had outgeneralded the officers for years. The two veterans called up every scheme that experience had taught them, but they could not think of one that had been left untried. A two-hours' ride brought the officers to a cabin built of very heavy logs, and the two could not help but notice how deep and plain were the paths that led to the abode. Alighting from their horses the two deputies entered the cabin, and were met by the Cunningham woman, who arose from her chair and turned to greet them. "Well, ain't you fellows tired of pestering a poor widder? If you ain't, I am tired of hit, and you'd both better get outen here." During all this time the Indian woman sat still, never even turning her head to see the cause of this commotion. She was evidently used to it.

Chief Huffington replied: "Madam, we know you do sell whisky, and we have the proper papers for the purpose, and we propose to find where this whisky is."

"Well, I ain't ever had a drop of liquor in this house, and your men have searched here enough to find that out, goodness knows, but maybe you may be smart enough to find what never wuz or isn't, so crack yer whip."

And search the two officers did—up the chimney and down the chimney, under, over and in the bed; in the trunks, stove, under and over the house, the woman jeering them all the while to find "what isn't." For three long hours they searched around the house, and down the creek, and then Sixkiller remarked:

"Well, it beats me; what do you think?"

His companion replied: "I am badly rattled, Six; but that whisky is here somewhere, and don't let's give it up. Say Six," as a thought flashed on his mind, "we have not searched the cabin yet."

"Why not? We have turned it wrong side out, and a pin could not have been hid there but we would have found it," replied the Indian.

"Yes; but Six, how about the logs?"

The two went back, Sixkiller taking the outside and Huffington the inside, beginning on the north side. The hammer on the inside and the axe on the outside for awhile showed nothing different from other log houses, but just as the two reached the southeast corner the officer inside noticed a lot of calico dresses hanging on a nail. These he removed and his eye discovered what appeared to be a little plug or chip on the seventh log from the floor. Hitting this log from the inside it gave a peculiar half metalic sound. He then pried away the chip and found that it was mortised in, and the work done so cleverly as to deceive a practiced eye. Its removal discovered a recess holding a rubber pipe with a small faucet. So eager had the officer become that he had forgotten the two women and he had just called out to his comrade:

"Come, Six, I've got the cinch," when a deafening report rang out and a forty-five bullet buried itself in the log before him, missing his head about half an inch. Quickly turning and drawing his weapon, he discovered that he had no use for it, as Sixkiller had entered, and the athletic Indian had wrenched the pistol from the infuriated woman's hand and placed her under arrest. But the bullet had done it work. From the hole which it had made spurted a stream of whisky. An examination showed that two logs, the seventh and eighth, were hollow and connected by a tube, and both logs were copper lined and would readily hold over a barrel of whisky.

A stretched coon skin on the outside hid the outer aperature, which fitted to a large, detachable funnel. The two women were taken to Fort Smith and sentenced suspended provided they left the Indian country for good, which they consented to do. They were, however, only tools of others, who were afterward arrested and given long terms. But the worst joint in the Indian country was broken up by the two officers. Capt. Sixkiller was afterward assassinated by a cowardly Indian halfbreed by the name of Vann.—Galveston News.

Eight of the aldermen of Chicago are said to be proprietors of gambling houses and saloons.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON V.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Nov. 4.

SUBJECT.—Jesus Lord of the Sabbath.—Mark 2: 13-28.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath.—Mark 2: 28.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Mark 2: 23-28; 3: 1-5. T.—Matt. 12: 1-13. W.—Luke 6: 1-11. T.—Deut. 23: 24, 25; 1 Sam. 21: 1-6. F.—John 5: 1-16. S.—Ex. 23: 1-12. S.—Ex. 31: 1-17.

(Notes from Our Bible Teacher.)

Christ's Sabbath miracle of healing. At least seven of his thirty-three recorded miracles of healing were Sabbath work. He healed on Sabbath days the man with an unclean spirit in the Synagogue at Capernaum (Mark 1: 23-26), Simon's wife's mother (Mark 1: 29-31), the man with a withered hand (Matt. 12: 9-13), the man born blind (John 9: 14), the impotent man at Bethesda's pool (John 5: 9), the woman with a spirit of infirmity (Luke 13: 11-14), and the man with dropsy (Luke 14: 1-4).—Dr. S. H. Nesbit's "The Sabbath of the Bible."

Summary of Christ's teachings on the Sabbath. Six of Christ's discourses discuss the Sabbath question. They give us his views in four great watchwords: (1) "The Son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath." Jesus maintains a supremacy and lordship over his day. This makes it a New Testament institution. His lordship over the day must affirm his right to decide and order what is true Sabbath-keeping; to say what things should and what should not be done. (2) "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." This tells what the Sabbath is, and what it is not. Judaism made man the slave of the Sabbath. Its multiplied and oppressive rites were a caricature on the Sabbath of the Decalogue. Jesus emancipated man from his ceremonial bondage. The Sabbath was made for man somehow as light is made for the eye or sound for the ear. It is a hallowed and blessed weekly rest day. Like the atmosphere, the sunbeam, the raindrop, it brings benedictions to high and low, to rich and poor, to young and old. (3) "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." Thus the divine work goes on. His Sabbath-cycle, his seventh-day rest, the now of all time, is occupied by him in upholding and governing all things that he created in the beginning, and in redeeming man. The work of Jesus on Jewish Sabbaths was after this divine pattern. It was work done for others; miracles of healing; doing good to the souls and bodies of fallen man. (4) "Wherefore it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day." This justifies all well-doing in sacred time. Works of necessity and mercy are of the very essence of Sabbath-keeping. These four quotations state the attitude of Jesus toward the Sabbath as seen in his life and teachings.

How Christ spent his Sabbaths. "On that day he taught the people some of his greatest discourses; he wrought great miracles; he made journeys; he did acts of human kindness; he justified deeds of necessity; he smiled upon his disciples who plucked the corn in the fields; . . . he accepted an invitation to dine on the Sabbath in the town of Nain. St. Luke gives the scene at the table and the table-talk. (Luke 14.) And how did he spend the Christian Sabbath—the holy Easter—to commemorate his resurrection? On the first Easter Sabbath he appeared five times to his friends—to Mary of Magdala, to other women, to St. Peter, to the disciples, en route for Emmaus, and to his ten disciples; eight days thereafter he appeared to the eleven, when Thomas was there. This is the way in which he observed the Jewish and the Christian Sabbath—by mercy, kindness, necessity, useful journeys, festivities with friends, teaching the people, comforting his followers, and reminding all of the rest in heaven."—Dr. John P. Newman's "Supremacy of Law."

Various opinions on the needs of a Sabbath. The need of a Sabbath is not based only upon the religious Sabbath, but upon a law of man's nature that requires one rest day out of every seven working days. Loose and latitudinarian views on Sunday and Sunday laws come from the vicious classes—saloonists, libertines, anarchists, corrupters of social life, and subverters of states. But all true scientists, humantarian, political economists, jurists, statesmen, and physicians unite in pronouncing a seventh-day rest a need of man. Hear some of their testimonies: "Where there is no Christian Sabbath, there is no Christian morality."—Justice McLean. "The lands of the Sabbath and of the Bible have always been the chosen abode of knowledge and the lights of the earth."—Gilfillan. "I am not a fanatic, I hope, as to Sunday; but I look abroad over the map of popular freedom in the world, and it does not seem to me accidental that Switzerland, Scotland, England, and the United States, the countries which observe Sunday, constitute almost the entire map of safe popular government."—Joseph Cook. "Sunday is more essential to the workers of society than to any other members."—Charles Dudley Warner. "The desecration of the Sabbath by railroads is an absolute loss to those companies."—Wm. E. Dodge. "If you English people do not take care, the railway system will be a battering-ram to break down your Sabbaths."—Merle d'Aubigne. "The best friend of the poor man is his weekly day of rest."—M. D. Hoge, D. D. "Let us observe Sunday in the name of hygiene, if not in the name of religion."—Michael Cheralin, French Political Economist. "Brain as well as brawn needs the tonic of Sunday rest."—Dr. Crafts, in "Sabbath for Man." "Will men who labor six days in the week be more healthy, and live longer, other things being equal, than those who labor seven? Will they do more work, and do it in a better manner?"—The New Haven Medical Association—twenty-five physicians—unanimously voted, Aye. "This is a Sabbath-keeping nation, and I cannot preside over this convention one minute after twelve o'clock."—Judge Hoar, president of the Chicago Convention that nominated Garfield, when some politicians clamored to continue the balloting after midnight on Saturday. Give us a class of statesmen that will stand by Washington and Lincoln and Webster and those other great men who stood by the Almighty and his Sabbath laws. The colonists came to this country with a profound regard for the holy Sabbath, and we should try to perpetuate it.

Christ angry. "It is the only occasion, so far as I remember, upon which that emotion [anger] is attributed to him. Once, and once only, the flash came out of the clear sky of that meek and gentle heart. . . . . Christ's anger was part of the perfection of his manhood. The man that cannot be angry at evil lacks enthusiasm for good. It is one of the strengths of man that he shall be able to glow with indignation at evil."—Sermon Bible.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

Religious News.

—Rev. R. Bloemendal, of the First (Holland) church of Chicago, has accepted the call to the Second Reformed church of Muskegon, Mich.

—The First United Presbyterian church, Cincinnati, Ohio, has extended a hearty call to Rev. J. K. Montgomery, of Sparta, Ill., and is earnestly hoping for his acceptance.

—The greater part of the estate of the late Alexander Montgomery of San Francisco, Cal., estimated at $3,000,000, has been bequeathed to the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the Pacific Coast.

—There are now eight Methodist congregations in Salt Lake City, five of which belong to the Utah mission of the Methodist Episcopal church, one to the African Methodist Episcopal, one to the Scandinavians and one to the Free Methodists.

—The order of the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court, transferring the Dubs Evangelical churches into the hands of the true Evangelical Association people, was very generally obeyed throughout the east Pennsylvania conference, and the latter worshiped in a large number of edifices. Up to two years ago, when the split took place, they had been debarred from about half of the total number of church buildings.

—Rev. E. E. Duckworth, a Methodist clergyman of Oconomowoc, has withdrawn from the Methodist church at the Wisconsin conference to enter upon institutional work for the Simmons Hardware company of St. Louis. Mr. Duckworth has signed a five years' contract to look after the moral welfare of the 700 employes of the Simmons company. The plan is to establish a home somewhat similar to the Armour institute of Chicago.

—Three of the surviving clerical founders of the German Iowa Lutheran Synod recently celebrated the 40th anniversary of its organization. Rev. H. Fritschel, of West Superior, Wis., was elected professor in the Teachers' Seminary, Waverly, Iowa. The new college building in Clinton, Iowa, will be dedicated Oct. 9. Rev. J. Bartsch, formerly a Congregationalist, was admitted to synod. A new church was consecrated at Mt. Horeb, Iowa.

—Rev. Horace Sanderson, who is superintendent of home missions under the Congregational church in Colorado, lately told a correspondent of the Chicago Record that the Salvation Army is doing a great deal of good in the mining camps, and that their services are very largely attended by the miners and their families. They reach a class of people that will not attend regularly organized churches, and have had an excellent influence, particularly in the direction of temperance.

—The Missionary Review of the World estimates the total missionary gift of Christendom for 1893 at $14,713,627, besides $1,500,000 raised from the mission field itself. The total missionary force it estimates at 58,148, the greater part of these, of course, being unordained native helpers. There are in the world 16,602 mission stations, 1,081,708 communicants of mission churches in foreign lands, and 2,744,955 native Christians. There were added last year to these mission churches 57,555 souls.

—The splendid mission work of the London Congregational Union is recorded in a little book entitled, "Ten Years' Work in Outcast London." Its Midland Hall has sheltered one hundred and sixty-two thousand nine hundred and thirty five poor outcasts in the last decade. The "ministry of old clothes" and the "ministry of boots" supply thirty-thousand garments and two thousand pairs of boots to needy ones annually. The union has more than twenty centers of Christian work, including a fresh air mission, training and placing girls in domestic service and aiding immigration.

—Resolutions on Moral Reform passed by the late Erie Annual Conference of the U. B. in Christ:

Whereas, Our country is on the verge of political disruption, and is already largely asleep amid vastly extended moral disintegration, and the licensing and public approval of some of the most flagrant vices known to Christian civilization; therefore,

Resolved, That as a church we are strongly opposed to the licensed saloon system, and the sale and taxation of human virtue under the authority of corporate and civil law. Also we are opposed to Sabbath desecration in all forms.

We record, most emphatically, our disapprobation of the recent sympathetic Pullman strike and previous similar demonstrations, and subsequent boycotts and general sympathy therewith, resistance of law and order of civil government, in the interference with the United States mails and interstate commerce.

We most emphatically approve of the action of the Federal Government and State authorities in calling out armed force to suppress riots and murders, and the protection of life and property.

We record our disapprobation of all combinations, both open and secret, that interfere with the purity, life and spirituality of the home, church and state.

We ask for legal suppression of anarchism, communism and kindred organizations; also of monopolies in all the necessaries of life. N. R. Luce, Committee.

Planting the Standard.

All hail Columbus! Behold the great navigator as he lands. The perils of the deep are past. The clouds of fear have vanished. The night of gloom has ended. In the heavens the sun of success shines resplendent. Morning has dawned.

Imperiously the banner of haughty Spain greets the daylight. Upon its fluttering folds are inscribed the destinies of a new world. Its gleaming surface marks a long advance in the evolution of the human race. It tells a story of prophecy unparalleled, of development unapproached in the fullness of recorded time. It crowns with triumph the efforts of genius.

The World's Fair contained no finer statu e of the great discoverer than this colossal figure. It commanded from its pedestal, the eastern entrance to the Administration building. The majesty of its dimensions, the vigor and aggressiveness of its expression and the artistic finish of its composition made it admired as a genuine sculptural triumph.

Another Standard Proudly Displayed

at the Fair was that of

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

A Standard of Excellence for Forty Years.

It was the standard of unequalled strength, perfect purity and wholesome results. The award to Dr Price's of highest honors at the Fair turnishes conclusive evidence of its superiority over all other baking powders.

Disraeli, Lord Beaconsfield: "In conducting the governments of the world there are not only sovereigns and ministers, but secret orders to be considered, which have agents everywhere—reckless agents, who countenance assassination, and, if necessary, can produce a massacre."

Charles Sumner, in a Letter to Samuel D. Greene: "I find two powers here in Washington in harmony, and both are antagonistical to our free institutions, and tend to centralization and anarchy—Freemasonry and Slavery; and they must both be destroyed if our country is to be the home of the free, as our ancestors designed it."

JOSEPH RITNER, Governor of Pennsylvania, 1837: "If it be true as the lamented Colden (himself one of the initiated) declared, that many a Mason became a great man but no great man ever became a Mason, how nearly does it concern the youth of our country to pause and reflect before they commit their present standing and future reputation to the keeping of a society, which for its cold-hearted and selfish purposes could immolate even the fame of Washington at the shrine of its abominations."

RICHARD RUSH: "Hooker, personifying law, eloquently exclaims, 'her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world; everything on earth does her homage, the highest as not beyond her control, the least as claiming her protection.' Masonry has overset this primordial system. She has dethroned this image of God upon earth. To reinstate it over so insolent a victor, we must have a political organization. There is no other way of assaulting, there is no other hope of vanquishing, there need be no other dream of humbling such a foe. It fights with desperation."

James G. Birney, Candidate of the Liberty Party for President, was a Freemason, "but never entered a lodge after he joined the church, and, as his sons grew up, he cautioned them against joining any secret order."—Gen. Wm. Birney.

A. M. Sullivan, Irish Leader: "I had not studied in vain the history of secret, oath-bound associations. I regard them with horror. I knew all that could be said as to their advantages in revolutionizing a country, but even in the firmest and best of hands they had a direct tendency to demoralization, and are often on the whole more perilous to society than open tyranny."

JAMES MADISON, Letter dated Montpelier, Jan. 24, 1832: "I never was a Mason, and no one perhaps could be more a stranger to the principles, rites and fruits of the institution. From the number and character of those who now support the charges against Masonry, I cannot doubt that it is at least susceptible of abuses outweighing any advantages promised by its patrons."

Hon. Edward Blake, Leader in Canadian Parliament, in a Debate, March, 1884: "I am not in favor of State recognition of any secret societies. I have never joined one, though many of my best friends are members of secret societies. But I believe the tendency of secrecy itself to be injurious. I believe that it brings with it the possibility of evil; I believe that it involves a certain amount of sacrifice of individuality and independence, and gives very great facilities for the misleading of members by designing leaders—very great and mischievous facilities for that purpose." "I believe that a great deal of the trouble, social and political, that has occurred in those countries [Europe and America] is due to secret societies."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

321 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan ABDUCTION. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: ITS HISTORY AND ITS WORK. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the REPUBLIC, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("ADELPHON KRUPTOS.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger OF SECRET SOCIETIES. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: OR FREEMASONRY SELF-CONVICTED. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before THE GRAND LODGE OF ILLINOIS. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to SECRET SOCIETIES. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction AND MURDER, AND OATHS OF 33 DEGREES. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the INITIATE? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; Its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a LEAGUE WITH THE DEVIL. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder OF CAPT. WM. MORGAN. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees OF FREEMASONRY. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' LETTERS on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret SOCIETIES. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

The Past
Guarantees
The Future

The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured thousands of others is certainly sufficient reason for belief that it will cure you. It makes pure, rich, healthy blood, tones and strengthens the nerves, and builds up the whole system. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures

Be Sure to get HOOD'S and Only HOOD'S.

Hood's Pills are especially prepared to be taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla. 25c. per box.

LITERATURE
—ON THE—
ROMAN QUESTION
TAKEN FROM THE
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.

FRANKED ENVELOPES

Address,

Rev. Green Clay Smith,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf..... 1½c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1½c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ..3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Home and Health.

RESEARCHES OF EX-SURGEON GENERAL HAMMOND.

Dr. William A. Hammond claims thus far to have established beyond any question the great value of the following animal organic extracts, the names of which instantly suggest their source: Cerebrine, medulline, cardine and musculine. To better point out the field into which Dr. Hammond has entered, it may be well to quote the scientist's own words from the New York Medical Journal and other publications: "Isopathy is a word applied to the medical treatment of diseases of the several organs of the body by the corresponding organs, or preferably extracts from such organs of animals. To illustrate;

"Cerebrine is the sterilized extract of the brain of the ox, and contains the substance required by the brain for its nutrition. It is possessed of great power, its effects being experienced in a few minutes and continuing in a modified form for several days.

"It is of singular efficacy as a resistant to the advance of old age, in nervous prostration or neurasthenia, hysteria, nervous dyspepsia, hypochondria and mild forms of mental derangement, functional brain disturbance due to defective nutrition of the organ and temporary or long continued brain exhaustion resulting from intellectual or emotional strain. A single dose will, in cases of temporary nervous debility resulting from excessive mental strain or sudden emotional disturbance, frequently act as a complete restorative of the nervous system.

"It has been found of singular value in cases of insomnia resulting from over mental work. In such cases it should not be administered within four hours of bed time.

"Whenever great demand is about to be made upon the head and nervous system, rendering necessary a considerable expenditure of mental strength, it has been absolutely demonstrated that cerebrine gives the required added brain power.

"It has been proven invaluable as a tonic and restorative to the nervous system in cases of the alcoholic or morphia habit, and as a restorer of the memory when this faculty has been lost or impaired.

"In epilepsy and in locomotor-ataxia complete cures have been effected.

"Cerebrine is, therefore, of value, not only in the treatment of disease, but for all those—such as professional, literary and business men—whose occupations subject them to sudden and severe mental wear and tear.

"The same exact use may be designated for each of the extracts. Dr. Hammond makes the extracts in his own laboratory connected with his residence in Washington. At the completion of the extract he conveys it personally in his own carriage to the laboratory of the Columbia Chemical Company, and delivers the precious jars into the hands of trusted officials of the company, who, under the most rigid conditions, have the extracts bottled for the use of the general public.

"The knowledge of the wonderful cures effected has created a desire to obtain the extracts that surpasses all possible means of supply. Dr. Hammond's enormous practice precludes his manufacturing an adequate amount of the extracts. It requires a minimum of six months and a maximum of fourteen months in which to prepare the organic products.

"Some of the extracts can not be had under four months were orders filled at once. A careful system of entering requests is maintained, and in his turn every man or woman is conscientiously supplied. The benefits reaped by those who have already used the extracts are almost beyond belief.

"Dr. Hammond refuses to talk on this subject, as he prefers giving to medical journals the results of his practice.

"The chemical company above mentioned has issued reprints of some of the accounts of these cases from medical journals, which may be had by sending a request for the same.

FOR 20 YEARS
the formula for making Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by physicians of the whole world. No secret about it. This is one of its strongest endorsements. But the strongest endorsement possible is in the vital strength it gives.

Scott's Emulsion

nourishes. It does more for weak Babies and Growing Children than any other kind of nourishment. It strengthens Weak Mothers and restores health to all suffering from Emaciation and General Debility.

For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Blood Diseases and Loss of Flesh.
Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

"The researches that have opened up this new field by Dr. Hammond have been of the most laborious and exhaustive nature.

"Proud as has been the record of achievements on the part of American physicians, this latest advance by ex-Surgeon General Hammond bids fair to eclipse all others, if, indeed, it be not the ultimate discovery of the century."—Journal.

We know whereof we affirm when we state that Ayer's Pills, taken promptly, at the first symptoms of colds and fevers, arrest further progress of these disorders, and speedily restore the stomach, liver, and bowels, to their normal and regular action.

Everybody is Going South Now a days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

FARM FOR SALE.

A quarter section in Kearney county, Nebraska,

WILL BE SOLD AT A BARGAIN.

Description: Southwest quarter of Section 31, Township 8, North, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian.

ONLY $500 CASH FOR 160 ACRES.

Large bodies of cattle have ranged over and been herded on this and adjacent land. It is pretty well covered with grass. The soil as a whole is quite sandy, especially on the hills; the little valleys have the best soil.

It is near two railroad towns. Lowell is within two miles, and Hartwell is about five miles distant. All taxes are paid to date. Must be sold soon if possible. Address, W. I. Phillips, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ills.

Vital Questions
DISCUSSED IN THE
ADDRESSES AND SERMONS
OF THE LATE
JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!
——)oo(——

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, The Roman Catholic Practice of Auricular Confession. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A Warning to America. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the Secret Societies of France. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. Kimball,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St Chicago.

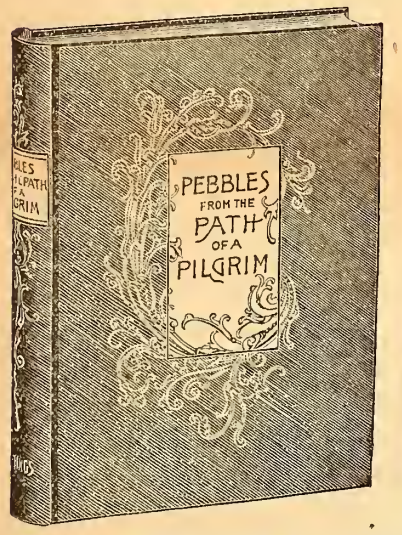
The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.



Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.

This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

STOCK.

Horses and cattle need liberal feeding and good housing during the days of autumn when sudden climatic changes are the order. The long winter coat of hair is produced at this season, and this process is very exhaustive to the vital energies. A little concentrated feed will help all stock along at this time, and for this purpose nothing is superior to linseed meal, as it is of great nutritive value, and by its oily nature acts as a gentle laxative upon the bowels. Give the horse a bran mash once or twice a week, composed of two quarts bran, one quart corn meal and a teacupful of linseed. Thoroughly mix the grains, scald with boiling water and allow to stand until cool. This will be found a desirable change from the usual diet of oats. The cows and horses both will be much more thrifty if given regular cardings and groomings, since these operations clean the skin, open the pores and facilitate the regular action of one of the most important of excretory organs. As winter comes on and stock must be stabled most of the time, care must be exercised to keep the air of barns pure and sweet. Use land plaster to absorb moisture and foul ammoniacal gases, and pay attention to the ventilation. This must be effective without producing draughts.—Observer.

THE GARDEN.

Many operations, upon which the success of gardening depends, can best be performed in fall. Manure should be drawn out and applied to asparagus, rhubarb, small fruits, orchards, etc. This is a much more advantageous time for such applications than the spring, as the reducing and solvent agencies of winter rains and snows and frosts are needed to render available the plant food of animal manures. Autumn offers the best season for dressing grass lands and fruit plantations with unleached hard wood ashes, one of the cheapest sources of potash. Farmers and fruit growers will find more time now to set out the various fruit trees and plants than in spring. Also nurserymen have more time to make shipments now than later on. It will pay to buy trees and heel them in if it is not desired to plant at once. In this way vexatious mistakes and delays may be avoided in spring.—Observer.

A man had four sample ears of corn hanging above his desk. A card showed that they had been sent in by Mr. A. C. Gish of Virden, Ill., and that they were Macoupin county "nubbins." Each ear was about as long as a baseball bat and as large around as a stovepipe. The first man who saw them said: "Ah, yes, I see! A big ear of corn is called a 'nubbin'."

The second said: "Whew! Those are big nubbins.' Do they call the white corn 'nubbins,' too?"

Another asked if "nubbins" was the name of a particular "brand" of corn.

Chicago is a great corn market, too. People buy and sell corn, but they don't see it very often, except in tin cans or popcorn balls. They understand the details of farming as the farm hand understands the details of railroading. One of the latter applied at the Chicago office for a job as a brakeman.

"Could you make a coupling?" he was asked.

"You bet I could. All you've got to do is put in the king bolt and drop the clevis-pin."—Chicago Record.

To retain an abundant head of hair of a natural color to a good old age, the hygiene of the scalp must be observed. Apply Hall's Hair Renewer.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

"CHAUTAUQUA" ROCKER AND RECLINING CHAIR FREE WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

IT IS BUILT OF OAK, POLISHED ANTIQUE FINISH, WITH BEAUTIFULLY GRAINED THREE-PLY VENEER BACK. THE SEAT, HEAD AND FOOT RESTS ARE UPHOLSTERED WITH SILK PLUSH. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, - - - - - - - - - $10.00} YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00.
CHAIR, WORTH AT RETAIL, - 10.00}
WE WILL SEND BOX AND CHAIR ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00 IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Cynosure Sept. 27 issue. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,

(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

ADVANCE PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEASTS OF EPHESUS.

By Rev. JAMES BEAND, D.D.

With an Introduction by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., President of the Y. P. S. C. E. 8vo, 206 pp. Cloth, $1.00

This is pre-eminently a book for the times, treating as it does, of nineteenth century perils which beset young people and are the dread of every Christian parent and every pastor.

Many a parent with a vivid realization of the peril of these evils to their children, has looked anxiously for just such a book as this to place in their hands. Written for this very purpose, it fills this place as no other book has ever done.

The chapters on The Dance, The Theater, The Card Table, The Weed, The Sabbath and Social Purity, have each been published in booklet form in very attractive style and will be sent postpaid at 5c. each or 25 for $1, or the entire set of six 25c.

SUPERNATURAL HEALING.

By E. P. Goodwin, D.D. A clear and logical discussion of Christian Science and Mind Healing, together with a careful analysis of the relation of Satan to disease and a treatment of the subject of miracles in general.—68 pages, single copies 25c., 5 copies $1. (Paper covers, 15 cents each.)

CONGREGATIONALISM.

By Prof. G. N. Boardman, D.D. The aim is to give information as to the nature and efficacy of our polity and to present the arguments in its favor. It is the desire to furnish all necessary assistance to those who are interested in gathering and organizing churches.—80 pages, single copies 10 cts., $1 per dozen.

Any of the above books sent postpaid on receipt of price.

THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO.

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST: My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

A Marvelous Showing.

The U. S. Government, through the Agricultural Department, has been investigating the baking powders for the purpose of informing the public which was the purest, most economical and wholesome.

The published report shows the Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful preparation, absolutely free from alum or any adulterant, and that it is greatly stronger in leavening power than any other baking powder.

Consumers should not let this valuable information, official and unprejudiced, go unheeded.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

News of the Week.

WASHINGTON.

The rapidly failing health of Justice Jackson, of the United States Supreme Court, causes much alarm in official circles. He will soon leave Wrshington and seek to rebuild his constitution, but it is feared that it is too late and that he will never return.

The commissioner of Indian affairs has decided to gradually do away with the services of interpreters at the various agencies, etc., and to employ instead the Indian children who have been educated at the expense of the government.

The $1,795,980 in Columbian souvenir coins, which were withheld from the World's Fair authorities by the government, because of the opening of the Fair on Sundays, are to be issued by the United States treasury on demand, at face value.

CHICAGO.

George M. Sloan, a well-known and eccentric character, died lately, having refused to take food for fifty days preceding his death. He left a letter stating that he had decided upon this method of ending his life.

The Liquor Dealers' Protective Association has begun a legal war against all druggists and restaurant-keepers who sell liquor without a license. Warrants for the arrest of eighteen drug-store owners and proprietors of restaurants have been taken out.

Adolph Kraus has joined with the two daughters of the late Carter Harrison to redeem the Chicago Times from a dissolute and anarchistic career into which the two sons of the assassinated mayor were bringing it. Kraus is a lawyer, and will assume entire control. He promises to give prohibition a fair dealing.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

Mrs. Mary Sawyer and her daughters, aged 16 and 18, were struck by a fast stock train on the Burlington, at Dorchester, Neb. The mother and younger daughter were instantly killed, and the other daughter was fatally injured.

Willam Dolby, colored, who one week ago criminally assaulted Mrs. Boyd, at Parrot's Station, was captured at Delaware, Ohio, and brought into court Thursday. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary. An angry mob gathered around the jail and Sheriff Cook called to his assistance the local militia company. This action increased the fury of the mob and troops form Columbus were sent. The mob surrounding the jail and courthouse was kept at bay by the free use of bayonets and clubbed guns. About 6 P. M. the rear door of the court house was broken in by the mob and the militia fired as the crowd rushed in. Of those hit five have died and some twenty more were wounded. Dolby was taken to the penitentiary next morning.

The worst fire in the history of Houston, Texas, broke out Tuesday morning. Two sisters of St. Joseph were burned to death, two infirmary patients also perished, and a third sister was dangerously injured.

One of the most daring hold-ups in the annals of train robbery occurred Friday about noon four miles east of Gordon, Texas, when the regular west-bound passenger train on the Texas & Pacific was looted. The gang made no concealment and understood the business. The amount taken is not known.

A burglar entered the residence of Rev. F. E. Wolfe, in Alameda, Cal. Mrs. Wolfe was awakened and was struck down with a hatchet. Her husband, awakened by her cry, was also struck. Mrs. Wolfe will probably recover. Mr. Wolfe is mortally wounded. They are missionaries who lately returned from Alaska.

At Yorkshire, O., John Brown and his whole family have been probably fatally poisoned from contaminated water. The well at the house failed and resort was had to an old well that has not been used for years. In a short time all were taken violently sick.

COUNTRY.

At Cripple Creek, Col., Sheriff Sterling shot two prisoners trying to escape while being taken to jail. One was killed and the other mortally wounded. The union miners threatened war in revenge, but were quieted.

Prof. J. B. Jones of Hamilton Female College, Kentucky, and pastor of the Providence Christian church, has been deposed from his pastorate by the irate members. Prof. Jones took a prominent part in the Breckinridge-Owens campaign against Col. Breckinridge. A majority of the officers in the church were sympathizers with the Colonel.

Four men have been arrested on the charge of murder and wrecking the express passenger train on the Chicago & Grand Trunk road on the morning of July 16 at Battle Creek, Mich., when one person was killed and fourteen were injured. The men confessed that the crime was committed with the knowledge and sanction of the American Railway Union, to which all those implicated belonged.

The general counsel of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways have notified the railroad commissioners of North Dakota that they will not obey the recently issued order to reduce coal rates in that State for the reasons that the present rate has been accepted by the commission as a reasonable rate, and that the earnings of the roads in North Dakota did not warrant any reduction.

A local train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road struck a carriage near Byron, Ill., containing Mrs. George Eddy and Mrs. Painter, and both were killed. Both ladies were followers of Schweinfurth, the Rockford "Christ," Mrs. Eddy being the leading lady of the Beekmanite society, and had been for some years engaged in writing a bible for their faith.

The reunion of the 13th Virginia regiment at Orange, Wednesday, was attended by thousands. The exercises were conducted under the Confederate flag, which waved everywhere. The absence of the Union flag caused considerable comment. Among the regimental survivors who marched in the parade was Gen. James G. Field, populist candidate for vice-president in 1892. He wore his old army coat of Confederate gray.

FOREIGN.

It was reported on the 10th that the Japanese had captured Che-Foo. Che-Foo is a treaty port of China on the Shantung promontory. It has a population of over 30,000 and a good harbor.

A rumor was current on the 12th that the Chinese government has commenced negotiations with Japan for peace. China, it is said, has offered to acknowledge the independence of Corea and to pay a war indemnity to Japan.

It is semi-officially announced that Great Britain is doing her best to induce the powers to join in an attempt to secure a cessation of the war between China and Japan. It is considered certain that Russia will not permit Japan to permanently occupy Corea. In this Russia is sustained by Great Britain, and the other powers are not sufficiently interested to do otherwise than acquiesce.

The cable report that the Italian minister in Pekin in pursuance of instructions from his government had offered his services as mediator in bringing the China Japan war to a close is construed at the legations here as a possible move on the part of the triple alliance—Germany, Italy, and Austria—to intervene.

A St. Petersburg dispatch to the Times, Oct. 18, says that the announcement that the condition of the czar had perceptibly changed for the worse was contained in an official bulletin issued at 11 o'clock Wednesday night at Livadia.

Ten thousand socialists met at Vienna, Oct. 18. As the dense throng was traversing the Ringstrasse in the inner city a squadron of thirty mounted police charged the crowd with drawn swords. Fifteen of the socialists and one policeman were left lying on the ground, where they had been severely injured by saber strokes or the hoofs of the struggling horses.

Information from sources within the vatican state that the cardinalate will be conferred on Mgr. Satolli.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Oct. 8 to Oct. 20:

J M Chambers, J H Brockman, S Besecker, J Linn, L H Bohrer, Mrs M J Olney, B Ulsh, S Heaton, R T Anderson, Mrs L M Wylie, Mrs J W Fifield, C C Smith, I Mettler, W Huth, Rev C Hedler, N C Tyrrell, J M Crobarger, L A Brown, L D Hollingsworth, Mrs L B Streeter, Rev J P Aurelius, W W Nicholas, Rev A J Lee, R Jones, S Dubois, A G McKeown, L Dorman.

BIBLES at 1-3 Price for 30 days only. Best and Cheapest Family and Oxford Bibles in the world. Write for circulars at once. NATIONAL BIBLE HOUSE, Syracuse, N. Y.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. 22 344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

By Rev. A. Sims.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 8. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,279.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Ev
95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Congregational Committee of Inquiry..... 8
Who is this King of Glory?..... 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Drummond's "Ascent of Man".. 2
Adjourning Sect Issues.. 2
The Panacea of Lodgery 3
Society--A Poem..... 4
SELECTED:
Lodge Charity..... 2
Giving up their Jewels.. 5
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 9
LITERATURE..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
The New England Convention; The Unresting Coast Agent..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Southwestern Kansas; Why Masons want the Offices..... 6
FACT AND FANCY..... 6
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
Notices..... 8
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

In the midst of the election struggle Chicago takes time to chuckle over her registration of 313,676, which exceeds that of New York by 5,275 names. These figures exclude over 30,000 women, who registered in this city for the privilege of voting for State University trustees, and every ticket but the "People's" has a woman's name as candidate for that office.

The exciting issues in Illinois are chiefly local. The Populist or People's party is unquestionably gaining strength. This is partly from the city labor societies, although there is a serious ruption among the union "bosses," and the boasted unity and ties of "brotherhood" are very sandy ropes in politics. Monday morning the American Protective Association made another great breach. Gano, a former head of the order, has sworn that Mayor Hopkins has been furnishing money from Democratic treasuries to keep up a party movement of that secret society; while another A. P. A. light declares the Republicans have been doing the same naughty business.

A. P. A.-ism has been a disturbing element in New York also. But Tammany is the secret society there which is the center of battle. Tammany and anti-Tammany Democrats make a three-cornered fight with the Republicans for the supremacy, and there is an unusual amount of trading. David B. Hill is at the head of both Democratic tickets. Two weeks ago his hope to be governor again seemed 100,000 votes the wrong way, but his strategy and determination are working wonders. He is said to live in a sleeping car, never drinks, or smokes, and, like Napoleon, "worships no God but ambition."

The able correspondent of the Record of this city says that the Tammany order is becoming thoroughly scared as they realize the danger and result of their defeat. There are, he says, 14,600 men upon the pay-roll of the city government of New York, ninety per cent of whom belong to the secret political Tammany society. They receive from the city treasury about $17,000,000 a year, more than the revenues of most of the States, and control the disbursement of over $89,000,000, most of which is expended under contracts let largely to Tammany men. There are 7,400 employes who draw salaries exceeding $1,500 a year, 1,300 who draw over $2,500 and some of them as much as $25,000. The remainder receive from $2 to $5 a day. These men are not only fighting for political success, but for their bread and butter. The order is holding secret meetings frequently and will march to the polls next week with a desperate determination.

While in Chicago women are enthusiastically preparing for election day for the simple privilege of voting for a university board, in New York they are with more reason and devotion rallying to the help of Dr. Parkhurst and the anti-Tammany reformers. The other day they held a meeting in Cooper Union that numbered nearly 2,000. It was probably the largest mass meeting of women ever known in the city. Men were not admitted. The Woman's Municipal League, under whose charge the meeting was held, has a purpose. It will promote the work so well begun by Dr. Parkhurst and the Lexow committee, and aid in carrying it to a successful end.

The secret societies are taking up the fight with the Lexow committee. Tammany of course is ready to bribe, forcibly remove witnesses, or use any means short of actual violence. But the Chinese highbinders are the first to commit assault. Ah Wong Get lately gave testimony before the dreaded committee against the Chinese gamblers. He is a Christian Chinaman, who has married an American wife. This lady awoke the other night just in time to see a form with a pigtail come through the window. She screamed and Ah Wong Get awoke in time to fire at the assassin, who, however, escaped. He says this secret society is very strong in New York. So are several companion secret societies.

Protection in the political sense of the word is sometimes a queer thing. The Central Labor Union of New York city has recently had a bill put through the Legislature of that State providing that "all stone used under contracts for all municipal improvements and works" must be chiseled or dressed within its boundaries. There are about 6,000 granite cutters in New England who feel aggrieved by this action. The law was framed ostensibly to protect about one-thirtieth of that number of local cutters in New York; but even they are really not protected, as it shuts off the market which supplies them with material to work; but it is the kind of legislation which must be expected if the ignorant and unscrupulous leaders of the labor unions have their way.

Spite of the fact that United States Minister Denby, at Pekin, reassures those who have friends in China that the reports of danger to the foreign residents of Pekin are exaggerated, and that a proclamation has been issued by the authorities enjoining protection for foreigners, we cannot but feel some alarm. If the Japanese push on with uninterrupted victory, a season of anarchy is quite sure to follow the overthrow of the Chinese government. American missionaries are urging that a clause be added to our treaty which shall guaranty them special protection. There is little doubt that officials of the Chinese government are unfriendly to the Christian missionaries and connive at many of the outrages perpetrated upon them. They may in the present crisis be more careful, but if the Chinese masses are let loose there will be no safety in human aid away from the ports.

A New York house sends out a volume of ready-made speeches for all sorts of "days". There is something for Arbor Day, Discovery Day, Flag-raising Day, Grant's Birth-day, Independence Day, Lincoln's Birth-day, Orangemen's Day, Decoration Day, Emancipation Day, Forefathers' Day, Labor Day, Liberty Day, St. Patrick's Day, Temperance Day and Washington's Birth-day. It is a sign of the times, this craze after "days" and "societies." Woe be to him who does not "join the procession," and "keep up with the fashion." An Episcopal paper noting that in England special sermons were preached in many churches on the Fourth Sunday after Trinity, which is known in England as "Kindness to Animals Sunday," adds in a terse and homely way, "A sufficient comment is 'Rats.'"

A year or more since we heard a member of a Congregational association plead with all the sincerity of which he was possessed for the observance of Lent. He had passed from Methodist discipline to Presbyterian confession and Congregational creed, but was always a blatant Freemason. He had raised a son who followed his steps from one sect to another until he settled in the lap of Rome. From such an experience came a plea for Lent. No pastor rose to reply; but a sweet-voiced woman, fit to have been in the company of those who were earliest at the Saviour's tomb, made an earnest plea for a Christianity free from the shackles of popery, and a brother read from Gal. 4: 9–11, "How turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements.... Ye observe days.... I am afraid of you." There was a subdued "Amen" and a great silence until the chairman called on the next speaker.

Last week Masons of several degrees called "higher" met in this city. There were conclaves of Knights Templar, councils of Royal and Select Masters, and chapters of the Royal Arch. The Templars arrogate to themselves the distinction of being the military and Christian part of Freemasonry. They are pagan up to these degrees, and infidel and pagan afterward; but when in the commandery they are very Christian. Therefore the lodges of this order propose to give the Lord Jesus Christ the benefit of their patronage in the year A. D. 1900. They will all meet then in New York and celebrate his birth, his life and his death in true Masonic style. They do not speak of his resurrection,—that scene belongs to the god Hiram of the blue lodges. Very appropriately the Christ of the Knight Templars will remain in the tomb; for he is a false Christ of which the Saviour prophesied. Let him remain "dead as Julius Cæsar."

DRUMMOND'S "ASCENT OF MAN."

BY MRS. A. E. KELLOGG.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—You have asked my views regarding Drummond's "Ascent of Man." I give them from my standpoint, which is not that of a scientist in any sense, but rather of a Christian who cherishes the Bible as the inspired Word of God, the only hope of a lost world, and the only history of creation and of the origin of the species possible; and that this was made known to Moses by the only possible authority, even the Creator himself. Whether the creation occupied six days or six thousand days, or whenever was the beginning, I know that truths in Revelation and truths in science need only to be understood to be found in perfect harmony, without casting away the Old Testament as an "old theology" outgrown and not to be compared with the discoveries of science; or, regarding the history of creation as the poetic effusions of the supposed author of the Pentateuch.

Of the book in question, having read it carefully, I am constrained to say that I consider it unworthy of the author. It should have borne the title, "The Descent of Drummond" instead of "The Ascent of Man." The following are reasons for my judgment:

1. Prof. Drummond tells us in his introduction that it is a story, and not a scientific work. As a romance it is certainly ingenious and gives evidence of a vivid imagination. But, instead of a story, he proceeds to dogmatize as if by authority, taking for granted that all the sacred beliefs of the centuries had been broken up and carried away, "like the dust of the summer threshing floor," by the breeze which modern writers have raised in their great efforts to prove that man by wisdom had found out all the works of God. They are prepared to assert that nature is sufficient unto itself, though they fail to tell us what nature is.

2. As a collector and compiler of other men's thoughts, the work shows great industry; and while he professes to add to the theory of evolution what they had forgotten, or had not discovered, he nevertheless goes over to them, with his little lantern, joining them in the effort to obscure the "Light of the World." And this they do by holding their light near, and the human eye is so small that it will not see through or beyond it. Our writer disarms suspicion by professing his belief in God: which he admits that his atheistic forerunners had at last confessed, because they could not otherwise find a satisfactory beginning.

3. He has brought us nothing new except two or three suggestions, the rest being straw well threshed before,—old arguments met by able Christian men, the peers in scholarship of any in the school of Darwin, Huxley, or any of their kind.

4. If he fully believes in God, he seems to forget that God has said by the Prophet; that "Secret things belong unto God, but things that are revealed belong to us and to our children;" and he proceeds without reverence with his knife and glass, professing to uncover things pertaining to the mystery of life which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world. He also invades the holy sanctities of maternity, giving to the common gaze secrets sacred to the privacy of medical science; finding in them proofs of his theory, which do not bear that use, as they prove nothing but providential growth.

5. As a Christian, and a religious teacher, he has pressed forward into the front rank as a leader of Christian thought by publishing, in attractive form, lectures containing rich gems of thought, clothed in chaste language, with always a choice setting which has commended them to the popular taste. These things being so, it seems inconceivable that he could have written a volume of 347 pages, professedly prying into the mysteries of creation, entirely ignoring the creating Word "that was in the beginning, that was with God, and that was God," by whom "all things were made that are made." Moreover, in him was life; and he, incarnate in human flesh, was declared by the Spirit to be "the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person," by whom also he made the world: who holds in his hands to-day all power in heaven and on earth, which includes even the breath of the scientist. Yet in this whole book, the name of Jesus Christ does not occur. We do not expect it of Darwin, for it is his business to dethrone the Lord; but we do expect it of one who professes to teach in his name.

It is true that in the chapter on involution he gives expression to some very pretty sentiments on Christianity, of a very diluted sort, dating it back to the time when his idea of love began to be evolved, and taking it forward to the establishment of a universal church; passing by "the Lamb of God" who taketh away the sin of the world.

His view of the evolution of language is consistent with his theory, and that of some celebrated philologists, but it is nevertheless inconsistent with Revelation; for Adam and Eve found no difficulty in understanding and answering the voice of the Lord God as he walked in his garden, or the words of the devil when he said: "Ye shall not surely die." So we must conclude that among the other glorious endowments with which man and woman in their innocency were crowned, was the gift of speech. And if it has ever been lost, it is because sin turned man backward and downward: which law of deterioration still obtains where there is no knowledge of Jesus Christ.

It is claimed that a sequel to the "Ascent of Man" would doubtless follow, in which the author would certainly set himself right on the omissions complained of. A sequel can never set him right. He has sent this volume out without explanation, to do its part in helping the drift away from Christ, which is so plain in a large body of our literature; substituting science and philosophy, poetry and culture, for the recognition of sin, as the abominable thing which God hates, and the necessity of the atoning sacrifice of the spotless Lamb of God, who alone could take away the sin of the world.

Denver, Colorado.

ADJOURNING SECT ISSUES.

BY REV. A. J. CHITTENDEN.

Sectarianism is the disposition to organize into separate congregations those who differ on minor and debatable questions. There is no good sectarianism. The fact that Christians were once called a sect, is now an obsolete fact. The word refers simply to the subdivision of Christians. In this use we recognize no difference among sectarians, as such. We have a better opinion of them than they have of one another. Their contentions have not been "irrespective of the questions of right and wrong, truth and error." We are sorry to be compelled to contradict Mr. Paull's very first statement. Those who oppose sectarianism will defend any class of men from such an imputation—certainly if they be Christians.

But those who defend sectarianism have a way of imputing very naughty things to such as pray "that they all may be one," and act as if they meant it. "We follow the Word of God." "We search the Scriptures daily." Indeed! As if other people did not. "We cannot give up our convictions." As if other people could and did! Brethren, that is not being "kindly affectioned one towards another; in honor preferring one another." How wide or comprehensive is this "one another?"

Directing the early churches at a time when discussion had become intrusive and divisive, the Apostle to the Gentiles said: In your meetings, "see that ye all speak the same thing." The unregenerate world look on and witness a divided testimony; then doubt your sincerity in the main profession.

The brother says, to search for truth and stand for truth is the noblest of virtues. Has anyone denied it? Are we discussing proverbs? Why then reiterate a mere truism? Is it just possible that two or three things are very much confused in these generalizations?

As the brother himself brings forward his own sect for illustration, we are rather compelled to say, There is such a thing as injuring a great cause by undue stress on incidental things. There is such a thing as using the telescope wrong end forward. The kangaroo carries her children in a pouch. There they are safe; and while they are there she is safe. Tie them on to her feet and both mother and young are caught by the dogs. The mother truth in Christianity is the regeneration of the soul by union with Christ. Have souls thus reunited always conformed exactly in using the symbol of purification? Have the Scriptures indicated that such conformity is equally important with the main truth? No. Then the main truth is the one to organize under, and the error of sectism is in denying individualism within its limits. Instead of favoring soul freedom, it is the negation of it.

See here three truths:

1. Repentance towards God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. That makes the Christian.

2. A secondary truth concerning a symbol to express the work done, "the washing of regeneration," "the heart sprinkled from an evil conscience, and the body washed with pure water."

3. A tertiary truth concerning the exact method of using the symbol—two steps away from the main truth, heart purification.

Now, once more, there is still another "truth" answering to the question, Which of these three is the vitally important one? Which one saved the thief on the cross, who had no chance to be symbolized? Christ has forbidden our putting anything but the first thing in the first place. Common sense forbids it. That principle rules in all the legitimate associations of men. It is that that makes community possible. It is that that makes the family, the state and the army possible. We don't ask the sectarian to abandon anything except the error that lies over against this last truth.

Of course, we know that "every sect rallies around some truth," but good soldiers rally around the flag which stands for the main difference between themselves and the enemy. They don't rally around every tree they run against, or every incidental campaign or political question they happen to think of. If they did they would break all to pieces rallying. It is this truth that the sectarian does not see. If he sees it, he does not obey it.

We do not ask a man to forsake his sect and the truth he holds dear. That is a sectarian misconstruction of the main question. Because, by "sect" he probably means his congregation. What we ask is that the congregation shall abandon an inconsistent attitude towards other Christians—an untenable idea that unchurches other Christians in the same community.

As to the sect at large, there can be no allegiance to factitious unions, under a mere sect name, that may take precedence of home Christianity and neighborhood courtesies. If Christianity is not able to show itself complete in its every community it is a failure. But true congregationism, which the Baptists so valiantly contended for, forbids sectism. It was sectism that stirred the fires of their persecution. They revolted against despotism in the church; against resolving churches into Church; and for the right of free discussion. But sectism extinguishes discussion. Inter-sect "courtesy," after a time, forbids it. Political sectarianism disqualifies the people for reform and invites the ruin of dry-rot in the state—then spontaneous combustion and volcanic revolution. A party-bound people cannot be intrusted with their own liberties. The churches should be the models for the Republic.

Sectarianism is enfeebling to the mind. A vigorous Christianity can never live in its atmosphere. Large-minded men can be found in all the sects—men who rise above the sect idea. But the average man is enfeebled by it. There are great sections of the South that demonstrate this statement; and the writer is a witness to the facts.

We cannot say all that ought to be said under the head of Ecclesiastical Consanguinity and its physical analogy without incurring the charge of reviling our brethren. The brother says: "We cannot understand how our dear brethren in Christ dare to change his ordinance." "We are asked to deny our Lord and endorse anti-Christ. We cannot do it. We love our Lord too well."

We reply, softly, Good men and women, you need not try to understand it. Just give it up. It isn't so. And it is weakening to the soul to try to understand things that are not so. We always found it easier to ascertain facts than to comprehend absurdities.

The foundation of the Church of Christ is Christ himself and nothing less. On "this Rock" we can all stand together. "Other foundation can no man lay." In erecting, furnishing and finishing the house, many things are good and serviceable. But they are not the foundation. Temperance reform is good; but it is not the foundation. Anti-secrecy is true; but it is not the foundation. Anti-slavery was true; but churches that knew nothing else, or little else, were sad failures. It was not the Foundation. You cannot build on any one of the Ten Commandments. They are assumed, but not as the Way. The "New and Living Way" is superior even to the Ten Commandments. They could not give Life.

Those who are in this way surely ought to walk together—close together. They ought to meet together every Sabbath day. They ought to "Remember Me" together. They ought to co-operate in all Christian reform. They should economize moneys and efforts. Is there not such a thing as religious common-sense? Must the "children of this world" be always "wiser in their generation than the children of light?"

Mill River, Mass.

LODGE CHARITY.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of Sept. 29 gives some of the reminiscences of "Uncle" Mat. Miller, of Lawrenceburgh, Indiana, now past 80 years of age, and for more than fifty years an Independent (?) Odd-fellow, in eulogy of that fraternity. Among other reminiscences of a similar kind, the following one is thus told by the Enquirer:

"I had an experience of another character in Sacramento. One night late I had eaten at a restaurant, where, in paying for my meal, I inadvertently disclosed a considerable sum of money I had in my possession. On leaving the place I was followed some distance by a couple of covetous fellows, who had resolved to get my gold. I was unarmed, and while suspicious, was not certain of the intentions of the men, who persistently shadowed me. I had started to cross a dark commons to shorten my route, when the two villains suddenly assaulted me. I was knocked down and partially stunned, but managed to seize the larger of the ruffians by the arm as he raised his hand to plunge a huge knife into my breast, and thus prevented him from doing me further harm. But his companion attacked me with savage ferocity, and I would have been killed and robbed on the spot if I had not shouted at the top of my voice those mystic words, that are heard only to be obeyed, by those comprehending their meaning. Almost immediately thereafter the sound of hurrying footsteps greeted my ears, and my assailant was prostrated by a blow that would have felled an ox. I released my hold on the fellow struggling in my grasp, and dropping his knife he darted away in the darkness."

"'Are you hurt, brother,' exclaimed my preserver, as he assisted me to rise, and then I knew I owed my life to Odd-fellowship. The stranger had been standing talking to a friend some distance away when I was attacked, and heard the noise of my scuffle with the robbers. But those were dangerous times in Sacramento, and he and his friend did not propose to interfere in a fight the purport of which they knew nothing, and were hastening from the spot when the mystic words I spoke halted and summoned him to my rescue. His companion could not comprehend why he had so suddenly changed his intention of getting away from the scene of trouble, and rushing back in defiance of danger to my assistance. But it was explained to his satisfaction, and he swore he would join the order at the first opportunity, if acceptable."

And this incident is recorded in eulogy of this world renowned charitable fraternity, and as an example of its most wonderful charity. At the sound of "the mystic words, that are heard only to be obeyed by those comprehending their import," this brother Odd-fellow who was hastening from the spot was halted, and returned to his brother in distress. Would not a highway robber or a midnight assassin have done the same thing for his fellow robber or assassin, as the case might be? This Odd-fellow who, not knowing it was a brother in distress, had started to make his escape, returned only because it was one of his own craft that was in danger; and had the "mystic words" been uttered by the robbers instead of by "Uncle Mat" he would have been under the same obligation to return, and would have returned just as quickly to the rescue; while a man not an Odd-fellow, who possessed only the common feelings of humanity, to say nothing of charity and real brotherly love, instead of hastening from the spot in the first place, would have hastened to the rescue, not because of his oath, or because it was one of his craft in distress, but because of his sense of duty toward the party in distress as a fellow man. And yet this narrow, this clannish, this spirit of unmixed selfishness fostered by all the so-called fraternal secret orders, is paraded before the world as charity. The fact is that, while it has something of the form, it has not a single element of real charity in it. Contrariwise, it has in it the very essence of selfishness.

Lodge charity, like the charity of the robber or the assassin, will hasten to the rescue of a comrade in distress, only because he is a comrade. True charity will hasten to the relief of a fellow being when set upon though he be a most bitter enemy. There is as great difference between the two kinds of charity as there is between the spirit of God and the spirit of the devil. The one is benevolent, the other is malevolent.—Christian Conservator.

THE PANACEA OF LODGERY.

EXTRACT FROM AN ADDRESS BY REV. J. P. STODDARD, DELIVERED AT THE NEW ENGLAND CONVENTION, AT FRANKLIN, MASS., OCT., 10, 1894.

The government of such bodies must of course be in harmony with their foundation principle, which is selfishness; and with the oaths or covenants which bind the individual members into a secret compact. It must be rigorous and exacting or its provisions would have very little force. Equality of rights is no more consistent with its principles and aims, than it is in any other system of lords and serfs; and whatever religion it may choose to adopt must be of that universal character which will be acceptable to, and accord with the views of those who have entered the lodge by a personal surrender of private judgment. The distinctive doctrines of Christianity would be destructive to the entire system.

The effect of such a divided state in any community, and its influence in retarding the progress of peace principles, will appear from a simple illustration.

Take for example a community of one thousand persons, composed of men, women and children, in which different religious creeds and nationalities are represented. All have a common interest in public affairs, and are subject to the same general government. A few disaffected or aspiring members form an alliance to obtain for themselves undue advantages. They are a fraction of the whole body, and to conserve their influence and to augment their strength they invent or adopt a system of initiations, grips, signs and passwords, and frame a code of laws for their government. They meet in some secure place, with doors carefully guarded by inside and outside sentinels, and there administer an oath, or pledge of secrecy and obedience, to each one who is admitted into the compact. From one original aspirant, the number has increased to one hundred, when their existence becomes known, and their movements strongly suspected. In some mysterious way the control of public affairs, in church and state, has very largely fallen into their hands. The condition becomes alarming and some remedy must be devised for the public safety. The conspirators have secretly stolen the government, and the people are in doubt what to do. To oppose the society openly would be to discredit their rulers who constitute its leading members, and tamely to submit would be a surrender of their liberties and a tacit assent to the robber authority.

One conceives the idea of meeting the conspirators on their own ground, and attacking them with their own weapons. He invents or adopts a similar method of secret tactics and secures the co-operation of ninety-nine of his fellow-citizens in secret society No. 2, to check-mate and abolish secret society No. 1. No. 1 is on the alert and more fertile in expediencies than No. 2. It has the field and the experience by which it is able to successfully meet its rival, and public affairs grow worse rather than better as the contest goes on.

A third man who has carefully studied the situation says to himself, "Its of no use trying to unravel this tangle all at once. It's too complicated as a whole. We must take it in part." So he organizes secret society No. 3 to protect some industry or enterprise which he deems of special importance. It may be education, religion, or sumptuary discrimination in the markets which he makes the shibboleth of his order. He fills his quota with one hundred oath-bound confederates and they plunge into the conflict, only to find themselves overpowered after perhaps a few seeming victories.

A fourth appears on the scene. He is a cosmopolite, a real patriot. He has discovered the "philosophers' stone," and is ready to disclose the universal solvent of all difficulties to those who are admitted to secret society No. 4. Ninety and nine fall into line and the one hundred march in solid phalanx to the polls, secretly sworn to vote in a "block."

By the rules of these secret cabals, many in the community could not become members if they would, and others are unwilling to surrender self-respect and religious conviction, or to barter manhood for office, and they remain free from all entangling alliances.

Thus instead of one, as at the beginning,

THEY HAVE FIVE GOVERNMENTS,

and instead of open, amicable fraternal relations, they have four secret confederacies, out of harmony with each other and united only in the one obligation which binds every member in the ranks of the secret wing not to confide any of the mysterious wisdom of his order to any one of the 600 who have not been initiated. The aged, the poor, women and the children, are all outside, and the lodge is composed of such picked material as could be induced to join. It is six against five and five against six; the aged, the women, and the children being most numerous, but the weaker element; while the secret factions are crippled by contentions among themselves. The peace of the whole community is disturbed, public interests are jeopardized and public treasures are recklessly appropriated. One faction obtains control and adopts a certain line of policy, but is finally superseded by another faction which reverses the policy of its predecessors, and private as well as public interests suffer from uncertainty and repeated change. All see the evil but no one knows just how to remove it.

In this extremity it is decided to call a mass convention, and the entire population assemble to confer on the situation, and if possible devise a remedy. After the organization is completed, each is asked to give his views in turn. Mr. A arises, and after referring to the former community in its united and prosperous condition when every citizen was the peer of every other citizen, suggests that the establishment of secret governments have not been conducive of harmony and good will among the citizens, and recommends that they be abandoned. Mr. B speaking for lodge No. 1, takes it as a personal affront, —denies all the charges, and declares that his lodge has always conserved public interests, and is really entitled to credit for what little good remains, and demands an apology for such a ruthless attack.

Whereupon Mr. C speaking for lodge No. 2, replies: Your allegations are not true. Your star chamber tribunals and secret caucusses and underhand manipulations were shielding criminals, promoting and controlling your own members, and so corrupting the government that we were compelled to start a counter movement or stand by and see the authority of our government ursurped and the public treasury pillaged to satiate your greed. Your aims were so base and your methods so disreputable that you dare not attempt your work openly, and so you slunk away into a secure hiding-place and FORMED A SECRET CONSPIRACY.

To meet you in your meanness and to save our beloved community from your tyrant grasp, we were obliged to follow your example and copy your methods, but our purposes were patriotic and every way justifiable and meritorious. You deserve all, and more than the censure you have received, and yet you have the effrontery to demand an apology. Why, sir, had it not been for our lodge such a thing as personal rights would be unknown among our people.

Mr. D gravely remarks upon the situation: Neither of the gentlemen who have spoken seem to apprehend the condition of affairs. However well intended, they must be aware that the methods utterly failed to even mitigate the evil. Indeed, the situation grew steadily worse, until our educational and religious institutions were in imminent danger, and in the hope of perpetuating these pillars of our civil, intellectual and sacred compact, we were compelled to organize in secret for their preservation, adopting similar methods to those you had employed with such unwelcome results; but which, as our motives were pure, and our cause a righteous one, we felt confident of success.

Whereupon Mr. E takes the platform in behalf of secret society No. 4. He says: My fellow citizens, the honorable gentlemen who have so ably addressed you upon this occasion are all wrong. Their methods are clannish and their aims are narrow. I speak for a cosmopolitan order; an order of true patriots; and I can assure you, my fellow citizens, that there is nothing niggardly or sectional about us. We believe in one country and one flag, and civil and religious freedom in its broadest sense. We would shed our last drop of blood to maintain free speech and liberty of the press. We abhor bigotry and loathe despotism, and solemnly protest against all privileged or titled aristocracy. In brief, our society is the grandest invention of this progressive age. Why, my fellow countrymen, if I were to recite its ennobling ritual and solemn vows of succor to a distressed brother and absolute obedience to our superiors, made certain by penalties of death; if only for once I was permitted to throw wide the door and allow you to look for a single moment upon the august assembly in full regalia, surrounding the crowned sovereign upon his throne, and the mitered priest at the altar mid a cloud of incense; if only I was at liberty to pronounce the in your hearing and then take you by the lion's paw or strong grip of universal brotherly kindness and conduct you through the subterranean labyrinths, and there expound the mysteries of a perfect state of society, a star more effulgent than that which hung over the "Babe of Bethlehem" would beckon you on to the cradle of universal liberty, equality and justice. But ours, like those represented by the honorable gentlemen who have preceded me, is a confidential society. No man may divulge its secrets to a profane under extreme penalties. In closing, permit me to reassure you that intolerance is intolerable in our order, and that we abhor despotism, kingcraft, priestcraft, and privileged or titled aristocracies. And now, fellow citizens, since I have elucidated the sublime realities locked up in the pathetic throbbing heart of our noble fraternity, permit me to retire from this rostrum to the palladium of liberty, where in our inner sanctuary I shall wait in favorable expectation that you will not allow so grand an opportunity to promote the well-being of this our beloved commonwealth to pass unimproved. To avoid misapprehension, let me say we never solicit members, but the freewill application will be favorably entertained,—provided, always, that the gentleman is in possession of a competent estate, and has a sound body, and is willing to pay liberally, and to swear an oath, without mental reservation, ever to conceal and never reveal the sublimities of our most potent agency for universal civilization. We do business on a strictly cash basis, so don't fail to have your membership fee ready, with a liberal margin for incidentals, as our chivalric order is wont to indulge in festivities at the expense of a newly-made brother, according to the ancient usages and established customs of the brotherhood. "A word to the wise is sufficient," and I will just add, "no old man in dotage, young man in nonage, CRIPPLE, FOOL OR WOMAN NEED APPLY." With this diatribe No. 4 subsides.

GRAND OMNIFIC WORD

There are four benevolent patriotic societies each proclaiming itself the possessor of a key of knowledge by which to unlock the secret to success, but not one in the whole company is at liberty to disclose that wonderful mystery. Confusion becomes worse confounded as the conference proceeds, until asks to be heard. She briefly reviews the proceedings, and finding no prophecy of peace and good-will to the community in the remedies proposed, suggest that they abolish all secret societies, and return to the open simplicity of living of which there still lingered most precious memories, and that instead of relying upon oaths and pledges and grips and signs and secret meetings for help they accept the counsels and follow the example of Him who "ever spake openly to the world, and taught in the synagogue and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort, and said nothing in secret." He confronted the most terrific and complicated rebellion in the universe openly, and sent his disciples to complete the work of restoring peace on earth and good will among men by the most simple and direct method. Wherever his example is followed and his plan is adopted, strife ceased and harmony reigned. I propose that we try the plan of "doing unto others as we would have them do unto us." That instead of seeking the uppermost seats, and to be called great among men, that each esteem the other better than himself. Where this counsel prevails there is but one result possible. So sure as darkness recedes before the rising sun, so sure would strife and enmities forsake the brotherhood of man, and in God's own good time and way would come the answer to that inimitable prayer which the Prince of Peace put upon the lips of his disciples,—and the will of God be done on earth as it is in heaven. Then the lodges, the dram-shops, the brothel, and the "noise of battle with garments rolled in blood," shall have returned to the pit from whence they came, and He whose right it is shall reign over a brotherhood as universal as the redeemed of the Lord and as enduring as the throne of God.

A WOMAN WHO HAS LISTENED ATTENTIVELY

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

(Scene in a ministers' meeting for a Monday morning, a few weeks before election. A paper being presented on the times and our duties, by one of the brethren, the subject is open for discussion.)

REV. MR. GLADDEN:—

The times are all auspicious, though of course
There are no end of ravens who do croak
Of dire calamity.
And there are gentle Cowpers, who, because
Their livers are disordered, ever sing
The dying swan song. But to me 'tis plain
The bright broad day has burst upon the world,
And we must work because it is the day.
What though our land is like a seething pot,
Is it not evident the thick, black scum
Comes to the surface, and must fall at last
With hissing sound into the friendly fire?
Are we alarmed, when in the dog-day heat
The massing clouds let fly their thunder bolts?
That though they here and there should fell a man!
How many are the saved? The teething child;
The mother wasted by the summer's heat;
The toil-worn laborer fainting at his toil,—
All these drink health and vigor from the change
Wrought by the fierce irruption of the storm.
So shall it be with us.
Our gusty passions shall but clear the sky,
Beat, flail-like, out the seed germs of disease
Long lurking in the body politic,
And to the coming man such vigor give
That this old earth shall see her Eden back
Without a flaming broadsword at the door.
But we must work because the light has come.
Too long the church has gathered up her robes
And left the bleeding brother on the street,
Without a word of pity or a hand
Extended, but with dole of charity.
Now we must seek the masses and proclaim
With trumpet tongue the Golden Rule of God.
No more the poor man shunned because he's poor;
No more the rich man courted for his wealth;
Nothing but manhood, having on the stamp
Of legal tender in the social world,
Will raise the earth to heaven. We have read
About a nation in a single day
Born by God's grace. That day is ours.
And we shall see in one brief day evolved
From present chaos that pure age of gold.

REV. MR. POLICY:—

This is a glittering statement of the case
Too general for a working policy.
I, too, am hopeful. There can be but one
Sure issue to our present turbulence
And property must win. 'Tis ours to teach
Submission to authority, and bid
The rich be kindly to his brother man.
Then each should use the means within his reach
To better his condition.
The varied brotherhood with open door
Invite the worthy, and with friendly hand
O'er rough, hard places help the pilgrim feet.
Then we must use our judgment, and like men
Discriminate between a noisy throng
Half mad with hunger led by demagogues
And business men who in their calmer hours
Formulate tariff and arrange the scale
Of labor's wages,—for it cannot be
That those who have our business most at heart
Would hurt the poor or wreck the laborer's claim.
With vigor let the lawless be put down;
Give capital a fair field for its work,
Unhindered by the "walking delegate,"
And you shall see our economic tree
Bear buds and leaves and fruitage from its base
Up to its topmost bough; and order, peace
And sweet religion keep their holy guard
O'er our fair land.
And when such men as Mason condescend
To bear our standard, and with steady strength
Control the growing turbulence of men,
Then should we work to seat them and preserve
Our present blessings.

REV. MR. GRAHAM:—

Hunger, half mad and led by demagogues,
Is not less likely to be wise and just
Than selfishness in broadcloth, sitting down
To study out a larger dividend.
When o'er a full crib loweth loud the ox?
When do the wild wolves of the Pyrenees
Break from their forest covers and assail
The dreaded haunts of men? Is it not when Fell Famine cracks her stinging scourge above
The yelping pack?
Men do not leave their labor now for naught.
Men do not face the horrors of a strike
For fun.
Like brother Gladden, I believe the time
Has come for justice and the Golden Rule.
'Tis monstrous that a moiety should hold
The wealth and power of this great commonwealth;
That men should in a single lifetime grow
To multi-millionaires, while those who build
The platform for their plutocratic throne
Toil anxious through the year, with actual want
Never a three-months' distance from their door.
Talk not to me of labor markets ruled
By that stern law of need and of supply.
That law makes Hindoo women toil all day
In the hot sun for five poor paltry cents:
That law would make the free-born toiler wear
The yoke of servitude around the globe;
That law is not for human flesh and blood.
It runs against the Golden Rule of God
Like flood tide on a mountain,—all in vain—
The mountain stands, for it is built of God.
Yet do I fear
The rosy light of brother Gladden's day
May have full dark a setting.
A raven I,
Or a bad-livered Cowper, if he will;
A prophet not of good, but evil things;
A Jeremiah weeping to record
The vision of the times. Could every man
Who sells his daily toil below the skies
Have two gold dollars for an eight-hour day,
And steady work,
Does any one believe that this would heal
The deadly ulcers of our day and time?
I grant a helpful change; and we must work
In all ways helpful,—true—and yet, beside
The neater cottage of the sober man
The drunkard's home in its old want and woe
Would mock our new conditions.
Still party spirit, roused and running wild,
Would leave our cities where they are to-day,
The stormy centers of our social life.
Still watchful Rome with silent step would move
To every vantage ground and sell her vote;
When party spirit, masterless, would make
A market for it.
You cannot place the children round the board,
And by a deft turn of the open hand
Supply their wants at once.
You cannot in the school-room turn a crank
And feed them learning from a patent pail.
We do not come into this world of men
Four thousand at a time, but one by one;
And one by one the people must be saved,
Or there is no salvation. Till the heart
Becomes a habitation of the truth
And men acknowledge and obey the king
There is no safety nor a ground for hope.
A palace only rises stone by stone,
Each fitted to its place by toil and care.
Thus only grows the temple of the Lord,
And where's the proof of its increase to-day?
How grows the Reformation? Merry France,
Once one-half Huguenot, to-day lies prone
Upon the lap of ancient superstition;
Or fiercely infidel, with bomb and knife
Assails the pillars of society.
Where is Bohemia, that with vigor shook
The Roman superstition from her heart?
Where are the Belgians, that with nolsy wrath
Beat down their stony saints and worshiped God?
On these again the heavy Roman yoke
Presses with iron weight. Where's England now?
Slow settling in the ample arms of Rome.
I grant you zeal for missions, and the prize
Of many a green isle gathered to the Lord;
Of many a thousand from the heathen won
In India and in China, and where far
The huge black continent extends her wings
Of darkness; but alas for every man

Born to the Lord, another has been damned
By Christian rum, or rum that has been made
By license voted in a Christian State.
Where are our men to-day? Within the church?
No,--swarming in the lodges, finding there
A home more honored than the church of God.
Our evil tree one mammoth tap-root has,
A God-forsaken people. While that stands
The tree shall stand and every lopped-off bough
But be the pruning for the greater strength
It puts into another. Would we see
The shining morning of a brighter day?
Then must the church arouse and gird herself
For mighty things. Her very vote must stand
A cannon planted 'gainst the cursed saloon,
And all the huge black business of the still.
There must be justice, too, 'tween man and man;
A fair division of the increment,
From honest capital and honest toil.
The individual judgment, like a vine
Wild running over all the garden wall,
Must have a careful pruning, that it bear
The fruitage of the Reformation hue.
Grandly aggressive, confident of power,
Humble and leaning on the arm of God,
She must go forth to conquer, or the night
Will have her pirate flag above us all;
Unless on wings of light outshining far,
The Master comes in his own hands to take
The scepter of control.

(To be Continued.)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Curb the saloon.—Counties as banks of issue.—Foreign missionary interest.—Social purity promoted.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24, 1894.

The Anti-saloon League is working earnestly to reduce the number of drinking holes in Washington.

1. By preventing the granting of licenses to those which have during the present license year violated the law, and

2. By getting residents and property owners on squares upon which are saloons to sign protests against the renewing of their licenses.

The new Excise Board, created by act of Congress at the last session, is composed of three well-known citizens.

They have promised that they would compel every applicant for a liquor license to comply with the law. If they keep that promise there will be a material reduction in the number of saloons, as it will shut out all those who have been convicted of violating the law.

The Anti-Saloon League is composed of men and women who believe that there should be no such thing in existence as a liquor saloon, and that the only correct solution of the rum problem will be found in absolute prohibition, not only of the sale but also of the manufacture of the accursed stuff. So long as the law recognizes the saloon by licensing it they cannot prevent its existence, but they can and do lessen the evil done, by compelling the saloon-keeper to comply with the regulations imposed by law.

Quite a flutter was caused in financial circles by an official opinion given by Solicitor Reeve, of the Treasury department, to the effect that counties could issue interest-bearing bonds of small denominations, to be used as a circulating med ium, without violating the banking laws of the United States; and that such bonds would not be liable to the Federal tax of ten per cent imposed upon the currency of State banks. Considerable alarm was felt when the opinion was first made public, but since Secretary Carlisle has positively announced that bonds so used would have to pay the ten per cent tax it has passed away, as that tax is, as it was intended to be, prohibitory.

The annual session of the executive committee of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society began here to-day, under the auspices of the Baltimore branch of the society, which includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, and a portion of Delaware, and will continue one week. This evening the delegates and missionaries were given a public reception which was largely attended. Among the prominent strangers in attendance is Bishop Thoburn, of India, who will, it is expected, deliver an address before the close of the meetings. This society has eleven branches, covering the entire country, except the extreme Southern States, which are left to the Southern M. E. church.

The Y. M. C. A. has inaugurated a social purity crusade, which, while it may not make as great a stir as that now being carried on in London, may yet be productive of much good. Rev. Dr. McKim will preach three Sunday afternoon sermons on social reform. The first, on "Purity of the Body," was delivered last Sunday to a large and much interested audience. After the sermon pledge tickets of the White Cross Army were distributed for signature and return. This pledge, which may not be familiar to all your readers, reads as follows: "I promise, by the help of God, 1. To treat all women with respect and endeavor to protect them from wrong and degradation. 2. To endeavor to put down all indecent language and coarse jests. 3. To maintain the law of purity as equally binding on man and woman. 4. To endeavor to spread these principles among my companions and to help my younger brothers. 5. To use every possible means to fulfill the commandment, "Keep thyself pure." Do you know any young man, or old man, who would be injured by signing and keeping that pledge. *

GIVING UP THEIR JEWELS.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT IN THE CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE CONVENTION.

The visit of the N. C. A. Washington agent to this body and the privilege granted him of presenting our reform make us interested to know more about this great meeting. The fact that Stephen Merritt was an active participant, and Rev. Mr. Farr, Rev. A. B. Simpson, and others who are in warm sympathy with our movement, will make the following incident, told in a dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, worth remembering:

The annual convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance has closed its deliberations in the Gospel Tabernacle at Eighth avenue and Forty-fourth street. The convention began Oct. 7, delegates being present from all parts of this country and Canada. Miss Louise Shepard, a wealthy young woman of New York, who a few years ago was converted to the Alliance, was called upon Friday evening for a short address. For a few minutes Miss Shepard's remarks were of the customary character. Then she took from her pocket a small watch with a plain iron case. She said one day a few weeks before, while passing down Broadway she noticed a store where iron case watches were for sale. She had a gold watch in her pocket. She went into the store, had the works removed and replaced in an iron case. The gold she gave to the cause of the Christian Alliance.

Miss Shepard went on to tell how the famous Order of the Iron Cross was founded; how the women of Prussia, when they learned their country needed money, threw down their jewels to the government.

"Now," continued Miss Shepard, "if these good women would willingly give their jewelry to their native land, surely we ought to do as much for the love of Jesus. For gold we will give iron to you."

These words had a powerful effect upon her auditors. The Rev. Stephen Merritt, the undertaker and all-around philanthropist, sat in the front row. When Miss Shepard sat down Mr. Merritt put his hand in his pocket and handed out his gold watch. Without a word he stepped to the altar and left it there. Miss Shepard stood upon the platform as unmovable as a statue.

"Who is next?" was all she said.

Women arose in their pews and began to remove their jewelry. Then they walked forward and piled them on top of Mr. Merritt's watch. In the excitement of the moment men pulled diamonds from their fingers and watches from their pockets and rushed forward to swell the treasure pile.

Sunday at the final service, which was held in the American Theater, scenes of similar religious fervor were enacted. Money was thrown upon the altar in sums ranging from $1 to $600. One man gave a deed for a farm up the State. It was estimated that the total amount realized from the various kinds of offerings would aggregate $50,000.

At the office of the Alliance, No. 212 West Forty-second street, to-day it was said Miss Shepard had taken charge of the forty rings, thirty-two watches, and numberless pins, bracelets, and other articles. The women who contributed their jewelry will be rewarded with an iron cross. The works of the gold watches will be placed in silver cases and then returned to their owners.

REFORM NEWS.

THE NEW ENGLAND CONVENTION.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF ITS WORK.

Boston, Oct. 20, 1894.

Editor Christian Cynosure,

Dear Brother:—I will not consume space or weary your readers with details of the seven days' convention at Franklin. It is enough to say that it was not below the average of conventions held in the interest of unpopular reforms with which I have for many years been associated. So far as it appears to a comparative stranger, the lodge interest dominates that of the church in Franklin, and with the single exception of the M. E. pastor, the ministers of the place stood aloof from our meetings. It is not for me to criticize or complain of their apparent indifference, but I can but feel that they missed a grand opportunity to obtain information and a wonderful spiritual uplift for themselves and their people from the discourses of brethren Cunningham, Rees, Gunn, Foster, Briggs, Hoyt, and sisters Gleason and Earle.

Doubtless some of the good people of Franklin have gone upon long journeys at no small expense to attend conventions containing less real eloquence, piety, spirituality and practical religion and common sense than was brought to their own doors, and for which they seem to have had no heart or appreciation. Those who attended regularly expressed their satisfaction at what had been done and invited the Association to continue another week or return later for another series of meetings.

Mr. E. L. Metcalf, owner of Music Hall, is deserving of grateful recognition for his attention to our every comfort. C. W. Stewart, though closely confined to business on account of the absence of the president and the sickness of one of the clerks in the bank, was frequently at the meetings and with his estimable wife gave generous attention to the entertainment of friends from abroad, and they were heartily seconded by Bro. and Sister Greenwood and others in their labors of love. Sister Simmons presided at the organ and added much to the life, interest and spirituality of the meetings by her testimonies and fervent petitions.

The lodge, the liquor question, the tobacco habit, the higher Christian experience, Sabbath observance, the claims of home and foreign missions, were freely discussed, and I feel safe in making the assertion that every one who participated felt stronger in the Lord, and better equipped for life's real battles, at the close than at the beginning of the meetings.

Let earnest prayers be offered that God may water the seed sown and cause it to spring up in righteousness, and mature in a bountiful harvest of precious souls. James P. Stoddard.

THE UNRESTING COAST AGENT.

HE FINDS GOOD BAPTIST FRIENDS AT HAYESVILLE, OREGON.

Hayesville Baptist church is one mile from the fair grounds at Salem, Oregon. On Saturday, the 13th, I started to find the place, and landed at Bro. M. Halburt's, where I was kindly entertained. I spoke in the church on Saturday night to a very good audience. On Sunday morning the crowd was larger, and at evening the largest.

On Saturday night after an address on "The Saloon Evil and the Remedy" I advertised the Cynosure and a number of books on the lodge question. After meeting a Mason asked, "What are you selling expositions for?" I answered, "Because the whole thing is wrong."

"How can it be wrong when it's founded on the Bible?"

I answered, "Friend, come out to-morrow night and I'll show you how you are deceived." He promised that he would.

Sure enough, next night he was on hand early. He and another lodge man were prematurely discussing the lecture. I whispered to Bro. Miles to notice them. After the address was fairly under way you should have seen their countenances fall. They would have paid more to get out than in that house, I am sure.

Mr. Editor, did you ever see three men at one time get so hot under the truth as to cause nose bleeding? That thing occurred last Sunday night at Hayesville church; or, at least, three men went out holding their noses, which must have bled a long while, as they never returned Quite a number were present who kept their jewel well.

I secured two subscriptions to the Cynosure, and one to the Lodge Lamp, and received a respectable collection toward traveling expenses.

There are quite a number of real anti-secrecy people here. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Halburt, and Mr. and Mrs. Bynee, with whom I lodged. These good Baptist families know how to make a stranger feel at home. I was cordially invited to come again and speak for them when opportunity offers.

On the evening of the 16th I spoke in the M. E. church at Tangent in Linn county, on the "Prohibition Question." We had a very good congregation, and good impressions were made on the minds of the hearers. I need rest, but constantly remember, "This is not your rest."

P. B. WILLIAMS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CROPS AND INSTITUTIONS IN SOUTHWESTERN KANSAS.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The extreme drought of the last two years has left the western counties of Kansas and Nebraska almost entirely without crops. Except in the rare instances where gardens could be irrigated from wind pumps, the meager growth of buffalo grass, which has kept horses and cattle alive, has been the main reliance. There has been a very considerable emigration to the East, and somewhat to Colorado, where the facilities for irrigation are better. Central and eastern Kansas had fair crops of wheat and alfalfa, and small crops of corn. But this crop-failure has produced a general depression and pessimistic feeling, which has been relieved somewhat by moderate showers in September; and all who are able have put in full crops of wheat, which now look somewhat promising. The land having produced nothing—not even weeds—needed no preparation and was in good condition for the seed-drill.

A different system of farming will have to be adopted in all this arid region. Irrigation by wind pumps is entirely practicable for small areas. With plenty of water the country is very productive.

I recently visited Fort Dodge and Dodge City in Ford county. After a ride of sixteen miles over the prairie, where coyotes and jack-rabbits were the most numerous inhabitants, we seemed to drop down on Fort Dodge on the Arkansas River, which is here a stream of considerable breadth, with very little water and with banks quite destitute of timber. This was never properly a "fort," but some large and commodious government buildings were erected, which, when the soldiers were removed, were transferred to the State, and it has become a Soldiers' Home. A neat village has been laid out, with broad streets, and some sixty-five cottages have been built—all exactly alike—very neat and commodious. These are the homes of soldiers who have families. There is a large and commodious barrack for those who are not so fortunate.

We were kindly received by the commandant and quarter-master, and were shown through all the departments, which seemed to be well conducted. There is a good public library and reading-room and an excellent graded school, which I had the opportunity to visit and address. I also preached to a good-sized and most attentive congregation. I must not omit the generous hospitality which we received in the families of soldiers.

Five miles above is Dodge City, a well-built, handsome town, whose buildings are at present far in excess of the wants of the people. It is an important railroad point, and with the return of prosperity will be the most important place in this part of the State.

Two miles north of the city is Soule College, with two large and elegant buildings and very fine grounds. We were kindly shown through the building by Pres. Vaughn, who, in spite of the hard times, was enthusiastic as to the future. The present is the first term. The institution is under the patronage of the M. E. church, and no labor or expense has been spared to make it a success. The students itinerate in the region round about, so that the people are not without the Gospel.

H. H. HINMAN.

WHY MASONS WANT THE OFFICES.

SALEM, Oregon.

I have just had the privilege of reading Pres. Finney's wonderful book on Masonry. I find he suggested twenty-five years ago the same thing I now propose and urge, in these words: "I believe, if the truth was known—and I hope measures will be taken to make it known—that nearly all the lucrative offices in our country are in their [Masons] hands to-day."

He was made a Master Mason while at school in Connecticut; afterwards returned to New York State, joined the lodge, and soon became secretary; was attentive and retentive, and learned all by heart. Four years later he was converted and left the lodge. Several years later Morgan's book was published, which was in 1826 or 7—so his memory must reach back eighty-five or ninety years from the present time.

He says, it was the boast of the Masons at that time, that they held all the offices of the government; and as far as he knew, it was true. As secretary of the lodge he knew the Masons; as a law student he must have known the officers; so was a competent witness. As a man he was above suspicion. He says he had to say, when asked, that Morgan's book was a correct disclosure of Freemasonry as far as he knew it; "unless he was willing to lie, and to lie perpetually." His observations then, and mine now, correspond with this boast, and with the disclosure of that book. Both disclose Masonry as designed and capitally adapted to "treasons, strategems and spoils." He was well aware that no man's mere opinion, not even his own, would be accepted in a matter of such importance, and he proposed the plan by which alone he thought it possible to arouse our sleeping people—to let them know the facts in all their terrible meaning; and to that end we must know them ourselves. Had his plan been adopted then, I believe Masonry would have "gone dead again" long ago. It was the truth brought home to me by Masons own conduct in my own case that proved to me that the courts and officers were contemptuously disregarding every principle of civil or moral law.

This first opened my eyes to the great conspiracy. I thought if I could make them give me their own written confessions of those official crimes against me and against the public, the courts would correct it; or, if not, the people would correct the courts. But I was sadly disappointed. The people dared not believe it nor even hear it, and the courts were not afraid of the people, nor did they fear God. They knew that though the people supposed they had elected them, they owed their elevation to a perpetual conspiracy,—known, yet unknown—capable of placing incompetent men and boys, and unworthy men, in the most honorable, profitable and responsible positions, and maintaining them there provided they would be sufficiently knavish and share with their fellows. Strict fidelity to official oaths would not be tolerated in a Masonic officer, be he governor, judge or legislator. Much that we have been calling political intrigue and corruption is only Masonic brotherly love, giving secretly to the brotherhood all the best positions in our country "without conscious material injury to themselves or their families" in accordance with their obligations, and protecting them in making the most of their position.

I have been long begging the privilege of proving it to be the case in our capital and our State and now beg of you to prove it true, as I believe in my heart it is, throughout our country: and then speak it out with no uncertain sound. What is the ballot to men who are only permitted to vote for our masters? They present us two or more tickets, both filled with Masonic and Odd-fellow names, and they care little for which we vote. We sell ourselves and our country in either case, and they may well laugh at our stupidity, for they have told us of it often enough. I have been told, and do not doubt it, that my exposures of the successful knaveries of Masonic and O. F. officials, and of the protection extended to them by their brethren; and the further fact that there is no other road to office, have caused several valuable accessions to both orders.

WM. ADAMS.

LITERATURE.

THE CHRISTIAN SANCTIFIED BY THE LORD'S PRAYER. By the author of "The Hidden Life of the Soul." Translated from the French. Pages 118. Price, 25 cents postpaid. Thomas Whittaker, Bible House, New York.

This is a very beautiful devotional commentary of the Lord's Prayer, written a hundred years ago by that godly Frenchman, Pere Grou. It contains eleven chapters of instructions, remarkable for their directness, thoroughness and simplicity. Indeed, the author appears to have been one of those rare spirits to whom it is given to discover in solitude and prayer things hidden from others. All who love the Lord's Prayer will welcome this remarkable exposition of its several petitions and will find it an aid to a higher and holier life. The cheapness of the little book ought to insure for it a wide circulation.

Scribner's Magazine for November opens with a timely sketch of "Election Night in a Newspaper Office." The time and place are practically the climax of our great American political fevers. This is a vivid description, with spirited and truthful illustrations. "English Railroad Methods" is a continuation of the interesting discussion of the railway system of England, and the points in which it is superior to the American. This number takes account of the quantity of service provided, its cost and financial returns. It is finely illustrated, as was the former paper. As an instance of the occasional superiority of the print over the photograph we look with admiration on the portrait of the painter Deschamps accompanying the sketch of one of his works. "The Horse," from the splendid Arabian to the plowman's plug, is a fine and appreciative article by N. S. Shaler, finely illustrated. Among other articles are "True Pictures Among the Poor," "The American Girls' Art Club in Paris," and "The King of Currumpaw," a wolf story of northern New Mexico, splendidly illustrated and so thrillingly told that were it not for the testimony of reproduced photographs it would be declared fiction instead of fact. The Magazine promises a series of historical papers in 1895 of great value in "The History of the Last Quarter Century in the United States," by President Andrews of Brown University.

Our Day, as a record and review of reform, gives, in its current number, some valuable contributions. Anthony Comstock, the untiring enemy of corrupting literature, contributes a strong defense of his effort against the last move of his vile enemy. Under the guise of "Classic" literature, the harpies have republished from the Latin some of the most corrupting stuff, which scholars have left buried in deserved oblivion. A judge rotten enough to decide in favor of the publishers of this filth has been found, and the Society for the Suppression of Vice had an adverse decision from him. Lord Salisbury's address before the British Association of Scientists on "Unsolved Problems of Recent Science" is also preserved for American readers. It is a notabls contribution to scientific discussion. Mr. Cook's Boston Lecture is on the "Peerlessness of Christian Missions" and the prelude on Mr. Stead's "Civic Church." The extravagant theories of the English editor are calmly reviewed. Prof. Knox writes on the Parliament of Religions, but his contribution, though able and calmly critical, lacks the force of pronounced conviction.

The November Century will contain the opening installment of the new Life of Napoleon, by Professor Sloane. Among the many illustrations is a new portrait of Napoleon, the reproduction of a crayon sketch made by a comrade in 1785, the original of which was found after a long search, undertaken by the Century, in a collection of drawings at the Louvre, not exhibited. Charles Dudley Warner has written an interesting sketch of Professor Sloane which will appear in this number. Taine said of Professor Sloane some years ago that "he knew France better than any other foreigner he has ever met." He is the son of Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, the late eminent instructor of the Reformed Presbyterian church and fearless reform lecturer.

The American Lutheran Publication Board of this city have issued two more valuable tracts by William Dallmann, editor of the Lutheran Witness, Baltimore. No. 13, entitled "Secret Societies," is forty-three pages of solid testimony against the lodge from eminent preachers, educators and statesmen. Most of these have formerly appeared in the Cynosure, but are here presented in a convenient tract form. No. 15 is on Freemasonry, and treats of the boasted age of that order, its despotic and oath-bound character, its religion and antagonism to Christianity, its unholy use of the Bible, etc. These tracts are furnished for 5 cents each, or $2.50 per 100. They merit a wide circulation.

Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould, the author of the popular hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," is at once country parson, a country squire, a lord of the manor, a sermon writer, a student of comparative religion, a popular novelist, and a poet. He has written fifty books, is deeply versed in mediæval myths and legends, and at the same time is in sympathy with modern life and progress. He is 60 years old, and lives in the beautiful old Elizabethian manor house at Lew Frenchard, where the Gould family have lived ever since the days of James I.

FACT AND FANCY.

A small boy surprised his teacher at one of the grammar schools by asking how far a procession of the Presidents of the United States would reach if they were placed in a row. On her expressing her ignorance, he calmly announced: "From Washington to Cleveland."

Bishop G. A. Smith, of the Mormon church, is reported as saying that the center of the Mormon church would be in Mexico, and that a powerful hierarchy, greater than Salt Lake City, would be established. He is also credited with the statement that the church is growing in numbers and influence.

The total number of newspapers published in the world at present is estimated at about 50,000. United States and Canada, 20,934; Germany, 6,000; Great Britain, 8,000; France, 4,300; Japan, 2,000; Italy, 1,500; Austria-Hungary, 1,200; Asia, exclusive of Japan, 1,000; Spain, 850; Russia, 800; Australia, 800; Greece, 600; Switzerland, 450; Holland, 300; Belgium, 300; all others, 1,000. Of these more than half are printed in the English language.

A practical failure is recorded by the Nineteenth Century of the work of the English labor commission appointed three years ago "to investigate the relation between employers and employed." During that time sixty-seven blue-books have been issued and nearly fifty thousand pounds expended. Useful facts in regard to wages, sanitation, statistics, etc., are one result, but the commission has nothing to suggest for the amelioration of the labor problems which were its raison d'etre.

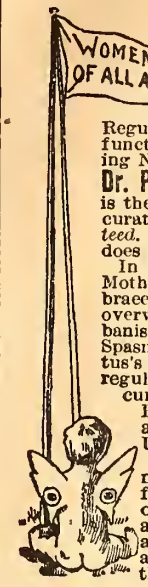
Mrs. Margaret Plotzer, of Indiana, Pa., who has lately celebrated her ninety-third birthday, prized most of all the gifts presented to her on that day by her 170 descendants a safety bicycle. She is a very capable wheelwoman, and has issued the following challenge: "I, Margaret Plotzer, being in sound health, memory and understanding, hereby challenge any woman of my age to ride for a prize Bible, the losing one to present the book to the winner." We should like to know if that challenge has been accepted.

The relatives of Mrs. Eliza Carson of Chicago applied to Judge C. C Kohlsaat asking that the court restrain her from making any more voyages across the Atlantic. She has a strange mania for sea travel, and has made more than fifty trips to Europe in ten years, spending in this way some $80,000. She is extremely feeble, and carries with her a large sum of money. Judge Kohlsaat decided that the court had no jurisdiction in the matter, and Mrs. Carson left at once for New York to sail for Liverpool. It will be her fourteenth voyage this year.



The postoffice department has changed the name of the postoffice at Old Appomattox Court House to "Surrender." The court house of Appomattox county has recently been removed from the old site to Nebraska, a new location immediately on the Norfolk and Western railroad. The old and new court houses were constant sources of confusion to the post-office officials, hence the change of the name of the historic and memoriable site of the spot on which the Confederate army closed its career. Governor O'Ferrall and other prominent ex Confederates of Virginia do not like the idea of the new name of "Surrender." They seem to think that some other equally appropriate and less suggestive name for the old court house might have been chosen.

Poor, Tired Mothers.

I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring medicine and I think it has no equal for poor, tired mothers. I also gave it to my daughter for rheumatism with good results. Mrs. Oliver Rupert, Westville, Ohio.

To make the hair grow a natural color, prevent baldness, and keep the scalp healthy, Hall's Hair Renewer was invented, and has proved itself successful.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

And conditions in life, are liable at times, to need an Invigorating Tonic; a Regulator of the natural, periodical function, and a Soothing and Bracing Nervine. For this purpose is the only medicine so certain in its curative action that it can be guaranteed. Your money is returned if it does not cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

In Maidenhood, Womanhood, and Motherhood, it invigorates and braces up the exhausted, run-down, overworked and delicate; allays and banishes all Nervous Weakness, Fits, Spasms, Hysteria, Chorea, or St. Vitus's Dance; corrects all unnatural irregularities of monthly function and cures Periodical Pains, Weaknesses, Bearing Down Sensations, Backache, Catarrhal Inflammation, Ulceration and kindred maladies.

For those about to become mothers, it is a priceless boon, for it lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens "labor" and the period of confinement, and promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

BIBLES at 1-3 Price for 30 days only. Best and Cheapest Family and Oxford Bibles in the world. Write for circulars at once. NATIONAL BIBLE HOUSE, Syracuse, N. Y.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50.

(Postage extra)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

New England Department.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

Eastern Department.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

Northern Department.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

Pacific Department.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

College Agent, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

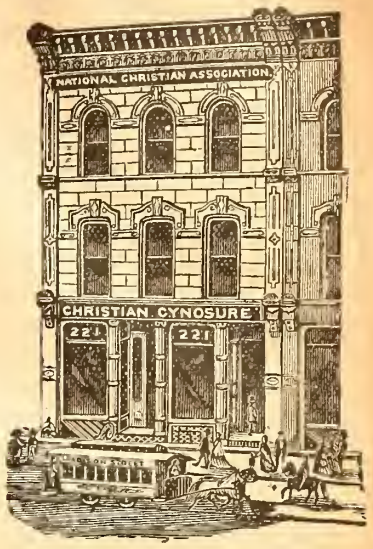
Other Lecturers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.



Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. Or the Power of the Secret Empire. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison Street, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

President—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

Vice President—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

Gen'l Sec'y and Treasurer—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Cor. Secretary.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

Rec. Secretary—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

Directors—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

New England.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

Connecticut.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

Illinois.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

Iowa.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

Kansas.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

Nebraska.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Wilden Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

Maine.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

Massachusetts.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

Michigan.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

Minnesota.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul; Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

Missouri.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

New Hampshire.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

New York.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

Ohio.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

Oregon.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

Pennsylvania.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

Wisconsin.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1894.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

In the Reformed Presbyterian church (Rev. W. J. Smiley, pastor), Sparta, Ill., Nov. 15 and 16, 1894, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, president.

PROGRAM.

Evening session, Thursday, Nov. 15. Opening exercises and election of officers. Opening address by the president. "Minor Secret Orders," Rev. C. M. Ritchie. "Secret Political Societies—Their Influence," Rev. J. S. T. Milligan.

Friday, 9;30 A. M. Devotional exercises. "How do we Know that the Secrets of Freemasonry are Exposed," Rev. D. S. Faris. General discussion led by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, on "How can the N. C. A. be made more efficient in accomplishing the work for which it was organized."

1:30 P. M. Address, "The Lodge a Barrier to Temperance and Christian Work," Wm. Little. General discussion—"Labor and Secret Organizations"—led by Pres. Charles A. Blanchard. Report of committee on resolutions.

7:30 P. M. Praise service. Address by Pres. Charles A. Blanchard—subject, "The present duty of the church respecting lodges."

NOTICE.—Preceding the Illinois State Convention at Sparta, President Blanchard of Wheaton College will lecture Saturday, Nov. 10, at Marrissa, subject: "Prohibition and the Lodge."

Nov. 11 at Gordon's Grove, subject; "The Sabbath."

Monday, Nov. 12, at Baldwin, on "The Lodge Question."

Tuesday, Nov. 13, at Coulterville, on "Secret Societies."

Wednesday, Nov. 14, at Oakdale, on "National Reform."

IOWA.

The Anti-secret Christian Association of the State of Iowa will hold its annual meeting at Birmingham, Nov. 13 and 14. Efforts are being made to secure a full program and well-qualified speakers. Rev. J. A. Monteith, pastor of First United Presbyterian church, Cedar Rapids, will speak on the "Relation of the Lodge to the Christian Church." Rev. W. L. Ferris, pastor of Congregational church, Cherokee, will be another of the speakers. Rev. J. B. Jackson, pastor of United Presbyterian church, Morning Sun, will attend, if possible. His topic will be: "Antagonism of Secretism to Social Order." Rev. E. B. Wylie of Chicago will speak on "One Salvation," and Rev. S. H. Swarts of Morris, Ill., is also expected. A full program may be expected in next issue.

J. A. GREER, Pres. T. H. ACHESON, Sec.

IN THIS NUMBER we call attention to the argument of Rev. A. J. Chittenden on the "Adjournment" question. Bro. Chittenden was for several terms a member of the N. C. A. Board, and always combatted sectarianism with hard arguments as in the present case. There is yet more to be said on this question.——We speak of Mrs. Kellogg's excellent review in another column.——Secretary Stoddard's address is an original presentation of one feature of lodge operation. Other addresses from the Franklin meeting will appear hereafter.

PERSONAL NOTICE.—"The heart knoweth his own bitterness, and a stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy;" yet I feel it due to the readers of the Cynosure, whose sympathies have been so freely extended to me in my time of trouble that they seem not as strangers but loving friends, to say that through a providential opening which I feel to be directly from the Lord, I have been able to place my dear father where he can have the professional care and attention which would be impossible at home. In order to be near him I have changed my residence temporarily to 218 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass. All communications may be sent to the above address until further notice. E. E. FLAGG.

Can't you get us a few subscribers for the Cynosure in your town?

THE CONGREGATIONAL COMMITTEE OF INQUIRY.

At the last National Council of the Congregational churches, held two years ago in Minneapolis, a standing committee of five was appointed to consider and report on secret societies and organizations of like nature, although there are no other which with equal fatality influence the churches of Christ. This committee was A. L. Williston, Northampton, Mass., Rev. Dr. E. P. Goodwin, of Chicago, Pres. C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, Rev. Dr. Edward Hawes, of Burlington, Vt., and Rev. Dr. Smith Baker, of St. Paul.

This committee will of course pursue its investigations in its own way. But it has been suggested, and the Cynosure wishes to endorse the suggestion unanimously, that one thing which should be done by that committee, is to collect from all the district and State associations of the churches of that order a record of every action or resolution taken respecting the secret orders. This information would of itself be a valuable report, and to collect it is a work for which the National Council committee is better adapted than any other body.

There is one such action which is of interest to all friends of the National Christian Association. The General Association of Illinois met at Oak Park in May, and it being the fiftieth anniversary of the body, exercises of an interesting and commemorative nature were given large place. Among the rest was a memorial from the College Church of Christ, Wheaton, asking that the former action of the body condemning secret societies be re-affirmed. The memorial read:

WHEREAS, The State Congregational Association of Illinois has, from time to time, in the past declared its conviction that secret societies are hostile to good government and the Christian religion; and

WHEREAS, We see these lodges increasing in numbers and power, dividing men politically into opposing cliques and factions, and substituting for Christian fellowship and the atonement the partial morality and benevolence of the lodge; therefore we, members of the College Church of Christ in Wheaton, respectfully request the State Association to-reaffirm former action on this subject, and to take such other measures regarding it as may be deemed best.

In spite of an effort to table the request the Association voted almost unanimously to reaffirm the resolutions against the lodge of former years. Later on some who were displeased with the vote attempted to render it nugatory by explaining it away. But the sentiment of the body was true and the resolution was modified to read thus:

Resolved, That in the action taken by this Association regarding secret societies, whereby said societies were indiscriminately condemned as "enemies of the Church of Christ," there was no intention to include the Grand Army of the Republic, or other societies which acknowledge in their ritual the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

We are tempted to analyze this resolution, since the respected brethren who adopted it do not seem to understand clearly the system they have for so many years condemned. Their case demands a work like that of the National Christian Association, which shall investigate carefully, and clearly and earnestly declare the real nature of the lodge system and its dangerous influence upon Christianity.

1. The words "indiscriminately condemned," etc., seem to be purely imaginary. The memorial was not adopted, but the vote was to re-affirm former action simply, without any modifying phrases. Possibly the mover was in the moral condition of the slaveholders in Congress, when old John Quincy Adams asked whether it would be proper for him to introduce a petition said to be from slaves. They fought the old hero two days, and found at last when he had routed them that the memorial was directed against Mr. Adams himself!

2. If there are any secret societies which have a ritual like that suggested we should like to see it. There are none. The secret orders mention the deity with reference to some being of their own imagination—a supreme ruler, or a grand architect, or a god, in the most indefinite way. If they mention the name of Christ, it is forced. They have no need of the Holy Spirit, for their systems of religion are of works only. For salvation from sin, here or hereafter, they look not to Him who alone was lifted up that he might be the Saviour of the race. The church of Jesus Christ only recognizes the true and living God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost. The church alone maintains and defends the worship of the true God. The altars of the lodge are like those set up at Bethel and Dan. It is the duty of the church to prophesy against them and turn the heart of the people from them until a Josiah shall come to complete the work of overthrow.

WHO IS THIS KING OF GLORY?

An esteemed Boston pastor, whose name has not appeared in these columns, rebukes our criticism of Professor Swing's theological teachings which appeared two weeks since.

Dr. Barrows had said of the dead preacher: "He was,.....I truly believe, loyal to Jesus. I think he held to the divinity of Christ, although he would not probably have gone the length of the Nicene creed that declares Christ to be very God." The comment of the Cynosure was: "If the Lord Jesus Christ was not 'very God' he was the greatest of impostors, and a 'loyalty' that refuses this claim is really like the loyalty of Judas."

Our Boston brother says of the words last quoted: "This is a most amazing statement. Jesus claimed to be one with the Father in sense which might be true of the oneness of believers, but he never claimed to be 'very God,' and such a claim in his behalf is unwarranted. To go beyond the claim, however, and say that unless this be true he was 'the greatest of impostors' is outrageous."

We are thankful for this sharp criticism. The Cynosure, above all other journals, can ill afford to be wrong on so vital a question. If Jesus Christ was not God we can no longer rebuke the lodges for ignoring him, or putting him aside with the Buddha, Allah, Osiris, Tammuz and the false gods of all the earth, in favor of their more comprehensive title of "supreme being." It is of infinite moment whether it is enough that we worship a fiction of our own imagination or not. It is of the utmost consequence to know whether there is one "true and living God," or two, or more; and whether this true and living God was once "manifest in the flesh." 1 Tim. 3: 16.

"What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ?" we ask with Pilate. Was he "very God?" The Scriptures say he was. In Is. 9: 6 he is "the Mighty God." In 44: 6: "Thus saith the Lord, the king of Israel, and his Redeemer, the Lord of hosts: I am the first and I am the last and beside me there is no God." John 1: 1: "The Word was God." Matt. 1: 23: "They shall call his name Emmanuel.....God with us." Thomas said (John 20: 28): "My Lord and my God." Rom. 9: 5: "Christ came, who is over all, God blessed forever." Jude 25: "To the only wise God, our Saviour."

There are scores of such passages. They say and they mean that Christ was God; not that he had something of divinity in him. Philosophers claim that there is something of divinity in man; that like a spark of ethereal fire this divinity is never wholly extinguished, groveling and debased as man may become. Our Boston friend says he "cordially accepts the divinity of Christ." We do not know or care what subtle definition theologians may contrive. The Word is plain. The unlearned and the little child can trust it; and what it says of Christ would be blasphemy applied to man. Such is the blasphemy of impostors like Teed and Schweinfurth. Christ's divinity was not the mere imparted nature of a Christian man.

Therefore we claim that the lodge by setting up altars, devising worship which ignores the Lord Jesus Christ, provides for millions of the young men of America a pagan worship which is a devil worship. 1 Cor. 10: 20. An influential denominational paper of this city well said: "The neediest heathenism in the world is the young men of America."

The second point is, whether Christ accepted these Scriptures and confirmed them by words of his own? If he did not there is no imposture in his teaching respecting this point. But we find him more than fifty times calling himself the Son of God. We find the Jews about to kill him because they understood him to claim equality with God. John 5: 17; and 10: 33: "Thou makest thyself God." John 10: 38: "That ye may know and believe that the Father is in me and I in him." To Philip he said: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" (John 14: 9:); to the Jews: "Before Abraham was, I am." John 8: 58. He was the brightness of the Father's glory and the express image of his person. Heb. 1: 13.

These passages leave little place for any argument. Christ's whole life was a claim to divinity and to the Godhead. But if he was not God, he was untrue, and an impostor; and the stronger the claim, and the more the miracles to substantiate it, and the more the people to believe it, the greater the imposition. Why then is it outrageous to say he was the greatest of impostors if he was not God?

We did not say, because we do not believe, that Prof. Swing was like Judas. But Judas had a certain loyalty to his Lord; to his person, to his doctrine, to his future kingdom. It came short, however, of the faith of Nathaniel, of Thomas, of Philip, of Peter, of the Samaritan woman. The loyalty ascribed by Dr. Barrows to Prof. Swing comes short, as we understand language, of full acceptance of Christ, of such faith as compelled Thomas to cry out: "My Lord and my God." Prof. Swing may have believed in Christ as a personal Saviour. His case rests with a righteous judge; but he surely taught men such a fiction that they must put aside the Word of God if they trust in it.

—The Free Methodist General Conference last week elected Rev. W. T. Hogg, president of Greenville College, and one of the general superintendents of the church, to be editor of the Free Methodist. The location of a publishing-house was considered at much length, several advantageous offers having been made from Chicago and other places. Rev. W. G. Hammer was elected by the Conference as general evangelist. It is a pleasure to note the election of President Hogg to the important work of editor. His literary and other qualifications give him superior preparation for such a work.

—The American Missionary Association, of which Dr. J. E. Roy, our N. C. A. president, is Western secretary, held a great meeting in Lowell, Mass., last week. Eighteen have been added to its list; and the Association maintains 116 schools, 14,222 pupils, 646 missionaries, with 10,237 members in 188 churches. Its receipts from all sources were $340,469. On the last evening, Frederick Douglass, in an address, said that the apparent reaction against the Negroes by the whites of the South was the inevitable result of the Negro's progress, and is not against him as a Negro but because he has emerged out of the position of slave or servant and has become a gentleman and a fellow-citizen.

—Prof. Drummond's last work, "The Ascent of Man," is regarded by many superficial readers as one of the great books of the day, but many think quite otherwise. An esteemed and careful contributor has by request written out for our readers a review first given before an association of ladies in Denver, leaders in the literary and social circles of that city. This review was heard with deep interest and general approval, and its reproduction in the Cynosure will be equally honored by our readers. A severe criticism of Prof. Drummond appears in The Fortnightly by Mrs. Linton and is quoted by the Literary Digest. Mrs. Linton closes: "Whatever is true is borrowed; whatever is false, strained and inconclusive is his own. His sin is the sin of plagiarism, with the additional offense of distortion in the lifting."

PERSONAL NOTES.

—The Temperance Wave, a local Prohibition paper in Missouri, gives the latest from our old and irrepressible friend, George W. Needels: "I'm called Old Prohibition Fool, and why, indeed, forsooth? Because I will not vote for rum to ruin hopeful youth; I will not vote for rags and debt, for woe and want, for tears and sighs, to license crime and shame; I will not talk and preach, and pray, then go and vote some other way."

—W. W. Wait, formerly a member of the N. C. A. Board, and a steady contributor to the reform his father, Rev. A. Wait of honored memory, loved so well, is the Prohibition candidate for treasurer of Cook county. Bro. Wait is a leading member of the Second Baptist church of this city, an honest, capable and successful business man, who would prove an excellent servant of the public in the office for which he is nominated. Let every one who reads the Cynosure work for his election.

—The death of Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, corresponding secretary of the National W. C. T. U., in this city last week, leaves a great gap in the ranks of that noble society. She was always a leader. When a child of 6 her precocity gained a commendation from Horace Mann, who patted her on the head with the cheerful prophecy, "If you persevere you will become a noted woman." Her work in the W. C. T. U. will never be measured. She was always heard with the respect which candor, wisdom, piety and personal worth ever inspire, whether in great conventions or in social gatherings, like the late silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cook. Mrs. Woodbridge had been preparing for the National Convention at Cleveland next month with immense labor. Nature gave way in a paralytic attack, and in two days she quietly sank into the Christian's last sleep.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

The mushroom fad.—Charles Dudley Warner on the higher education.—Yankee economy —Republican chances. —Food, condiment and headache.

There are fads in gastronomy as in everything else. At present it is the fashion to know all about mushrooms both from a scientific and culinary point of view. But it is a dangerous fad for those whose knowledge is limited by what they have gained from books, instead of being a kind of intuitive knowledge handed down, as in the case of the peasantry of Europe, from generation to generation; and the dread possibility that when one has gathered and cooked the dainty dish there may be "death in the pot," leads most people to follow the sage advice of Marion Harland in her popular Cook-book: "Have nothing to do with them until you are an excellent judge between the true and the false." Good mushrooms, according to this distinguished authority, "are most plenty in August and September, and spring up in the open, sunny fields or commons, after low-lying fogs, or soaking dews." The unedible fungi, however, are by far the most curious and fascinating objects of study. There is a kind which springs up in the neighborhood of old, deserted houses that is absolutely uncanny, a kind of weird, ghostly vegetation whose very appearance is sufficient warning to the novice that to partake thereof would make him or her a ghost in good earnest.

Charles Dudley Warner remarks in the October Harper that "the higher education is all very well, but a girl ought to know something." And a boy too, he might have added. One who has seen much of college graduates of either sex can scarcely help feeling that there is justice in the irony. It is now the fashion to send girls to college, and the result naturally follows that many enter with no particular idea of what they are being educated for, and really injured for the practical affairs of life. This is at the foundation of Mr. Warner's complaint against the higher education. Perhaps the tendency of American university towns to keep out all business and discourage the working people from settling under the shadow of these classic halls helps to keep the pupils in a state of ignorance which is not always "bliss." An English writer says, "Even the English Cambridge has a breathing spell or two, and a weekly market day; the New England Cambridge is one great academic grove buried in a philosophic calm." The same might be said with far greater force of Wellesley. It is a college town—an educational center; "only this and nothing more." Its one business interest, shoe manufacturing, disappeared years ago, and left it a very sleepy hollow, whose quiet has never been disturbed even by the omnipresent electric cars. In place thereof big, clumsy stages, such as were in use fifty years ago, rumble along the shady roads, and students and townspeople alike have to content themselves with this antiquated mode of conveyance. To come back to Mr. Warner's rather sarcastic observation, I think the colleges of the future will aim to teach the students, both men and women, to "know something;" to develop the special gift which is in them, instead of wasting their time in trying to go the whole round of the sciences, most of which will have no bearing on their life-work.

Mr. Swan, master of the Winthrop school, and the oldest teacher in Boston, states that fifty years ago it was an established custom for the principal to proclaim a suspension of all lessons when the thermometer reached ninety degrees, and prepare a pailful of the old-fashioned beverage, "molasses and water," with which to treat the pupils and keep up their flagging energies. Naturally enough the boys—there was actually no high school for girls in Boston till 1852—never objected to a high temperature. In the Boston University there is at present a small sex war waging on the cap and gown question. The men seniors do not want to adopt these scholastic habiliments; the female students do; hence the difficulty. Genuine scholarship like genuine religion makes very little of outward insignia; and perhaps when women collegians become more accustomed to the new condition of things, they will not be so anxious to don the outward badges of learning.

The Republican State platform is excellent—if it means what it says. But having lost the confidence of honest men by promising and never performing, it must do something more than string together fine sounding words which the leaders are very careful shall never bear fruit indeed. Lost opportunities are credited with never returning. This is not quite true of parties even if it is of individuals. Providence evidently intends to give the Republicans one more chance. If they let it slip by—and there is no reason to suppose they will do anything else—it seems as if even Providence must finally give up their case in disgust, and allow them to go where they belong, among the dead parties and defunct governments that instead of helping humanity in its onward struggle have only stood in its way to hinder and obstruct.

The World's Food Exhibit in Mechanics building draws thither daily an army of people who get free lunches, and perhaps something else beside in the shape of headaches and indigestion, as samples are given away of almost everything under the sun, fit or unfit to take into the human stomach, and curiosity "to see how it tastes" is as strong in the race to-day as when our first parents experimented with the apple. Breakfast foods are the most popular next to buckwheat, fifty-five gallons of cream and 470 pounds of sugar being daily consumed. American housekeepers who visit the kitchen department and hear the lectures of Mrs. Lincoln are likely to get some new wrinkles. For instance, that string-beans are much nicer cut across the grain and "on a bias," and slightly flavored with nutmeg. This (the nutmeg, I mean) is a German idea, which it will take some time to naturalize even in Boston.

A stranger among the Berkshire hills who views the Housatonic on a Sunday, and especially during the recent drouth, sees only a broad, muddy ditch whose smooth flowing Indian name is the only poetic charm about it. The secret of the matter is that the manufacturers of Berkshire county are both economical and Sabbath-keeping. On Saturday afternoons they shut off the water, turning it on again Sunday night. By this means the mill-ponds at the head of the stream get filled over Sunday, and the water thus obtained carries their establishments through the week. The thrifty inhabitants of Dutchland could not beat this, but if we had an American John Ruskin how such an "awful example" of economy would vex his æsthetic soul.

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

On the last evening of October, known as Hallow E'en, in East Liverpool, O., the United Presbyterian church and a secret society will celebrate this relic of Scotch Roman Catholic superstition: the one will celebrate in the church, the other in the lodge. The U. P. church, that professes bitter hostility to Rome and secretism, contemporaneously and sympathetically with secretism, honors Catholic saints' festivals! Secretism, opposed by both the U. P. and R. C. churches, at the same time and in the same spirit with U. P.-ism, does homage to the holy days of the R. C. church!—Times of Restitution.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

THE HOME.

STILL WITH THEE.

Still, still with Thee, when purple morning breaketh,
When the bird waketh, and the shadows flee;
Fairer than morning, lovlier than the daylight,
Dawns the sweet consciousness, I am with Thee.

Alone with Thee, amid the mystic shadows,
The solemn hush of nature newly born;
Alone with Thee in breathless adoration,
In the calm dew and freshness of the morn.

When sinks the soul, subdued by toil, to slumber,
Its closing eye looks up to Thee in prayer;
Sweet the repose beneath Thy wings o'ershadowing,
But sweeter still to wake and find Thee there.

So shall it be at last, in that bright morning,
When the soul waketh and life's shadows flee;
Oh, in that hour, fairer than daylight dawning,
Shall rise the glorious thought, I am with Thee.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

HIS TITHE.

They had a new minister at Seabrook. Old Pastor Thornleigh, who had kept the flock for forty years, had gone to his long home; and in his stead had come an honest, plain-spoken young divine, with an earnest, fearless eloquence of his own. And now the worn doorstone of the little gray church on the hill was once more trodden by feet which had long been strangers to it. The minister boarded, having no family, at Deacon Larrabee's.

"He's the least bit uncertain on some points," said the deacon, leaning on his hoe handle and talking across the fence to his neighbor Gray, who leaned on his hoe handle to listen. "A bit uncertain. But I like him—I do, no mistake; and I believe the Lord's going to bless us through him."

"Amen!" was neighbor Gray's hearty response.

They hoed a dozen hills in silence, their hoes keeping time to the merry song of a bird in the orchard. Then Mr. Gray paused to wipe the perspiration from his face.

"This hot weather's liable to make sickness," said he. "I suppose you've heard that one of the Widow Sperry's boys is down with a fever?"

"Sho!" now you don't say so!" exclaimed the deacon, commiseratingly. "Make it hard for her, won't it?"

"Yes, particularly when she's so lately lost her cow. I've been saying that we'd all ought to take hold and make it up to her. If I'd more than one cow on my place, I wouldn't stand to talk long, I tell you; but I lost my two best ones last spring. If I hadn't—"

It might have been unintentional, that sudden facing about as Mr. Gray threw his glance toward the hill pasture where his neighbor's cows were quietly feeding. At all events, the deacon could scarcely help noticing the action. And he understood its purport. An uneasy flush mounted to his face as he struck vigorously into the next hill.

"She ought to have kept her cow out of the road. My cattle never get into the mill-pond and drown. If they should, I would not expect anybody to make 'em up to me. She'd no more call, had the widow, to let her cow run, than I'd have to turn my whole drove out."

"It's a pretty hard case, nevertheless," said Mr. Gray.

And then the fragmentary conversation, tossed piecemeal back and forth across the fence as the neighbors went steadily on with their work, drifted into indifferent channels.

There had been an interested listener to the colloquy narrated above. On the shady side of the wall which separated Deacon Larrabee's orchard and cornfield, sat, book in hand, Rev. Mr. Weston. He arose as the chat which floated to his hearing began to be of crops and haying, and walked slowly along the orchard path, with a thoughtful smile upon his face.

That night, when the deacon took the shining milk-pails from the dresser, and proceeded to the farm-yard, the young clergyman followed him. He stood leaning against the bars, watching the yellow stars come out in the sky, and looking abroad over the deacon's possessions, shadowy now, but substantial enough by daylight.

"You are a very prosperous man, deacon."

A smile of satisfaction overspread the deacon's countenance as he stood for a moment patting the sleek neck of a favorite cow.

"Well, yes," said he; "but I've made myself. A pig and a pitchfork, sir, was all I had to begin with."

"How does your neighbor Gray get along?"

"Gray? Well, truth to tell, he'll never be forehanded if he lives to the age of Methuselah. He's a hard working man enough, but why it is I can't tell you, there's never a poor creature that comes into our town that doesn't head direct for John Gray's. Must be instinct teaches 'em, for he gives to 'em all, deserving or not. I believe he'd take the coat off his back if 'twas needed. He's a good neighbor—a good neighbor; but he'll never get anything, to speak of, ahead."

" 'But lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal,' " quoted the minister.

"Yes, yes; but, if I mind me right, the good Book says something too about providing for one's own household—eh?"

Mr. Weston smiled.

"I believe there is a passage to that effect," said he.

"And," went on the deacon, a little triumphantly, "if neighbor Gray would give a certain portion"—

"A tithe," interpolated the minister.

"And not go beyond that," continued the deacon, "he'd be better off in one respect, and no worse off in the other, to my thinking. I don't believe in—in discriminate giving."

"Nor do I," was the quiet answer. Then there was silence while the deacon filled another pail with snowy foam.

"How many cows have you, deacon?"

"Ten," answered the deacon, with a pardonable pride showing itself in voice and features; "and it's the finest herd in our country. They're grade Jerseys."

"Yes," returned Mr. Weston, a little absently. Then, after a slight pause:

"Deacon Larrabee, I overheard the conversation between you and your neighbor Gray this morning relating to Mrs. Sperry and her misfortunes. Poor lady! She does need substantial sympathy. Can you not afford to lend a tithe of your cows to the Lord?"

"Which means that I give one of them to the widow," uttered the deacon with a wry face. "No, sir, I'm afraid I can't. She wanted to buy one the other day, but I told her I'd none to spare. It was all owing to carelessness she lost her cow, and I don't believe in upholding improvidence. Get to going on that way, and we'd all be on the town before we knew it."

Mr. Weston wore a thoughtful countenance, yet a gleam of something like amusement lighted up his eyes.

"Will you sell me one of your cows?" he asked.

"I have no need of money now," replied the deacon hesitatingly.

The minister continued:

"I heard you say this morning that you would be glad to give a good man extra wages to help you through with your haying, but that you were afraid it would be difficult to procure the needful assistance at any price. Will you take me and let me pay for the cow in that way?"

A twinkle, both genial and quizzical, dawned in the deacon's gray eyes. For a moment he studied the young minister attentively. He was not at all what his neighbors would have denominated free handed, yet he had a just appreciation of the quality of beneficence in other people. Neither was he a hard man at heart. It was only the prosperity which had attended his every undertaking caused him to look upon the lack of it in a neighbor's affairs as an entirely unnecessary evil—one which prudence and forethought might overcome. Now, he shook his petitioner's hand heartily.

"It's a bargain," said he. When will you take the cow off my hands?"

"To-night, if you will lend me your assistance," was the ready response.

"Better take one of those I haven't milked," said the deacon with a smile, "and save me that trouble."

Accordingly, a little time later, the minister, accompanied by the deacon, led his recent acquisition down the farmhouse lane, and away along the thoroughfare of the sleepy little hamlet to the tiny cottage where dwelt Mrs. Sperry and her brood. There they fastened the animal to a convenient post, rapped softly, and departed, with a peaceful consciousness which attends upon a worthy deed resting upon one of them, at least, as a mantle.

Next morning, when the deacon, hoe on shoulder, was leaving his door-yard for his cornfield, he encountered Mrs. Sperry. Her eyes were red, as with long watching or weeping, and her thin lips trembled with the emotion which she vainly endeavored to conceal.

She put out both hands to him.

"Deacon Larrabee," she said, "I have come to thank you, and to ask your forgiveness. Oh, I had such hard thoughts of you—how cruelly hard only God knows—and my own heart. Why, I almost came to pray that some dreadful misfortune might overtake you—and all because you would not sell me the cow you meant to give me."

"I—really—I—" began the deacon. The situation was a most embarrassing one, and rendered doubly so by the knowledge that beside the open window of the room appropriated to his library the minister was sitting, no doubt enjoying the conversation in the fullest measure. "Really, Mrs. Sperry—I—"

"Now, don't try to deny it," laughed the widow, a little nervously. "I knew the cow, Deacon Larrabee, and"—she laughed again—"I am bowed down with contrition to think of my unjust feelings towards you. But I shall always pray that you may prosper hereafter, deacon; for I am sure you will have a good account of your stewardship for the Master."

The deacon mopped his scarlet face in sore perplexity. How could he confess the gift was none of his? Yet there really seemed no other way to escape from the one-horned dilemma in which he found himself unless—

Well, the widow's generous thanks were very pleasant to hear; and, after a momentary deliberation, the old deacon's good sense and genuine manliness came to the fore. He only wished that the happy thought had been his, the charity of his own spontaneous deed.

"I am glad if the gift pleases you, Mrs. Sperry, said he, shaking her proffered hand, "and now, please say no more about it. Go into the house and see the woman. I'll warrant she has got a glass of jelly for the sick boy."

To Mr. Weston, later on, he said, with a laugh, and a jocular twinkle in his eye:

"I've hired my man, and shall not need you; so we'll shake hands and call it square. I think that's what I meant to do all the while, though I wasn't really sensible of it. But I'll tell you one thing. Bro. Weston, I don't believe the next tithe will come so hard."—Herald and Presbyter.

OVER THE EDGE.

That was a pathetic incident which happened the other day in one of the tenement districts in this city. Two boys, one eight and the other nine years of age, were playing on the roof of the house in which they lived, when one of them slipped and fell over the edge. As he did so the other, the younger of the two, caught his arm and shouted for help. The impetus of the descent half dragged him down also, but he held on tenaciously, meanwhile continuing his cries. People below heard him and hurried up the narrow stairway. Every second seemed a minute, the strain becoming more and more severe. "My arm is breaking, I must let go;" he gasped at last. "Don't, please, let go," begged the other. For a few seconds more the brave little eight-year-old held on; then the end came. Just as the rescuers reached the roof his grasp relaxed, and with a loud cry the brother fell into the courtyard below and was killed.

It is a pitiable story, but it is only typical of a thousand tragedies which are occurring around us everyday. Everywhere men and women are stumbling and falling over the precipices of life, and, in spite of helping hands that would stay their descent, perishing miserably. The annals of political life are crowded with the records of these disastrous falls—records which tell us how men of large gifts, driven by evil passions, weak, irresolute, sensuous, heedless, have plunged headlong from the summits of opportunity into the abysses of disgrace and ruin. So, too, in common everyday life—in every social sphere—we are constantly confronted by the ghastly spectacles of lives and souls slipping down sharp declivities, whence no outstretched arm, however strong or willing, can save them. Sons and daughters breaking away from the grasp of parents struggling desperately to keep them from ruin; husbands, disdainful of the loving hold of yearning hearts, snapping every restraining cord and reeling down to perdition; who has not witnessed tragedies like these.

There was the truest heroism in the fruitless effort of the lad to save the brother who clung to him on the edge of death, and there is nothing grander than that spirit of affection which impels human hearts to maintain, to the last gasp, their hold upon wayward ones tottering on the brink of doom. In the shining ranks of the immortals there are no more lustrous forms than those of the martyr ones who have sacrificed self and suffered agonies unmeasured in their efforts to save such as these.—Leslie's.

TEMPERANCE.

A CRIME OF CIVILIZATION.

(Dr. Josiah Strong in the New York Weekly Witness.)

The Vei Territory is that portion of Western Africa which lies immediately north and east of Liberia. The father of the reigning king gave to Liberia one-half of his sea-coast in return for the civilization which the Negroes from America were expected to introduce into Africa. This Vei Territory is supposed to be as large as New England, or to comprise some 62,000 square miles.

The Vei tribe would seem to be of exceptional interest as they are said to be the only Africans who have reduced their language to writing. They have had an alphabet of their own invention for a hundred years. Many of the tribe have written books, but as they know nothing of the printing-press they are, like the ancients, dependent on the copyist for their reproduction.

One-half of the people are Mohammedans, the other half pagans. But even these pagans believe in a supreme God who is the Creator of all things, and who is good. They believe, also, in the transmigration of souls which has a marked influence on their treatment of the aged. They fear to treat an old man ill lest after death he return as a son or grandson who shall bring retribution. Their men are brave in battle. Warriors who return to their homes wounded in the back are put to death by their own people.

Each village has its chief, but over all the chiefs is the king whose word is law. The present king is a Mohammedan. Desiring to have his heir apparent gain a knowledge of English, he sent the young prince at the age of 14 to a school under pledge that he should not be taught the Christian religion. At the age of 15 the boy decided for himself that he would be a Christian, and fearing to return to his father, he ran away to the United States. A reconciliation was effected by letter, and the youth remained here to get an education.

His mother was a queen in her own right and ruled over the "Southland." In a war with a neighboring tribe she was killed, and during his junior year in college the young prince was summoned home by the people of his mother's tribe to assume the authority to which he was the recognized heir. He soon after returned to the United States as a delegate to the World's Parliament of Religions and the African Ethnological Congress of the Columbian Exposition. He has remained to prepare two books, one in his own language and one in English. The object of the latter is to interest civilized nations in the suppression of the horrible African rum traffic, which is carrying destruction to the natives.

Prince Momolu Massaquoi, for that is his name, is now about 21 years old. He is a Christian gentleman of as fine bearing as one would meet in a day's journey, and speaks English with accuracy and fluency. He has just sailed for home and with him a cousin, Prince Besolow, who has spent one year in Williams' College. The tribe over which this latter prince is to rule is immediately north of the Vei Territory. A third prince, Kohloovomale by name, belongs to a tribe whose land adjoins that of the Vei's on the east. He is a graduate of Fisk University, and has studied theology for two years in Chicago.

These three Christian princes, who, if they live, are some day to rule three neighboring tribes, have formed a "triple alliance." One is charged especially with education, another with commerce and industrial affairs, and the third, Prince Massaquoi, who on the death of his father will rule over some five hundred thousand people, will attend to political concerns. Here certainly is a unique situation. Three well educated and Christian young men, going to Africa with the missionary spirit, but not as missionaries usually go, ignorant of the language, habits, customs and character of the peoples whom they wish to serve; not waiting for years to gain a foothold and acquire influence, but stepping into positions of authority, and having a thorough knowledge of all the peculiarities of the Mohammedan and pagan peoples they are to rule. The Christian world has a right to expect exceptional results from missionary effort under conditions so exceptional. And if these tribes should be civilized and Christianized they would afford a splendid fulcrum on which to place our lever of Christian effort for the uplifting of all Africa.

Surely these three young Christian princes have a right to expect the sympathy and moral support of Christian nations in their noble labors for the elevation of their own peoples. But as a matter of fact the greatest obstacle with which they will have to contend is thrust upon them from "Christian" lands. The rum traffic is far more demoralizing and deadly there than here. The Anglo-Saxon race has a moral fibre which enables it to resist in large measure the vices of its own civilization; but the native races of Africa have no such power of resistance, and it takes years of training to develop it, while the appetite for spirituous liquors is quickly acquired.

It is the chiefs who are most likely to become victims of the drink habit, for the liquor is expensive and only men of some means can afford to use it freely. These chiefs are apt to quarrel when in liquor, and these quarrels frequently lead to bloody wars. Indeed, Prince Massaquoi says he cannot remember a single war during his lifetime which did not spring from this cause. The war which cost his mother her life and the devastation of her country was the direct result of a drunken brawl in which one of her chiefs killed a member of a neighboring tribe. Thus rum adds to its own destroying power that of the sword.

This is one of the greatest crimes of civilization against uncivilized races. Human nature is capable of hideous things when it is driven by a whirlwind of appetite or passion, but it seems almost beyond belief that in this age and in this land men can be found who, simply for the sake of making money, will in cold blood plunge peoples into all the horrors of savage warfare. Yet it is stated by Prince Massaquoi that there are firms in Boston whose African trade, so far as exports are concerned, consists solely in cargoes of rum. Selfishness so cruel, so inhuman, is simply devilish. Such crimes against humanity ought to be made crimes against the state, and therefore punishable.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON VI.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Nov. 11.

SUBJECT.—The twelve chosen.—Mark 3: 6-19.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit."—John 15: 16.

| Open the Bible and read the lesson. |

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Mark 3: 6-19. T.—Luke 6: 12-19. W.—John 15: 13-19. T.—John 13: 12-20. F.—1 Cor. 1: 22-31. S.—Deut. 7: 6-11. S.—John 15: 1-8.

(From the S. S. Lesson Illustrator.)

Took counsel.—Consulted with the Herodians. The overtures, though doubtless acceptable to them, came from the Pharisees. The intensity of their hatred is shown by their seeking such an alliance, which was afterward continued.—Clark. An example of great hatred overriding a lesser one. The Pharisees were intense rationalists, and looked upon the Herodians, who were political supporters of the existing order of things, as traitors to their country.—Wakefield. The dominion of Christianity being the dominion of virtue, we need look no further for the source of hostility in any one who oppose it, than their attachment to vice.—Hall.

Destroy him.—Such a work of mercy should have engaged their love and such a work of wonder their faith.—Henry. They could not silence Him, so they would slay Him. They plotted secretly what they dared not do openly.—Pentecost. The first mention of a deliberate plan to put our Lord to death. The attempt at his destruction in Nazareth was the sudden impulse of a mob. Luke 4: 29.—Abbott.

Great multitude.—Drawn to Him by the report of His wonderful works, some with a sincere desire to learn of Him the way of salvation, some to avail themselves of His healing mercies in behalf of their sick friends, others through hope of His proclamation of Himself as the Messiah and raising the standard of rebellion against the Romans. There was great excitement through the whole land.—Owens. Two great multitudes are mentioned. The first from Galilee followed Him; the second from regions outside of Galilee came unto Him. The people sided with Jesus and against the Pharisees.—Clark.

Unclean spirits.—Demons called unclean because they caused both physical and moral uncleanliness. All that is vile and unclean is natural to them.—P. The unclean spirits are spoken of in the person of those possessed by them and the two fused together. As it was impossible that any but spirits could have known that he was the Son of God, so it was the material body of the possessed which fell down before him and their voice which uttered the cry.—Alford. The demons felt that Jesus was pure, they saw that he was divine, but they did not understand his mission an earth, and in their ignorance and malice they helped him to fulfill it.—Wakefield.

Not make him known.—Neither was the time come nor were these the proper witnesses—Bengel. The testimony of these lying spirits was worse than worthless to him.—Wakefield.

Calleth.—We must distinguish between their call to discipleship, Jno. 1: 25-45, their call to be constant attendants, and their selection as apostles, here related. After this they were miraculously endowed. and sent out on a mission to the Jews. 6: 7.—Clark. There was sovereignty but no arbitrariness in the choice Jesus made. All the choices of God have love and reason in them. He never calls men to special service unless there is that in or about them that makes the choice specially fit. Abraham and Joseph, Moses and Joshua, David and Solomon, John the Baptist and Paul, were the best possible men for the work they had to do. The work developed the men, as the grace of God fitted them, but there was that in them that was capable of such development.—Pentecost.

Ordained.—The present choice was final. No return to the fisher's boat, or the publican's booth; they were to share the wandering mission, the evangelistic labors, the scanty meals, and the uncertain home which marked even the happiest period of the ministry of their Lord.—Farrar.

Twelve.—The number of ministry. It is a number of fullness and completeness. Three symbolizes the Deity; four, the world. Three multiplied by four is twelve, the number of those who "were to go forth in the name of the blessed Trinity into the four quarters of the world."—M. The fountains at Elim were twelve, Ex. 15: 27, an omen of a like number of apostles who, like fountains, were destined to water the dry world of nations.—Tertullian. There are four lists, Matt. 10: 2-4; Luke 6: 14-16; Act. 1: 13, with three ranks of four apostles each, and in every list the same four are classed together. Peter always stands first and Judas last.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

6. When afterward did enemies become friends in seeking to destroy Jesus? Luke 23: 12.

7-9. What did the multitudes seek to do? Jno. 6: 15.

10. How "many" were healed? Matt. 12: 15. What must have accompanied their "touch?" Heb. 11: 6.

11, 12. Does the belief of demons save? Jas. 2: 19.

13. Why did Jesus go into a mountain? Luke 6: 12. What had he just bidden his disciples do? Matt. 9: 37, 38. What was the answer to their united prayer? Matt. 10: 1-4.

14. Some other instances of the number twelve. Ex. 24: 4; 28: 21; Leviticus 24: 5-8; 1 Kings 18: 31; Rev. 2: 14. What was one condition of apostleship? Acts 1: 21, 22; 1 Cor. 9: 1. How did Jesus send his disciples? Mark 5: 7. Where? Mark 16: 20; Acts 1: 8-15.

15. Was the commission the same after the resurrection? Acts 1: 8. Power for what? Mark 16: 15-18. Did they preach and heal after the resurrection? Acts 3: 6; 5: 16; 6: 8; 28: 8, 9.

16. Name the apostles. Luke 6; Acts 1: 13. When was Peter's surname first given? Jno 1:42.

How is he always mentioned? First in the list. Were they all equal in rank? 1 Peter 5:1; Galatians 2:7–9; Matt. 18:18. What epistles did he write? 1 Peter 1:1; 2 Peter 2:1. Where was 1 Peter written? 1 Peter 5:13.

17. The surnames of James and John were descriptive of what characteristics? Mark 9:38; 10:37: Luke 9:54; Jno. 18:15, 16; 19:26. How shown in John's writings? 1 Jno. 1:6; 2:4, 22; 3:8, 17; 4:3, 20

18. From what place was Andrew? Jno. 1:44. Whom did he lead to Christ? Jno. 1:40, 41. Appears in what incidents? Jno. 6:8; 12:22; Mark 13:3. When was Philip called? Jno. 1:43. How mentioned? Jno. 6:5, 7; 12:21; 14:8–10. Bartholomew's other name? Jno. 1:45; 21:2. Matthew's other name? Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27. Thomas impulsive? Jno. 11:16. Inquiring? Jno. 14:5, 6 Slow of conviction? Jno. 20:24–29. James' other title? Mark 15:40. Thaddeus' other names? Matt. 10:3. Luke 6:16; Jno. 14:22. Other name of Simon? Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13.

19. One characteristic of Judas? Jno. 12:6.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The Second U. P. church, Xenia, Ohio, Dr. J. G. Carson, pastor, received nine new members at a recent communion.

—Rev. D. S. Kennedy, D. D., late of the U. P. church at Sandwich, Ill, supplied at Blanchard, Iowa, during the month of October.

—A year ago the net gain of the Illinois U. P. Synod was sixty-five. This year the net gain is about nine hundred. The entire work of the church seems to have received a new impulse during the year.

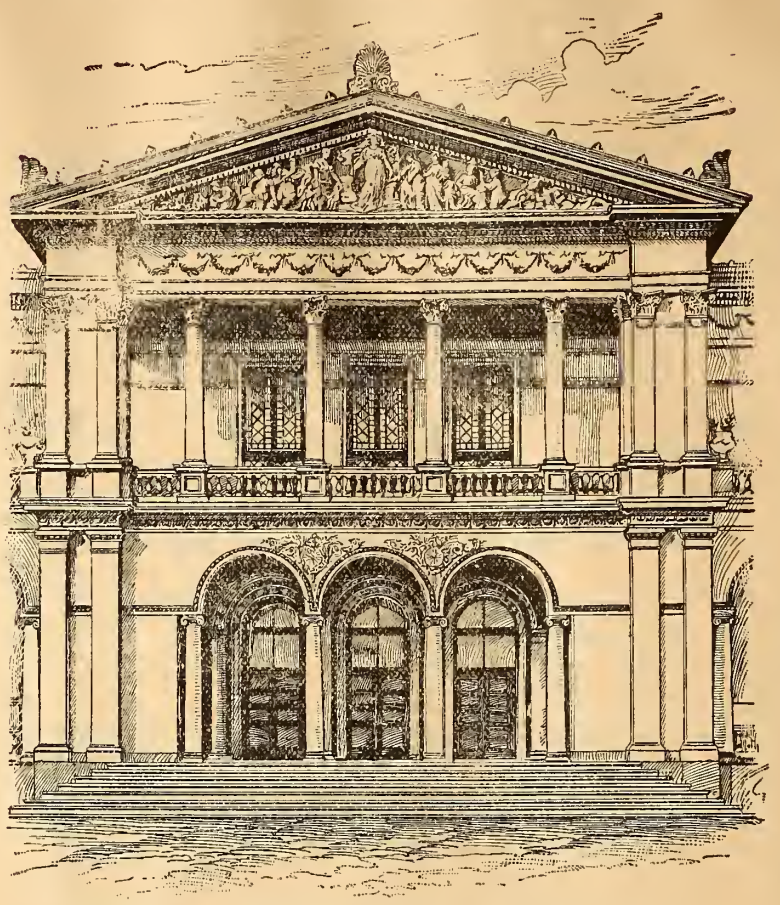
—Charles J. Baker, a graduate of Dickinson College, and a leading manufacturer of Baltimore, Md., died recently. Mr. Baker built and sustained two large independent Methodist churches in Baltimore.

—Dr. Perren, pastor of the Western Avenue Baptist church, Chicago, has resigned, to take effect December 1, next. Dr. Perren has now been longer on the field than any of his associates. He will become an evangelist.

—The late William Mellanby of Humberstone, Can., gave the bulk of his property, about $75,000, to the Methodist church—$10,000 to home missions, $10,000 to the superannuate fund, and over $50,000 to foreign missions.

—The Gospel Messenger, speaking of the history of the followers of Christ, formerly known as the Brethren, Tunkers, Ancient Brethren, or Dunkards, gives us to understand that they are now incorporated as the German Baptist Brethren Church.

—A meeting of ministers was held Sept. 29 in the First African Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, Pa., to discuss questions relative to Presbyterianism among the colored people, and if possible, organize an association of the colored Presbyterian ministers of the Middle States.



—The two Congregational churches at Galesburg, Ill., have decided to unite. These are the old First Church of Christ of which Pres. J. Blanchard and Dr. Edward Beecher were once pastors, and the organization meeting in the brick church, where the last Illinois State anti-secret convention was held.

—Two Lutheran theological seminaries are preparing for anniversary celebrations. Hartwick Seminary in New York, the oldest Lutheran educational institution in America, will complete its first century in 1897, and is already beginning to celebrate this event in a substantial manner. The theological seminary at Mt. Airy, near Philadelphia, this fall completes the thirtieth year of its useful work, and celebrates the event in the same manner as its first quarter century was celebrated five years ago.

—Considerable discussion resulted at the late conference of Missouri Presbyterians, over the following resolution, which was finally adopted: "Resolved, that it is the duty of every church member ever and always to speak and pray and labor against the liquor traffic, and that it is the sense of this synod, while it is not in the province of the church to dictate to any man how he shall vote, yet the synod declares no present party has the right to expect support of the Christian men so long as that party stands committed to the license policy, or refuses to put itself on record against the saloon."

—Mrs. E M. Bacon, of Peoria, Ill, returned lately to her mission field at Lalitpur, N. W. P., India, where she began work nearly five years ago. She visited different parts of the country seeking a place where there were no missionaries. She found such at Lalitpur, where there were but three European families. Being unable to find a home with any of them, she bought the bungalow of one of the officials whose term was about expiring; she also bought about thirty acres of land. She has established a number of schools, an orphanage and an industrial school, and built a chapel. She was the first missionary sent out by the Reformed Episcopal church.

The Woman's Era.

Within Her Sphere She Reigns Supreme.

Woman claims her own. Her field widens constantly. Every day brightens her prospects. Her progress foreshadows the greater triumph at hand. Emancipation and equality are her positions in the years to come.

Prophetic of final victory were her achievements at the World's Fair. At her shrine there erected the nations bowed. The lesson taught at the "Woman's Building" will last "till time shall be no more." Their enlightening influence will be felt around the globe throughout the dawning century.

Only less memorable were the honors gained at the Fair by

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The highest award conferred on this peerless preparation, is a fitting accompaniment of the laurels won by the women of America.

HON. SAMUEL DEXTER, in an Open Letter to the Grand Master of Mass., 1798: "If there be no very important reason for upholding Masonry at a moment like the present, there is a reason against it. The system of the destroyers of human virtue and happiness is to undermine in the dark the castle that cannot be carried by storm. Secret agency has overthrown all the republics of Europe, and an extended, secret, leveling, self-created society, without any valuable object of pursuit, and embracing bad characters as well as good, cannot be the subject of approbation of an anxious patriot."

HON. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Speech in the Senate: "Secret societies, sir? Before I would place my hand between the hands of other men, in a secret lodge, order, class or council, and bending on my knee before them, enter into combination with them for any object, personal or political, good or bad, I would pray to God that that hand and that knee might be paralyzed, and that I might become an object of pity and even the mockery of my fellow men. Swear, sir! I, a man, an American citizen, a Christian, swear to submit myself to the guidance and direction of other men, surrendering my own judgment to their judgments, and my own conscience to their keeping! No. No, sir. I know quite well the fallibility of my own judgment, and my liability to fall into error and temptation. But my life has been spent in breaking the bonds of the slavery of men. I, therefore, know too well the danger of confiding power to irresponsible hands, to make myself a willing slave."

Of all I wish to say of secret societies, this is the sum:

Secret oaths—

1. Can be shown historically to have often led to crime.

2. Are natural sources of jealousy and just alarm to society at large.

3. Are especially unfavorable to harmony and mutual confidence among men living together under popular institutions.

4. Are dangerous to the general cause of civil liberty and just government.

5. Are condemned by the severe denunciations of many of the wisest statesmen, preachers, and reformers.

6. Are opposed to Christian principles, especially to those implied in these three texts:

"In secret I have said nothing."

"Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers."

"Give no offence in anything, that the ministry be not blamed."

7. Are forbidden in some portions of our Republic by the civil law, and ought to be in all portions. Many European governments hold Freemasonry under grave suspicion as a mask for conspiracies against throne and altar. In Prussia, Poland, Russia and Spain Freemasonry is prohibited by law.

8. Are forbidden to church members by some Christian denominations, and ought to be by all.—From address of Joseph Cook to Christian Conference, April, 1890.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and Its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials," 928 pages, cloth, $1 00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1 00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Mrs. Judge Peck

Dyspepsia

Mrs. Judge Peck Tells How She Was Cured

Sufferers from Dyspepsia should read the following letter from Mrs. H. M. Peck, wife of Judge Peck, a justice at Tracy, Cal., and a writer connected with the Associated Press:

"By a deep sense of gratitude for the great benefit I have received from the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, I have been led to write the following statement for the benefit of sufferers who may be similarly afflicted. For 15 years I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia and Heart Trouble.

Almost everything I ate would distress me. I tried different treatments and medicines, but failed to realize relief. Two years ago a friend prevailed upon me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The first bottle I noticed helped me, so I continued taking it. It did me so much good that my friends spoke of the improvement. I have received such great benefit from it that Gladly Recommend It.

I now have an excellent appetite and nothing I eat ever distresses me. It also keeps up my flesh and strength. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla too much." MRS. H. M. PECK, Tracy, California. Get HOOD'S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. a box.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

——THE——

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

——o-o——

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

HOME AND HEALTH.

POISON IN THE WELL.

When, at the close of a previous article, I made the assertion that it was possible for drinking water to be clear, sparkling, cool, devoid of smell, pleasant to the taste, depositing no sediment on standing, and yet give a whole community cholera, diphtheria or typhoid fever, I did not suppose that before this statement would reach its readers, a very striking illustration of its truth would be given me. On my return about three weeks since from a short vacation, I was told that during my absence one of our town physicians had sent for me to meet him in medical consultation in two cases of typhoid fever. I was also informed that both patients had died, and that another member of the family was sick with the same disease.

Thirty years ago, when the causes of disease were less thoroughly understood, to account for such a story as I have detailed, would have puzzled the wisest of physicians. There was no good history of contagion, and it is doubted by many whether typhoid fever is ever communicated by mere personal contact. The cellar and immediate house surroundings were unusually devoid of decaying animal or vegetable matters. We know, however, that typhoid fever never originates without a just cause, and the physician in this case finding nothing else to condemn, laid all the blame upon the well. He could not have chosen, however, a more respectable portion of the premises, or one which stood in higher repute. Its water was sparkling, clear and cool, having neither taste nor smell, and was highly esteemed not only by its immediate proprietors, but by the surrounding neighborhood.

The out-house stood over a hundred feet away, up the hill, on an elevation of perhaps ten feet above the level of the top of the well, and perhaps thirty feet above its bottom. Was it not possible that poisonous matters from the cess-pool might have soaked through the intervening hundred feet of rock and earth into the well. The opponents of this theory pointed to the fact that the well had been used for many years, during which time no serious sickness had been known upon the premises; they pointed especially to the fact that the water was clear, sparkling, and cool, with neither taste nor smell. To settle the matter the owner of the property quietly bottled some of the water and sent it to a chemist in a neighboring city, telling him, however, nothing of his suspicions nor any of the foregoing history. He received in return the following letter:

"———, Sept. 12, 1882.

"DEAR SIR:—I find the water sent me wholly unfit for drinking or culinary purposes; in fact, contamination is not only quite large, but is of a very deleterious character. I reserved one-half for test after a most complete filtration, and found its characteristics the same. There is quite a large amount of organic matter held in solution, while the presence of putrescent matter in large quantities indicates a contamination that is recent, probably immediate in vicinity, and directs attention to decaying animal and vegetable matter in the neighborhood and more especially to the cesspool. Try to ascertain the direction in which the supply of water comes, and see if it is not contaminated before it reaches the well. The source of contamination is not a great way off, or it is not a long time in reaching the well. It is of a very insidious and dangerous character, as it is held entirely in solution, and the water after careful filtering looks bright and clear. But there is death in it as it is. The effect may be very slow in coming on, but it is sure to come, and the lingering invalidism which sometimes ensues from the continued use of such water, is worse even than death itself."

On receipt of this letter, immediate orders were given for cleaning out the well, during which process, any doubts which might previously have existed as to their being a connection between it and the out-house were at an end.

In the town of Southport, a few years since, cases of typhoid fever became so frequent that an official investigation was ordered. This revealed the fact that while the sanitary condition of nearly every house was above reproach, yet in every family where the fever had occurred, milk from a certain dairy several miles away had been used. Further investigation showed that the well from this farm was horribly polluted, being, in the words of the chemist who made the investigation, "nothing but liquid sewage." On stopping the milk supply from this dairy, the epidemic ceased.—H. D. Leffingwell, M. D., in Laws of Life.

WEAK WOMEN

and all mothers who are nursing babies derive great benefit from Scott's Emulsion. This preparation serves two purposes. It gives vital strength to mothers and also enriches their milk and thus makes their babies thrive.

Scott's Emulsion

is a constructive food that promotes the making of healthy tissue and bone. It is a wonderful remedy for Emaciation, General Debility, Throat and Lung Complaints, Coughs, Colds, Anaemia, Scrofula and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Send for Pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. Free.

Scott & Bowne, N.Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A cough which persists day after day should not be neglected any longer. It means something more than a mere local irritation, and the sooner it is relieved the better. Take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is prompt to act and sure to cure.

Everybody is Going South Now a days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

——)oo(——

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Ayer's

WAS

THE ONLY

Sarsaparilla

ADMITTED AT

THE *

World's Fair.

GET

The Best.

—THE—

LODGE LAMP

A FOUR-PAGE MONTHLY.

It is devoted to the analysis of secret society questions, showing their evils and pointing to their remedies.

20 cents per annum. Sample copies 2 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

LITERATURE

—ON THE—

ROMAN QUESTION

TAKEN FROM THE

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

and embracing the speeches of Messrs. Gallinger, Daniel, Linton and others, will be supplied in ready for remailing at $2.50 per 1,000 copies of one pamphlet.

FRANKED ENVELOPES

Address,

REV. GREEN CLAY SMITH,
Box 333. Washington, D. C.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

(From the Inter Ocean.)

CABBAGEHEAD RECORD SMASHED.

THREE OAKS, Mich., Oct. 15.—Special Telegram.—The agricultural circles of this city were stirred to-day by the item in the Inter Ocean in which Benton Harbor flaunts the largest head of cabbage ever grown in her vicinity. The thriving little city of Three Oaks will make no boasts, but has this day sent to the Inter Ocean by express, charges paid, a cabbagehead grown on the farm of the Barnett Produce Company, near this city, which measures four and a half feet in circumference and weighs twenty-six pounds. There are more of this size on hand. Anyone of the large cabbage-growers of this belt can furnish, in carload lots, twelve-pound cabbages.

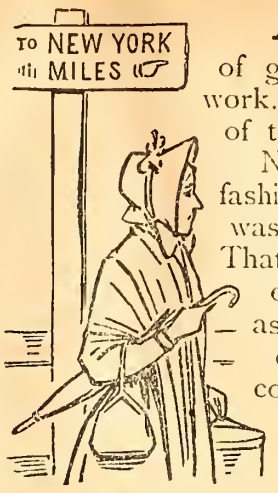
MCHENRY, Ill., Oct. 15.—Special Telegram.—McHenry can see Benton Harbor and go her one better. John Caxton, a farmer living one mile east of this village, brought to town Friday last a cabbagehead which measured 3 feet 4 inches in circumference and weighed 14 pounds 13 ounces. This was the solid cabbagehead, with all the outside leaves taken off. McHenry county against the world!

SAVING SEED CORN.

The selection of seed corn and saving it in good condition is a matter that should be attended to during September. Many farmers select it before cutting. Some break down the tops of those stalks the ears of which they wish to save, leaving them standing to mature after the others are cut and stooked, but this is not practicable in a season like the present one, when the crop is late. But whatever plan may be adopted, care should be taken to select the very best ears, and then when picked, to see that they are thoroughly dry before storing in the crib or elsewhere. Every corn grower should settle down to some variety well adapted to his locality and then annually select the best product for seed. Such a course will enable him to maintain a distinct and superior variety and to improve it in the direction desired. The wise farmer will endeavor to secure a variety of corn that will produce the greatest yield and profit at the least expense, and then prevent its deterioration by saving the very best seed from every crop that is grown.—Ex.

Put the winter squashes upon the top shelf in the pantry where it is dry and no danger of freezing. They will keep sound this way until spring.

SPLIT CORN FOR CATTLE FEED.



Thousands of dollars are lost each year by the cattle feeders of the United States by feeding ear corn to cattle improperly prepared or in whole ears, in which form cattle cannot masticate it in a natural way.

The Poindexter Corn Splitting Machine is revolutionizing feeding methods. The machine is easy of operation by hand, splits ear corn lengthwise the cobs in three to five strips, at a cost less than one-half cent per bushel, putting it in the best possible form for cattle feeding, in which form the full feeding value of both cob and kernel is obtained. Chemical analysis, as well as experimental feeding, proves the feeding value of cobs to be one-fourth of the entire ears when prepared in a form that will enable cattle to masticate cob and kernel in a natural way. Cattle will masticate split corn more thoroughly than they will corn fed in any other form, insuring a digestion so perfect that no whole grains of corn pass undigested; this is easily explained, as cattle will masticate split corn longer than they will corn either ground or fed in whole ears, thereby mixing the saliva of mouth with food, which is an essential to produce perfect digestion with the brute as well as human.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next.....	$ 25
To January, 1896.....	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal.....	3.00

An old-fashioned way of getting there. Slow and safe, but hard work. Most women, have got beyond this kind of traveling—found something better.

Now, why can't you look at that other old-fashioned proceeding in the same light—washing things with soap and hard rubbing. That's slow enough and tiresome enough, everybody knows, and it's not as safe as washing with Pearline. It's really destructive, in fact, the wear of that constant rubbing. Break away from these antiquated ideas. Use modern methods. Pearline saves at every point.

Send it Back

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 457 JAMES PYLE, New York.

THE GREATEST OFFER YET MADE!

Last Season We Delighted Thousands of Boys All Over The United States With Our "Head-to-Foot" Boys' Outfit at $5.00, Consisting of Coat, Cap, Shoes and ONLY ONE PAIR of Pants.

WE'LL DO BETTER YET THIS SEASON.

THE OXFORD

HEAD-TO-FOOT BOYS' OUTFIT

For the Fall and Winter Season Contains as Follows:

One Double-Breasted Coat, TWO Pairs of Knee Pants,
One Stanley Cap to Match, One Pair Long Black Stockings.
One Pair of First-Class Shoes, For Ages 4 to 14 Years.

And Still the Price Will Remain the Same $5.00.

REMEMBER, the Clothing is all wool, Heavy Weight, Excellent Fall and Winter Styles, workmanship and trimmings first class. Everything strictly Guaranteed, and your Money refunded if not entirely satisfactory.

This combination presents Better Value for the money than ever before offered. If, however, you wish something lower in price, we have it as low as $2.50 in excellent quality, but, of course, not as serviceable as the $5.00 Outfit; neither do our Combination Suits at less than $5.00 have the pair of Shoes and Stockings.

THE FOOTWEAR is Extra Quality Wear, Resisting Pebble Grain Button School Shoes, Sizes 8 to 13½, also same description for larger boys; sizes 1 to 3, or Fine Satin Calf Shoes, in lace, sizes 12 to 2, also same for larger boys in sizes 3 to 5½.

THE STOCKINGS are Full Seamless, in sizes 6 to 6½, Guaranteed Fast Black, Extra Quality.

This Novel Combinat on is of the Choicest and Most Serviceable Material, and in your local markets, if obtainable at all, would cost you at least $3.50. Always mention Size of Shoes by Number, and Age of Boy for the Clothing, stating whether large or small for his age.

Send at once for Sample of Clothing, or better still, order one of the "Head-to-Foot" Outfits, all charges prepaid, $5.75, or C. O. D., with privilege of examination before payment, provided $1.00 on account is sent with the order. This $1.00 will be deducted from bill and balance C. O. D.

FREE—Our Wholesale Catalogue of Sewing Machines, Organs, Reed Chairs, Baby Carriages, Bicycles, Watches, Jewelry, Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing. Everything at Manufacturers' Factory Prices and shipped on approval. Call our attention to this offer. Address in full,

THE OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO., Clothing Dept., T 41
338-344 Wabash Ave., - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

ADVANCE PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEASTS OF EPHESUS.

By Rev. JAMES BRAND, D.D.

With an Introduction by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., President of the Y. P. S. C. E. 8vo, 206 pp. Cloth, $1.00

This is pre-eminently a book for the times, treating as it does, of nineteenth century perils which beset young people and are the dread of every Christian parent and every pastor.

Many a parent with a vivid realization of the peril of these evils to their children, has looked anxiously for just such a book as this to place in their hands. Written for this very purpose, it fills this place as no other book has ever done.

The chapters on The Dance, The Theater, The Card Table, The Weed, The Sabbath and Social Purity, have each been published in booklet form in very attractive style and will be sent postpaid at 5c. each or 25 for $1, or the entire set of six 25c.

SUPERNATURAL HEALING.

By E. P. Goodwin, D.D. A clear and logical discussion of Christian Science and Mind Healing, together with a careful analysis of the relation of Satan to disease and a treatment of the subject of miracles in general.—68 pages, single copies 25c., 5 copies $1. (Paper covers, 15 cents each.)

CONGREGATIONALISM.

By Prof. G. N. Boardman, D.D. The aim is to give information as to the nature and efficacy of our polity and to present the arguments in its favor. It is the desire to furnish all necessary assistance to those who are interested in gathering and organizing churches.—80 pages, single copies 10 cts., $1 per dozen.

Any of the above books sent postpaid on receipt of price.

THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

THE official reports show that no baking powder received an award over the Royal at the Chicago World's Fair.

The judge of awards on baking powder writes that the claim by another company to have received the highest award is false; that no such award was given to it.

The Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest baking powder made, and has received the highest award at every fair, wherever exhibited in competition with others.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Secretary Hoke Smith has requested the Secretary of War to send troops to the Indian Territory to suppress the lawless bands which have been operating there and in the adjacent country. The obligations as set forth in the treaties with the Indians require the government to protect the five civilized tribes against domestic strife and hostile invasion.

President Cleveland returned to the city Thursday after an absence of about eight weeks, most of which was spent in Gray Gables. He was accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, the two children, their nurses and Secretary Lamont.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

Four grandchildren of Rev. William Taylor, Methodist Missionary Bishop of Africa, perished in the elegant house of their father, Rev. Ross Taylor, in South Nyack early last week Monday. In addition one man was so badly burned he can scarcely recover, and two others were seriously injured.

A disastrous freight wreck occurred on the Pennsylvania road near Croyden Station Sunday evening, in which three men were killed and a score or more injured, some seriously.

The lawless condition of affairs in the Indian Territory is alarming, and the government is asked to restore order and protect citizens in their rights. It is stated armed bandits are in practical control of the Territory. Life and property are not secure either by day or night. The express companies have refused to transport money. There are three well-known organized bands of desperadoes, composed of thieves, thugs, and tough characters from all sections of the country, who make a business of pillaging the people. As a result a reign of terror exists, and the people of the Territory are at the mercy of these gangs.

An explosion of five tons of dynamite in a magazine one mile from Chippewa Falls, Wis., broke glass for miles and caused great alarm in all the region.

Last week was full of disasters for a large portion of Nebraska in the sand hills. Devastating fires swept through the westesn part of Cherry and Grant counties, burning on both sides of the Burlington and Missouri railroad track. Hundreds of thousands of cattle are grazing where the fires are raging. These cattle were taken to the northern counties to graze for the winter. It is feared a large portion of these cattle have perished in the flames. Several ranch houses are reported to have been destroyed, and several lives lost.

Otto Peterson was murdered in a saloon row in Keokuk, Iowa, July 4 last. Now his widow is suing the Leisy Brewing Company, William Welch, and Carl Pfaffe, for $40,000, alleging that her husband's intemperance was caused by the defendants selling him liquor.

Tuesday the bandit Bill Cook and his gang of desperadoes raided Watova in the Indian Territory. They terrorized the inhabitants, who sought safety behind barricaded doors. The outlaws visited every store and ran the merchants away with Winchesters and revolvers, taking all the money they could find and everything else they wanted. From Watova the gang rode on to Tala, ten miles away, where they repeated their depredations. They rode into town and proceeded at once to rob stores right and left.

COUNTRY.

The country about Hot Springs, Neb. was visited by a heavy snowstorm Sunday, lasting eight hours. Stock is suffering greatly.

Mayor Moffitt, of Decatur, Ill., proposes rigidly to enforce the ordinance against boys being on the streets after 8 o'clock at night.

George Sanderson recently struck a vein of cement near Williamsport, Pa., which New York assayers say is the best in the world.

An eagle tried to carry away a colored child near Huntington, Pa. It was frightened off by Mrs. Richardson, the mother, but it returned later and flew away with a dog in its talons.

San Diego, Cal., and neighboring towns were visited this afternoon by a series of earthquakes of more than ordinary severity. The first shock occurred at 3:03 o'clock this afternoon, and was followed at intervals of a quarter of a minute by two others, the last being one of the strongest experienced here since the coming of Americans.

FOREIGN.

An explosion of firedamp occurred in a colliery at Buda-Pesth, resulting in the death of twenty miners and the injury of several score of others.

Prime Minister Rosebery delivered a speech at Bradford, England Saturday. He said that in his opinion the next general election would not be fought on the home rule, disestablishment of the church in Wales or the liquor questions, but on a question which would include all. An attack on the House of Lords would be the great issue.

In Germany the sudden displacement of Caprivi and the unexpected substitution of the venerable Prince Hohenlohe as prime minister is regarded as a sign of the Emperor Wilhelm's impetuous character.

An earthquake was felt throughout the Argentine Republic Saturday. Many churches, theaters, and private houses were destroyed. Twenty persons are known to have perished. The inhabitants are in a state of panic, fearing a repetition of the shocks. The government is sending aid to those who have lost their homes.

An official bulletin, issued from Livadia in the Crimea, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning bearing the signatures of the five physicians in attendance on the Czar, says: "The Czar slept well last night. His appetite is good. His condition is unchanged."

Thirty students of the Technological Institute at St. Petersburg have been arrested on the charge that they are members of a nihilist society.

It is reported that France has sent an ultimatum to Madagascar giving the island eight days in which to accept an exclusive French protectorate.

Serious floods are reported in Northeast China. A rich agricultural district, 150 miles long, and twelve miles wide, was submerged. Many women and children were drowned, and an enormous property loss was suffered.

The Prussian government has consented to a national celebration on Dec. 9 in honor of the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, and the Protestant clergy everywhere are exerting themselves in preparations for this event.

An extensive conflagration is reported from Grosney in the Caucasus. A large naphtha spring became ignited in some unexplained manner, and the flames spread to a number of buildings in its vicinity. Seventeen workmen employed in the building were burned to death.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Oct. 22 to Oct. 27:

Mrs M C Gerrard, J McCall, Rev A O Mortvedt, Mrs E A Tozier, J Baker, Rev J J McClurkin, H H Ezzard, Rev E D Williams, W C Bissell, I M Pidgeon, A J Foord, S Bingham, G W Waterbury, C B Wright, W Roberts, A Warner.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	55½	@	56
Winter No. 2	52¼		52¾
Corn—No. 2	50⅝	@	57
Oats—No. 2	28¾	@	31⅛
Rye—No. 2	47⅛	@	48
Bran per ton	13 00	@
Hay—Timothy	7 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	22
Cheese	7	@	10¼
Beans	1 70	@	1 90
Eggs	14	@	17⅛
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 43	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	6 00	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	50 00	@	105 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	40	@	50
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 35	@	6 25
Common to good	2 00	@	5 25
Hogs	2 25	@	4 80
Sheep	1 20	@	3 30

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	54⅜	@	56¾
Corn No 2	57¾		58¾
Oats	31½	@	39½
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	15		22
Butter	13	@	23½
Wool	19	@	25

"CHAUTAUQUA" OIL HEATER FREE WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

CENTRAL DRAFT ROUND WICK BURNER. ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS. HEIGHT, 3 FEET, DIA. OF DRUM 8½ INCHES; WEIGHT, 30 POUNDS. ONE GALLON KEROSENE LASTS 12 HOURS. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, - - - - - - - - $10.00 } YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00.
HEATER, WORTH AT RETAIL, - 10.00 }

WE WILL SEND BOX AND HEATER ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY YOU CAN REMIT $10.00 IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Christian Cynosure Oct. 11 issue.

THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address

OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T 22
344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 9 | CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1894. | WHOLE No. 1,280.

Cook E A
17 River St.
May 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
What Shall we Do?.. 8
The Christ-celebration of 1900..... 8
President Harper and the Sigma Chi..... 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Ten Chapters Against Lodges..... 2
Society—A Poem..... 2
The Grand Army of the Republic..... 2
God for our Native Land (Poetry)..... 4
SELECTED:
The Parliament of Religions..... 3
Education in the South. 3
Free Methodist Testimony..... 4
High Treason Against Truth..... 4
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
REFORM NEWS:
New York State Convention: Against Infidelity and the Lodge; Address at Wheaton College 5,6
CORRESPONDENCE:
Christ, Yesterday, To day, Forever; Good and Bad as Lodge Terms; Word from New Orleans..... 6
LITERATURE..... 6
BITS OF LODGERY..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
Notices..... 8
ModelCombination Against Labor and Capital.... 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS. 12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

The "sporting" columns of the daily press which have all summer been filled with race-track news are now devoted to college foot-ball. The proximity suggests a dangerous similarity. For all these four hundred and fifty institutions are accomplishing for civilization, for the church of God, they get not one line of notice to one hundred devoted to foot-ball. It is nominally a game: as practiced it is more often a crime, a sport fit for savages. When young men deliberately study and practice to give bodily injury public opinion and law should stop them. If patrons of colleges will mark those which promote this business and abandon them, they will find the act a public benefaction.

While this number of the Cynosure is being mailed the decision of the ballot is once more testing the virtue of American principles and institutions. This year is to be remembered for the rally of the pulpit and religious press for municipal reform. Here and there Christian citizenship leagues are promoting this work with noble zeal. In Chicago the League issued a voter's bulletin beginning, "Righteousness exalteth a nation." It names the city candidates who frequent or abet the saloon with a warning. But the combat is hottest in New York. Sabbath morning in more than a hundred churches of that city the duty of the Christian citizen was discussed, and divine aid was invoked for the election of good men in many more. But in no Protestant church was a prayer lifted for Hill, or Grant, or the Tammany candidates.

The death of the Czar, Alexander III. at Lavidia in the Crimea last Friday, raises a thousand conjectures respecting the peace of Europe and the relation of the great Muscovite empire to the progress of civil liberty. The dead emperor has kept Europe in peace for thirteen years, and he has repressed the demand for constitutional liberty with a heavy hand. He was, however not naturally cruel, but having succeeded to a throne made vacant by a Nihilist bomb, he has guarded the trust received,—not of choice but from the hand of God—with a gloomy severity. Unwise sympathizers with the secret Nihilist assassins will curse his memory. But those who remember that Alexander II. was murdered in the streets of St. Petersburg in 1881, just as he had drawn up an order for a constitutional convention, will not so severely judge the Siberian policy of the Czar. Of the young Nicholas II., upon whom absolute authority now rests, much is hoped for the liberation of Russia's millions and the merging of the last despotism of Europe into a government more congenial to the age.

Stimulated by the effective suppression of the three notorious publications of the Police Gazette stamp in Philadelphia, several months ago, the ministerial association of five religious denominations in Pittsburgh and Allegheny City have now called on the police authorities of those places to similarly relieve them of the presence of the pestiferous sheets. It appears that several news venders near the City Hall in Philadelphia, last week, proceeded to again guardedly expose the condemned papers, but Director Beitler being notified, at once ordered Superintendent of Police Linden to take the matter in hand, and the law was fully enforced. Taking advantage of the occasion, the managers of the two principal news-stand supply agencies were summoned, and a promise exacted that they would not handle still another publication similar to the three already suppressed.

A grand jury in Union county, New Jersey, made a report the other day that amazed the sedate judge and his prosy officers of the court. They had been charged concerning lotteries. The State constitution absolutely forbids this species of gambling, and the courts have held that the distribution of presents or prizes by chance is a lottery. The jury declared that such chance distributions have become a prevalent evil, among churches, clubs, and other societies, and the promoters are importunate in begging for patronage, and added: "We believe that churches, clubs, and societies formed for the purpose of improving the moral tone of their members or patrons are the most flagrant offenders against lottery laws in our county. 'In order to stop such practices and to give ample notice to all of our citizens that those who engage therein are liable to indictment we have determined to make this presentment and refrain from presenting indictments." The church whose action called for this paper is a Roman Catholic body of Elizabethport, N. J.

One of the constitutional amendments to be voted for in New York this week is this: "Nor shall any lottery or the sale of lottery tickets, poolselling, bookmaking or any other kind of gambling, hereafter be authorized or allowed within this State." The Society for the Suppression of Vice has called on the press and pulpit of the State to urge with utmost zeal the adoption of this amendment. An old Presbyterian pastor writes to the Observer that race track gambling is not the worst form of this vice. They are trained for this, he says, by "the gambling at fairs and festivals for societies, and lodges, and churches. At thousands of these, girls and boys, men and women, are tempted to take chances. They get their first idea of a lottery. The imagination is excited. They are confident of winning a diamond pin or a gold ring or a cake with a piece of money inside, or a watch. With too many this is the very beginning of a troubled and criminal career of gambling. They engage in it persuaded that it is not wrong because it will assist a good cause. It is the old teaching that the end justifies the means."

A new "patriotic order," so-called, has been incorporated at Baltimore named the American Knights of Protection. The gentlemen who planned this society are said to be prominent merchants and representative professional and business men. General Cyrus Bussey, of Washington, D. C., late Assistant Secretary of the Interior, is to be the president, aad Charles T. Wilson, late of the Board of Pension Appeals, of the Interior Department, will be the national secretary. The founders contend that the society is based upon the broad principles of protection to American interests and of the homes of its members; and that it is patriotic and beneficial, nonsectarian and non SECRET. It will have general offices in Baltimore and Washington, and a system of assemblies extending throughout the country as a kind of "fraternity," providing life insurance for its members. The objects of this organization may be well enough, but why do men keep up the pretence that paying a fee makes a brotherhood? There is no greater falsehood stuffed by the devil into the ears of men. And to borrow a lodge name for a good purpose is like a Yankee cruiser borrowing a flag of a pirate.

Thomas Reed, of Maine, who shares with Governor McKinley and ex-President Harrison the hope of a nomination by the Republican party for President, has been making popular speeches and many friends all through the country. To a great crowd at the Stock Yards in this city the other day he made a fervid speech. On the secret methods of the Senate with the tariff bill he spoke in strong condemnation of the principle that operates in all the lodges, of planning and plotting in secret concerning matters which belong to open and public debate. He said: "Who ought to make the tariff? Everybody. Everybody ought to hear. There should be no shutting up in secret cellars of the few men who direct and talk about the tariff. It ought to be open and broad as the day, so that everybody could hear. Is this tariff made this way? Why, in the House of Representatives a tariff was passed called the "Wilson Bill," which would have brought havoc and ruin all over this country. [Applause.] And how did it happen? The men who drew it up shut themselves up in a secret room. When they had finished and when they laid before us their proposition they said: 'Take your dose, that is all for you to do.'"

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

I.—THEY ARE UNNECESSARY.

We cannot see any good reason for the existence of lodges. What good purpose can be subserved by them, that could not be effected openly and before the eyes of the world? Do they make a man more benevolent? Do they render him more philanthropic? Do they lead him into larger views of life? Do they make him entertain a nobler conception of God and man? All these questions may be answered in the negative. Not only may they be answered in the negative, but the very opposite is true. Every good feature of the lodge may be just as well advanced openly; hence the lodge is unnecessary. They do not make a man more benevolent, but rather stifle benevolence, and the money paid into the lodge is for material benefits. They dwarf philanthropic feelings by rendering the member clannish. His interest and benevolence (?) are confined largely to his brethren of the order. It rather lowers his conception of man and God than exalts it.

They are unnecessary because God did not institute or sanction them. Had they been necessary to the good of man surely they would not have escaped the will and sanction of Jehovah. He would have authorized it, named it, and ordained laws for its government. That he did not do this is proof positive that he did not deem the lodge necessary.

God ordained the church. It meets every need of the human soul. Every want—social, intellectual, political, moral and religious—meets its full satisfaction in the church of the living God. It is the salt of the earth and the light of the world. It is the conservator of all that is noble and true among men. It goes in the vanguard of every movement of social and religious reform. It is the body of which the Lord of glory is the head.

Lodges are worse than useless and unnecessary, inasmuch as they divert the energies, activities and benefactions of men from the church into the narrow channels of self-seeking and material profits.

Preachers have said to me that I ought to join the lodges in order that I might more successfully win men to Christ! Have these preachers found some new way of converting men? Somehow I have been of the conviction that the Gospel is the power of God into salvation, and not Freemasonry or Odd-fellowship! I know of no other way to reach men than the simple old story of Jesus and his love.

God made us, and having made us, he knows all the longings, all the needs, all the aspirations, and all the yearnings of the human soul. In Christ and the church all these hungerings of the heart find their full compensation. As the wings of the bird are upborne by the air; as the fins of the fish find their element in the water; as the æsthetic nature is gratified by the beautiful in nature and art; so man's many-sided nature meets its fullest development and chiefest good in Jesus Christ and the church. How true we should be to the Pauline Epistles which declare that Christ should be all in all, and that we should know nothing but Jesus Christ and him crucified. If we observe these injunctions we will have neither time nor labor to bestow upon the multifarious secret orders among men.

Fairfield, Nebraska.

WHAT IS LODGE WORSHIP?—At first, the doctrine that Masonic ceremonies were devil-worship brought us a multitude of reproofs. Now the statement is become so common that it is received as settled ordinary truth that worship not paid to Christ is paid to Satan.—Jonathan Blanchard.

Therefore, councils here or councils there, if they are human doctrines they must pass for nothing. I believe Christ, yea, Paul, his apostle, more than all councils, should they be as numerous as the sand of the sea or the stars of heaven. Paul would have all accursed if they did not preach God's Word.....St. Bernhard says: "I would rather drink from the fountain than from the stream. For even as all men do easily forget the stream if they may drink from the fountain, though the stream may be useful in leading them to the fountain, so must the Scripture remain master and judge; for if we follow the streams too much, they will lead us too far from the fountain." ....Thus also St. Augustine declares that he would believe no teacher, however learned he might be, unless he proved his doctrine by the Scripture or clear reason. But from this we learn how we are to read the fathers; that we shall not regard what they say, but whether they have clear Scripture or reason.—Martin Luther.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

(Scene in a labor meeting, called to consider the interest of labor in the pending election. Present—Mr. Hayes, president of the meeting; Popoff, the anarchist; Mr. Smith, a walking delegate; Dea. Austin, and general audience.)

PRES. HAYES:—

You know the cause that calls us here to-night.
Has Labor any interest in events
Centering in this election? Let us have
A free discussion.

POPOFF:—

We have no interest. Mason is a man
Who swings the lash of capital above
The back of Labor.
The other's like him, only priest-controlled.
What hopes has Labor from such whelps as these?
Such hopes as mice have nibbling at the cheese
Within the trap. We never shall be free
Till capital is like a spitted kid,
Well roasted for the hungry multitude.

MR. SMITH:—

Such talk is like the clatter of the bones
That eight-year-olds make merry music with;
The silly rattle of an empty skull.
And every such expression but retards
The upward march of manhood. Capital
Is Labor hoarded in convenient form
For future use, the work of us and ours.
Shall we destroy what our own hands have wrought,
Because the men who hold our wealth in trust
Are often faithless, ignorant or cruel?
But as for this election, I see not
How laboring men have any interest there.
'Tis the old caste where wealth is joined with power;
And these, blessed by our enemy the church,
Would use us as a footstool for the thrones
They sit upon.

DEA. AUSTIN tries to speak. Loud cries, "He's a deacon; he's a deacon; put him out."

MR. HAYES:—

If he's a deacon, he's a workman too.
All summer long we once worked side by side
On the same building. Nor in all the town
Is one more skillful in his chosen trade.
Who ever saw him drunk when pay-day came?
Who ever heard him speak a word unkind
To any workman, being an honest man?
And while I hold the gavel of control
He shall be heard; and, in my judgment, none
Will merit more attention.

DEA. AUSTIN:—

What I've to say will very soon be said,
For I agree with all of you in this:
We have no interest in election day,
That calls for any action here to-night.
Both sides are venal, conscienceless and base,
In means and method and in purposes.
Neither are friends to labor; both would see
The workman made a serf and never lift
A hand to save him. Yet, I cannot hear
An anarchist talk murder, or a man
With sweeping condemnation charge the church
With blessing what is wrong, without a word,
A manly word, for what is right and true.
Of anarchy 'tis bootless I should speak;
It is a monstrous and a misshaped thing,
A diabolic spirit uncontrolled,
A triplet with the pestilence and with war.
As for the church 'tis useless to deny
That as a whole she has not honored well
The admonition of her sovereign Lord,
Jesus the carpenter. Yet he who says
The laborer has no friends within the church
Speaks wildly, and speaks wickedly as well.
Nowhere to-day is mind with keener thought
Exploring all the realm of business life
Than in the church. Her bravest prophets see
The coming storm; 'twill be no fault of theirs
If men shall laugh to scorn the rising tide
Till by the rough wind dashed against their homes
It overwhelms I know you honor Christ.
His power must stand,
'Till every thicket, hiding place for lies,
A very flood of truth shall sweep away
And all the righteous poor with joy shall sing
The Lord our God is king of men to-day.
In his fair church is many a soul to plead
Against oppression, and when a Moses comes,
God and the church will send him.

(To be Continued.)

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

WHY A CHRISTIAN CANNOT JOIN OR REMAIN IN THE ORDER.

ADDRESS OF J. C. BRIGGS BEFORE THE NEW ENGLAND ASSOCIATION.

"O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea."—Isaiah 48: 18.

This address is not to the man who is not a professed follower of Jesus Christ. It is not to him who has the form of godliness and is satisfied therewith without seeking the power thereof. But it is written to the humble man who, with "fingers in his ears," is running and crying, "Life! life! Eternal life!" and it would seem that to such only one Scripture is necessary to make his path plain, viz., "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers." This is of as much force as though it were repeated a thousand times, but there are other reasons which I shall consider, namely:

1. War is a sin and without excuse.
2. The G. A. R. is a secret oath-bound order, anti-Scriptural.
3. The Christian must be separate from sinners.

Isaiah 9: 5–7 declares: "For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; but this shall be with burning and fuel of fire. For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counseller, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end....."

The angel heralds in proclaiming the coming of Christ sang "Peace on earth," a condition that the prophets had many times foretold. (Isaiah 2: 4), "And he shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation,

NEITHER SHALL THEY LEARN WAR ANY MORE."

Hear this, ye professed Christians, who send your sons to a military school. This is a most emphatic statement in regard to Christ's followers. It not only rules out real war, but those educating processes which are the "fad" in some churches. The "Boys' Brigade" can be only harmful in fostering pride, and a warlike spirit, contrary to the meekness and lowliness of Jesus. Jesus Christ is abundantly able to fight his own battles, since it is "Not by might nor by power (though he has all of that) but by my Spirit saith the Lord." Zech. 4: 6. Again, "Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the earth. He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire. Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen. I will be exalted in the earth." Psa. 46: 8–10. This proves that the nation that will look to God alone for deliverance, shall alone exalt him before the heathen.

Many quote with evident approval the old saying, "Trust God and keep your powder dry;" forgetting that a half trust is not trust at all, and always brings disappointment to the self-deceived one. "They they take the sword shall perish with the sword," is the utterance of Jesus himself, and yet how few act faith in it; and he immediately adds, "Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels? But how then shall the Scripture be fulfilled, that thus it must be?" Matt. 26: 52, 53.

Again, "And I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem, and the battle bow shall be cut off: and he shall speak peace unto the heathen: and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth." Zech. 9: 10. Again, "But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the Lord their God, and will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen." Hosea 1: 7. Here is God's plan of saving a nation; not by standing armies or big warships or torpedo boats or Krupp guns,

BUT BY THE "LORD THEIR GOD."

But one says, "Are we not called upon to defend our homes?" Yes, by having a heart cleansed from all sin, and then like Hezekiah, spread the matter before the Lord. That night 185,000 lay dead in the enemies' camp. We read in "Touching Incidents and Answers to Prayer" about a Quaker who was drafted into the rebel army in South Carolina, who refused to fight, was court-martialed and sentenced to be shot by a squad of twelve men detailed for that purpose. But when they received the order to fire the squad threw down their guns. The captain ordered the whole company to shoot the twelve, but the company refused also. Then the captain drew his revolver and tried to shoot the man himself, but missed fire two or three times. At this moment the Union soldiers galloped down and captured the whole, and on learning the facts set the Quaker free. God is able to deliver.

How quick God would have delivered this nation from slavery and every other evil, if like Nineveh we had humbled ourselves before him in fasting and prayer, and then there would not have followed that sirocco which has scorched this country ever since with ever increasing disaster. I refer to the greater spread and growth of the tobacco and beer habit, and looseness of thought in regard to prostitution which the war ndered.

Again, Hosea 2: 18 states in last clause, "and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the earth, and will make them to lie down safely." Add to this Paul's testimony to Timothy, "The servant of God must not strive." 2 Tim. 2: 24. Also the same to Titus, chap. 3: 2, "showing all meekness to all men." Also John the Baptist's instruction to the soldiers before they received the "second" or pentecostal blessing: "Do violence to no man." Luke 3: 14. Then cap this pyramid with the Lord's remarkable instruction in Matt. 5: 38–42 inclusive: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: but I say unto you, that ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain. Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away."

I fail to see any excuse for a child of God to go to war; in fact it is the height of inconsistency, folly and SIN. Carnal minds have always laughed at the believer, and always will till the close of time; yet God is always the same. It is no marvel that rationalistic Germany with its unlimited beer and two hundred thousand prostitutes is still inventing larger guns, and with their higher (?) criticism trying to destroy the Bible. But the meek and lowly follower of Jesus has better work on hand, praising God for his glory that fills the whole earth. Our Quaker brethren take the only consistent ground for a Christian, and if they had always taken as much heed to the Scripture, "Be filled with the spirit" (Eph. 5: 18), as they have to the peace measures of the Bible, the world would have been nearer evangelized.

But did not Jesus say, "I came not to send peace on the earth but a sword"? Yes, but "the sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God." For Christians to war with carnal weapons is not in God's plan; and just so far as they insist on justifying themselves and forcing their own rights, just so far he lets them prove their own weakness and suffer thereby. All war, therefore, being a sin on both sides, our late war was no exception. To be sure, good came out of it, since "he maketh the wrath of man to praise him."

The G. A. R. is an institution which serves to revive and keep in memory what ought to be to a Christian his everlasting shame; but Paul speaks of some even in his time "who glory in their shame, who mind earthly things."

I have often seen the house dedicated to the worship of Almighty God diverted to that of hero-worship; and it is a frequent spectacle to see the sanctity of the holy Sabbath broken into by the marching of bands and stacking of guns, and more reverence paid to dead humanity than to the living God who made both it and them. We expect no other things from the natural heart, since, "whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. 14: 23); but to the Christian another rule prevails: "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha." 1 Cor. 16: 22.

But suppose for a moment that the war was justifiable. The Grand Army society takes issue again with God in its method of perpetuating the memory of it,—through a secret oath-bound society; and this brings me to the second reason why a real Christian cannot join or remain

A MEMBER OF THE G. A. R.

Second reason—because of its secret oaths.

We read in Lev. 5: 4–6: "Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him, when he knoweth of it then he shall be guilty in one of these: and it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing."

We see here a command that prohibits all oath-bound societies, from Masonry, the mother of them, down through the whole list, to the last new one, the A. P. A. They all have the same mark of Cain—secrecy. Time-servers and men-pleasers wink at these things if they do not embrace them, but the heaven-born evangel thunders, "Repent, for the kingdom of God is at hand!"

But one says, every church is a secret society. But how does this sound alongside the secret oath—"What I tell you in darkness that speak ye in the light: and what ye hear in the ear that preach ye upon the housetops?" The same teacher said, "In secret have I said nothing" (John 18: 20); also: "Wherefore, if they shall say unto you . . . behold he is in the secret chamber, believe it not." Matt. 24: 26. Again, "For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." Jno. 3: 20, 21.

Again, Christ's instruction to his followers is most emphatic: "But I say unto you, swear not at all." Matt. 5: 34–37. This has reference to the confirming by an oath. Read over against the 33d verse, "Thou shalt not forswear thyself but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths" (referring to the old law), and is pronounced evil in the 37th verse. A Christian's word is as good as his bond or oath, the latter of which is here prohibited. All oath-bound secrecy is contrary to both the letter and spirit of Christ's teachings.

And now we come to the third reason why a Christian cannot join or remain a member of the G. A. R.

3rd. The Christian must be separate from sinners. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." Eph. 5: 11. I have observed that no matter how much the professed Christian element in a G. A. R. post protest against the annual ball or other sinful measure, the majority rule. The dance or fair is held, and the so-called Christian must share the profit or loss as the case may be. "Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." Rom. 8: 7. No matter how much they promise in their desire for an unholy union, the time comes when carnality asserts itself and will rule or ruin. God's holy, sweet, just, unalterable, inflexible, unchangeable, all-wise, perfect rule is found in 2 Cor. 6: 14–18, and he will make no exceptions to please you or me, no matter how many friends we may have who will be offended.

I QUOTE THE RULE:

"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? and what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty,"

No wonder that Paul, anxious for all the will of God, cried out in the next breath, "Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." If you and I have the spirit of Jesus and of Paul we shall make the same response,—"let us." How any Christian with the open Bible, and the blessed Holy Ghost to interpret and apply it, can join or remain with the G. A. R., is a mystery beyond my comprehension, unless on the ground of Christ's explanation to the Sadducees: "Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God." In all my observation I have never known an evangelist or preacher whom God was signally owning in the real conversion of sinners and entire sanctification of believers who was a member of a secret oath-bound order.

In conclusion let me with Paul ask, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed"? and does his incoming do for you what he did for Cornelius under Peter's preaching, viz., "Purify their hearts by faith"? In other words, also of the Holy Ghost, "sanctify you wholly"? Do you obey the instruction (Heb. 10: 23), "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering"? a profession the devil peculiarly hates, but God peculiarly blesses. May God bless this little Bible reading to the freeing of many souls from bondage; and glory shall be to the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen and amen.

Boston, Mass.

THE PARLIAMENT OF RELIGIONS.

(From the United Presbyterian.)

The Congress of Religions, which was so much talked of and advertised last year, has borne fruit at last, but it is not the kind of fruit that its supporters expected. Still, when we remember the objects of the congress, with its composition and manner of proceeding, the news which is brought to us from the East is not so startling. Mr. John W. Foster, the ex-secretary of state, who has just returned from a trip around the world, brings a strange story with him. He says that one of the Japanese delegates to the parliament carried back word to his people that Christianity had been found to be a failure, that the Western nations were dissatisfied with it, and in their attempt to find something better they had called together the parliament. There they had considered Buddhism and found it superior to the faith of Jesus, and America was ready to adopt Japan's nobler religion. Mr. Foster says the Hindoo and Mohammedan delegates carried away similar impressions, and are even now planning missionary movements to convert this country to their respective faiths. What wonder can it be that the parliament has been discouraging to the missionaries abroad? President C. C. Bonney, of the parliament, says he feels entirely confident of the final outcome. So will say every true Christian. The religion of a Saviour will in time be universally recognized in spite of the blow it received, but the World's Fair Congress of Religions can take none of the credit to itself.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH.

(From the annual report of the American Missionary Association.)

Notwithstanding the great educational advance made by our schools in the many communities reached by them, the situation which confronts us in the black South is as full of peril as of promise. No Christian country presents vaster or more necessitous mission fields. These fields are shadowed with ignorance, poverty and paganism. In New England the illiterate population, ten years of age and over, is less than six per cent of the total population. In the South it is twenty-seven per cent. The illiterate element of the colored population is sixty per cent of the whole colored population. As to poverty, eighty per cent of the wealth of the nation is in the North and only twenty per cent in the South. Of this twenty per cent a very small share, indeed, falls to the 7,000,000 of Negroes, who constitute by far the poorest element of our American people.

Of the paganism in the South, Dr. Behrends has well said that the note of paganism is its separation of worship from virtue, of religion from morals. This is the characteristic fact of the religion of the Negro. His religion, like himself, is the necessary product of his heritage; both are the outcome of historical environment. In the slave church honesty, truth and purity could not be effectively preached, because the necessary conditions of life often made the practice of these virtues impossible, hence the prevalent preaching had to be an excitation of mere feeling.

The ethical element of Christianity had to be left out of the religious teaching of the Negro because it is forbidden in his life. The restoration of this essential element must come with Christian education and Christian preaching. The work, small as it seems, is full of promise. The influence of our comparatively few and small Congregational churches is far beyond the proportion of their size and numbers. They are leavening great masses of the population, and making impossible the paralytic and hysterical old-time religion. This work can greatly be enlarged each year if the means can be had for it. Last year, for the fields of its entire Southern church work, mountain as well as lowland, the association has had only $45,000. The work done and the growth attained tell how carefully and effectively this small sum has been employed.

FREE METHODIST TESTIMONY.

A custom, born of conviction and blessed of God, is that of the Free Methodist conferences in making a declaration of their conviction respecting all important movements influencing the churches of Christ. The Cynosure has frequently printed these resolutions, and most earnestly recommends to all church bodies that this good example be generally followed. It is a constant proclamation to the world and the devil that the banner of the Lord's army will not be forsaken. Like the rallying cheer that passes from rank to rank in the line of battle, so these declarations kindle zeal, renew courage, revive faith. We pass them along the line. God bless the message we have here from a number of conferences.

WISCONSIN.

We still maintain our attitude toward secret societies, believing in many instances they defeat the ends of justice and the transgressor goes free, and believe we still need the injunction, "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them." We include the A. P. A. with the rest. Therefore we say, "God speed the Christian Association in its work for the overthrow of this evil."

MICHIGAN.

Believing that secret societies are a menace to our country, a corruption to politics, an impediment to justice in our courts, a bane in society and a debaser of the morals of the people, we reaffirm our uncompromising opposition to the whole list, from Freemasonry, the mother of all, down to the "American Protective Association," her youngest offspring.

COLORADO.

Secrecy is a combined, oath-bound conspiracy against God and the souls of men. It had its beginning in Babel, will culminate in the anti-Christ, where no man can buy or sell without the mark of the beast, and will terminate when the devil is cast into the lake of fire. Secrecy is a deadly foe to Christianity. When it enters a church the Holy Ghost goes out. Not only do secret orders stand without and oppose the cause of Christ but they enter into and constitute the heart of many of the so-called churches—the Jesuits in the Roman Catholic, and the Danites in the Mormon church. Secret organizations are destructive to both church and state, robbing the former of her spirituality and power and the latter of her liberty and manhood. The obligations of many of these societies are paramount to their obligation to their God, to the government and to man as such. Our present financial distress is largely the result of combined secrecy. Secrecy is a devil easily stirred up but hard to cast out; therefore

Resolved, That we as Free Methodists and free men and women will firmly and constantly contend for our principles as set forth in our book of Discipline as regards combined secrecy of every form.

WABASH.

We believe oath-bound, secret societies to be condemned by the injunction of holy writ wherein it says, "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?" 2 Cor. 6: 14 And again we are commanded to "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather to reprove them. Wherefore he saith come out from among them."

We believe them also to be detrimental to our government, to society and to Christianity, morally, socially, spiritually and financially. As embassadors of Jesus Christ and as lovers of all mankind we feel called upon to use our influence against them both by example and by precept.

We feel like maintaining our covenant vow, viz, "We will abstain from connection with all secret societies, keeping ourselves free to follow the will of the Lord in all things." "Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it then shall he be guilty in one of these. And it shall be when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing." Lev. 5: 4, 5.

NORTH MINNESOTA.

Believing that secret societies as a whole are anti-Christian in character, and that no good cause requires the assistance of secret oaths to support it; that they are a curse to the nation by putting evil men in authority and obstructing justice in the courts; that their rules are often more binding to them than either civil or divine law, we recommend that we abate nothing of our efforts against this evil, and that we rigidly enforce our rule against such societies; including those who claim to have only "open secrets."

GOD FOR OUR NATIVE LAND.

ARRANGED FROM DR BETHUNE BY PROF. J. A. ADAMS FOR THE NEW YORK CONVENTION.

God's blessing be upon
Our own, our native land,
The land our fathers won
By their strong heart and hand.
The keen axe, and the brand;
For they felled the forest pride,
And the tyrant foe defied—
The free, the rich, the wide.
God for our native land!

To none upon a throne
But God, we bow the knee;
No mystic ties we own
In this land of the free.
We bow to His command
Who said, "Let there be light,"
With all its glory bright,
Dispel the gloom of night,
God for our native land.

America, for thee
In one united prayer,
To make thee pure and free
As sunshine, and as air,
We pledge each heart and hand.
For the blood our fathers shed,
For the ashes of the dead,
For the sacred soil we tread,
God for our native land.

HIGH TREASON AGAINST TRUTH.

(From the N. Y. Witness.)

Six Protestant ministers, representing six different denominations, assisted at the dedication services of a magnificent new synagogue in Cleveland the other day, and expressed their joy in the growth of liberal ideas which made such a union possible.

This action is a striking object lesson on the direction in which Protestantism is traveling and the progress which it has made in that direction. We are gaining in so-called liberality at the expense of definiteness of conviction and of spiritual power.

Is there any real liberality in looseness? Suppose a minister should insist on the admission into decent society of the liar, the thief, the licentious man and the drunkard, on the ground that none of us are perfect, and that each of these individuals has some good points; would that minister deserve credit for liberality or should he be discarded as lacking in correct moral sense? What would be the inevitable effect upon decent society of the introduction to it of these immoral elements?

So it is with faith. If there is any such thing as positive truth, and if we know that we have the truth, then we are bound to reject without reservation all systems which reject the truth. We are bound to stand firmly on God's side and to bear witness to the truth for him.

Of course, this obligation does not apply to unessential doctrines, or to any doctrines upon which there is room for an honest difference of opinion among those who trust in the atonement of Christ for salvation. All bodies of Evangelical Christians can worship together harmoniously, because they are all brethren in Christ, recognizing him as their common Saviour and Lord. But no Christian can acknowledge Judaism as a form of the true religion without thereby giving away his Christ.

Jesus said, "He that is not with me, is against me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth." Judaism does not even profess to be with Christ; on the contrary, it distinctly repudiates him.

Oh, Protestant ministers, if you have any Christ to preach, preach him, and take your stand definitely under his banner at all times. If you have no positive faith; if you do not know that there is any essential difference between a religion which is built up on Christ and one that repudiates him; then say so frankly, and cast in your lot with those who share your unbelief, or "liberality," if you prefer to call it so. You are entirely out of place, in professedly evangelical pulpits.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Bates' College—An expose of the A. P. A.—A State flower for Vermont.—The Lyceum League.

New England is justly proud of her colleges—proud especially of classic Cambridge on the banks of the tortuous Charles, every inch of which is sacred ground to a true New Englander, even if its ways are as winding as those of a modern politician;—but Lewiston, Me., has the honor to be the seat of the first college in the United States to open its doors to women, and the Free Baptists one of the few sects that have originated on New England soil, and whose history is an outgrowth of those principles of religious liberty taught by Roger Williams, has the further honor to have taken the initiative in this forward step. The retirement of Bates' venerable president, Dr. O. B. Cheney, and the inauguration of his successor, Geo. C. Chase, was an occasion of much interest in the annals of this small but sturdy denomination. The inaugural address of President Chase traced the beginnings of the college idea in Massachusetts which arose out of "the deep felt needs of the time for instruction and leadership in the most vital concerns of that age." To quote the language of the men who founded Harvard, its purpose was "That the commonwealth may be furnished with knowing and understanding men, and the churches with an able ministry." Yale College in its original charter employed almost the same language, stating its aim to be "an institution wherein youth may be instructed . . . who through the blessing of God may be fitted for public employment in church and civil state." That was an age slow but sure. They took the time to lay enduring foundations. Pres. Chase, among other historical facts mentioned that the news from Europe published in the Boston News Letter in 1704 was thirteen months behind the time. Fifteen years later he congratulated his readers that the number had been reduced to five. Our fathers doubtless thought this a wonderful achievement, and if there was any dreamer among them like Mr. Edward Bellamy, to catch glimpses of an age of electricity when the death of the Czar or some financial deal of the Rothschilds would become an hour or two after common news in the streets of Boston and New York, history has not preserved his name. Had there fortunately been such a prophet to see the needs of the future and with sufficient honor in his day and generation to make his contemporaries lay out Boston in broad and straight avenues instead of narrow and crooked lanes, posterity would have canonized him.

Tht Post prints an expose of the A. P. A. from which it appears that the assertion so often and so stoutly made by many of our political leaders, that they never belonged to the A. P. A., should not be too implicitly believed, as the candidate is not initiated into the A. P. A. at all, but into the order of the Amoreans. Whether this subterfuge quiets the consciences of all the members is to be doubted, but it is a lesson in duplicity and double-dealing not worthy of an honest, self-respecting American. The lack of confidence in the business world is deplored on all sides, but this destruction of mutual trust has been largely the result of lodge training. If the A. P. A. teaches its members thus to lie without a blush, though this was the only count in the indictment it ought to be enough to condemn it in the mind of every patriotic Christian citizen. Every candidate, according to the Post's expose, must swear on the crucifix laid over an open Bible, the object being to keep out spies, as all good Catholics would be supposed to shrink with horror from taking such an oath over an emblem so sacred. But certainly the A. P. A.s are not so ignorant as to think that a Jesuit sworn to seek the interests of his church by any and every means, and believing that no act can be sinful which has this end in view, would shrink from swearing on the crucifix or anything else.

The women of Vermont are divided in their choice of a State flower between the trailing arbutus, the daisy, and the white clover. But Massachusetts has pre-empted the first. It belongs to her by a kind of divine right. They must choose either the daisy or the clover; but the farmers would perhaps be justified in calling an indignation meeting if their greatest enemy against which they must wage an unceasing warfare should be elected as the State flower. Between a field of odorless and unthrifty daisies, and one of clover, caressed by south winds, loved by the bee, fragrant and beautiful even in its death, there ought to be no difficulty in choosing. But why does nobody think of the buttercup, "the little children's dower," as Browning so beautifully calls it; or the dandelion that dots all our waste places with its golden star of promise; that comes the earliest and stays the longest, and which is not more "common" than the daisy or the golden-rod, and is vastly superior from an æsthetic point of view over the sun-flower, which admirers of Oscar Wilde so much affected a few years ago.

The Congregationalist Club at its last meeting adopted a resolution disapproving of licensing theaters for Sunday concerts. Perhaps this is in line with some of the sentiments expressed at the recent meeting of the Lyceum League of the Old South the other night. This is an organization originated by the Youth's Companion which pledges its members to allegiance to the flag, and is intended to instill patriotic principles into the minds of the young people of to-day. "The foundations of true citizenship will not be reached," said Edward Everett Hale, who was one of the speakers, "until it is believed that a policeman can make a good Sunday-school teacher, and a Sunday-school teacher a good policeman." Gov. Greenhalge, who never speaks without saying something worth listening to, talked in the same strain. "That cannot be a good society," he said, "which was not true to the test made by the Pilgrim Fathers, to put the highest things in the highest place, the things of the soul first and those of money last." New England will never find her golden age restored until she comes back to the principles of her Sabbath-keeping founders.

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

Reform News.

THE NEW YORK STATE CONVENTION.

TAMMANY AND ELECTION HINDER, BUT A GOOD MEETING WITH HOPEFUL EFFECT IS HELD.

246 W. 36th St., New York, Nov. 1, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—Another mile stone is passed for the anti-secrecy reform in the Empire State. Our convention just concluded in this city has differed in some respects from any with which it has been my privilege to be identified. The attendance was fair, all things considered. A lively dog-fight on Broadway would have collected more people in ten minutes than we had at any one session. We found ourselves surrounded by meetings, political, social, and religious, all doing their utmost to attract the busy toilers of this great metropolis. The cannon boomed, the bands played, and the boys ran to see the show. A goodly number of God-fearing, thoughtful Christian people turned aside to consider what might be done to stem the tide of iniquity that surged through the streets. While in one building the Lexow Committee were looking upon the effects of the blasting, cursing, and heaven-defying Tammany Hall secret society, we were in another considering the CAUSES WHICH MAKE TAMMANY SOCIETIES.

Of the five sessions held, but few of the friends attended two or more. Had all who attended come at once we should have had a full house. I do not attribute this to a lack of interest, but to the pressure of other matters. To be sure there were some who might have been there who were not. Many who helped pay the expenses did not come to see how their money was being expended. I take it they were like the man who always went to sleep when his pastor was preaching, but kept awake whenever a stranger occupied the pulpit. When asked his reason for this strange action, he replied that he had all confidence in his pastor; he would say it right any way: but he thought it well to watch the new man. While I appreciate the confidence some friends seem to have in me, I would rather they had watched to see whether I expended their contributions wisely.

Every man on the program filled his place, and not a few unexpected addresses were added to the printed list, as the secretary's minutes will show. There was all through that was fittingly led to a climax in the concluding session by Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard.

A GLOW OF HOLY ENTHUSIASM

The addresses were all without manuscript. The Cynosure readers will be favored with a taste only of the good things which we enjoyed. Brethren F. W. Farr and James Mathews promise briefs of their addresses. I have not been able to see other speakers since the convention, but should be glad if they would forward briefs to the editor of the Cynosure without special solicitation; some seem bashful, as I used to be. Don't be afraid to help on our cause by sending your testimonies to the Cynosure. We all like to hear and read them.

I should like to write of each who contributed to the success of this gathering, but can not.

SPECIAL MENTION

should be made of the self-sacrificing help of Rev. James Parker. He gave freely of time and money. His people followed him to the convention in larger numbers than any other church, excepting the one in which we met. Rev. J. H. Tate gave us a royal welcome, and together with Mrs. J. A. Wallace contributed to our entertainment. Many of the Free Methodist pastors and people favored us with their presence and were found among our reliable helpers. They did not peep in at the door and not seeing the house crowded run away, as did some of the faint-hearted.

The money needed was considerable, $144 50 being the expense of this gathering. Some of this amount was pledged in advance. Three collections were taken at the convention, the total thus secured amounting to $132.86. Returning to my room I found a letter, from a friend who had kindly assisted before, containing a check for $10. Nine dollars additional have since been handed me, so the supply is greater than the immediate need. It's just like our God to give us more than we ask for, unless we are unreasonable in our requests.

THE RESULTS.

The question may be entertained by some whether an expenditure of this amount of money for a convention, when there are people in the city dying every week for want of proper food, is wise. Are the results such as call for the expenditure of the money? This question opens a field for inquiry which I can not here enter. It is enough to say that I believe every dollar of this money was wisely expended: 1st. Because it helped leaders of the people to see causes that were producing poverty of soul and body; and thus seeing, they would be enabled to help the downcast as they could not with dollars and cents.

2. It will stir up the friends all through this section to greater activity in the advocacy of truth.

3. Several testified to having received new light; some will leave lodges who might not have otherwise done so. The salvation of a single soul is worth more than the cost of this gathering.

OTHER WORK.

Aside from the convention my privileges for testimony have been many. I have twice lectured for nearly an hour to the students attending Dr. Simpson's training school. These students come from eleven States, Canada, Sweden and elsewhere. Many are going as missionaries to China, Africa, and the uttermost parts of the earth. Oh, what a privilege to help these dear friends to a better knowledge of the truth, regarding the kingdom of Christ. Their enthusiasm was great. Several purchased copies of the new book "Danger Signals" and assured me of a welcome when I could speak again. My lecture in the Swedish Lutheran church, Brooklyn (Rev. Jacobson, pastor), was not as largely attended as it would have been had not a driving rain storm come at that time. A company of perhaps 150 came through the rain and listened intently while I told them of a road no Christian man could travel. The pastor handed me $5 as he remarked for car fare and hoped they could hear me again at a more favorable time. This church has some 900 members. They are building a new edifice, the old one having become too small. It does not always make a church small in membership to oppose secret societies. I lecture again to-night in another Swedish Lutheran church, Brooklyn.

W. B. Stoddard.

AGAINST INFIDELITY AND THE LODGE.

THE COAST AGENT AT SHEDDS AND HALSEY.

After two nights at Plainview with Prof. Baldwin in a series of meetings where souls were being saved, I went to Shedds, where I was announced to speak on Friday the 19th.

I was met by Rev. H. L. Hood, pastor of the United Presbyterian churches at Shedds and Halsey, who greeted me with Christian courtesy, saying, "I am glad to have you come here and discuss these reform questions. I think it is needed. I need it myself, to better post me in combating these evils, especially the lodge. Rev. H. is a fine young man, honest and true to his convictions of right. He graduated at Allegheny Seminary last spring with a class of twenty-nine. He came to Albany with the General Assembly in May. When he saw the well-watered and fruitful plains of Linn county, that settled him. He pitched his tent at Shedds. He will succeed here I am sure.

On Friday night we had a fair audience. I spoke on the prohibition question. I find here some strong friends of that doctrine. Among them is Bro. Sutherland of the U. P. church.

On Saturday night I spoke at Halsey on the lodge evil to a small audience, mostly women. However, when my address was half through, in came the Odd-fellows from their lodge. They were just in time for the best half, and they fulfilled the saying of Jesus, "The last shall be first." They were the last in the house, but first out.

The next morning I spoke to a good audience on the subject of infidelity. Many regretted that they were not out the night before to hear me on the lodge.

On Sabbath as I passed around distributing tracts, one man (a Mason) said, "I guess I know more about that than you do." I answered, "You are the man I am looking for; I want to learn more of it to be better able to inform my fellewmen of its awful evils." When I asked him to "try me," he grinned and turned away. I think good was accomplisbed here.

In the afternoon I went again to Shedds through a regular Oregon rain, which kept up for hours. I spoke at Shedds again at 4 P M to a fair audience, and then attended services at the M. E. church at 7:30 and listened to a good, plain Gospel sermon by the new pastor, Rev. Kershaw. May the Lord wonderfully bless this year the pastors and people of this place.

I came home to Philomath on Monday for a few days' rest to my throat, and improved the time in part, by correspondence, preparing an address on Odd-fellowship, which I delivered at the Keezel chapel on Sunday night, Oct. 28, having preached in the morning from Matt. 16: 24

I am arranging a trip to California to commence about Nov. 20 Any person desiring an address in that State may address Rev. David Morrow, 1015 Twenty-first street, Oakland, Cal., who has the work in hand to arrange for me. Let all pray that agencies may be put in motion there that will tell for good in time and eternity.

P. B. Williams.

AN ADDRESS AT WHEATON COLLEGE.

WHEATON, Ill., Oct. 20, 1894.

Recently at chapel exercises the lecture was given by Rev. S. F. Porter, the college agent of the N. C. A. His topic was "Freedom." He gave interesting reminiscences of the times before the great civil war, when slavery prevailed in the South, and dominated in the politics and even in the churches of the North. Then he pictured the condition of those who are the voluntary slaves of tobacco or of ardent spirits.

Thirdly, he spoke of those who put themselves under obligations to secret lodges; and he closed with a stirring appeal to the young people before him to preserve their freedom from all such entanglements, in order that they might be free to serve God and reach the high ideals which the Master has designed for all whom the truth has made free.

The address was interesting, instructive, and inspiring. Would that it might be heard by all the students in all the colleges in the country. It could scarcely fail to reach and elevate all who possess any trace of self-respect or manhood.

E. WHIPPLE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CHRIST, YESTERDAY, TO-DAY, FOREVER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.

DEAR EDITOR:—Your editorial, "Who is this King of Glory," is a superior statement of a present vital truth. It is a complete victory over Unitarian Boston ideas. The matter lies in my mind in figure thus: The pillars of Hercules stand on either side of the straights of Gibraltar. Let one represent Christ's divine life before his humiliation, the other his divine life after. Below the waters the pillars are one—united inseparably. Let this portion of the one continuous rock, which is submerged, represent the earth-life of our divine Lord. Notwithstanding the humiliating conditions of his incarnation, he is the same yesterday (before incarnation), to-day, (time of his earth-life), and forever, to whom shall be glory, world without end.

Very gratefully, E. B. WYLIE,
Pastor Summerdale Cong'l Church.

"GOOD" AND "BAD" AS LODGE TERMS.

DE KALB, Iowa.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—That the lodge is not bad because good men have belonged to it, once looked like a very plausable argument to me, and also to others.

"Good men and ministers belong to the lodge." If this prove the lodge to be good, what does it prove if a majority of the lodge members are bad?

A neutral minister of the M. E. church said, "Good men of the lodge are in bad company." His evidence is known to be true in the same neutral church, on that subject.

It is well known that a majority of the lodge do not even make a profession of Christianity, and many claim lodge religion "good enough." We are forced to believe the lodge composed of wicked men is a very religious institution, opened and closed with Christless prayer. And though the Bible says of Christ, "If they say he is in the secret chambers, believe it not," good men are so deceived as to keep the bad company of which the Bible commands, "Come out from among them and be ye separate." A good man, by disobeying this command, endorses evil by the bad company that he keeps. "Actions speak louder than words." The better a man is if he endorse evil in any way, the more the devil will take advantage of him to deceive others and his good name be used to bolster up that which he may and should abhor as evil. To let his abhorrence of the evil be known in every right way is his light on that question; but how often the needed light is under a bushel of concealment.

One reason why many good men do not let their light shine more on lodge evil publicly is, if one speak of the lodge ever so mildly before a congregation, some will show signs in their faces that truth has pricked them in the heart, and most men do not wish to offend. But in being over cautious in giving offence one is liable to offend God. If we "rather fear him who is able to cast both soul and body in hell," we will try to "save men from the error of their way," even if many are offended and persecute us for it.

To speak the truth in love to all, having no desire to offend, and yet "not shun to declare the whole counsel of God," but "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints;" to do this firmly, like the solid rock Christ Jesus, requires greatness of spirit and to be "wise as serpents and harmless as doves." May the Lord add his blessing to the success of reform for his name's sake.

CYRUS SMITH.

WORD FROM NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24, 1894.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—I started to the train on Saturday, Oct. 13th, to go up to St. James, La., to preach an annual home mission sermon on the 14th, at the Antioch Baptist church, Rev. Thomas Allen, pastor; and from thence I was to go to Vicksburg, Miss., where appointments had been made at five different churches. But before reaching the depot I was prostrated and was compelled to return home. I was very sick with malarial fever, but am up and about again, though weak.

I have succeeded in getting a very excellent young married lady to assist me in my church day school. Thus I can get away occasionally to make a brief visit to other points. We have eighty-four scholars enrolled, and a regular average attendance of sixty or sixty five. This alone speaks of the people's confidence. I am still battling for the right. My invitation to visit Vicksburg has been renewed for November 1st, if it is possible.

Yours in the work,
F. J. DAVIDSON.

LITERATURE.

TALES OF TRUST, embracing authentic accounts of providential guidance, assistance and deliverance. Written and selected by H. L. Hastings, editor of the Christian. Pp. 382. Price $1.00. H. L. Hastings, Boston.

This is a companion volume of "Records of Prevailing Prayer" by the same publisher. Both are excellent companions for the Bible, and deserve an honored place in the family library where they be ready for handy and constant reading. The minds of children stored with these rich narratives of trust in God, and of fulfilled promises, will not need tales of adventure, of crime or of savagery and war to help make life interesting. They will rather be well endowed with a generous sympathy, a strong faith, and a tender conscience,—the best endowment a child can have to build a noble character upon. Some of these narratives are new, some are old and familiar. We love to greet them often until we are as familiar with them as we are with the story of Paul's shipwreck or Elijah's stewards. Both these volumes are handsomely bound and will make excellent holiday gifts.

Thomas Whittaker, the New York publisher, announces for early publication a work which will prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the famous Marshal Ney, whom Napoleon called "the bravest of the brave," instead of having been executed by French bullets, as history records, was in reality secretly conveyed, after his supposed death, to Charleston, S. C., and lived in North Carolina for upwards of thirty years. In preparing this history the author, Rev. James A. Weston, has given many years of diligent investigation, and has visited many places in Europe as well as in the United States to strengthen every statement and detail. The result of this painstaking labor is a book of marvelous interest to every student of history, and a fascinating story to the general reader. It will be a veritable revelation in the literary world, and will throw new light upon the life and career of Napoleon, and upon the Napoleonic era in general.

Lee and Shepherd, the enterprising publishers of Boston, introduced a few years ago some of the finest illustrated souvenir booklets which had up to that time appeared. The same firm gives to the holiday trade this year a unique and beautiful banner design in a four-fold card, bearing choice sentiments of great authors intertwined with floral ornaments of beautiful artistic design, by Irene Jerome. This series bears the titles: "Every-day Banner," "Rest Banner," "Joy Banner" and "What will the Violets be."

McClure's Magazine for November opens the promised Napoleon series with fifteen portraits of Napoleon in early manhood, most of them reproductions of famous paintings, and portraits of his father and mother, and other persons closely related to or intimately associated with him, accompanying an interesting account, by Miss Ida M. Tarbell, of his career down to the time he assumed command of the army in Italy. The portraits are from a very large and carefully chosen collection made by Hon. Gardiner C. Hubbard. The editors announce that they have a hundred and fifty notable Napoleon pictures yet to present. In this number is presented also the first of a series of true detective stories, derived, by permission, from the official records of the Pinkerton detective bureau. It is the breathlsss story of the discovery and frustration, by Allan Pinkerton, of the plot to assassinate President Lincoln as he passed through Baltimore, on the way to Washington for his first inauguration. Other noteworthy articles are an illustrated account, by Hugh Robert Mills, one of the highest authorities in geographical science, of the parts of the world that still remain to be explored; and a description, by H. J. W. Dam, of some wonderful experiments by Professor Dewar, of the Royal Institute, in temperatures of nearly four hundred degrees below zero.

The Watchword, a monthly devoted to the promotion of spiritual life in the church, under the editorial supervision of Dr. A. J. Gordon, issues a double number. "The Evidence by Experience" is the leading editorial. Dr. J. M. Gray, of Boston, also writes, as always, earnestly and well, of "The Witness of John." Mrs. Whittemore and Rev. A. B. Simpson, of the Christian Alliance, are also contributors. Rev. E P. Marvin, of Lockport, N. Y., whose frequent contributions on the higher Christian life make his name familiar everywhere, writes on "Separation," from "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers;" but singularly while he mentions business, politics, marriage, etc., he has nothing to say about the lodge alliance, which Dr. Pentecost tells us threatens the church with its greatest danger. He might at least have quoted Mr. Moody on this same text.

St. Nicholas keeps a good promise in the November number. The story of the times of Napoleon, entitled "A Boy of the First Empire" opens in a lively way, captivating young and old readers. It is finely illustrated. More important and valuable but of less entrancing interest is the beautiful sketch of William Cullen Bryant, by Prof. Brander Mathews, and a continuation of the study of American seals by the naturalist, Wm. Hornaday, with excellent illustrations of some varieties now almost extinct. Stories of football, of bicycling adventure of the old game of "golf," and of Texas cow-boy life make a number of thrilling interest.

The Preacher's Magazine for November contains a sermon appropriate to Thanksgiving Day, by the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, and one of vigor by James Stalker, D. D. Rev. Mark Guy Pearse speaks of Esther, the queen, as "The Orphan Maiden," in a discourse of much richness. "The Reward of the Teacher," by F. W. Farrar, D. D., concludes a series upon "The Teacher and the Class." Many suggestive and timely outlines for Thanksgiving give the Homiletical Department an important place in this issue.

"The Relations of Vice to Dress" is a tract for mothers by Frances E. Willard. "There is nothing in sex as such which makes the female fond of dress and display" is the opening sentence, and the author proves her point before she gets far into her book. To the mother anxious about the dressing of her daughter it is worth "its weight in gold." There is more in dress than some mothers or girls ever thought of. Every mother should read this tract. The Woman's Temperance Publishing Association issue it.

Chrysanthemums and Zinnias have the larger part of the program in Vick's Illustrated Monthly. But there are pages of other good reading for guardians and florists. Of the government seed distribution the editor speaks his mind freely that it is a "political slop-shop."

"I would do almost anything in my power to help on the work of rescuing all Christian men from the 'grip' of Masonry and all other secret and un-Christian societies. I believe that Masonry is an incalculable evil and essentially anti-Christ in its principles and influence."—From Dr. George F. Pentecost's Letter to Conference of Christians on Secret Societies, Chicago, 1887.

"I belonged to two secret societies, and have bumped against nearly all of them, and know what I am talking about. Their sociability and benevolence may be all well enough; but they belong to the world. . . . . I have about made up my mind that the whole thing is of the world, and the enemy of God and his church Brethren, why don't you say Amen? You know I am telling the truth; and I pray that you may have grace to receive it in love, as I have spoken it. As Christ's disciples we can make no compromise with the world The friendship of the world is enmity against God."—From Bible reading, by L. W. Munhall, evangelist, on Separation, given Feb. 25, 1890, at Somerville, Mass.

BITS OF LODGERY.

At the forty-fourth annual session of the grand chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Illinois, a membership of about 18,000 was reported.

The Lodge of Elks at Rockford, Ill, has disbanded. Most of the members will join the Order of Mystic Shrine. It is an easy step from one to the other.

The Tribe of Ben Hur is a new lodge hatched in fertile Indiana brains. Its local bodies are called "courts." A State organizer is busy among the gullible Hoosiers.

At a convention of Catholic Knights of Ohio at Dayton, a resolution providing for the observance of Bishop Watterson's order relative to the admission of liquor dealers to membership in Catholic societies was defeated.

The Odd-fellows of Buffalo, N. Y., have determined to have revenge on the Catholic authorities by deciding to admit no more Catholics to membership in their order. It was because one of the lodges was refused admission to a Catholic church to attend the funeral of a deceased member. We would like to report a like antagonism to all Christian churches.

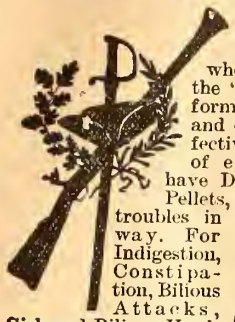
Judge Brown, of Indianapolis, sustained the grand lodge Knights of Pythias in its suit against Koerner lodge for property. Koerner lodge seceded because the supreme lodge ruled out the German ritual. It surrendered its charter, but held its property. The ruling is in favor of the grand lodge. The case is a test and is regarded as important, in that it will be followed by other suits throughout the United States. An appeal will be taken.

The English railroad guard, writes Col. H. G. Prout, in November Scribner, is by no means the important person that the conductor is in the United States, for he has no opportunity to sit with the passengers, to talk politics, or horses or railroads. He never rises to the rank of captain, as all conductors do in our Southern States. He may become a Knight Templar, for all I know, but I never saw him with his waistcoat ablaze with the symbols of that order which so often decorate our own conductors.

It has been current belief in this country for a number of years that the Catholic church never dreamed of disapproving the Knights of Labor. Cardinal Gibbons has been accorded credit and not a little praise for prevailing upon the Roman authorities to let the order alone. Documents published by La Verite show that this belief is erroneous; that the Holy See has, on the contrary, repeatedly condemned the Knights of Labor and their constitution in unmistakable terms; and that the denunciatory decree has never been formally rescinded. The only thing Cardinal Gibbons accomplished by his advocacy of the order in question was a suspension of the effect of the condemnatory sentence pronounced by the Pope.—Chicago Review (Catholic).

Everybody is Going South Now a days.

The only section of the country where the farmers have made any money the past year is in the South. If you wish to change you should go down now and see for yourself. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad and connections will sell tickets to all points South for trains of October 2, November 6 and December 4, at one fare round trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he can not sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or Geo. L. Cross, N. W. P. A., 6 the Rookery, Chicago, Ill.



REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3 00

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

THE OLD-FASHIONED STYLE

of pill gives you a feeling of horror when you see it and when you feel it. Like the "blunderbuss" of a former decade, it is big and clumsy, but not effective. In this century of enlightenment, you have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver troubles in the most effective way. For Indigestion, Constipation, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headache, nothing has been found to equal these pills of Dr. Pierce's invention.

MR. S. BAKER, SR.

MR. SAMUEL BAKER, SR., of No. 161 Summit Av., Phillipsburgh, N. J., says: "There is nothing that can compare with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, as Liver Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken."

BIBLES at 1-3 Price for 30 days only. Best and Cheapest Family and Oxford Bibles in the world. Write for circulars at once. NATIONAL BIBLE HOUSE, Syracuse, N. Y.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T 22 344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD. Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE POT TEA

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices. THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50

(Postage extra)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Hasklnville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

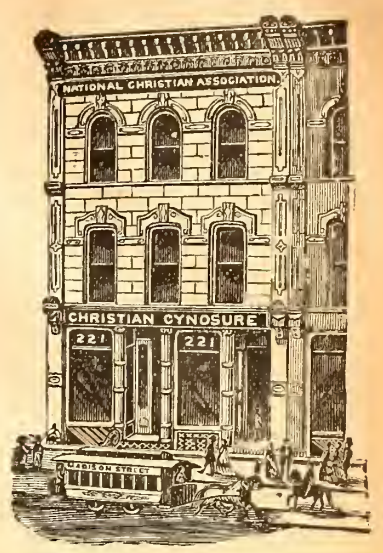
ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians



CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING

(The gift of Philo Carpenter)

—AND OFFICE OF—

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,

221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Wilden Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Luclus Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Farls, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1894.

ILLINOIS STATE CONVENTION.

In the Reformed Presbyterian church (Rev. W. J. Smiley, pastor), Sparta, Ill., Nov. 15 and 16, 1894, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, president.

PROGRAM.

Evening session, Thursday, Nov. 15. Opening exercises and election of officers. Opening address by the president. "Minor Secret Orders," Rev. C. M. Ritchie. "Secret Political Societies—Their Influence," Rev. J. S. T. Milligan.

Friday, 9;30 A. M. Devotional exercises. "How do we Know that the Secrets of Freemasonry are Exposed," Rev. D. S. Faris. General discussion led by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan, on "How can the N. C. A. be made more efficient in accomplishing the work for which it was organized."

1:30 P. M. Address, "The Lodge a Barrier to Temperance and Christian Work," Wm. Little. General discussion—"Labor and Secret Organizations"—led by Pres. Charles A. Blanchard. Report of committee on resolutions.

7:30 P. M. Praise service. Address by Pres. Charles A. Blanchard—subject, "The present duty of the church respecting lodges."

NOTICE —Preceding the Illinois State Convention at Sparta, President Blanchard of Wheaton College will lecture Saturday, Nov. 10, at Marrissa, subject: "Prohibition and the Lodge."

Nov. 11 at Gordon's Grove, subject; "The Sabbath."

Monday, Nov. 12, at Baldwin, on "The Lodge Question."

Tuesday, Nov. 13, at Coulterville, on "Secret Societies."

Wednesday, Nov. 14, at Oakdale, on "National Reform."

IOWA.

The Iowa Anti-secret Christian Association will hold its annual meeting in the United Presbyterian church, Birmingham, Iowa, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 13th and 14th. Free entertainment will be provided for all delegates. Churches and associations are requested to send delegates to the convention. As far as determined upon the following is the program:

TUESDAY.

2:00 P M. Devotional Exercises.....Pastor U. P. Church.
Address of Welcome.....R E Wylie.
Response by Chairman; Report of Secretary; Appointment of Committees.
3:00. Address.....Rev. T. P. Robb (Ref. Pres.) Linton.
"The Evils of Minor Secret Orders."
3:30. Business.
7:30. Devotional Exercises.....Mrs. W. L. Enlow.
7:40. Address. .....Rev. E. B Wylie (Cong.), Chicago.
"The One Salvation."
8:20. Address.....Rev. W. L. Ferris (Cong) Cherokee.
"The Secret Empire; Anti-State, and Anti-Church."

WEDNESDAY.

9:00. Devotional Exercises.....R. E. Wylie
9:10. Miscellaneous Business.
9:40. Address.....Pastor F. M. Church, Birmingham.
10:20. General Discussion.....
"Encouragements in this Reform."
11:00. Report of Committee on Resolutions.
2:00. Devotional Exercises.....Pastor F. M. Church.
Report of Treasurer; Election of officers.
2:40. Address.. Rev J. B. Jackson (U. P.), Morning Sun.
"Antagonism of Secretism to Social Order."
3:20. Address ..... W. I. Phillips, Gen. Sec., Chicago.
"Secret Societies in Politics."
4:00. Miscellaneous Business
7:30. Devotional Exercises.....Rev. C. D. Trumbull, D.D.
7:40. Address...Rev. J. A. Monteth (U.P.), Cedar Rapids.
"The Relation of the Lodge to the Christian Church."
8:20. Address.... ...Rev. S H. Swarts (M E.), Morris, Ill.

The program as here presented may be changed slightly, and more names may be added to it.

BIRMINGHAM is on the Chicago, Ft. Madison, and Des Moines R R., which runs from Ft. Madison to Ottumwa. Libertyville is a station between Ottumwa and Birmingham. Trains from Ottumwa and Libertyville arrive at Birmingham at 8:05 A. M., and 4:51 P. M.; from Ft. Madison at 11:41 A M., and 4:51 P M Trains leave Ottumwa for Birmingham at 6 A. M., and 3:30 P. M.; leave Ft. Madison for Birmingham at 9:50 A M, and 1:45 P. M. Connections at Fort Madison with A., T., & S. F.; C, B, and Q; and C, Burlington, & K. C.; at Libertyville with C., R, I, and P; and at Ottumwa with C., M., & St. P.; Wabash; Iowa Central; C. B. & Q; and C., R, I, & P. roads.

NEW ENGLAND.

Please take notice and prepare for the regular annual meeting of the incorporated New England Christian Association on the 19th and 20th of December next. Make a note of the date and look for the official call next week.

J. P. STODDARD Cor. Sec'y

Boston, November 2, 1894.

TO BE NOTED.—The series of short articles begun this week from Prof. Ely, of Fairfield College, Nebraska, will be read with avidity. They are briefly but strongly written by a brother who has for years spoken earnestly on this great theme. We gratefully commend him to our readers.——The continuation of the poem opens a new scene and reflects a new picture of our many-hued society.——The address of Bro. Briggs is an argument against war that some may think extreme. God brought to this nation so great a deliverance by the rebellion that we are apt to forget the horrible fact of war itself. Whether or not it was justifiable, is secondary to the fact that it was necessary. God saw it to be the needed punishment for our crime of slavery.——We earnestly commend the reading of the articles on the Holy Spirit's work on the tenth page.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE?—The Cynosure means to persevere with the N. C. A. Board, until their names shall appear often as contributors in these columns. Two respond this week. Since they are in a place where it is expected of them to put forward our cause by way of suggestion and leadership, if their thoughts are much on the work of the Association they will seek expression and an audience. The same can be said of all the members of the N. C. A. New questions are continually arising. This week we put the Knight Templar celebration of 1900 to the front, and ask the brethren already mentioned, and all other friends of the reform—What shall we do? If it is for Christ how shall we promote it? If against him, how oppose and frustrate? Or, if this is an evil which, like the civil war, must needs be, how shall we use it to overthrow the Satanic mesmerism and slavery of the lodge? We suggest as a starter that a memorial be prepared and sent officially from the Board to the entire religious press of the country. And in addition that a similar memorial be drawn for the signatures of all Christian ministers who are willing to protest against this dishonor to our holy religion; this also to be widely published, and discussion awakened in every quarter. Let everybody who has a wise thought on this matter send it in.

THE CHRIST CELEBRATION OF 1900

"Out of Zion God hath shined" in Christ: "a fire shall devour before him and it shall be very tempestuous round about him" The great moral conflicts of the ages center about the cross. Satan knew what that cross meant for his dark realm, and for forty days struggled to keep it from rising on Calvary. He staked his all in the last temptation—the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them—and lost. But he wishes men to persuade themselves that they have recognized the King of Zion. So the Masonic lodge, which in its fundamental degrees and principles rejects Christ, that it may call Jews, Moslems, Parsees, and "the worshipers of deity in every form" brothers, is preparing for a great Christ celebration in the opening year of the next century.

WHY OBJECT.

1. Because the Knight Templar Masons who propose this century festival are, in fact the most un-Christlike part of an un-Christian secret order. Their praise of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is much like that of the devils whom Jesus forbade to have anything to say about him; although, unlike men, those devils were orthodox and spoke truth. Their praise is like that of the Phillipian damsel who followed Paul about,—speaking the truth of his work but spoiling the revival by mixing the testimony of demons with that of the converts.

The Knight Templar oath is awful blasphemy. Their ceremony of initiation is a mockery of death and the judgment. Their vow to draw their swords in defense of the Christian religion is an unmeaning form Their regalia, dress, arms and military parade is as far from the humility, simplicity and meekness enjoined by Christ as the east is from the west. They profess to be the "Christian degree" of Masonry. But they come into the commandery from the Blue Lodge without any change of belief or sentiment toward Christ. In the Blue Lodge they denied him. They go on into the Mystic Shrine or into the Scotch rite without needing any change of conviction; in one they practice Mohammedanism, in other Baal worship. Therefore the Knight Templar degree in reality more grossly insults Christ than any other, because of their very pretence of recognizing him.

2. The proposed celebration is grossly inconsistent for an organization of such character. It is as insulting to Christendom as the attempt a few years ago to represent the human life of our Saviour in a miracle play in a New York theater. That attempt was frowned upon by the public and suppressed by the authorities. The similar representation by the simple and devout peasantry of Ober-ammergau is tolerated, indeed, by some; but by most it is decried as a travesty that is near to blasphemy, and the corrupt Romish church has even threatened to suppress it.

What would be the public sentiment if Unitarians, who dethrone Christ, should plan a great celebration in his memory? Rev. Dr. Bellows, one of the ablest and best of that sect, said of them in 1876: "He may be a pantheist, or an atheist, and if he calls himself a Christian, and is not immoral in life, he may join the Unitarian conference, and claim as good ecclesiastical standing as the most conservative believer." The right of such a body to pay honor to Christ nobody would hesitate to question.

The Jews even take to themselves much honor from the fact that one born of their nation is everywhere esteemed as the greatest teacher who ever walked among men. Why should they not, therefore, because of his human birth and life as one of their nation celebrate that birth and life? It would be no greater inconsistency than for Knight Templar Masonry.

Preparation for this performance will, however, continue. The lodges are wealthy and numerous. There is no human authority likely to prevent their scheme. But it is in order,—it is the solemn duty of every child of God to protest against this indignity. It is our duty also to pray heaven to forbid it, as we asked that the World's Fair Sunday opening might be defeated; and it was defeated, though the order of a corrupt court prevented the shutting of the gates. And if we pray well we shall think well and plan well about this matter. It is not impossible that this issue is forced upon us to drive us to our knees. God can open a hundred ways, not only to defeat this wicked scheme, but to make its very suggestion and attempt a means of opening the eyes of his people to the hidden meaning of the lodge, to see its dark and subtle pagan spirit, and to arise in earnest to overcome it.

We ask our readers prayerfully to consider this matter, and write freely to the Cynosure concerning it. Members of the Board, of the National Association, friends of this testimony everywhere, what say you? Does the Lord mean that to a people who are willing in the day of his power this shall be a great opportunity to set forth the banner of Christ against his foes of the secret lodge?

PRESIDENT HARPER AND THE SIGMA CHI.

The secret college societies find that President Harper of Chicago University and his faculty have made a very strait gate and narrow way for them in that institution: During the first year of the university the faculty and trustees fully considered the question and decided to put these college pests under vigorous restriction. The spirit of these societies they wisely determined was unfavorable to the highest usefulness of the university. They were not absolutely prohibited, inasmuch as one had been organized before the faculty had thought necessary to take action, but freshmen are forbidden to join and an adverse policy is maintained that is very discouraging to students who look upon a secret society as the finishing touch of a liberal education.

The Sigma Chi fraternity is one of the strongest of the college orders. It was founded in 1858 in Miami University, Ohio, and a few years ago reported 4 000 members and thirty-eight active chapters. During the war this society had a chapter in one of the brigades of the rebel army. It has a bi-monthly publication, which has since 1885 been published in Chicago. It also has a secret monthly journal, for matters deemed too sacred for ordinary mortals, who might read it in the bi-monthly. This is printed on thin paper and circulated in sealed envelopes. This organization was the one which snaked its way into Perdue University several years ago while Dr. E. E. White was president of that institution. The rules of the university and wishes of the faculty were alike disregarded and defied. Expulsion and then a long litigation followed, the courts upholding the faculty. President White's report of this case to the governor is an interesting and valuable chapter in the history of American colleges. Finally the Freemasons in the State Legislature took up the quarrel for the defeated students, and as the university is a State institution, dependent entirely on the legislature for funds, they withheld all appropriation and compelled President White to resign and secured a change of the law against the secret societies.

This Sigma Chi attempted to organize in the Chicago University soon after it opened in 1892, but was refused a charter by the faculty on account of the policy of the institution. This year a second application has been made, and has been again refused.

We note this fact with gratitude for the firmness of President Harper and his faculty in maintaining the principle at first established,—a principle righteous in itself and deserving to be adopted by every American college.

—For putting his just and eloquent Gibraltar illustration into such "straits," we beg Rev. Bro. Wylie to pardon our proof-reading. It is some compensation that his brief but excellent letter, which is printed with sincere thanks, has special mention.

—A note from Rev. S. F. Porter tells of his kind reception in Bloomington, Ind., at the home of Rev. M. A. Gault. He was introduced to the officers of the State University. They accepted an anti-secrecy library for the use of their students. Monday Bro. Porter went on to Kentucky.

—The Outlook of Providence, R. I., says: "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is the first organization outside the Christian church that was born of prayer, built up on prayer, and that lives by prayer." The good cause of the W. C. T. U. can only be harmed by such untrue and arrogant statements.

—Another Leggett case is likely to ensue in the State Agricultural College at Hyattsville, Maryland. Edwin Gott, son of the secretary of the State, was put through a hazing or initiation of some sort. A mock court was held and young Gott tried and convicted. A rope was produced and he was hung from a transom, receiving such injuries that he is not likely to recover.

—The Christian Witness for November announces the New Hampshire State convention to open on Thursday of this week. As the Cynosure has received no notice of this meeting, we regret that little aid can be given in these columns to its publicity. The convention continues until the Sabbath (8th to the 11th.) May God graciously bless the endeavors of brethren in the old Granite State.

—The Romanist order in Indianapolis, the "Knights of St. John," are celebrating a victory over the strenuous opposition of the church authorities. For four years they have struggled to gain an endorsement of their secret ritual, and finally, as is reported, adopted it at a convention in Buffalo in spite of the objections of priests and bishops. They appealed to Satolli and have at last received his full consent and approbation of their lodge business.

—A week or two since we printed with regret in the letter of the Pacific agent that the courts of Oregon had decided against the radical United Brethren in the suits for ownership of church and college property. But the Conservator publishes with a delight in which all good men will sympathize the decision of Judge Street of the High Court of Justice in Canada. This is most clearly and ably given, and from the testimony of Shuey, Weaver, and other leaders of the liberal party alone, declares that they had changed their confession of faith without warrant of constitution and were therefore essentially a new church. The witnesses of the other part were not examined, and the case was clearly decided for the radical brethren. We congratulate Bishop Wright and his co-laborers in this righteous decision.

—Miss Flagg writes from Boston that her father is very comfortable and happy, and the change is working an improved condition in his health.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—Bro. W. B. Stoddard returned to Washington, D. C., Friday evening last, after an absence of several weeks from his home.

—Rev. S. F. Porter, N. C. A. college agent, started Thursday for his annual visit to American colleges. He begins with the institutions of Kentucky.

—President Angell, of Michigan University, having been invited become the successor of Prof. Swing in this city, peremptorily declined, not even accepting the invitation to preach a single sermon.

—Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus, of Plymouth Congregational church of this city, has been invited to fill an engagement in a lecture course for Wheaton College. From which we thankfully infer that he has abandoned his relation to the Masonic lodge, in which he was somewhat active some years ago.

—A pleasant story is told of the late historian Froude. In 1869 he went to Edinburgh to give his address as lord rector of St. Andrew's University. He was the guest of Dr. Boyd, who afterward wrote thus of an incident or two which reveal a very lovable side of his character: "Froude's kindness to children has ever been remarkable. I never forget how at Edinburgh, years before, coming down in the morning I found the great man on his knees intently helping a little boy to pile up a huge castle of bricks, which, indeed, attained to eight feet in height. Nor will that boy forget, while he lives, how, when Edinburgh was illuminated on the evening of the wedding of the Prince of Wales, the historian carried the little man on his shoulder through all the chief streets. Froude had said he would like to hear his remarks on what he saw. But, as is the way of this world, Froude was disappointed. The boy was stricken stony and could speak no word at all."

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Mrs. Cleveland's interest in missions—Sabbath school work and workshops—New England lags—The best way to raise money for God's work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 31, 1894.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has had a busy and enjoyable week. The reports from members of the society engaged in missionary work in various parts of the world all showed progress and all showed that more missionaries and more money would add to the progress made. The annual sermon was preached by Bishop Thoburn, of India, who made it the occasion for an appeal for additional workers in his territory, showing how much good was now being done and pointing out how much more might be accomplished by the addition of needed help. Yesterday the members of the society and some of their friends were taken to Mount Vernon and to-day Mrs. Cleveland held a special reception in their honor at the White House, during which she expressed much interest in the work of the society. This reception was under the circumstances a great kindness on the part of Mrs. Cleveland, as she and her children had just moved out to the President's country residence, to remain until Washington is clear of the smallpox, which has obtained a slight foothold and created some alarm. But she is always ready to do a kindness.

There are 23,000,000 Sunday-school scholars in the world, and the United States has 10,000,000 of them, in 124,000 schools, taught by 1,300,000 teachers. These facts—proud facts they are, too—are conspicuously placarded at the convention of the Sunday-school Union of the District of Columbia, now in session. This convention is the most enthusiastic gathering of Sunday-school workers ever brought together in Washington, and it is already apparent that it will be productive of much good.

The first day's sessions of the convention were held in the First Congregational church, the subsequent sessions in the beautiful Sunday-school building erected by Calvary Baptist church, which Mr. William Reynolds, field secretary of the International Sunday-school Association, pronounced the best of its kind; one that would be an object lesson; that would cause it to be said in all Sunday-school gatherings that Washington has the finest building for its purpose in the country. Many were surprised to hear Mr. Reynolds say that New England, where he has recently been investigating, was far behind the rest of the country in Sunday-school work. He thinks the reason is that the schools in that section fail to co-operate as they should. He says that in thickly populated New England there is only one Sunday-school to every 1,100 people, while in the West there are two to the same proportion of population.

Not long ago six members of Hamline church organized themselves into a "Tithing Society," each member pledging himself to devote to charity each year one-tenth of his income, in accordance with the teaching of the Bible, each member to determine for himself how and where his money should be distributed. To-day that society has fifty-seven on its rolls and never holds a meeting without taking in new members. It has no treasury, no reports, or books, other than that in which its members are enrolled, and no member is asked upon whom he bestowed his charity. That society is worthy of endless duplication. *

A MODEL COMBINATION OF CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Under this title Prof. S. I. Curtis, of Union Park Theological Seminary, writes to the Advance of a most interesting Christian work in the north part of Chicago. It is of equal interest to Cynosure readers, since the pastor, Rev. E. B. Wylie, has for years been closely identified with the work of the National Christian Association. The remarkable success he has achieved under God has not come without much trial of faith. He, with his faithful wife, has withstood the popular demand for fairs, suppers, and other methods of raising money so popular with the world. They are sure, therefore, that they have builded on a sure foundation, and expect greater blessings of salvation for their people. Prof. Curtis writes:

Twelve months ago the Congregational church at Summerdale, in the Chicago city limits, on the Northwestern road, one of the enterprises of our City Missionary Society, had a debt of $1,700 on the lots which it had purchased for the erection of a church building. The people had become much discouraged and the suggestion was even made by some that the work should be suspended altogether.

At this juncture, the pastor, Rev. Edgar B. Wylie, called on Mr. David Evans, a carpenter, who suggested that, as he was out of work, he would be glad to contribute two weeks' labor for a new church. Encouraged by this suggestion the pastor secured subscriptions in labor amounting to $960.

Mr. R. J. Bennett, of Ravenswood, a director of the Chicago City Missionary Society, who had arranged that the lots should be unencumbered, promised to match every dollar of labor with a dollar of money. The work was undertaken by the laborers who were out of employment, with great enthusiasm. The walls rose as if by magic with the aid of fifteen or twenty-five men. No intoxicants were allowed the workmen, but the ladies of the community furnished them hot coffee three times a day. Mr. Bennett did far more than he had promised and a beautiful church, with a handsome steeple, now adorns the site which had been secured by the people. The main audience room has not been completed, as the basement will be entirely adequate for the congregation for some time to come.

Sunday evening, Sept. 2, the basement of the church was dedicated. The entire property is worth $8,040, and is free from debt.

The contributions were as follows:

Labor at market value	$ 960
Pledges paid and considered good	467
Money furnished by friends outside	4,613
	$6,040
Value of real estate	2.000
	$8,040

Of this about $4,000 was contributed by the chairman of the building committee, Mr. Bennett. The Summerdale church is thus possessed of valuable property through this friendly combination of capital and labor in the interest of one of the noblest ends, and, what is best of all, these workmen have become largely identified with this church. The history of this church, as well as that of the majority of the enterprises under the care of the Chicago City Missionary Society, shows how false is the impression that working men cannot be reached by the Gospel. At the same time such a friendly interchange between capital and labor might well furnish an example to other communities.

Get the man who encourages the liquor traffic out of your churches. We want clean hands to carry the pure Gospel from the churches. We want the church right, and then we will have power with God and man.—D. L. Moody.

THE HOME.

A PRAYER.

Lord, speak to me that I may speak
In living echoes of thy tone;
As thou hast sought, so let me seek
Thy erring children lost and lone.

O lead me, Lord, that I may lead
The wandering and the wavering feet,
O feed me, Lord, that I may feed
Thy hungering ones with manna sweet.

O teach me, Lord, that I may teach
The precious things thou dost impart,
And wing the words that they may reach
The hidden depths of many a heart.

O strengthen me that while I stand
Firm on the rock and strong in thee,
I may reach out a helping hand
To wrestlers in life's troubled sea.

O give thine own sweet rest to me
That I may speak with soothing power
A word in season as from thee
To weary ones in needful hour.

O use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as thou wilt, and when, and where,
Until thy blessed face I see,
Thy joy, thy rest, thy glory share.

—Selected.

IN THE HOLY GHOST.

(Dr. A. J. Gordon in Times of Refreshing.)

I was talking last night with an evangelist who is laboring in a certain place, and he said the minister was continually belaboring the church because they were so cold and so backward, and the people were getting tired of it, and there seemed no progress in the work. I told him to tell the dear minister that I used to work in just that way, but I had given it up entirely and found a far more excellent way. I don't insist on people coming to the prayer-meeting as I used to, not at all. People like to do a thing voluntarily, and not be continually dragged into doing it. The Lord doesn't want them dragged in either. He wants the "willing mind." Just lovingly invite those who want to come and be blessed, to meet with you. Come "in the Spirit" yourselves, get richly blessed, and others will come; there will be a gathering to the Holy Ghost, and there will be liberty. In what a strange way many interpret that text, "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." What does it mean, that the man has liberty to do just as he pleases in a meeting? Not at all. But that the Holy Ghost has liberty. Our souls are to be so delicately poised, like the magnetic needle, that the Holy Ghost will have his way with us. We are in God's house not to give directions to, but take directions from, the Holy Ghost. True, there must be a wise, gentle leadership in the meeting, so that in the Holy Ghost anyone who comes in as a disturber of the meeting may be suppressed, but it is all to be in the Holy Ghost.

I don't conduct a prayer-meeting at all as I used to. I used to go about before the meeting asking one, and another, if they would pray or speak in the meeting, so anxiously concerned was I to have a good meeting; but I never do that now. I find if the Holy Ghost is honored in the meeting he conducts it most blessedly. God doesn't want service that isn't voluntary. He doesn't want money given without the consent of the will for the carrying on of his work. He esteems it robbery. God doesn't pick pockets.

* * * * * *

Jesus said, "If any two of you shall agree upon earth as touching anything that ye shall ask it shall be done for you of my Father who is in heaven."

What does that mean—that if you and I agree together to ask God for a million of dollars we shall get it? The word agree here means symphony, harmony; that is, if two of you shall symphonize, or harmonize, touching this thing, it shall be done. It has the same sense in this: "to this agree the words of the prophets." Let us take for example the tuning of an instrument. Suppose we find one note that does not harmonize with another; what do we do, simply tune that one note to chord with the others? Not at all. The whole instrument must be tuned to concert pitch. What concert pitch is to the musical instrument the Holy Ghost is to the church. The Holy Ghost is the one with whom we must individually harmonize, and then in our asking we shall harmonize with each other.

THE REALITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

(Rev. Oliver Addison Kingsbury, in the New York Observer.)

The presence and power of the Holy Spirit is a veritable fact, not a figment of the imagination. To be sure we are embarrassed in our thoughts concerning him by his very nature. We call him a spirit, but we have never seen a spirit. Our Lord Jesus came to earth and took upon him our nature. We think of him as a divine man, and though our thought of him is very inadequate it is good so far as it is able to go. But how shall we figure the Holy Spirit to our minds? We are spirits ourselves, but we live in bodies, and we think of ourselves and others in this bodily relation and with these bodily concommitants. The Holy Spirit is pure spirit, a person, certainly, but spirit. How shall our minds lay any hold upon him?

As I look on some winter's day from my study window I see the tops of the great elm trees swaying in the wind. The wind? I have never seen the wind. I see the trunks of the trees, strong and massive. I see their gracefully spreading branches. I see the tracery of twigs against the sky. Trunk, branch, twig—they are real and substantial. But those strong branches and all the network of twigs they uphold are moving to and fro. What causes their motion? It is not the vital force that is in the tree, for that does not operate in that way; and besides, the trees are in their winter's sleep. No one doubts that the force that causes their motion is the wind, but who ever saw the wind? Yet what a force it must be to make those proud tree-tops bow! We are perfectly sure then that the wind is as real as the elm tree. Its nature is different. It is invisible, but it lays its hands gently upon the tiny twigs upon the tree-tops and toys with them, or it puts forth its strength and bows their great limbs with the utmost ease. The elm tree is real, but so is the wind. "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth. So is every one that is born of the Spirit."

It does not prove then that the divine Spirit has no real existence, that he is invisible. We think of ourselves and of our friends, I have said, as living in bodies and having bodily concommitants. When the name of a friend is mentioned we think of feature and form. Yet even here we recognize a something within the body that is our friend. We say of one, for example, that he has a noble, a generous spirit; or of another that he is mean spirited; or of another that he has a great deal of spirit. All this, and more like it, as is easily evident, has reference to that which is invisible to the physical senses, but which yet is very real. Indeed, we feel that the spiritual is more real than the material, because that which is material is in process of decay, but that which is spiritual endures. We watch a friend from year to year; his eye loses its youthful brightness, his step its elasticity, his form its vigor. But his spirit remains in its strength and beauty, only expanding in symmetry and attractiveness. As we grow older we think of the spirit as truly our friend, rather than of the body in which the spirit tabernacles.

We find, moreover, that the human spirit is not restrained by space or time. One is in his own home; his children, perhaps his grandchildren, are about him. But his thought with one leap is back, twenty, thirty, fifty years, and he is himself a child. His spirit sprang easily over the barrier of the years, showing that time is no obstacle in its way. There is before his mind the picture of the scenes of those early years—the old home, the familiar furniture, the well-known surroundings. The walls of the room in which he is do not avail to shut in his spirit; it triumphs over space as easily as over time.

If now such things as these are possible to the human spirit, should we have any difficulty with the thought of the divine Spirit? Our spirits, even if on a limited scale, are superior to the boundaries of space and time. Is there anything unreasonable then in the thought that the divine Spirit is absolutely free from such trammels? Indeed, when we come to see the facts as they really are, should we not feel it strange were he limited by these conditions?

Let then these illustrations help us to place firmly in our minds the thought that the divine Spirit exists, a real person, though invisible—powerful, pervading the world of men, present with each one of us.

EXPECT THE HOLY GHOST.

Expect the Holy Ghost to work in, with, and for you. When a man is right with God, God will freely use him. There will rise up within him impulses, inspirations, strong strivings, strange resolves. These must be tested by Scripture and prayer, and if evidently of God they must be obeyed. But there is this perennial source of comfort. God's commands are enablings. He will never give us a work to do without showing exactly how and when to do it, and giving us the precise strength and wisdom we need. Do not dread to enter this life because you fear that God will ask you to do something you cannot do. He will never do that. If he lays aught at your heart, he will do so irresistibly; and as you pray about it, the impression will continue to grow, so that presently, as you look up to know what he wills you to say or do, the way will suddenly open, and you will probably have said the word or done the deed almost unconsciously. Rely on the Holy Ghost to go before you, to make the crooked places straight, and the rough places smooth. Do not bring the legal spirit of "must" into God's free service. "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow." Let your life be as effortless as theirs, because your faith shall constantly hand over all difficulties and responsibilities to your ever-present Lord. There is no effort to the branch in putting forth the swelling clusters of grapes—the effort would be to keep them back.—F. B. Meyer.

"MY BOAT IS SO SMALL."

The fishermen of Brittany, so the story goes, are wont to utter this simple prayer when they launch their boats upon the deep: "Keep me, my God; my boat is so small and thy ocean is so wide." How touchingly beautiful the words and the thought! Might not the same petition be uttered with as much directness every morning and evening of our daily life: "Keep me, my God; for my boat is so small and thy ocean is so wide." Keep me, my God; keep me from the perils and temptations that throng around me as I go about my daily duties. "My boat is so small"—I am so weak, so helpless, so prone to wander, so forgetful of thy loving kindness! I am tossed to and fro at the mercy of the world; I am buffeted about by sharp adversity, and driven before the storms of grief and sorrow. Except thou dost keep me I must perish. Keep me, my God, for "thy ocean is so wide"—the journey is so long, and the days and the years are so many. "In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust. Deliver me in thy righteousness."—Selected.

WHAT BRINGS PEACE?

A doctor who was visiting a Christian patient had himself long been anxious to feel that he was at peace with God. The Spirit had convinced him of his sin and need, and he longed to possess that peace which the world cannot give. On this occasion, addressing himself to the sick one, he said:

"I want you to tell me just what it is—this believing and getting happiness, faith in Jesus, and all that sort of thing which brings peace."

His patient replied:

"Doctor, I have felt that I could do nothing, and I have put my case in your hands; I am trusting to you. That is exactly what every poor sinner must do in the Lord Jesus."

This reply greatly awakened the doctor's surprise, and a new light broke in upon his soul.

"Is that all?" he exclaimed; "simply trusting in the Lord Jesus! I see it, as I never did before. He has done the work. Yes, Jesus said on the cross, 'It is finished,' and 'whosoever believeth in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life.'"

From that sickbed the doctor went a happy man, rejoicing that his sins were washed away in the blood of the Lamb.—Christian Worker.

TEMPERANCE.

PULLMAN'S OLD MATE A DRUNKARD.

Before the war, and back in New York State, Charles Gardiner and Geo. M. Pullman were fellow-apprentices at the cabinetmaker's bench. When Pullman came to Chicago and engaged in the house-raising business Gardiner came with him, and when Pullman started to build his first sleeping-car Gardiner was his assistant and confidant. Subsequently Gardiner was the foreman of Pullman's first shop, and many of the early patents and improvements, it is said, were the result of his suggestion and creation. Drink was Gardiner's only enemy. Through it he lost his place with his old companion and fellow-apprentice. Time and again he would be taken back to the shops only to be discharged for drunkenness. There has ever been a kindly feeling for Gardiner in the Pullman works. He has lived at Kensington and Pullman ever since the towns were built, and daily went into the shops and looked at the men working, begged a few dimes and went to the nearest saloon, where he spent the remainder of the day. He talked but little and preferred to sip his glass by himself. Yesterday morning, when arraigned for drunkenness, he stood before Justice Robbins, his hands trembled so from the effect of drink he could not support himself and an officer had to hold him up. He pleaded guilty to habitual inebriety and was sent to the Washingtonian Home.—Inter Ocean.

THE DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

Tom met an old friend, who was formerly a prosperous young lumberman up in northern Minnesota, but whose bad habits of drinking brought him to a pretty "hard up" condition, although he has since reformed and is doing better.

"How are you?" asked Tom.

"Pretty well, thank you, but I have just seen a doctor to have him examine my throat."

"What's the matter?"

"Well, the doctor couldn't give me any encouragement. At least he could not find what I want to find."

"What did you expect him to find?"

"I asked him to look down my throat for the saw-mill and farm that had gone down there in drink."

"And did he see anything of it?"

"No, but he advised me if I ever got another mill to run it by water."

THE PILGRIM QUARTERLY AND TEMPERANCE.

I can but regret painfully the position taken in the Senior Pilgrim Quarterly in regard to the 10th verse of John's Gospel, 2nd chapter. Let me quote from the Lesson Studies: "(v 10) 'have drunk freely.' So that they are a little under the influence of liquor and their taste has been slightly blunted. 'Thou hast kept the good wine.' These words show beyond the possibility of question that the wine which Jesus made was of the ordinary intoxicating kind, and that it was of the best quality."

What are the pupils of our Congregational Sunday-schools here taught? Clearly that, after the guests of that wedding, among whom was Jesus, his mother, and his disciples, had exhausted the supply of wine, and had become somewhat intoxicated, Jesus used his miraculous power to provide for them more intoxicating wine, and so enabled them to increase the degree of their drunkenness. Is not this an incredible statement in reference to a religious teacher, whom we revere as divine, and whose inspired apostle has assured us that drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God? —L. W. C., in Advance.

It is not often that the pulpit is invaded by the insidious enemy, narcotics. A sad case is that of an eminent clergyman in New York city, who has recently resigned his ministry because he has ruined himself by stimulants. He confesses that the constant struggle to produce something new wore away his strength, saying: "There was a time when I thought I should go mad. For months I had an awful pain at the base of my brain, and I got no rest. I admit that under the stress of circumstances I did things that I should never have done. I used stimulants, among others cocaine." His example is a notable warning to those in similar stress of occupation not to attempt to fortify enfeebled energies by destructive agencies.

An American traveler in Normandy says that in a country tavern he found the following printed card on the wall detailing the law of that land against intoxication: "After two formal condemnations for scandalous and public drunkenness (mere committals do not count), the offender, ipso facto incurs the following disabilities: (1) Loss of his vote, (2) may not be voted for, (3) may not serve on a jury, (4) may not exercise any administrative faculty (such as acting as executor of a will), (5) loses the right to carry arms."—Standard.

The difference between high-license Nebraska and prohibition Kansas is that in Nebraska the State is so overrun with criminals that the penitentiary and jails are full, and vigilant committees have been formed for the protection of the citizens. Kansas jails, many of them, are empty, and the number in the penitentiary has been reduced sixty per cent.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON VII.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Nov. 18.

SUBJECT.—The Sermon on the Mount.—Luke 6: 20-31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."—Luke 6: 31.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 6: 20-31. T.—Luke 6: 32-38. W.—Matt. 5: 1-12. T.—Psalm 69: 29-36. F.—1 Peter 2: 17-25. S.—Prov. 25: 14-22. S.—Matt. 7: 1-12.

(From the S. S. Lesson Illustrator.)

Ye poor.—In the Sermon on the Mount the benediction is pronounced upon the "poor in spirit" and those who "hunger after righteousness." Matt. 5: 3, 6. Here it is simply on the "poor" and those who "hunger now." Our Lord had in view the "poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom," as these beatitudes are paraphrased by James. Jas. 2: 5.—J. F. B. The poverty here spoken of is a poverty accompanied by grace, a want attained by faithful adherence to Jesus. Thousands had to give up everything in the world for their religion. Jesus would supply them, and all who suffer like them, for the Gospel's sake, with special consolation.—Ryle. Before, Jesus laid down the truth. "Blessed are the poor;" now, he adds, "Blessed are ye poor." If you live by the Gospel precepts you may live on the Gospel promises.—Henry.

Men shall hate. There came a day when martyrs died under shameful false charges, hated and scorned. Pure love in the presence of murderous hate took an unearthly serenity, as gold is given its purest lustre in the fiercest flames. Where is the miracle greater than that of Christian martyrdom?—Wakefield. In proportion as moral character becomes clear, definite, and sharply defined, in the same proportion will the world hate it.—McLaughlin. As worldliness in the church is of the same nature as that outside, so opposition to holiness will often be manifested by the professed followers of Christ.—Ibid.

Rejoice in that day. Not afterwards but then. If we have not faith to keep from whining and telling over our persecutions, faith to rejoice that we are counted worthy to suffer for his sake, not holiness but something else is the cause of our persecution. Let us be sure by our joyfulness of soul that our persecution is for Christ's sake, and not for our own.—McLaughlin. Even at the time it is a privilege to show our love by something that costs. Peter and Paul in prison were better off than Herod or Felix in their luxury.—Peloubet. Leaping or dancing was the Hebrew mode of expressing great religious joy. Ex. 15: 20; 1 Sam. 18: 6.—Binney.

Your reward is great. Every believer shall enter heaven, but there is a wonderful difference between being saved so as by fire, 1 Cor. 3: 15, and having an abundant entrance. 2 Peter 1: 11. Our sins were judged at the cross, but our works shall be judged at Christ's own bar, 2 Cor. 5: 10; and for every service and sacrifice we shall receive a reward. Heb. 6: 10; 1 Thes. 2: 19; 2 Ti. 4: 8; 1 Peter 5: 4. Oh! to so live that each day shall help to make Christ's greeting more rapturous and heaven eternally sweeter!—Gardner.

Rich. In everything but faith and righteousness; who substitute earthly wealth for heavenly riches: who place dependence on material things and are not rich toward God.—McLaughlin. This life is all the heaven the worldling has and all the hell a saint ever sees. Men get what they seek.—Ibid. This reveals the class of men that riches curse, those who find in them their joy. This accords with Abraham's explanation to the rich nan in torment, "In your life-time you had your good things." Luke 16: 25

When all men speak well of you. On account of your conformity to this world in teaching or conduct. Jno. 15: 19; 1 John 4: 5; Galatians 1: 7–9.—Binney. No man was ever true to his convictions without incurring the displeasure of some one. This woe ought to be thundered into the ear of every minister when he is ordained, and the echo ought to ring throughout his life.—McLaughlin. False prophets were not alone those who uttered false predictions, but those corrupt teachers also who accommodated their sentiments and doctrines to the passions of their audience.—Hewlett. 1 Kings 22: 5–13; Isa. 30: 9, 10; Jer. 5: 31; Micah 2: 11.—Binney.

Love your enemies. Love as God loves, regardless of merit and of the reciprocity of love; love because you would be like God, love because God has first loved you.—Vaughan. Hate can never be overcome by hatred; it can only be banished by love, and blessed are they that have the deep benevolence that can exercise it.—Wakefield. When injured we should remember that God presents to us the most glorious opportunity of showing forth his own image, mercy and forgiveness.—Howells.

Offer also the other. Our Lord condemns a revengeful, pugnacious, litigous, or quarrelsome spirit. He forbids everything like duelling, or fighting for the settlement of wrongs.—Ryle. If anyone smite thee, rather than bring an action against him, or give a blow to him, be ready to receive another blow from him; leave God to plead thy cause.—Henry.

Give to every man that asketh of thee. Whether Jew, Samaritan, or Gentile. Let thy charity be bounded by no personal motives.—Whedon. There is no line drawn by the Lord between the worthy beggar and the unworthy; between the one who smells of beer or tobacco, and the one who smells clean; between the bold, barefaced, saucy one, and the timid, shrinking one, or between the smooth, cultivated talker, who is sailing under false colors, and the broken-hearted, candid one who does not yet know that God waits to supply even the temporal need of those who go directly to him. As Jesus draws no lines, let those who aim to be like him draw none. The reason for such strange, peculiar action is found in vs. 32–36.—Christian Alliance. Whenever you are clement, sympathetic, large-hearted, open-handed, you are going in the dircetion of the meaning of this passage. We are to be liberal toward the requests our fellowmen make of us. They will ask for our time, money, advice, influence, and all these we are to hold at their disposal.—Tead.

As ye would. Never act toward any one as you would not like him to act toward you. Never speak of your neighbor as you would not like your neighbor to speak of you. Live the 13th of 1 Cor., the Christ life,—Katie A. Clarke

PRACTICAL POINTS.

Christ's poor are rich in faith. v. 20; James 2: 5.

Present sorrows but prepare for future joys. v. 21; Ps. 126: 5, 6.

No victories without battles, no crowns without crosses, no character without discipline, no reward without labor. v. 22.

A mariner is seen best in tempest and a Christian in persecution. v. 22.

The Stoic bears, the Epicurean submits, the Christian rejoices. v. 23.

Suffering is to be greatly rewarded. v. 23.

Holy ones always suffer when evil is in power. v. 23, last clause.

Do not make worldly things your consolation; they are only for your convenience. v. 24.

Joy in the changeable must share in its change. v. 24.

This life is all the heaven the sinner has and all the hell a saint ever sees. v. 25.

Love not sin, but the sinner in spite of his sin. v. 27; Rom. 5: 8.

The time to show love is when other people show hatred. v. 27.

Far better give way than contend. v. 29.

Better suffer wrong than do wrong. v. 29.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The President's proclamation reads: The American people should gratefully render thanksgiving and praise to the Supreme Ruler of the universe, who has watched over them with kindness and fostering care during the year that has passed; they should also with humility and faith supplicate the Father of all mercies for continued blessings according to their needs, and they should by deeds of charity seek the favor of the Giver of every good and perfect gift. Therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 29th day of November, inst., as a day of thanksgiving and prayer to be kept and observed by all the people of the land.

On that day let our ordinary work and business be suspended and let us meet in our accustomed places of worship and give thanks to Almighty God for our preservation as a nation, for our immunity from disease and pestilence, for the harvests that have rewarded our husbandry, for a renewal of national prosperity, and for every advance in virtue and intelligence that has marked our growth as a people. And with our thanksgiving let us pray that these blessings may be multiplied unto us, that our national conscience may be quickened to a better recognition of the power and goodness of God and that in our national life we may clearer see and closer follow the path of righteousness.

And in our places of worship and praise as well as in the happy reunions of kindred and friends on that day let us invoke divine approval by generously remembering the poor and needy. Surely He who has given us comfort and plenty will look upon our relief of the destitute and our ministrations of charity as the work of hearts truly grateful and as proofs of the sincerity of our thanksgiving.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The American Baptist missionaries in Assam have asked that twenty-two new missionaries be sent to that country.

—The centenary of the London Missionary Society will be celebrated next year by an effort to send out one hundred new missionaries.

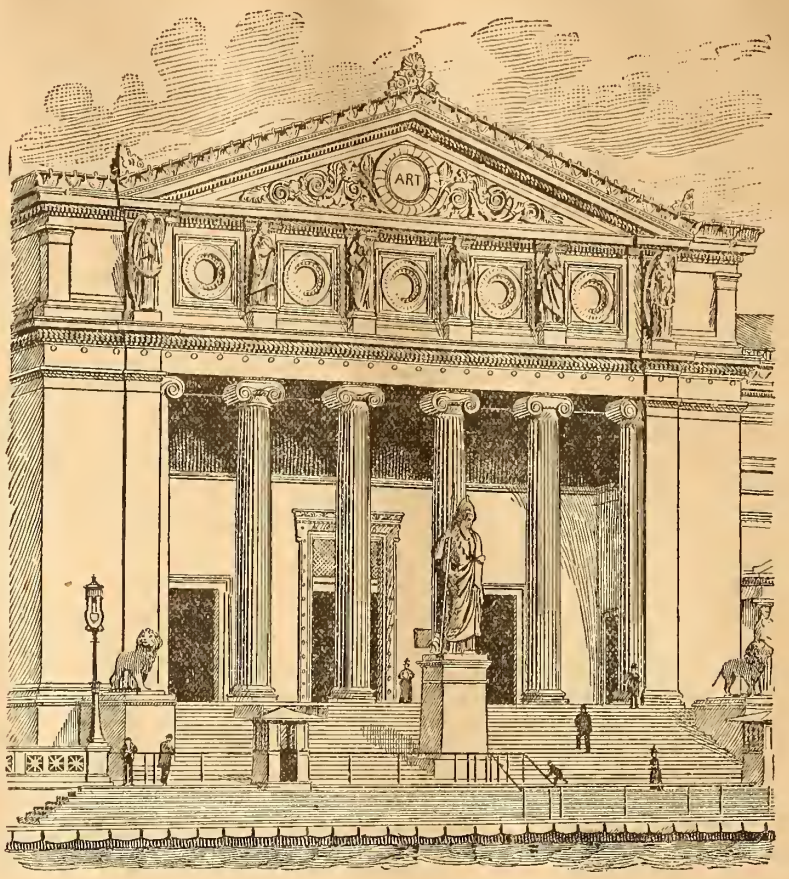
—The largest salary that any Baptist minister receives in Germany is 3,600 marks, about $850, and the church that pays this salary has between 500 and 600 members.

—The Empress of China will receive for her sixtieth birthday, a superbly bound copy of the New Testament in Chinese, which is being prepared at the Ries Mission Press in Shanghai.

—The Bible Christian Conference of England has sanctioned the purchase of the cottage in which Billy Bray, the Cornish evangelist, was born and died. It is intended to preserve it as a memorial of this King's son.

—Says a Chinese missionary, with a well-based exultation: "I could walk from Canton to Shanghai, over eight hundred miles, not walking more than twenty miles a day, and could sleep every night in a village or town that has a little Christian community."

—The London City Mission employs 482 missionaries, who visit systematically all the year round among the poor and outcast. Last year 3,667,680 visits were paid. The work is undenominational. More than 500,000 men are regularly visited by the agents of this mission.



—The Ministers' Association, of Utica, N. Y., has arranged for a religious canvass of the city, to be made by the churches this month, and for union evangelistic services to be held daily for three weeks, beginning Nov. 11. Twenty-one churches will co-operate and the services will be in charge of the pastors.

—The American Board is adding to its mission work in the Sandwich Islands a work among the Japanese who have come to those islands in such large numbers. There are nine Japanese preachers and evangelists now engaged in the work, and Rev. O. H. Gulick, who speaks both Japanese and Hawaiian, will devote himself to the mission among both peoples in the islands.

—Bishop William Boyd Carpenter, of Ripon, England, is the Court preacher. A story is told of him that when he was asked how he managed to address so exalted a personage as the sovereign and yet maintain his composure, he replied that he never addressed her at all. He knew there would be present the Queen, the princes, the household, the servants, down to the scullery-maid. "And," said the Bishop, "I preach to the scullery-maid and the Queen understands me."

—A party of United Presbyterian missionaries sailed from New York on the 13th inst: (1) Returning to Egypt, Rev. Chauncey Murch, wife and child, with Rev. John P. White and wife, of Walton, Kan., Miss Minnehaha Finney, of Tarkio, Mo., and Miss Grace Brown, of Lincoln, Neb., as new missionaries. (2) Returning to India: Miss Mary J. Campbell and Miss Josephine L. White, and with them as new missionaries Rev. J. S. Thompson, wife and child, of Newton, Kan.; Miss Nannie Spencer, of New Wilmington, Pa.; Miss Edith M. Fulton, of Summerfield, Kan., and Miss Mary A. Platter, of Chillicothe, O. These constitute a goodly company of fifteen, including the two children.

A Temple of Art.

Not for a Day but for all Time.

Memories of the White City are fading—all but one. Majestic in its beauty the Palace of Art survives to remind man kind of wonders departed. Triumphant over fire and tempest the stately structure stands beside the lake dedicated forever to the service of the people. As a gallery of painting and sculpture it surprised and delighted the nations. As the Field's Columbian Museum it will entertain and instruct multitudes in the ages to come.

A World's Fair in miniature is the museum to-day. While it lasts the public will have before them a vivid reminder of the greater exposition of 1893. It will bring back the vast pamorama of splendid exhibits including the fine showing made by

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The analysis of Dr. Price's by government experts demonstrated its immeasurable superiority in leavening strength, purity and general excellence and gained for it the Highest Award at the Fair.

HORACE GREELEY: "Many persons were brought to trial on account of the murder of Morgan, but no one was judicially found guilty of murder. It was established by seceding Masons that the oaths—at least in some of the highest degrees—that were administered, and taken by those admitted to Masonic lodges, disqualified them from serving as jurors in any case where a brother Mason of like degree was a party, and his antagonist was not."

"The whole movement of Christianity, what is it? It is light against darkness. It is as the shining of the sun. That doesn't have lodges. That doesn't have little dark rooms into which it disburses its beams. The business of the sun is to scatter light, and the business of the church of Jesus Christ is to scatter the light of the Sun of Righteousness. He is to be the light of the world everywhere. He says, 'In secret have I said nothing.' Everything was open. There was never any little cabal, any little gathering with its secret passes and grips. The mere attempt to couple such a thing with the work of the Lord Jesus shows its folly."—From address of Rev. E. P. Goodwin, D. D., pastor First Congregational Church, Chicago, to Christian Conference, April, 1890.

"As to the question of the attitude of Christians toward the secret orders, two or three things seem to me very plain. One of them is this: that the whole movement of things on the line of secrecy is thoroughly antagonistic to the movement on the line of Scripture and Christianity."—From address of Rev. E. P. Goodwin, D. D., pastor First Congregational Church, Chicago, to Christian Conference April, 1890.

"God's Word prohibits the believer from forming alliances with the ungodly in society. Whenever the Christian surrenders himself to the society of the unbelieving world, his heart will be led away from God. This is especially true of thousands of Christian men who have deliberately yoked themselves up with unbelievers in all manner of secret societies. This course of false alliance is doing more mischief to individual Christian men by turning their hearts away from God and his service, and to the church by depleting and robbing her of her male membership, THAN ANY OTHER ONE ENEMY OF CHRIST. There never was a time when the cry, 'Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord,' was more needed than now."—From Dr. George F. Pentecost's Bible Studies, 1889, p. 389.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

321 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated" the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2 50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely Illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons, swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. D. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Carrie Orene King

Save the Children

By Purifying Their Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure Blood, Cures Scrofula, Etc.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. She would scratch the eruptions as though it gave relief, and tear open the sores.

Two Bottles of Hood's

Sarsaparilla caused the eruptions to heal and and the scabs pealed off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine we believe Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal and I recommend it." W. L. KING, Bluff Dale, Tex.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. 25 cents.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

——THE——

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

HOME AND HEALTH.

HOW TO MAKE CHILDREN BRAVE.

The awful death from the fright of the four-year-old daughter of Congressman Whiting, of Michigan, some time since, contains a solemn warnto those who have the care of children. The little thing had been playing in the streets during the day, was put to bed in good health by her nurse, and awakened in the night with screams and every indication of terror, which could not be allayed and which developed congestion of the brain, from which she shortly died. It was supposed that the child had awakened from a frightful dream, but if this was so it was most certainly due to some previous experience. Nature does not inflict horrible visions upon sleeping infants, but, doubtless, something had occurred during the day before which left this awful impression on her mind to be evoked in the silence and darkness of the night. Mothers and nurses in any case of this kind, or in any instance of violent and continuous crying, should make a vigorous application of cold water to the head. This would prevent the possibility of such a result as occurred in this case, and it is always an effectual way to stop crying, because it diverts the attention and quiets the nerves.

A child can be early accustomed to be indifferent to darkness, although allowance must be made for inherited nervousness. But in that beautiful evening hour which precedes tucking the child in bed the mother should sometimes rock and sing to it in a dark room, taking it to the window to see the life still active in the streets, and the gleaming lights which show where other little people are going to bed. Everything should be done to teach the child that the room is absolutely the same when the light is out. Call attention to some object, put the light out, and ask the child to bring the object. The lesson can be conveyed under guise of pleasant games. Even the shadows which make the terror of the dark can be turned into objects of delight. "I so faid," said a little one not long since as she glanced around the room, then buried her face in her mother's arms to hide the pictures made on the wall by lights from the street. "Do you see that bright spot on the wall?" asked the mother, "now let's see what we can put there."

Then the mother made a series of pictures on the wall with head, hands and feet of baby and herself. The child joined in the frolic, and learned from that how to delight in the shadows, and to try to find out what they are pictures of. Finally there is the moment of pause after the child is ready to be left for the night, and the lesson has been impressed that God has given us the beautiful darkness that everybody may sleep, and now we must let it into the room, and the mother tells her child to repeat after her, "Good night, light, come again in the morning!" and with one more kiss after all is dark, the child is ready for sleep, and should be left alone.

If the mother makes a point from the earliest infancy of her child of attending to its wants in a dark room, she will make it physically possible for the child to respond to her teaching later when it comes to her, as it inevitably will, with its fear of the darkness. The fear grows with the child's imagination, but practical lessons like these suggested here will remove the darkness from the realm of the unknown and dreaded.—Woman's Tribune.

Hall's Hair Renewer cures dandruff and scalp affections; also all cases of baldness where the glands which feed the roots of the hair are not closed up.

NAMES WANTED

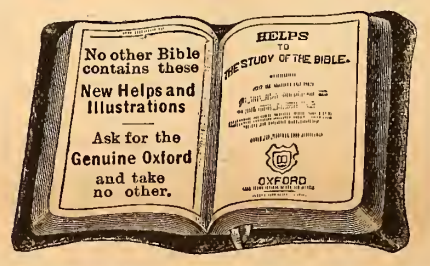
with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

Consumption.

The incessant wasting of a consumptive can only be overcome by a powerful concentrated nourishment like Scott's Emulsion. If this wasting is checked and the system is supplied with strength to combat the disease there is hope of recovery.

Scott's Emulsion



of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does more to cure Consumption than any other known remedy. It is for all Affections of Throat and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Wasting. Pamphlet free.
Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

"GENUINE OXFORD"

TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free]

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was It Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD,

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

FARM NOTES.

LAYERING GRAPEVINES.

Anyone who has a good, healthy grapevine established three years or more may have a fine new plant or two every year by layering. Layers make the finest young vines, and they are made with little trouble. A shoot of last season's growth, of any convenient length, is bent down to the ground, but not cut off from the vine. A small trench is opened four or five inches deep and the same width, and two to four feet long, the position being in the sunshine as much as possible. In this trench the cane is placed and covered up, leaving about six inches of the end sticking out of the ground. This end should contain two buds, and should be tied loosely to a small stake in an upright position. During the summer the buds not covered in the ground will make shoots a foot or more in length, and the portion of the cane under the ground will send out roots along its whole length, and by the following spring the new plant can be cut loose from the parent vine, removed and set out wherever desired.—National Stockman.

CHOICE CURRANTS.

Mr. S. D. Willard, of Geneva, N. Y., sends us fine samples of four varieties of currants grown by him for market—Fay's Prolific, President Wilder, White Grape and White Imperial. The first is now a well established kind, not better perhaps in size and flavor than some older sorts, but a fine yielder. President Wilder is a seedling of Versailles, very fine in bunch and berry, much better in quality than the Fay, though it should be stated that the latter was picked a week earlier than usual, in order to get the Wilder in perfection. The White Grape has long been the standard for table currants, but the White Imperial will supersede it wherever known. While equalling it in size, the Imperial far surpasses it in sweetness, snd may be eaten at table without sugar. For a late table currant Mr. Willard likes Moore's Ruby, while for productiveness the President Wilder is the best on his ground.—Country Gentleman.

There are five principal reasons why the Berkshire hogs are becoming so popular: 1. They are prolific breeders of large, even litters. 2. The dams are good sucklers and the best of mothers. 3. They have an abundance of what is commonly termed constitutional vigor. 4. They are easily fattened at any age. 5. They make the kind of pork the market demands.—F. O. Lash, Bloomington, Ill, to Berkshire Association.

The Bordeaux mixture has a magical effect upon the grape. So uncertain had the grape crop become in some parts of New Jersey from the rot and mildew that many growers grubbed out their vineyards, but the mixture has so changed the state of affairs that the grape crop is now one of the most certain and reliable grown, and many growers who grubbed out their vines a few years ago are now planting anew.

For a north veranda, where everything should be suggestive of coolness, there is no prettier vine than the wild cucumber. Its foliage has a crisp beauty: its flowers are airy, graceful, and so profuse that the entire vine seems flecked with foam. Give it a wire netting to clamber over and it will go up, up, up, and droop its beautiful festoonery about the second-story windows.—Vick's.

A ton of bran or shorts contains sixty pounds more protein than a ton of corn meal, and in a more digestible form. Its fertilizing value is also greater. Hence, at the present relative prices, bran is much the cheaper food. Gluten and cottonseed are also relatively cheaper than corn meal at the present time.

Many people, when a little constipated, make the mistake of using saline or other drastic purgatives. All that is needed is a mild dose of Ayer's Pills to restore the regular movement of the bowels, and nature will do the rest. They keep the system in perfect order.

Ayer's CHERRY Pectoral

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

For Colds and Coughs

RECEIVED MEDAL and DIPLOMA AT THE

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

World's FAIR.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES.

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

—THE—

LODGE LAMP

A FOUR-PAGE MONTHLY.

It is devoted to the analysis of secret society questions, showing their evils and pointing to their remedies.

20 cents per annum. Sample copies 2 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

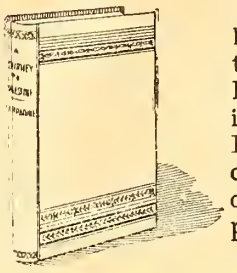
Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine



PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

The Official Records,

Showing the Best Baking Powder.

The United States Government, after elaborate tests, reports the Royal Baking Powder a pure cream of tartar powder of greater leavening strength than any other.

—Bulletin 13, U. S. Ag. Dep., p. 599.

The Canadian Official Tests, recently made, show the Royal Baking Powder highest of all in leavening strength.

—Bulletin 10, p. 16, Inland Rev. Dep.

I find the Royal Baking Powder superior to all the others in every respect. It is purest and strongest.— Walter S. Haines, M. D., Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health.

Hence, in practical use,

The Royal Baking Powder goes further, makes purer and more perfect food than any other.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

An ordinance appropriating $10,000 for the purchase of the anti-toxin remedy for diphtheria was offered at the council meeting.

John L. Stevens, an inventor, whose discoveries have made fortunes for manufacturers, was found dead at 21 Des Plaines street. He was in destitute circumstances.

What is probably the heaviest single piece of machinery ever moved through the streets of Chicago was taken on rollers from the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul tracks to the new power-house of the Metropolitan "L" road. It is one of the huge dynamos which is to furnish the electrical power by which the road will be operated. The weight of the piece is fifty tons. It was made by the E. P. Allis company of Milwaukee and brought on a car specially constructed for the purpose.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

A Lackawanna express train plunged into a freight at Forster, Pa., and three persons were killed.

The town of Rising Sun, in Wood county, has been destroyed by fire. It had a population of 1,500, and is the center of the oil operations in northwestern Ohio.

Passenger train No. 3 of the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad was held up a few miles east of New Albany, Miss., by three masked men and the express car looted of its contents.

Diphtheria of violent form is prevailing in Pontoosuc, a little town in the northern part of Hancock county, Ill. Five children of one family died within three days, three of them dying during one night.

Four new cases of small pox have appeared in Walkertown, Ind., all in one family. There are now six.

New York, Oct. 30.—Seven people were smothered to death by smoke in a tenement house fire in New York. Another woman jumped from a third-story window and will soon die. The fire came suddenly and cut off all escape by the stairways.

COUNTRY.

Oct. 29.—A severe snowstorm prevailed all day Monday last week throughout Nebraska. It was quite general, covering the principal agricultural portion of the State. In the extreme northern portion of the State stock is said to be suffering.

Alfred Merritt, of Duluth, has brought suit against John D. Rockefeller, of Standard Oil company fame, and F. T. Gates, his private secretary, for $1,226,400. Merritt claims that he was damaged by fraudulent representations in the forming of the Superior Consolidated Iron Mines.

The twenty-second annual congress of the Association for the Advancement of Women met at Knoxville, Tenn.

Five of the leaders of the Sanctified band on Chincoteague island, Maryland, have been indicted for conspiracy in separating wives from their husbands and for being a public nuisance.

The long drought in West Virginia has caused great distress among farmers and lumbermen along the Little Kanawha. Many sawmills have been compelled to shut down for want of logs.

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) board of health has announced that several cases of child murder have grown out of the insurance of the lives of infants among the Negroes.

Police Commissioner Sheehan, of New York, refused to produce his bank books before the Lexow committee, and, being termed a defaulter and a thief, called Attorney Goff a liar.

FOREIGN.

The floods have destroyed the best crops round Dunkirk, and have done enormous damage to other farm crops. Courtrai and Mouserou are partly under water. Several cases of drowning have been reported on both sides of the Belgian frontier.

The steamer Tormes struck Crow Rock near Milford Haven, Tuesday. Twenty-one men, including the captain and officers, were drowned. Seven of the crew were saved.

An asylum for the insane at Joenkoeping was destroyed by fire. Fifteen of the inmates were burned to death.

The force now at work on the Cubebra branch of the Panama canal will soon be increased to 1,000 men.

The Steamer Wairaipa was wrecked on Great Barrier island off the coast of New Zealand. The steamer had a large number of passengers, and 112 of them were drowned. The number of the saved is not positively known, bnt among the rescued are some of the passengers.

On Thursday the members of the palace guard were the first to take the oath to the new czar. The grand dukes were the next to swear allegiance and they were followed in the order of precedence by the high court functionaries, court officials, military officers and civil officials.

There is little reason now to expect that the German government will relax its new order prohibiting the importation of American cattle and fresh beef, and it is probable that the matter will settle down to a question of endurance as between German sugar and American beef. Ambassador Runyon, at Berlin, has presented Secretary Gresham's vigorous protest to the German foreign minister.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Oct. 29 to Nov. 3:

H T Beatty, Mrs A Banks, Rev B M Amsden, J G Brooks, A Honeywell, W S McCullough, R D. McDonald, H B Wolcott, R R Pinkerton, Rev W Pinkney, J Loughridge, Rev J C Elliott, W Chestnut, T Woodmanse, T Keppel, Mrs M Wilson, Mrs J Haire, Mrs E A Johnston, A Alexander, Mrs R E Barden, J M Frink, C N Bemer, G A Green, W H Clay.

J. B. Hazlett, of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, has farm lands and city property for sale or trade for merchandise. Will answer all questions concerning Dakota.

After five years of labor, with the help of 247 editors, and the enormous expenditure of nearly one million dollars, the Funk & Wagnall's Company, New York City, announce that the last page of the second, the concluding, volume of the new Standard Dictionary is now in type. This volume will be ready for delivery in November. The Cynosure advises anyone needing a dictionary to examine the Standard before purchasing.

A Fresh Start

Is taken by bronchitis, the grip, erysipelas and many other severe diseases with the dangerous, changeable fall weather. The beginnings are slight and often disregarded. The recurring cold, the simple catarrh are only forerunners of trouble ahead. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the safeguard and preventive. Don't wait until you are down sick before you give attention to this important matter. Purify your blood and build up your system with Hood's Sarsaparilla now and you will save expense, suffering and time. Be sure to get Hood's.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison treet, Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII, No. 10 CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,281.

Cook F. A. 17 River St. May 95

PUBLISHED WE[illegible] BY THE

NATIONAL CHRIST[illegible] ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Stasdard Lodge Charity 8
"The Sermon on the Mount" 8
"My Lord and my God". 8
Help for the Poor... ... 8
Personal Notes..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Secret Society Charity.. 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges 2
Society--A Poem..... 2
THE A. P. A.:
A Revelation of the Amoreans..... 3
CORRESPONDENCE:
Philip Charles of Pondoland; Is It So?; A Leading Question for the N. C. A..... 5,6
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
REFORM NEWS:
The New York State Association; Questions for Settlement in New England; Hopeful Gains in West Tennessee; Among Minnesota Scandinavians.....4,5
LITERATURE..... 6
THIS AND THAT..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
College Notes..... 9
RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 9
THE HOME.....10
BIBLE LESSON 11
FARM NOTES 15
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

At an early hour on Sunday morning, the old home of the late ex-President Jonathan Blanchard, at Wheaton, together with the adjoining barn, was entirely destroyed by fire. For over two years these historic premises had been occupied by Rev. H. L. Kellogg, the editor of the Cynosure, and his family as a residence, and the early hour and the fact that all the inmates were buried in sleep when the flames invaded the house, rendered their escape without the loss of life in the highest degree providential. As it was, the buildings, with most of their contents, were reduced to ashes. The live stock in the barn were happily rescued, but nearly everything inflammable was burned. Mr. Kellogg, in his efforts to save his family and household treasures, was quite seriously overcome by the smoke and flames, and temporarily disabled for his work in this office. It is a consolation to know, however, that there was an insurance of about $4,000 on the premises, which will do something toward repairing the pecuniary loss; but in such cases there are mementoes and souvenirs of other days which can never be replaced. Readers of the Cynosure will sympathize with Mr. Kellogg and his family, and offer a prayer of gratitude that of all his loved ones not one was lost or seriously injured.

As the result of a dissension in the Holston (Tenn) conference of the Methodist Episcopal church between friends of Pastor T. C. Carter (defendant in a salacious church trial) and adherents of Pastor Manker of Chattanooga, a new organization has been formed at Cleveland in that State, to be known as the "American Methodist church." The peculiar feature of this institution is that it will be governed by its members, and ignore bishops and presiding elders. Two local pastors are the self-constituted "apostles" of the new church. In view of these frequently occurring splits in religious bodies, one could wish that more of the spirit of Christ pervaded these organizations. Even Paul, in considering one of these defections of professing Christians, thanked God that he had baptized none of them. It would be interesting to know just how many Freemasons are among the Cleveland dissenters.

An active worker in Tennessee recently gave a lecture on Masonry before the students of Lane Institute at Jackson, and happily presented the truth. He notes the fact that the N. C. A., in issuing so much literature relating to this important reform, is engaged in a useful and good missionary work. The South needs just such work; the field is wide and ripe for the harvest, but the laborers are too few.

To use a phrase much in vogue among politicians, the pope is just now engaged in "strengthening his fences," by urging a union between the Church of Rome and the churches of the Orient and appealing to all believers in Christ outside of his palings to come into his fold. But true Christians will hesitate about entering the wolf's den, even though the hireling shepherd may call it a sheepfold. See John 10:1-16.

It seems like theosophy run mad when the anniversary of a dog's death is celebrated by tolling bells and a special service held over its grave, as was recently the case in Providence, R. I. The dog in question was a St. Bernard of remarkable nobility and intelligence. His owner was a firm believer in the re-incarnation of souls, and believed implicitly the assurance of Madame Blavatsky, that the animal had previously existed as a mighty warrior in some remote age. Without subscribing to such opinions, Jumbo, as he was called, was doubtless better worthy of funeral honors than some men.

The Catholic Annual, in an unusual outburst of candor, informs its readers that "Protestants have lavished millions on millions of dollars on their church work for the black race. They have given generously. They have a full equipment, with ample facilities, including even a dozen universities to turn out the future leaders of the race. . . . . And as yet we (Catholics) have not so much as one high school for boys. If Catholic young Negro men go to the Protestant universities to learn to be teachers, laymen, doctors, etc., they are almost sure to forsake the (Catholic) faith." This admission is very full of encouragement for the friends of the race.

If there was no other virtue in the recent general election, it was manifest that intelligence was more prominent in the result than is too often the case in such contests. Wild vagaries and predictions had been widely promulgated for weeks before the ballot was taken, and it was difficult to determine beforehand how the contest would end. But the constant agitation among all parties had the effect of eliciting many real facts, and the result, if not altogether satisfactory, indicated a revival of general interest for the benefit of the greatest number, and gave a stern rebuke to many fallacious theories and a large amount of political chicanery.

President Cleveland and Governor Altgeld have proclaimed November 29 as the national and state day of Thanksgiving. Like former proclamations of this sort, they omit all mention of Christ, and are so phrased that all sects may on that day unite their thanks to their respective deities without giving offence to each other. This may pass as political theology, but these papers can hardly be classed as Christian documents, appointing a Christian festival for a Christian nation.

Kate Field, of Washington city, is one of the best known of our public women. It is a pity that her patronage of the California wine business has not won for her a respect equal to her publicity. But it is due that she be commended for her views on secret societies. Of the A. P. A, she says in a written statement of her views: "I deplore a movement that seems to me to be so unconstitutional." Of the lodge system in general she states a great truth in plain terms: "Secret societies, to begin with, especially when political, do not commend themselves to women."

Thanksgiving day is near. He can most sincerely join in the worship and general gratitude of the festival, who has been a giver; who has by some act of self-denial warmed the heart and made more cheerful the life of some fellow-being. The winter season approaches; let its rigors be anticipated, and the suffering of last year be prevented by early and thoughtful charities, personally administered. It is a pleasant notice issued by the German Baptist Brethren for special contributions in aid of mission effort and of the needy poor, which shall serve to give a zest and sweetness to Thanksgiving day.

At the Knight Templars' Conclave of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, held last week in Masonic Temple, Boston, Samuel C. Lawrence, a well-known rum distiller, was chosen Eminent Grand Commander. The bacchanalian revelry at the banquets and suppers of these carpet knights makes it very appropriate that they choose for their head a man whose rum factory is sending out its liquid tide of poison and death over the world, and doing more than anything else to make still darker and deeper the vice and wretchedness of heathen lands.

"Religion and government," said Dr. Holmes, "appear to me to be the two subjects which of all others should belong to the common talk of people who enjoy the blessing of freedom." To a divinity student who thought there might be danger to truth by making such things common discourse, he flashed back the quick answer: "I did not know Truth was such an invalid. How long is it since she could only take the air in a close carriage, with a gentleman in a black coat on the box?....Truth is tough. Truth gets well if she is run over by a locomotive, while error dies of lockjaw if she scratches her finger."

SECRET SOCIETY CHARITY.

ADDRESS OF REV. JAMES MATHEWS IN NEW YORK CONVENTION.

What is it? A false pretence, a bold assumption, a delusion and a snare. It bears the same relation to Christian charity that churchianity does to Christianity, and formality to real godliness.

Secret societies have no right to steal our graces, especially that crowning grace of all, sweet blessed charity, for the adornment of their temples of imagery, and we do not propose that they shall do so unrebuked.

Charity is a Christian grace, free for all; but the bogus stuff presented for our admiration by lodgemen excites only amazement, if not disgust.

"Charity seeketh not her own." Masonic psuedo-charity does seek its own, and that only.

"Charity vaunteth not itself." Masonic pretended charity does nothing without vaunting. "See how we help our poor!" Yes, we see! A penny for charity, but pounds for vanity, display, banquetry and vain show.

Charity seeks the stranger; lodgery shuts the stranger out. Many years ago I was a stranger on the street in Neosho, Kas., a traveling preacher. I saw a light in an upper room. The night was cold. I thought it was a meeting and went to the foot of the stairs. A well dressed man asked what I wanted. I said, "I want to go in to the meeting." I was camping out, having no money to pay for hotel accommodation. He asked me if I was a brother. "Yes," I said, "a Christian brother." Ah, well, said he, "that won't do, if you are not an Odd-fellow, you can't go in." And I thought that those inside were sure enough "odd fellows," who would keep a stranger out in the cold, because he was only a Christian. But that is the way with secret society charity. Not big enough, broad enough, Samaritan-like enough to take the stranger. Christian charity is quite another thing. It asks not for grips or passwords, but feels for all and stretches out a helping hand to all.

But if we speak of secret society charity in the matter of its spirit, what can we say? Doubtless if there were any Masons in this meeting, who were willing to speak at all, we should get a specimen of Masonic charity.

Here's a sample: Traveling with a Methodist preacher who was a Mason, I broached the subject, as I thought I had a right to do. He, who was all smiles and suavity before, changed instantly and answered me, "Brother, you don't know anything about it, if you are not a Mason. Nobody does."

"What," I asked, "did not Chas. G. Finney know anything about it?"

He trotted out the wornout old hack and said, "Finney was a perjurer, and not to be believed."

"Well," said I, "herein is a marvelous thing. How could Finney be a perjurer as a Mason, if he did not tell the truth as a man? He must reveal the secrets of Masonry to be a perjurer. You say he was a perjurer, that he revealed the secrets, and you yourself say it. If he did not reveal the secrets he was a true Mason, but a lying man. Which horn of the dilemma will you choose?"

He would have none of the logic, but fell to pitying us poor blind dupes, etc., as is the wont of Masons who are not honest enough to yield when vanquished.

"A man convinced against his will
Is of the same opinion still."

In my own church in Brooklyn, when preaching from "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them," I was stopped by a man who sprang to his feet and cried out, "I denounce every word you have uttered as a lie!" He was a preacher from Chicopee, Mass.

The next morning I was in the office of a member of my church, when a man came bustling in and asked what that fellow had said about Masonry last night. The brother accosted had been a member of the Greenwood Lodge but had been converted and left them. He quietly remarked, "You should have been there to hear."

Oh!" blustered the man, "I don't want to hear liars. Why! I've been told he said he has a book that tells all about Masonry. You know that's a lie."

"No," answered the converted Mason, "it is not a lie. It is the truth. He has a book, and I let him have it. And you have had it, and you know I had it, so what's the matter with you, John? Better tell the truth like a man, and not lie like a Mason." And the silence that fell was very thick and very hard.

But Masonic charity men say, "Why, we cover up the sins of our members, and help them out of holes. Doubtless they do. But Christian charity keeps men from falling into holes, and from doing things that call for covering.

I know many Masons, jolly men, good business men, square men, and we are good friends, in spite of their being Masons, and I being but a Christian. I ask them sometimes, "Don't you want me in? One laughed, and said, "Well, no, you are better out. You would haul your religion in, and you know we don't meet for that purpose; you are all right as you are and where you are."

Now that is a good sample of real charity from a man in whom Masonic obligations have not destroyed his manhood. Men are charitable not because they are Masons, but in spite of it. Whereas true Christianity makes the churl liberal.

Let us exalt Christ and tell to all that charity is not something to be had in a close lodge for money but from its Author, the living God, without money and without price.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

II —THEIR FOLLY.

A man cannot become a member of any lodge without first binding himself, by an oath, to secrecy. This obligation is rendered as solemn and weighty as possible, and there are various pains and penalties attached to this obligation.

Now all this is supreme folly. Why should I bind myself by a solemn oath not to reveal something of which I know absolutely nothing? Why should I promise beforehand never to divulge the workings of a system that are wholly unknown to me at the time the oath is administered to me? I believe it is worse than folly. It is very wrong.

I will never promise not to expose a thing that I know nothing of. Sometimes persons say to me: "We want to tell you something, if you promise not to tell any one of it." I always beg to be excused. I cannot promise secrecy. It may be something that should be made known. Though told in secret, it might be well to proclaim it from the house-tops!

Now, after a man has taken the oath, upon the pains and penalties of perjury, and he is let into the secrets of the order, there may be very much that is wrong. Indeed it may seem to him absolutely sinful. But what can he do? He has obligated himself, by a terrible oath, that he will under no circumstances divulge the secrets of the lodge. He thinks that oath must be kept sacred. He thinks that if he has made a bad bargain he must stick closer to it. He fears the wrath of the lodge if he makes known its dark doings. He does not know that such an unreasonable oath would be far more honored in the breach than in the observance; and that it is far better to break a sinful promise than to keep it.

Oh, that I could induce young men to stand fast in their liberty and not be entangled with such an unreasonable yoke of bondage. It always causes me unfeigned sorrow to hear of a young man's initiation into the mystic orders. Over all their portals might be written the legend: WHOSO ENTERS HERE LEAVES FREEDOM AND INDEPENDENCE BEHIND!

Fairfield, Nebraska.

Life is the time for doing. The world is a great workshop, in which there is no room for drones. God himself worketh as the great master-builder. All creatures fulfill their needed functions, from the angel that hymns God's praise to the insect that floats in the air, There is plenty to do, evil to put down, good to build up, doubters to be directed, prodigals to be won back, sinners to be sought. "What dost thou here?" Up, Christians, leave your cares and do. Do not do in order to be saved; but, being saved, do.—Meyer.

Let the church wait on God and God will wait on the church.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

(Meeting of Mr. Mason and his ward heelers. Present, Mr. Mason, his henchman Jack Forest, saloon-keepers Dick Jolly-fellow, Hans Beerman and others)

MR. MASON:—
Well, boys, how goes the battle?
First, let us hear from our good friend, Jack Forest,
For well I know he has been busy.

JACK FOREST:—
Why, "everything is lovely and the goose hangs high."

MR. MASON:—
A very fine quotation. Bring it down
To common comprehension.

JACK FOREST:—
There are a hundred gentlemen who keep
Homes for the weary and the thirsty throng
Within our city,—right good fellows all.
These I have seen and crossed their palms with that
Which brightened up their faces. Most of them
Will work for us.
I've seen the labor leaders and prevailed
With golden arguments, except a few
Cranky old fools, who shook their grimy fists,
And called me names. One was a holy horror,
A certain Mr. Austin; if you please,
A deacon of the church. He rated me.
I was a traitor to the commonweal,
An enemy of labor, and the tool
Of baser villains. Had I my deserts,
I would be breaking stones within the walls
In prison dress; and more to this effect.
I'd rather face a vixen than a saint.
I dodged around a corner and was gone.

Then I have seen the magnates who control
Our mills and factories, and explained to them
That Mr. Mason, being of their class,
Would seek their interest and preserve the peace
If strikes be set unhappily afoot, or if
That communistic, restless spirit of the time
Start wildly up, and huge gorrila-like
Beat his big breast as if it were a drum
To frighten us.

MR. MASON:--
All right, my boys, these are a mighty three
That through the Philistines can ever break
And bring us sparkling water from the well
Of deep desire.
When liquor, labor and the rich combine,
Then clear the track, for golden days are coming
With good things laden like a rushing train.

When I have worked within my proper sphere,
The Rev. Mr. Policy's my friend.
He is persuaded I'm so near within
The confines of the kingdom, that it is
The interest of religion to secure
My victory at the polls; and you should hear
How through his sermons in a subtle way
He pleads for me.
There's not a graceless heeler of you all
Can equal him when pleading for a friend.
I've seen the editors, and all is well,
Except, as our friend Forest says, a few
Cranky and conscience-laden snuffed and said
They were not in the market. All is well.
Bring in the wine and let us have a song
From our good old friend Jack Jolly-fellow.

SONG—The Golden Stair.
The teacher in the Sunday-school
Bids climb the golden stair.
But when we climb to its heights sublime
There's nothing there but air.
The air is thin and raw and cold,
And the heart of man gets harm,
For there's nothing there on the golden stair;
There's nothing to keep us warm.

Chorus.
Then hurrah for the people's church, my boys,
Where the merry glass goes round.
There's poorest fare on the golden stair;
We'll keep to the kindly ground.

The man who climbs the golden stair
Has conscience for his guide.
And never yet did a jolly good heart
Have such unkindly bride.
She pulls you here, she draws you there,
With all her strength and force.
But we've left her there on the golden stair
And applied for a full divorce.

Chorus.
We all are bound to the smiling ground
By many a social tie.
The kindly piggie is well content
With the comfort of his sty.
We'll eat and drink and work and play,
And vote when the day comes round,
And leave in the air on the golden stair
The fools who despise the ground.

Chorus.

(To be Continued.)

THE A. P. A.

A REVELATION OF THE AMOREANS.

OATHS AGAINST CATHOLICS—PASSWORDS, ETC.

Gen. A. C. Hawley in his speech before the Sunset Club declared he would read the ritual of the A. P. A. That ritual has been published in this city, but the Cynosure wishes to verify the publication before reprinting it. There is one oath of secrecy in the oaths printed below, and in the Chicago exposition there are several. The present publication is an abridgement of a long article in the Boston Post of Oct. 19, to which reference was made in our last New England letter.

THE POST'S REVELATION.

For the first time in the history of the A. P. A., which is the most secret society in existence, a representative of the press has gained admittance to their meetings. A Post reporter has been practically a member of the mysterious organization for four days. Last evening, "Cambridge Council 46," Friendship Hall, Odd-fellows' Hall, near Central Square, Cambridge, was visited, and the initiation of twelve members witnessed.

At the top of the stairs at No. 13 Mt. Auburn street, Watertown, there is a door with a small hole about head-level, similar to the orifice in lodge entrances. As the reporter's feet touched the landing the slide in the door was pushed back and an alert eye perused the interloper's countenance. The reporter knocked five times on the door—two double knocks and one single. At the same moment he whispered to the man within the magic words "Ross—Freedom."

The door was at once opened.

"You don't want to knock on the outside door like that," said the sentinel, "Friend" Frank Shoultz.

This remark was a ruse to draw out a possible lack of A. P. A. information from the reporter, but the latter, thinking that a direct reply might lead to the discovery of his non-affiliation with the A. P. A., professed to be famishing for a drink and asked as to where he could procure a glass of water.

As the meeting was not yet called to order, it not being 8 o'clock, the second door was open, and the reporter, summoning all the nonchalence he could command, walked in and took a seat.

At the end of the square apartment was the president's throne. At his right was the table of the recording secretary, "Friend" Rockwell, as he was called. On the president's right was the table of the treasurer, "Friend" Chase, who sat between the president and the financial secretary. In this vicinity, on a table covered by the national flag, was a little brown school-house, about a foot square, with two windows, gaping pathetically towards the door. This emblem was surmounted by a tiny "Stars and Stripes." The vice-president's chair was directly opposite to that of the president, and between the two was what the A. P. A.'s call their altar.

CRUCIFIX ON THE BIBLE.

On the altar was an open Bible, and on the Bible lay a brass crucifix about a foot long. This crucifix is to prevent Roman Catholics from joining the order. Thus far it has served its mission.

It was shrewdly opined by the projectors of the A. P. A. that no good Catholic would place his right hand upon the crucifix and take the A. P. A. oaths, which directly insult his religious belief.

After the inside door was closed the sergeant-at-arms, "Friend" Robins, was catechised by the acting president, Mr. Hazelton, as to his knowledge of the full password. It should be stated that the words spoken at the outside door were only a portion of the password. The rest of it is spoken only when the council is in session and the inside door closed.

When the sergeant-at-arms had properly shown that he was just as good as he ought to be, the acting president instructed him to examine the two guards as to their method of pronouncing the password. As this appeared to be satisfactory, the guards were directed to see that all persons in the room were friends of the order.

When one of the men came to the Post reporter, the latter rose, and in order to give the "grip," seized with his "left" hand the outstretched "left" hand of the guard and gave it what is known as a "yank" towards the floor. This was satisfactory, and then the reporter whispered in the guard's left ear the full password. This password was "Ross—Freedom—Omar."

All present, including the Post reporter, having been declared friends of the order, the acting president rapped with his gavel and the council went to business, and did not get out of it until nearly ten o'clock.

It was given out that one member had let certain secrets of the order escape him, and he was to be investigated.

As each member came in after the session opened, he rapped on the inner door as he had done on the outer portal. Then in the eager ear of the inside guard, "Friend" Hodgson, he whispered the full password: "Ross—Freedom—Omar."

The door being opened, he walked up between the altar and the vice-president and standing there, facing the acting president, swung his right arm across his chest. The presiding officer replied with the same motion with the left arm. The late-comer then wheeled round and saluted the acting vice-president in the same manner with his left arm, while that officer answered with his right.

THE A. P. A.'S ARE AMOREANS.

It was announced at the Watertown council that the password would be changed, and each member or visitor was instructed to see his president before the next meeting in order to learn the change.

This change, the reporter discovered, was the second word of the talisman. Instead of "Ross—Freedom—Omar," the new password would be "Ross—Missouri—Omar." The other signs remained the same.

The reporter also learned what every A. P. A. is called upon to guard strictly—that the name of the order in itself is not the A. P. A. or the American Protective Association, but the Order of Amoreans.

This reservation, as the acting president of the Cambridge council stated last night, is to enable members of the so-called A. P. A. to declare that they do not belong to any such order as the A. P. A.

The rooms of "Cambridge 46" were in Odd-fellows' Hall, Cambridge, in that part of it known as Friendship Hall.

It was while admiring the rooms that a stranger attracted the notice of a "Amorean," who, turning to somebody he knew, said he supposed as the stranger had got in at the door, that he was a "Fifteen" all right. From this strange proposition the reporter discovered something, of which the following is the substance:

"11" means "Roman Catholic."

"13" means "On the fence."

"15" means "A. P. A., or Amorean."

These things will be news even to many A. P. A.'s.

The Post man followed the crowd through a tortuous suite of rooms to the secret council chamber. Here were close upon 300 men of all ages and conditions, from the seeming mechanic to, apparently, the physician in good practice—from the bald-lipped youth to him in the seventies with whiskers patriarchal. It was a great show, and as men came in almost throughout the session, there must have been close upon 400 persons in the room.

There are four somewhat gorgeous thrones in the apartment, each surmounted by a roof in the miniature semblance of that of a Turkish mosque. According to A. P. A. regulations the elderly acting president, who was spoken of as Friend Donovan, seated himself in the east. The vice-president, who was Friend Young, seated himself in the west. The chaplain seated himself in the north. The secretary of state seated himself in the south.

INITIATING CANDIDATES.

While standing, the reporter noticed the little school-house and the other emblems of the order—also a grand piano, which somebody pressed to the extent of a few prescribed selections, while the candidates were marching about from the president, secretary of state, chaplain and vice-president in the taking of the oaths. The initiation was the most important business of the evening.

After some ceremony the candidates, twelve in number, were brought in. They were all blindfolded with a black cloth, and some of them looked as though they expected to spend their last night on earth right there in the secret chamber. They were nearly all young men, and were attended, the first by the sergeant-at-arms, the rest by a friend.

The candidate, before entering, had been found not wanting in the following particular, which occupied an important place in the constitution of the State Council of Massachusetts of the Supreme Council of the World:

> Any person to become a member of this order must be a male of at least 18 years of age, of sound mind, of good moral character, and competent to pursue some useful and lawful occupation, and who is, to the knowledge of two members of the council, not a member of the Roman Catholic church, and has not been for five years, or of any organization opposed to good government..... No person whose wife is a Roman Catholic, or whose children attend any Roman Catholic church or institution whatever, shall be eligible to membership, unless by dispensations from the Supreme President.

The candidates, in a long string and each with his hands on his front neighbor's shoulder, first marched to the president's throne, where the acting president lectured them on what they might expect. After reading the first oath he gave them a chance to withdraw if they did not like it, but there was no hanging back and they all went through the ceremony of committing themselves to the principles in the oaths, which follow:

THE FIRST OATH OR SCROLL.

The scroll or the first oath of the A. P. A. which every candidate has to sign in the anteroom is as follows:

> "I declare that I am a firm believer in the deity, that I am not a member of the Roman Catholic church, nor have I any sympathy for Roman Catholicism; that in my opinion no Roman Catholic should be allowed any part or parcel in the control, or occupy any position in our public schools.
>
> 'On the contrary, I realize that the institutions of our country are in danger from the machinations of the Church of Rome, and I believe that only by the removal of Roman Catholics from offices of public trust can justice, right and true American sentiment be fully subserved; that by the concentrated and continued efforts of the lovers of American liberty, only, can such be consummated and continued.
>
> "I pledge myself to defend the government of the United States and the State in which I reside from invasion and disorder, treason and rebellion, either by ecclesiastical, local or foreign foe, and against the usurpation of temporal or spiritual power whereby men become slaves to party and the Roman Catholic church.
>
> "I am willing to bind myself by a vow sacred and inviolable. I am a Protestant, and have been for —— years. I belong to the —— church, and the following societies: ——."

The age, residence, occupation and recommendations (two) follow.

OATH THE SECOND.

The second oath orders the candidate to deal justly with his fellowman. He will be just and equitable as employer or employe, or as counselor judge or arbitrator, and "may the merciful God measure out to him his keenest justice" should the candidate forget his oath.

THE THIRD OATH.

> "I do most solemnly promise and vow that I will not make known to any one in the world anything I may hear, see or discover in this order unless directed by proper authority to confer its degrees or communicate its work to a regularly organized and recognized body of the same, and to neither or any of them unless duly advised of the genuineness of the body to be so instructed.
>
> "That I will to the best of my ability preserve the purity of the ballot at any and all elections.
>
> "That I will discountenance frauds and impositions by words and tricks upon the people.
>
> "That I will maintain a rigid enforcement of the principles of honor and honesty against political usurpation or oppression.
>
> "That I will maintain and defend the government of the United States and the government of the State in which I live, against foreign invasion, against foreign foe, national or ecclesiastical, against rebellion, treason, or the foes of good government.
>
> "That I will forever renounce and abjure any foreign power, king, prince, potentate or ecclesiastical power, whereby the same may in any way conflict with my rights as a citizen, or with my rights of conscience; and if need be, I will take up arms and by opposing, end them.
>
> "I furthermore promise and swear that I will ever make it the aim of my life to keep the church separate and distinct from the state."
>
> (Repeating after the President:) "To all of which I do most solemnly promise and swear, so help me, God."

OATH THE FOURTH.

"I do solemnly promise and swear that I will not allow any one a member of the Roman Catholic church to become a member of this order, I knowing him to be such.

"That I will use my influence to promote the interests of all Protestants, everywhere in the world.

"That I will not employ a Roman Catholic in any capacity if I can procure the services of a Protestant.

"That I will not aid in building or maintaining, by my resources, any Roman Catholic church or institution of that sect or creed whatsoever, and will do all in my power to retard and break down the power of the Pope.

"That I will not enter into any controversy with a Roman Catholic on the subject of this order, nor will I enter into any agreement with a Roman Catholic to strike, or create a disturbance whereby Roman Catholic employees may undermine and substitute Protestants.

"That in all grievances I will seek only Protestants and counsel with them to the exclusion of all Roman Catholics—and will not make known to them anything of any nature matured at such conferences.

"That I will not countenance the nomination at any caucus or convention of a Roman Catholic to any office in the gift of the American people.

"That I will not vote for, nor counsel others to vote for, any Roman Catholic, but will vote only for a Protestant.

"But I will endeavor at all times to place the political positions of this government in the hands of Protestants, to the utter exclusion of all Roman Catholics."

After hearing this read, the candidate repeats after the chaplain:

"All of which I do most solemnly promise and swear, so help me, God. Amen."

THE CANDIDATE INSTRUCTED.

The first oath is administered by the sergeant-at-arms without the secret chamber, the second by the president, the third by the secretary of state and the fourth by the chaplain. Then the candidates are led up to the vice-president's throne and that officer makes a little speech while the masks are removed from the faces of the new members, who thereupon try not to look bewildered,

Then the vice-president says: "Sergeant-at-arms, you will present these friends to the president for final test and instructions in the covered work of this order." This is done, when the president delivers his final instructions in language substantially as follows:

"You have been brought in here under a delusion. You expected that you would join the order of the A. P. A. I will now disabuse your minds—that you have not joined the order A. P. A , but that you have joined the order of Amoreans, which is the name of an old and ancient order of similar objects, the word signifying friendship.

"Should anyone accuse you of being an A. P. A. you make an affidavit that you are not a member of any such order."

Then follows the service at the altar. The candidates place their right hand upon the crucifix and the left hand upon the Bible while the president explains why the crucifix is used.

The president then reads to the candidates:

"I hereby denounce Roman Catholicism.

"I hereby denounce the Pope sitting at Rome or elsewhere.

"I hereby denounce his priests and emissaries and the diabolical work of the Roman Catholic church.

"And I hereby pledge myself to the cause, Protestantism, to the end that there may be no interference with the discharge of the duties of citizenship."

The candidate then swears to protect the order to his utmost.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A "pink rose banquet."—Noble leaders of a noble cause.—Short-sighted labor unions.—Mrs. Lowell.

"How far yon little candle throws its beams,
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

How far, indeed! The tiny farthing candle, which only sufficed to make the darkness visible, which that brave and earnest woman, Jennie Collins, lit so many years ago, bids fair under the Helping Hand Society, an organization started to carry on her work, to throw its beams far into the next century,—as far, in fact, as our present defective wage system, with its unjust discrimination against working women, may continue. Rescue work is good; preventive work is better. The fallen ones, who would never have fallen had a friendly hand been stretched out at just the right moment, are legion. I am glad to say that none of Boston's charities are more popular with the public than this; and the fair now being held in Horticultural Hall to raise money for the purchase of a building of their own where working girls with small wages can have the comforts of a home for three dollars a week promises to be well patronized.

The fair was opened last evening by a "pink rose banquet." As the name implies, the decorations both of hall and tables were pink, and a single pink rose was laid beside each plate. Mrs. E. Trask Hill, as president of the society, introduced the speakers in her own peculiarly apt way. Dr. Lansing was the first one, and hit the mark, as he always does. His wish that the two hundred or more millionaires in the city of Boston would endow such a work as this, ought to bring forth a response, but unfortunately the rich men of the Hub do not show so liberal a spirit as the wealthy of other cities; or else they are especially successful in not letting their right hand know what their left hand does. Dr. Hershey followed with a strong plea for protection for American women as well as American men and boys, which brought out from Mrs. Mary A. Livermore the emphatic assertion that the American woman was protected,—not as on the continent by a system of constant espoinage, but by her own character and womanly instincts. Dr. Kneeland alluded humorously to having joined the Helping Hand Society at the time of his marriage and continued ever since a loyal member thereof. Dr. Reeder read an original poem full of bright hits on the inequalities of the wage situation as applied to women, followed by another, brief but very pathetic, from Hezekiah Butterworth, of the Youth's Companion, which pictured the aged father sitting peacefully in his home, "afar by the Zuyder Zee," thinking happy, loving thoughts of his immigrant daughter at the very moment when, succumbing to cold and starvation, she lies an unnamed, unclaimed corpse at the morgue.

Mrs. Stoddard, who disproves the assertion that anti-secretists are people of one idea by being helpfully associated with every good work taken up by the W. C. T. U. and the army of loyal women so nobly led by Mrs. Hill, was one of the bright-faced matrons who presided at the tables; and to me the sight of that assembly filling Horticultural Hall, and representing the fine consummate flower of our Christian civilization,—aged ones whose presence was a benediction, others in the prime of their strength to do and dare for humanity, and those just on the threshold of life who had not yet gazed into the depths of that dark abyss, the "way the other half of the world" lives, and recoiled, shuddering from the sight, were more beautiful than all the decorations and more inspiring than the speeches.

At a meeting to discuss municipal reform, held the other night in Berkeley Temple, women predominated, and followed the various speakers with an intelligent earnestness that savored ill for corrupt officials when the time comes for them to exercise the suffrage right. The city council, with its yard-long list of committees, would then no longer be allowed to take its gang of heelers, as charged by Dr. Lansing, and give them dinners costing a dollar a man at the expense of the city.

Boston labor unions are repeating their old threat of boycotting the liquor dealers,—for what? Because they are taking the hard-earned wages of labor, and giving only rags and misery instead? Oh, no; but because they get a certain part of their work done in New York and by New York workmen! This is the heinous sin. What they do in the way of blighting innocent lives, breaking up happy homes, and making paupers and criminals, is a slight thing, a mere peccadillo apparently in the eyes of the labor union. It will be a matter for rejoicing, however, if labor throws its ballot on the side of no license, even from a motive so low. But their opposition to the establishment of a trade school by the managers of the Franklin Trust Fund is less to be commended. It is a practical boycott on themselves. There can never be much improvement in the condition of labor until mechanical education and training are made as free to all as the ability to read and write. It is to be hoped that arguments so selfish and short-sighted will not be allowed to prevail.

Mrs. Josephine Lowell, who is such an ally of Dr. Parkhurst in fighting Tammany, is a New England woman, being born in West Roxbury, and a member of the old historic family made famous by the name of Chief Justice Shaw. She has a fine, strong face, reminding one of a portrait of some old colonial dame, as if the spirit of one of her ancestors had entered into her, moulding even the outward form into a subtle resemblance. There is an epic grandeur in this uprising of the women in our great cities to put down municipal misrule and corruption, worthy of having its deeds recorded by a second Homer, and which will make the end of this nineteenth century one of the most memorable epochs of human history,—at least when our histories are written from a true standpoint, and more space given to the world's moral battlefields than to its Waterloos and Sedans. Elizabeth E. Flagg.

REFORM NEWS.

THE NEW YORK STATE ASSOCIATION.

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

The annual convention of the New York State Association met in the Seventh Avenue United Presbyterian church at 2 P. M., Oct. 29, and was called to order by Rev. J. H. Tate, pastor. Rev. W. B. Stoddard of Washington, D. C., was elected chairman pro tem in the absence of the State president, Rev. S. R. Wallace, and Rev. James Parker, of Jersey City, N. J., was elected secretary.

Brief addresses were made by Revs. Stoddard and Tate. Rev. R. T. Wylie of Newark, N. J., illustrated the anti-Christian character of the lodge system by several convincing testimonies and well-pointed arguments. Rev. C. S. Everson of Brooklyn, N. Y., followed with a striking contrast between the ground of hope possessed by the consistent lodge member and the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. Rev. W. B. Stoddard showed the terrible nature of lodge religion. It is simply paganism clad in garments stolen from Christianity, that its shame may not be seen.

Rev. Mr. Shaw of Walton, N. Y., spoke on the principles on which reforms must succeed, and the necessity of reformers not growing weary in well-doing. Sisters Smith and May, the former representing the Free Methodist church, and the latter the mission workers of the city, spoke forcibly of the bondage and wickedness of the lodge system. A returned missionary who has for many years worked in foreign lands under the Christian Alliance, told how the "lodge" interfered with Christian work among the heathen.

At evening session Rev. J. W. Tamblyn spoke in a forcible manner of the position taken by the Free Methodist church regarding secret societies. They especially emphasized the doctrine of holiness, and found secret societies directly opposed to a holy life.

A patriotic solo was sung by Prof. Adams, and a vote of thanks was extended him, and the song requested for publication.

The State president, Rev. S. R. Wallace, who had arrived, was invited to the chair. He responded with a few well-chosen remarks. Rev. J. P. Stoddard gave a graphic description of the manner of initiation in some of the Masonic degrees. He held the undivided attention of the audience until a late hour. The session concluded with prayer by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.

The morning session of Oct. 30th opened with a prayer service, led by Rev. Berdick of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. A very interesting testimony season followed. Dr. J. C. K. Milligan, New York City, called attention to the struggle now going on in our State against secret political societies. Committee on State officers reported, nominating Rev. S. R. Wallace of Syracuse for president; secretary, Rev. W. B. Clark, and treasurer, Mr. L. Woodruff, both of Binghamton. Rev. A. S. Biddle discussed "Lodge Charity," showing clearly that the term "charity" could not fairly be applied to the disbursement of funds by the lodge. Rev. Mr. Mathews of New York City showed the utter failure of the lodge to exercise charity in treating with those who opposed its claims, and the entire absence of practical charity to the needy. In the afternoon session was an address by Rev. F. W. Farr of the Alliance Training-school. Prof. Farr dealt with the moral phase of lodge obligation. He demonstrated the conflict between the vows of the lodge and moral law; and that by its implied immoral teaching the lodge fostered immorality.

Rev. C. A. Blanchard. President of Wheaton College, followed on the topic, "The Workingman and Labor Organizations." The speaker showed clearly that the secret organization is against the laboring man's interest, by adducing arguments and illustration. Rev. Stephen Merritt, New York City, told in a thrilling manner his escape from the bondage of the lodge and of his consequent Christian enjoyment.

The Committee on Resolutions reported. After some amendment the resolutions were adopted as follows:

Resolved, 1. That we re-affirm our attitude of active hostility to the system of secret societies by whatever name called, believing them to be anti-Christian in their religion, un-American in their principles and a menace to the social and domestic tranquility of the people.

2. That as Christ is the Christian's example and teacher, and since he ever spake openly and said nothing in secret, no disciple of his has any warrant for entering an organization requiring an oath or pledge of concealment as a condition of membership.

3. That we regard the present attitude of class hostility in politics, engendered by secret political and religious societies, as giving just cause for alarm, and that we will not countenance or endorse the principle, however specious the pretext, or patriotic the profession, under which they solicit the favor and support of the public.

4. That we as a convention heartily and loyally support the anti-gambling amendment now before the people of this State.

5. That the present political struggle in this State and especially in this city clearly illustrates the evil influence of secret political societies.

6. That we commend the work of the N. C. A. and its organ, the Christian Cynosure, to all desiring information upon the secret lodge system and other living reform movements of the day.

7. That the thanks of this convention are due and hereby tendered to the pastor, trustees and members of the Seventh Avenue United Presbyterian church for the use of their house of worship for the annual meeting of the N. Y. State Christian Association, Oct. 29 and 30, 1894.

In the evening Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard gave the address of the evening on the subject, "The Duty of Christians Respecting the Lodge." The address was replete with facts and principles which appealed to every lover of the home, the church and the state. It formed a fitting crown to all the other excellent addresses of this convention.

Rev. J. H. Tate, pastor of Seventh Avenue congregation, was appointed delegate from this convention to the annual meeting of the National Christian Association, alternate Rev. James Parker, of Jersey City. After adjournment all departed feeling that they had not only been strengthened for continued and better work in the reform, but that a new impetus was given to every good work.

QUESTIONS FOR SETTLEMENT IN NEW ENGLAND.

PERSECUTION, UNPOPULARITY AND EVEN POVERTY ARE ALWAYS WAYMARKS OF TRUE REFORM.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 5, 1894.

Have we reached Revelation 13th and 17th, when "no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name?" Will Dr. Simpson, of New York, or some of the learned expositors of the Apocalypse, tell us.

If so, it gives us a solution of the attitude of some religious leaders, who decline to permit any strictures upon the secret lodge system, even by such eminent Christian scholars as Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Mrs. Dr. Gordon, and Hannah J. Bailey, to be sold at their headquarters, because "it would divide attention and diminish receipts" for their treasuries. Does the cause of foreign missions so far surpass the importance of home interests that no discussion must be allowed of systems that are turning our own people away from the sanctuaries where Christ is worshiped, back to paganism?

The importance of our work and the great need of urging it upon the attention of the "common people" is evident from the reception which it meets. Said a brother minister: "Yours is the most unpopular cause in Boston, and you make yourself the most unpopular man in the city by persistently advocating it."

I asked, "Is it right?"

"Yes," was the sincere reply, "but it's a hard, if not a hopeless fight."

"Since I am right I can well afford to be unpopular," I said.

I am not especially solicitous about my reputation. So far as I know it has never been said of me, "He hath a devil and is mad; why hear ye him," and until I pass that point I may not appropriate the distinction of being the most unpopular reformer that has sought to overcome the wicked one "by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony." I do not undervalue the good opinions of my brethren, and appreciate their well-intended admonitions, but their favor or approval I may not enjoy at the cost of a conscience void of offence toward God, and the approbation of him of whom it was said, "He hath a devil and is mad."

There are some things I do not understand, and one is why I should be appointed "Deputy Inspector of Elections," by the mayor of Boston. Since such is the fact, I do not feel at liberty to decline an honorable service, even when coming as a surprise. I had hoped to vote for the Prohibition candidate for governor, but since he has announced himself an A. P. A., I cannot endorse that secret political order by voting for one of its prominent leaders. I am unwilling to endorse the duplicity, strategy and secrecy of the Jesuits by giving countenance or encouragement to any other order that is avowedly seeking to compass its ends by the same identical means. Let those who believe that "the end justifies the means" vote with the A. P. A., or with the Jesuits, but I must cast an independent ballot, for a free citizen, or none at all.

Boston is the "Grand East" of the Northern Jurisdiction of the "Secret Empire." But recently the leaders were here in council and elected the notorious distiller, S. C. Lawrence, as the sovereign head of their order. If newspaper reports can be credited, our city is to be invaded by an unprecedented throng of plumed and decorated and titled American citizens (?) whose mission, unlike the coming of any great missionary, educational, or ecclesiastical body, is unknown to the great mass of even well-informed citizens. Something should be attempted to counteract the influence of this body and to warn the people against its deceptive arts.

It is undoubtedly true that the allied federations of secretism have made active opposition to their movements unpopular. They have intimidated some and confused others, who are at heart real friends of our work; and it is also true that the secret lodges have failed to win the confidence of the best element in their own ranks. A majority of the public-spirited members of good character endure their lodge yoke under mental protest, and are in bondage through fear. How to help this class to regain their liberty is one of the questions which should receive careful attention at our annual gathering. Next to the question of how to prevent others from being enslaved, this is perhaps the most important.

The question of finance is not to be overlooked. It is an ever-present fact when added publications or increased efforts are under consideration. It is only saying what is true of many popular movements, when I remind the friends that the past has been a year of unprecedented tests of faith. While the Association has a good financial basis, in means not yet available or productive, it has been a perplexing question how to keep the work afloat at times. Those accustomed to give in larger sums have gone in some instances beyond their contributions in other years, but the aggregate from smaller offerings has been much less. If it is desirable to continue the work, some plan should be adopted by which this financial burden will be more equitably shared among the friends. One brother suggests that should the hard times continue, it may be necessary to solicit means from door to door. If no other or better way can be devised the cause is worthy of even this self-denial and sacrifice. I believe there is a more excellent way; let us find it out and adopt it at our annual meeting.

Local elections will have passed before our meeting. The A. P. A. will have shown its hand as a secret political machine, and the effects of "tariff reform" on the industries of the country will be better understood, and we may hope that conditions will favor a more vigorous and successful campaign for 1895. Let us remember that it is written: "If any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him," and then with the faith of the apostle to the Gentiles declare, "We are not of them who draw back unto perdition, but of them that believe to the saving of the soul."

J. P. Stoddard.

HOPEFUL GAINS IN WEST TENNESSEE.

Jackson, Tenn.

Dear Cynosure:—Wednesday, Oct. 3, I lectured on the subject of Masonry in the Macedonian Baptist church. For several days following, took part in revival services in different churches. Then returning home for a few days on the 19th inst., I came back to this city. At the A. M. E. church, Rev. M. S. Finney, pastor, I gave an Anti-masonic sermon lecture. The people gave marked attention, and I think that the Holy Spirit demonstrated the truth to the minds of the hearers. The pastor followed with some remarks, saying, "We have to-day been brought face to face with the Scriptures in regard to our secret fraternities, and it will be well for us to study over this subject." He invited me to come again.

Since then I have preached seven times in different places in the city and gave two lectures. Some of the pastors are ready to have me preach but are not ready to have it announced that there will be a lecture on Masonry. However, two give encouragement. Rev. W. D. Webb, in whose church I preached once and gave one Anti-masonic lecture, is arranging for another. His heart I believe is truly in the work of the Lord. I heard him preach the most able, eloquent and earnest funeral discourse that I have heard in a long time. The readiness with which he investigates this anti-lodge reform, gives me to hope that he will yet be an efficient worker in this cause.

C. Powers.

AMONG MINNESOTA SCANDINAVIANS.

Red Wing, Minn.

Editor Christian Cynosure:—The truth of God was most cordially welcomed by the Lutherans of Spring Garden in this county, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 31, and likewise by the same denomination at Vasa, Nov. 1. At the close of the last lecture, a man said that a Freemason murdered his brother and escaped punishment for the crime; which is exactly in harmony with the obligations of Freemasonry, and also its god, the devil, whom Christ declared to have been "a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the truth."

The kind hospitality and welcome accorded by Rev. J. Fremling, Rev. J. J. Frodeen and Rev. G. A. Stereborg and their families should be gratefully acknowledged.

This county is one of the very best in the State for farming purposes; and it is almost wholly settled by Swedes and Norwegians, and it is evident that these people care for their churches and their pastors by the appearance of their church edifices and parsonages; and reciprocally, the pastors care for their flocks by not withholding from them the truth that unmasks the hypocrisy of the lodge.

William Fenton.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PHILIP CHARLES OF PONDOLAND.

What a miracle of conversion is that which has been very recently related concerning Philip Charles of Pondoland in South Africa. When on his way to a "big beer-drink" to be held at the place of the chief, for whom he was principal counselor, he felt that he was anew resisting the work of God's grace in his heart, as often had been the case since he put away his true wife and children twenty years before.

Returning home late in the night, he called the children that he had by his pagan wives to get up and pray; and later journeying toward the home of the missionary, he was met in the way by that Jesus whom he had persecuted. The work was a thorough one. The strong drink which had so often intoxicated him was destroyed, and so were the casks which had held it; the money which he had purloined from the chief (for whom he was treasurer) was restored; his unbelieving wives, to whom he confessed his sins and with whom he prayed, were honorably sent to their homes, while part of his cattle were sold that he might meet the expense of the journey to King Williamstown in Cape Colony, where were his praying wife and her children.

In reading of this marvellous redemption of a man, I bethought me what would it profit such a one to be inducted into a Christless, oath-bound secret lodge; and wherein would be the gain to his children, to be taught the military drill and have guns put into their hands, the better, forsooth, to walk in the way of holiness!

JOSIAH W. LEEDS.

IS IT SO?

DOES THE LODGE RULE IN POLITICS AND CHURCH.

EDITOR OF THE CYNOSURE:—It is well for Mr. Adams, of Oregon, in your last issue, to offer to prove that Masons and Odd-fellows now, as in Rev. Mr. Finney's time, hold nearly all public offices that are worth holding; but if, as he also says, his exposures have "added valuable accessions to both orders," what is the use? And where will he expose them? Is it not true that where a hundred papers do not praise the lodge devil, ten thousand do? Secrecy controls the press, pulpit, courts, all—at any rate they get all they go for. Ten years ago the leading paper in Springfield, Mass., if a trifle uncertain in politics, was an American and a Christian paper. To-day it is largely given up to portraits and praise of Jesuit dignitaries, bishops, monsignors, and priests, and of political and other prominent persons of whom it seldom fails to speak as "A Mason of high standing," "High up in Masonic circles," "Long one of the leading Masons of the city," etc., etc. But it is the church, the clergy, who are most to blame. And have not the crafty, and tricky "high priests" of secrecy reason to dance in ghoulish glee as they see, in increasing numbers, ministers of the Gospel, and also those they profess to teach, those whose souls they are sent to save, all following after Satan's most successful lure.

Speaking of the same city named above, a gray-haired preacher said: "Every church in the city is ruled by the lodge." And secrecy is so certain of its power it cares nothing for the few dozen papers that at times dare to not praise it. But the Christian church and its members are most to blame.

A New England governor, not long ago, appointed a commission to settle a boundary line question. He was, of course, a Mason and a churchman, and every one he appointed was a "high" Mason and also a member of some church. The President of the United States may not be a Mason, but how about the ones nearest to him? Freemasonry is so entrenched at Washington, at the capitals of most, if not all, the States, that when desired it has everything its own way. There are New England towns that for twenty-five years have been entirely in the hands of the lodge. A favorite scheme is to make up a board of selectmen by electing two Masons and one other. This other one is usually some good deacon, or other honest, clever churchman. Two is a majority, and the good men are thankful enough to get into office, so they never make any trouble. Let Mr. Adams expose all he can. Let everyone yet remember that secrecy would soon perish did the churches and their members but do their duty.

NEW ENGLAND.

A LEADING QUESTION FOR THE N. C. A.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—Ever since the late rally of the lodge to "dedicate" the new "Masonic Temple" of the Masons in Mansfield, Ohio, I have had it in mind to write urging you to raise the question direct to the Presbyterian church before the world whether she designed to endorse the Masonic institution before all men as an institution of God? Such is her action as witness now her proceedings in Mansfield at this "dedication," when the doors of the church were thrown open to the Masonic delegates, the ladies thereof officiating as at an anniversary of—say a foreign missionary society, an organization recognized by all men as of God.

The church thus accepted the lodge in the eyes of the people in the same way as the missionary organization, and the question should now be raised before all men as to this action of the church,—offensive in the last degree to the whole spiritual body of Christ.

Again, a few days ago, at the laying of the corner-stone of the city armory of Cleveland by the Masons, Rev. Dr. Muller, presiding elder of the M. E. church, offered prayer, in which he asked the blessing of God on "this power as directing the people" (I quote from memory and may be corrected if in error), thus also sanctifying the lodge before all the people.

But this is not all. As often as the year rolls round one secret society after another, officially and by announcement, file into this church and that, and are hailed from the pulpit as the offspring of God. Proclamation is thus made throughout the land that these are the Lord's hosts, and the people have no other recourse than to believe it. The missionary societies, the Bible Society, the tract societies, the Sabbath-school organizations,—all, all are on no higher plane in their sanctity and relation of acceptance with God than are the secret orders. Thus the notables of these orders, in some instances, sat in the pulpit in uniform and were styled "prelates" in the papers, to the unspeakable disgust of all the people of God.

Now I submit whether the National Christian Association ought not to call a convention at once, of her ablest men, for the purpose of formulating the question to be put to the Presbyterian and Methodist churches in the name of the Great Head of the church, and before all men: "Do you intend to put the seal and endorsement of Jesus Christ on the Masonic or any other secret lodge?"

You will see that if any individual church in either of these bodies should as palpably renounce the atonement of Christ before all as have innumerable of them set up the lodge and sanctified it in the eyes of men, the voice of the church would be instantly heard and the proceeding would not be tolerated. Silence, then, on the part of the church body, in view of the proceedings I complain of, is giving its consent to them, and I for one, as a follower of Christ, have a right to demand at the hands of those who are responsible whether they propose, as their proceedings show, to put the seal of Christ on actions for which I know they have no divine authority, and which, therefore, is moral suicide.

Your Association cannot act too promptly in reference to the suggestion I herein make to them.

Yours in Christ,

(Rev.) C. CONKLING.

LITERATURE.

THANKSGIVING SERMONS AND ADDRESSES. An aid for pastors. Compiled by William E. Ketchum, D. D. Pp. 329. Price, $1.50. Wilbur B. Ketchum, New York.

This volume will be a welcome addition to many a pastor's library. The discourses and outlines are by prominent preachers, among whose names we see those of Drs. Monro Gibson of London, Isaac Barrows, J. H. Brookes, S. Baring-Gould and others. Our American Thanksgiving sermons are often a discussion of great national issues in their relation to the Christian church. In preparing a volume for many years, of course the themes of a general and religious nature must predominate. Various are the legitimate ways the Christian minister may secure the needful preparation upon the fruitful theme of Thanksgiving. His primary resource must be God's own Word. He is, however, lacking in research and ill-qualified for this duty who fails to glean and appropriate from every field with prayerful care all help available. Those who have often traversed the fields in search of themes and material, and, therefore, whose skill and wisdom in selection is matured, can well render to those of lesser experience wholesome aid. A single suggestion may open in the reader's mind an unexpected fountain of thought from which shall flow healthful reflection and appropriate discourse. The work is evangelical, unsectarian, and thoroughly practical.

SONGS FOR THE SHUT-IN. Compiled by Mary Craig Yarrow. Price 75 cents, postpaid. Thomas Whittaker, Publisher, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

Not every one knows of the "Shut-in Society." It was organized a few years ago and now numbers over a thousand members. "To be a sufferer, shut in from the outside world, constitutes one a proper candidate for membership." Associate members are persons who, by writing letters, sending papers and books, and little presents, cause some brightness to shine into the hard, dull lives of those who on account of sickness spend their days indoors, often in one room. This collection of songs, dedicated to this society, has been selected with much care from a variety of sources and from the best authors, with special reference to the severe trials of these suffering ones. We hope that all who know of any who are spending their lives in pain, often in poverty and unutterable loneliness of heart, will send a copy of this collection of verses to them, and thus in some degree make lighter their heavy crosses, and put a little sunshine into a life of trial.

PELOUBET'S SELECT NOTES. A Commentary on the Sunday-school Lessons for 1895. By Rev. F. N. Peloubet, D. D, and M. A. Peloubet. Pp. 346. Price $1.25. W. A. Wilde & Co., 25 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

The Select Notes by Dr. Peloubet have, for many years, been the constant companion of thousands of leading Christian workers who have found in them just the condensed matter that they desired when it was not wise or convenient to consult the more elaborate standard commentaries, and the popularity of the book the world over has been steadily increasing, because both the editor and publishers have in every respect sought out and furnished only the best things. This year the first six months completes the study of the Life of Christ, and the notes supply an abundance of the most helpful and interesting material regarding both the action and aim of the last years of our Master. In July the International Lessons go back to the Old Testament, and with great skill the editor has garnered such facts, illustrations, and explanations as will so illumine the text as to make it intelligible and profitable to every teacher and scholar. This volume is better than the old in its frequent and helpful tabulated summaries, chronologies, etc., and superintendents will find it more helpful than ever for the quarterly review and special lessons. We regret to see that the fiction of Christ's birth on the 25th of December is maintained, and the compiler goes further and reckons other events from that date in a very unseasonable and unreasonable way. The whole volume is freely illustrated, and with its finely drawn, accurate maps and beautifully printed pages is a delight to possess, both for its external beauty and its positive helpfulness to every student of the Bible.

The Century for November signalizes the opening of its twenty-fifth year by the beginning of one of its most important enterprises, the Life of Napoleon, by William M. Sloane, Professor of History at Princeton College. The first chapters deal with Napoleon's childhood and youth, including the Corsican period and his school days in France, and in this period the history has the value of a unique fullness. Much care has been bestowed in the selection of illustrations from the large amount of accessible material, and the installment is rich in portraits. Among the illustrations are a hitherto unpublished portrait of Napoleon at 16, drawn by a school-fellow, and a facsimile of the last page of his exercise-book at school, containing a curious reference to St. Helena. Mr. Charles Dudley Warner contributes an article on Prof. Sloane and his work. Apropos of the war in the East there is an illustrated article on the City of Canton by Florence O'Driscoll, M P., setting forth how the Chinese live and work. It was at Canton, it will be remembered, that a thousand lives were recently lost by a fire among the flower-boats on the river. An important study of common life from personal investigation is set forth in a paper by Jacob A. Riis on "The Making of Thieves in New York." Mr. Riis is well known as the author of "How the Other Half Lives." The present paper is a startling revelation of the culpable shortcomings of the New York authorities in the education of the children of the poor.

The Review of Reviews for November, in "The Progress of the World," has some suggestive paragraphs bearing on the present attempts at "municipal housecleaning" in the great cities of New York, Chicago and San Francisco, and takes the occasion to emphasize certain lessons to be learned from European municipal experience. In speaking of Glasgow's system of street cars, owned and operated by the municipality, the editor points out that this responsibility was not undertaken by the city until the municipal government had been tested with many large enterprises which it had shown its fitness to control and operate successfully. Edward Everett Hale sums up the life and charm of the late Oliver Wendell Holmes. There are several portraits of Dr. Holmes and illustrations of the scenes which surrounded his life. "How Our Lawyers Are Educated," by Mr. L. R. Meekings, points out many glaring abuses. "A Tragic Sequel to Ramona," by Edward B. Howell, calls attention to certain specific errors in our Indian reservation policy, and the writer casts a charm over his moral with the pathetic story of the recent murder of Mrs. Platt, the Indian teacher i "Ramona's land.

THIS AND THAT.

A member of Parliament once stopped in the midst of a long, tedious oration to take a glass of water. Sheridan immediately rose to a "point of order." Everybody wondered what it could be. "What is it?" asked the speaker. "I think, sir," said Sheridan, "that it is out of order for a windmill to go by water."

In the Supreme Court at Providence, R. I., Judge Tillinghast granted an injunction against the Master Plumbers' Association in behalf of the non-members, restraining the association from instituting a boycott. The organized master plumbers notified the wholesalers of supplies not to forward any goods to non-members on the risk of being boycotted. The injunction was granted on the ground that it was against the spirit of American institutions.

A Georgia paper tells how a magistrate tried with rather poor success to imitate the judgment of Solomon. He was perplexed by the conflicting claims of two women for a baby, each contending that she was the mother of it. The judge remembered Solomon, and, drawing a bowie knife from his boot, declared he would give half to each. The women were shocked, but had no doubt of the authority and purpose of the judge to make the proposed compromise. "Don't do that," they both screamed in unison," "you can keep it yourself!"

It takes 3,200 mail cars to distribute Uncle Sam's mail, and the New York division alone requires 819 railway post-clerks to handle it. Last year these clerks handled 1,207,220,577 pieces of mail bound past their division, of which 753,976,835 were letters. To get a clear idea of the immense amount of mail matter in this number of letters, suppose they averaged four inches in length and are laid end to end. They will stretch over a line 2,975 miles long. All railway post-clerks must be quick and intelligent, and have a thorough knowledge of the geography of the whole country.

The residents of Selma, Ind., and vicinity, are greatly excited over a discovery that has been made by gas well contractor Samuel McPherson. A few days since while Mr. McPherson was drilling a well there for the Farmland Natural Gas Company his men were greatly alarmed when the heavy drill, which weighs nearly a ton, took a sudden drop as if in a bottomless pit. It had penetrated the earth about 120 feet when it plunged downward as far as the rope would permit. The drill was pulled out, lowered again, and the 1,000 feet of rope was not long enough to reach bottom. Two long pieces of 8 inch casing pipe were next lowered and they, too, were lost. The driller next cut some small trees and dropped them into the hole with the same result. The cavern seems to be very deep, and is believed to be the same cavern found at Bluffton, forty miles away; where just such a hole was found recently.

A line or two from Mrs. Archibald Dunn's new book gives a striking picture of the horrors of life in Canton. "The circumference of the city walls measures from six to seven miles, and within their inclosure there exist 1,000,000 Chinese people. I had been in many Oriental cities and had smelt many Oriental smells, but those of Canton," said Mrs. Dunn, "were giants to them all. The passage-like streets are open sewers, every description of refuse being cast into them and forming continuous heaps on either side of the way. The water supply is raised from wells in the streets, the mouths of which are on a level with the ground, and a shower of rain or drippings from buckets in which they lift it must carry back the surrounding filth in a way horrible to think of. Through miles and miles of these high, narrow alleys did we travel through the most fetid, airless atmosphere that human lungs could cope with, through the most evil and noisome odors that could assail human nostrils, past the most loathsome sights in the shape of abnormal butcher meat, such as dogs and cats, skinned and dressed ready for cooking; rats, both dried and hanging alive by the tails; frogs and unnatural-looking fish in tubs of water, alive, and awaiting death and consumption."

A KNIFE

in the hand of a Surgeon gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death. TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations. PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife. STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting. STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

BIBLES at 1-3 Price for 30 days only. Best and Cheapest Family and Oxford Bibles in the world. Write for circulars at once. NATIONAL BIBLE HOUSE, Syracuse, N. Y.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT
Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.
THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.
This is a good thing—Ed.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer has restored gray hair to its original color and prevented baldness in thousands of cases. It will do so to you.

J. B. Hazlett, of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, has farm lands and city property for sale or trade for merchandise. Will answer all questions concerning Dakota.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Col er on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

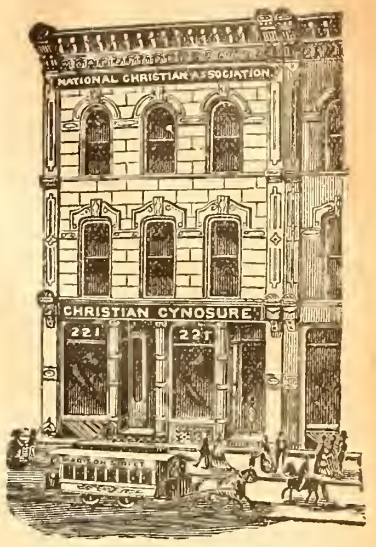
OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.



Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1880.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Eniow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the New England Christian Association will be held in the First Reformed Presbyterian church, corner Ferdinand and Isabella streets, Boston, Dec. 19 and 20, 1894. The two evening sessions will be devoted to public addresses by noted speakers. The morning and afternoon sessions of the second day will be occupied by the business of the Board and such discussions as the convention may elect. Let all the friends of the cause respond to the call of the Board Dec. 19 at 7:30 P. M. J. M. FOSTER, Pres.

STANDARD LODGE CHARITY.

We shall never hear the closing pæan over the beauty of lodge charity until the last lodge member has paid his final dues for the good of his order. It is the stock argument of the secret system, often heard in connection with that other standard lodge fallacy, that "the lodge is doing more good than the churches," or that other equally time-worn fustian, that "if a man is a good Mason he needs no other religion."

But there are those whose investigations of lodge charity have stripped it of its romantic and benevolent character; and among these is a valued correspondent of the Cynosure—Rev. P. B. Williams—to whom we are indebted for these modern instances of "paid-up benevolence." A gentleman, a Mason, was taken ill, and, to recruit his failing energies, went to California. Finding no relief there, he decided to return home to die. Through the kindness of his father he was supplied with money for his homeward voyage on a steamship, but in his weakness he dreaded to risk that mode of traveling.

Before he could reach a railroad station he was obliged to pay $5 a day for a conveyance. Finding himself short of money, he telegraphed for additional funds, but as he could not wait for a remittance he had to pawn his trunk and a gold watch and chain, to procure means to proceed on his journey.

With him he had his traveling-card from the lodge, a breast-pin displaying the square and compass, his collar and cuff buttons, and a charm which also bore the Masonic emblems. Reaching home he testified to his father, when dying, that his Masonry had been of no earthly use to him, and that the only kindness shown to him on the road was by a Christian man who was not a Mason. Of course, the Masons were promptly on hand to bury him; but they did not. Here was their opportunity to advertise themselves, but the father as promptly notified them that he was able to bear the funeral expenses, and would conduct the obsequies himself.

Another case is that of a man who had been a Mason for years, and was prominent in his neighborhood. He was eventually prostrated by illness, and an invalid for a long time, during which his family were worn out in taking care of him. Then the Masons were called in to assist in nursing him; but his tedious sickness wore out the Masons also, and they hired a nurse, complaining that the old man's case would "break them all up."

But in due season the invalid was restored to health; and in settling up the expenses of his illness he quarrelled with a member of the lodge over an exorbitant charge; and now they are bitter enemies.

Another case of "forced charity," or "strained benevolence," occurred in a little town in Oregon. A member of the order of Odd-fellows had a little daughter who was nearly blind. An oculist at Portland promised to operate upon her eyes and insure a cure for $35 The father, needing funds for this purpose, applied to his lodge, which had money in its treasury, for a loan, but was refused unless he would mortgage his home to the lodge. This is another fair specimen. "Where is boasting then?" asks Paul. His reply was: "It is excluded." But the lodge has not excluded it.

Suppose that man had gone to a Christian—a sincere follower of Christ—and urged his necessity. He would have found the true love of God and love to our neighbor more merciful and beneficial than the hypocritical pretensions of the lodge. In this case what virtue did he find in his grips and signs?

"Such institutions," adds Mr. Williams, "have no right to exist in a land like ours. A country that suppresses Highbinder and Mafia societies and allows Masonry and Odd-fellowship to grow and prosper only shows the great depth of corruption attending its legislation.

"For the church to treat this subject lightly is to tamper with souls. It is virtually assisting in shutting the door of salvation through Christ, and opening false doors, which means doors to perdition.

"May the Holy Spirit arouse the conscience of the church to the awful sin of secret society fellowship."

"THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT."

The occurrence of this sublime discourse in the international Sabbath-school lesson for November 18, affords a fine opportunity for preachers and teachers to enlarge upon the "foundation principles" of true individual religion. 1. Its Author—"Never man spake as this man spoke." The character of the God-man is nowhere more finely portrayed. When Paul wrote: "Let this mind be in you also that was in Christ Jesus," he might have added: "You will see it gloriously reflected in the Sermon on the Mount."

2. Its high standard. The test of a law is obedience to it. As the standard of everyday Christianity, the Sermon on the Mount is very high; but no higher than every true Christian would have it. No man can reach its fullness in his own strength or understanding. Grace alone can enable humanity to gain such sublime heights of divine wisdom and goodness. Yet it is possible—let us be thankful for the hope and the privilege of fulfilling both the spirit and the letter of that grand discourse. Make it the standard of admission to every Christian church, requiring not only a full endorsement of its truths, but entire obedience to its mandates, and what a sifting time there would be in many churches! There would be less lodge members, but truer and better church-members.

3. Its clearness and brevity. Even a child may compass its beautiful phraseology, couched in the plainness of everyday expression. It is not too long to be committed to memory; and the young man or woman upon whose mind its shining truths are impressed will have a theology at hand that the vilest enemy of our Lord cannot smirch or gainsay.

Let us make much of this glorious sermon.

"MY LORD AND MY GOD."

Referring to the exception taken by the Boston pastor to the acceptation of Christ as indeed one with the Father, a correspondent sends the following answer to the question, "Did Christ assert his divinity?" which occurs in the last number of the American Friend: "The worship that the disciples in Acts 14, and the angel in Revelation 19, refused with horror, Jesus accepted. Was not that an assertion of divinity? When he adopted Jehovah's great name, 'I am,' was not that an assertion of divinity? When he claimed the right to forgive sins, to give peace, to admit to heaven, was not that an assertion of divinity? From the lips of a pure and holy teacher sent from God to be our example, would not such phrases as 'My peace I give unto you,' 'Come unto me, and be ye saved,' 'Come unto me, and I will give you rest,' be simply blasphemous?"

It is interesting also to note the remark of Dr. Abbott E. Kittredge, of the Reformed church, New York City, in a late number of the Intelligencer. Speaking of our Lord's argument in Matthew 12th in which he reasoned that the service due to himself was of more importance than that rendered by the priests in the temple, and that this claim of superiority over the house of God was a claim of deity, Dr. Kittredge says: "If Jesus was not God, then his words would have been blasphemy. So in respect to his claim that the Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath. He was Son of man, but he was Immanuel, 'the Holy Child and Head of humanity appearing in the name of God.' As God he was above all law, and he could repeal or modify the law of Sinai, touching the observance of the Sabbath day."

HELP FOR THE POOR.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR GIVING ASSISTANCE WHERE NEEDED.

Though the elections are over, the millennium is not here. The causes for business depression have been discussed pro and con during the campaign just terminated. Men are still unemployed and without the means to support their families. It is confidently believed that we have seen the worst of the hard times, and from this on work and wages will improve. But the winter is upon us and hundreds of destitute worthy families must be assisted. The luxury of aiding the worthy is sometimes lessened by a fear that in so doing help may be rendered to the ingrate and undeserving. It must needs be that in a city, having a million and a half of souls, there are many worthy wards of charity. Widows, orphans, sick cripples and otherwise infirm, are the common heritage of all cities and provision must be made for them. There has always been more destitution in our city than many suppose. The keenest suffering is seldom made public. It is timid and reveals itself only to the few. All our relief and charitable societies will, the coming winter as in the past, need to be supplemented by individual and church effort. We have many more rich than very poor families. Among the rich and well-to-do families there is enough unused clothing and bedding to comfortably supply the poor of the city. Overcoats, ulsters, suits, cloaks, dresses, underwear, bedding, boots and shoes, etc.—a little worn, a bit out of fashion, too good to destroy, are packed in out-the-way closets. When mice and moths have done their destructive work the remnants of this apparel are usually given to the ragman. There are tons of this partly worn clothing packed in out-the-way receptacles simply to mildew, mold and decay. Why not utilize this clothing to relieve present suffering? There is no other beneficence, involving so little sacrifice on the part of the donor, so valuable at this time to the destitute. "Who gives promptly gives twice." A society of ladies meets statedly at Chicago Avenue (Moody's) church, to make new, remodel and repair worn clothing, to be given to destitute worthy families. The good work of this society is limited only by the contributions of new material or worn garments. Contributions are solicited and packages will be sent for to any part of the city or suburbs. Many wagon loads can be used to advantage. A postal card addressed to J. M. Hitchcock, Chicago Avenue church, 224 La Salle Avenue, will receive prompt attention.

—The report of the New York convention shows a commendable interest in a great cause on the part of the pastors of the city. If the people did not follow them, as was intimated last week, they were surely the losers. A State convention seldom boasts so many able speakers.

—A writer in a Catholic paper at Brussels, Belgium, makes this comparison between the Albigenses (!) and Freemasons: "Just as the Albigenses were depraved and corrupt, just as they were the masters of vice and iniquity, so the Masonic fraternity presents the same bad characteristics." Who says that Rome ever changes its hatred?

—Editor Wheeler, of the New York Voice, says he does not believe in secret political organizations. But we judge from various commendations that it depends on what the name of the organization may be. If it is A. P. A. it is to be condemned. If K. of L., or trade union, or Farmers' Alliance, it's all right. But these, and scores more of the secret lodges, are at work in politics far more fatefully than the A. P. A. We thankfully note the statement of conviction and trust the Voice will stand to it, come what may.

—The congregation of Rev. J. A. Greer, president of the Iowa State Association, Columbus City, celebrated their semi-centennial on the 25th of October. The congregation organized with twenty members in 1844 were all from Tennessee. Rev. Dr. J B. Carson, of Xenia, Ohio, made the principal address of the occasion on "Our Tennessee forefathers." Hon. James Dawson, of Washington, Iowa, though in his 87th year, made an interesting address on pioneer life. Rev. Dr. C. D. Trumbull, of Morning Sun Reformed Presbyterian church, was also among the speakers.

—A lodge organ says that Governor Woodbury and Lieutenant-governor Mansur, of Vermont, are both Odd-fellows, and the former is a Freemason and twits the patriotism of that grand old State with its Anti-masonry. Will not some Vermont friend find if this ill report is true, and give these erring officers a copy of the laws of the State bearing on their inconsistent lodge relation?

—A noble undertaking by the 1,300 students at Oberlin is the support of a college missionary to Japan. Mr. Cyrus A. Clark, of the class of '84, is supported directly by the students each year. The presentation of the matter of the "Clark Fund" to the students was made Thursday, Oct. 25, and resulted in the pledging of about $700. Mr. Clark's salary is $1,000, and that amount will undoubtedly be raised during the year.

—Gen. O. O. Howard, the one general of our army, who is better known as a soldier of the Lord than of his country even, has retired from active service in his sixty-fourth year. He has decided to make his home at Burlington, Vt., near Fort Ethan Allen, where his son is quartermaster. He intends to keep busy writing and lecturing, and will occasionally aid the Army and Camp Memorial Mission, where he has taught a Bible class for the past five years, while commanding the Department of the East.

—The Christian Instructor says of the missing president of Amity College, College Springs, Iowa: "Little hope is now entertained of ascertaining the whereabouts of Dr. T. J. Kennedy. Some of his friends think that in a fit of melancholy, under nervous depression, he planned to sink out of sight, and that by and by he will make himself known. It is a most melancholy affair. It has been discovered that he took the train from Omaha for Denver, Colo., August 24th, and that is the last trace of him."

PERSONAL NOTES.

—Rev. David Morrow, of Oakland, Cal., lately associated himself with the Reformed Presbyterian church (General Synod). He is a classmate and personal friend of ex-President Harrison.

—Rev. W. O. Dinius left his home in North Harvey, near this city, last Saturday, to spend some weeks in Kent in northwestern Illinois, in evangelistic work. Mrs. Dinius accompanies him.

—Rev. W. B. Stoddard writes from Pittsburgh, under date of the 10th, that he can be addressed for two weeks at the Home Hotel in that city. A report from him may be expected in our next issue.

—Rev. A. M. Acheson, of Oregon, who has been a true helper of our Coast agent, Bro. Williams, has gone to take charge of the U. P. church at San Jose, California, during the month of November. He will then come eastward.

—Rev. Wm. Fenton reports that he held two good reform meetings in Goodhue county, Minn., of which further mention may be made in the next number of the Cynosure. On Friday night last he was to have spoken in Lake City, Minn.

—Rev. Dr. David Gregg, of Brooklyn, lately visited Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa., and addressed the students in the institution. Many old friends welcomed him for he was not many years ago a Covenanter. He also gave a more public address on "The Scotch—the Makers of America."

—Rev. Samuel F. Porter, writing from Louisville, Ky., November 9, mentions the fact, in connection with his reform work, that he had spoken in the colored University of Kentucky, and that he was to have preached last Sabbath in the Congregational church of Louisville, of which Bro. Harris is the pastor. On Monday of this week he was to have gone to Lexington, Ky., from which place we may expect him to make a good report.

—A circular from our Bro. William F. Davis of Chelsea, Mass., states that the Supreme Court of Massachusetts is expected this month to decide whether the public and orderly preaching of the Gospel should be permitted on the public grounds of Boston. Bro. Davis has spent one year in prison for his testimony for the freedom of worship. He urges that prayer to God be made that the court make a righteous decision. The expense of taking the case before the courts is large and any financial aid that can be rendered will be very welcome.

—The visit of Rev. A. J. McFarland of St. Johns, N. B., to the churches of this country is reported from time to time. "Loyalty to Christ in the Sphere of Citizenship" was his address at Mercer, Pa. A report in the Christian Nation says his mothod is "peculiarly happy in discussing this difficult subject. While he had to encounter prejudice in many of his hearers, his arguments, illustration, and the words and spirit in which they were expressed, were all suited to overcome this opposition, and to win his audience to the approval of his teaching."

—Bro. O. S. Palmer returned several years ago from the Arcola mission in India on account of ill health, and has been assisting the converted gambler, J. P. Quinn, in arousing the people against the gambling evil. He is now located in Chicago and has opened a mission on Cottage Grove Ave., near 63d street, and the terminus of the cable road. A large tenement-house population in the neighborhood welcome the enterprise and have readily contributed to organize it. We regret to learn that two sons of Bro. Palmer died suddenly last month of diphtheria.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Salvation Army reception.—Anti saloon League at work.—An authority on alcohol as food.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7, 1894.

William Booth, founder and commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, visited Washington one day last week and delivered an address to a meeting of evangelical clergymen, held at the First Congregational church in his honor, and attended by about two-thirds of the Protestant ministers in the city, on the work, progress and aims of the Salvation Army. A great mass meeting was held in the evening in Convention Hall, attended by 4,000 people.

Gen. Booth was introduced by Mr. Justice Strong, of the U. S. Supreme Court, retired, and on the plattorm from which he spoke there were a number of Washington ministers, and officers of the Salvation Army. Gen. Booth is not an orator in the general acceptance of that term, but his conversational style of talking to an audience, much as a business man would address a meeting of the board of directors of some mercantile corporation, has something very attractive in it. He began his address by telling how he had been led by Divine Providence, about twenty-nine years ago, into neglected portions of the darkest quarters of London, and how what he saw there caused him to make an effort to Christianize those people, and that effort led to the organization of the Salvation Army, which to-day has branches in forty-two countries, presided over by 11,000 officers. The principal object of the Army, he said, had been to grapple with harlots, drunkards and criminals; to bring them to a realization of their evil life, and finally to bring them to God.

The Anti-saloon League is giving our people object lessons in what may be accomplished by intelligent organization. For instance, it has broken up, for the time, a violation of law that for years has been winked at by the authorities—the unlicensed sale of liquor in disreputable houses. It has been customary for the police to raid these houses about once a year and to compel their proprietors to forfeit collateral in cash amounting to about what the charge is for a liquor license, allowing them to continue the sale of liquor the rest of the year without molestation. The League hopes to permanently stop the sale of liquor in these houses.

Dr. W. W. Godding, Superintendent of the U. S. Hospital for the Insane, in a lecture to the temperance society of the North Presbyterian church, said on the mooted question of alcohol being a food: "Physiologists have held and still maintain the most contradictory views on this subject, but under certain conditions and in a limited sense we may admit that it is a food. But the mistake made by so many young men is that of supposing it a food in the sense in which mother's milk is a food and of imbibing it as freely. A food, is it? When we turn to the statistics of poverty and crime, and see what rum has made them; when we open 'Darkest England,' and read what that practical Christian, Gen. Booth, says of the rivers of gin in London, that like the streams of Equatorial Africa impede human progress in all directions; when we enter our asylums and hospitals and stand in the presence of the wrecks of mind and body that whisky has made—then I think that such nutriment, if indeed it be nutriment, is fit only for devils' food."

COLLEGE NOTES.

—Rev. J. F. Ellis was lately inaugurated president of Gates College, Neligh, Nebraska. He graduated at Wheaton in 1869. Another Wheaton alumnus, Rev. M. B. Holt, was the first president of the institution at Neligh, and put it in the right direction as to reform principles.

—The new buidings of Knoxville College, Tenn., to take the place of those destroyed by fire are nearly completed. There will then be six buildings crowning the hill where Longstreet once planted his cannon against the old flag. They will provide room for 350 students in dormitories and facilities for instruction for 600. Pres. J. L. McCulloch is still in charge, and Prof. J. R. Millin is yet of the faculty and editor of the college paper, The Aurora. The recent concert tour of a party of the students netted over $1,500 for the institution.

—A committee of professors at Yale University, appointed a year ago to revise the exercises of commencement day, has reported. The only speaking will be an address by the President on the condition and progress of the university. A new officer will be introduced called the "orator," who will perform the same duties a similar dignitary does at Oxford, England. This following of an English fashion may have more reason behind it than the cap and gown nonsense which some institutions are adopting to promote "good form;" but may it never supersede the American custom of class addresses.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Rev. Wm. Moerdyke, formerly pastor of the Reformed (Holland) church in the south part of this city, has accepted a call from the church in Milwaukee, Wis., and will soon leave his present charge in Grand Rapids, Mich.

—The laying of the corner-stone of the First United Presbyterian church of Aurora, Ill., took place Monday evening, Oct. 29. Rev. Mr. Cosby, the earnest young pastor, is much encouraged with the result of his mission efforts.

—The corner-stone of a new building for the Bethlehem Swedish Lutheran church, Brooklyn, N. Y., was laid with appropriate ceremonies on Oct. 28 by Rev. Dr. M. Stolpe. Among the speakers were Mayor Schieren and Rev. Dr. G. F. Krotel. The edifice when complete will seat 2,500 people and cost about $40,000.

—At the Inter-Seminary Missionary Alliance of America, met at Springfield, Ohio, W. Y. Jones of McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, read a paper. Frank Fox of the University of Chicago is president. As a result of the Alliance's work, 3,000 college students have pledged themselves to become foreign missionaries.

—A detailed and touching account of the fatal attack on the Scotch missionary, the Rev. James A. Wylie, has come from Rev. George Douglas, of Liaoyang, Manchuria, China. He thinks the magistrate did all in his power to quell the riot, but his force was too small. Before Mr. Wylie died he slightly recovered consciousness once or twice, his last words being "I wish I was in heaven."

—The enlarged edifice of the Bethesda church, Brooklyn, N. Y., Rev. Charles Herald, pastor, was re-opened on Oct. 28. In the morning Rev. Dr. John F. Carson preached; in the afternoon there was a Sunday-school rally, and in the evening Rev. Dr. A. J. F. Behrends preached. The cost of the alterations is about $20,000. Bro. Herald was chorister of the Moody church and our sweetest Gospel singer before he went into evangelistic work in 1886.

—Mr. Pugh, an energetic minister at Cardiff, Wales, has a method of overtaking the growing population of a large town which deserves special mention. He erects a tent or a wooden hall in which to gather a congregation. As soon as he has got fifty members he organizes them, and leaves them to work in their own way. In four years sixteen such places have been erected. The plan has two or three aspects worthy of attention. (1) The cheapness of the building, which saves the weary delay in collecting large sums of money for a costly building; (2) the speed with which the work is done, it bearing some proportion to the speed of growth in the population; (3) the faith in God, which leaves the young congregation to make its own way.

THE HOME.

THE DAY OF DAYS.

This is the day of light:
Let there be light to-day;
O day-spring rise upon our night
And chase its gloom away.

This is the day of rest:
Our failing strength renew;
On weary brain and troubled breast
Shed thou thy freshening dew

This is the day of peace:
Thy peace our spirits fill;
Bid thou the blasts of discord cease,
The waves of strife be still.

This is the day of prayer:
Let earth to heaven draw near;
Lift up our hearts to seek thee there;
Come down to meet us here.

This is the first of days:
Send forth thy quickening breath,
And wake dead souls to love and praise,
O Vanquisher of death!

—John Ellerton.

THE SABBATH IN THE HOME.

BY MRS. JAMES H. EARLE, NATIONAL LECTURER W. C. T. U.

(Address before the New England Convention)

"Call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord; honorable." —Isaiah 58:14.

"Call the Sabbath a delight," a joy. "Serve the Lord with gladness. Come before his presence with singing."

Call the Lord's day "holy," sanctified, set apart to a special use. Call that glad, holy day, "honorable," a day of distinction, an exalted, noble day, which we respect and venerate.

Some writer has said, "The desecration of the Sabbath means the demoralization of the home, and the demoralization of the home means the decay of the nation." "Not a message which the Sabbath brings, not a thought to which its proper use gives birth, not a feeling which it cherishes, but helps in the sanctification of the home life and in purifying the sources of domestic virtue. Without the Sabbath the family could hardly realize its unity in the fullest extent, and the roof-tree, ceasing to be love's sanctuary, would become but the lodging-house of individuals ignorant of the highest happiness." France is an illustration of this truth. She has given little honor to the Sabbath, and the word home is not in her language.

If we call the Sabbath a delight, we must first make it a day of gladness. Looking back to my childhood's home, I see my dear, aged grandfather, a Presbyterian elder, who would not even walk out in his garden, lest some thought of week-day toil should mingle with holy rest. Neither father or grandfather would shave or black their boots on the Sabbath day. No stately dinners were cooked in our home on that day. You fancy it was a dull, wearisome time to the children. On the contrary, it was a red-letter day. If we had no cooked dinners, it was the day for dainties. For our noonday lunch, the favorite pies and cakes were provided; the luscious fruits, that come in such attractive variety with the changing seasons; nuts, cracked the day before; corn, popped on Saturday afternoon or evening.

No arbitrary rules can be laid down to guide all households alike in preparation for the Sunday dinner. In many homes it is the only day in the week when all the family are gathered together. Perhaps sons and daughters are at school, during the week, and spend the Sabbaths with father and mother, kindly inviting a homesick stranger to share their privileges. Then comes the temptation to make the Sunday dinner even more elaborate than on ordinary days. But it is possible to make it a matter of principle to choose meats, vegetables and desserts that can be largely prepared on Saturday, and simply warmed over on Sunday; that the provision in the Fourth Commandment for servants may be "remembered." It is a privilege also to place within reach of our domestics good and interesting books and papers, perhaps calling attention to some special article of value, thus encouraging them in a right use of their leisure. Said a minister, "Mother always gave us strawberry preserves for supper on Sunday, and we never had them on any other day of the week. It is well to mark the day for the children, if only by a dish of strawberry preserves.

In our home the Sabbath-school library books and papers helped to make the day a delight. We gathered around the piano and sang from our hearts, "Welcome sweet day of rest," and "Thine earthly Sabbaths Lord we love." This was the glad day when father was at home. For fifty years he was found in his store from early Monday morning until late Saturday night. We once overheard a lady remark, "Those words, 'Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him,' have no meaning to me, for my father never pitied his children." To us the text was exceedingly precious, for our father had all the sympathy and tenderness of a mother. He was as simple and honest as a child, yet possessed of excellent judgment and sound common sense. All classes sought his counsel, sympathy, and aid. Like the Master whom he served, he never turned any away empty. He was greatly beloved by rich and poor, old and young, black and white.

I remember the dusky faces of the refugees, gathered in the kitchen for their breakfast, in the days of slavery. These fugitives had been hidden in the barn or cellar, through the night, for father kept a station on what was called in metaphor, the "underground railroad." At one time there was not an individual in our town to whom father had not spoken tenderly concerning their soul's interests. Often when waiting upon a customer, and the purchases had been made, he would accompany such an one to the door, and ask after the soul's welfare. Perhaps the lip would quiver, or the eye would fill with tears, then the interested one would be invited back to his private office, where they would kneel in prayer, for father was never too busy to lead a soul to Christ.

This good man never let his right hand know what his left hand did, but when his daughter became a district visitor, and entered the homes of the poor, she was often told, "Oh, many are the pairs of shoes your father has given my children;" and sometimes they told her of the "barrel of flour" from the same source.

This was the father with whom we talked, and sang, and walked to the house of God on the Sabbath.

He made the day a "delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable," and gave to us the priceless inheritance of a sacred reverence for holy time. The older members of our family kept on hand a supply of bright, interesting stories which they read or told to the younger ones. None more fascinating than the Bible stories of Joseph and Moses, Samuel and Samson, David and Daniel, Ruth and Esther, placed like sparkling gems in the Word of God to attract the young. This day which the Bible teaches us to honor, is the day of days in which to fill the minds of the children with Bible stories, Bible truth, Bible precept and Bible principles. But on no account should children ever have the Bible given them to study as a task or punishment.

If a parent should be stern or severe on any other day of the week, all trace of it should disappear on Saturday night, and only smiles and good cheer remain for the children on Sunday, that the little ones may call it as Willie did, the "loving day." It would be sad indeed if father and mother were pre-occupied on the rest day, with week-day cares and burdens. Except these are thrown aside at night with our garments, we cannot have quiet sleep; and to be at our best on Sabbath day we must lay aside on Saturday night all week-day worries, cares and frets.

Tupper, in his lines on the Trinity, says that

"The very breath of man's life
Consisteth of a trinity of vapors,
And the noonday sun is a compound,
The triune shadow of Jehovah."

The sun—that fills the earth with light and warmth—is but as shadow to the splendor of the eternal city, where "They need no light of the sun, or of the moon, for the glory of God lightens it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." So should the Sabbath be to the other days of the week, a day clothed in white. Preparations should begin for its observance the night before: the children put to bed from the warm bath, their clean garments close at hand, that they may be robed in the early morning in harmony with the day. This prevents any hurry, or rush in the morning, to dress the children for church. Hurry is provocative of nervousness and sharpness in the voice; and we should all be quiet, clean, sweet, like the morning, with happy, thankful hearts.

From the first waking hours, till the close of the day, the bird song seems gladder and sweeter, the leaves have a more musical rustle, and the murmur of the brook has a peculiar melody. It may be that nature's voices are sweeter and more distinct and soul-stirring, when the sounds have ceased; when wheels and engines are still.

"The river of life runs through our dreams,
The leaves of heaven are at play,
And we see the golden city gleam
On the shining Sabbath day."

In the home that we have pictured, on our return from church service, there was no criticism of the sermon, minister or congregation. This would not have been allowed, and our elders never set the example of unkind criticism. Many thus prejudice the young people of their households against, not only the preacher, but the truth that he proclaims. We were questioned as to which one could remember the most of the sermon. Quite a little strife sprang up among us in this exercise. Knowing that we should be questioned, our ears were always open during sermon time.

Perhaps you say, "My child would rebel against such an exercise." Then offer some reward: a ride, a book, a toy, something the child craves, when for a month, or whatever time the parent sees best, the text has been given, the place where it is found, and the sermon heads at least, if not the illustrations, remembered. Thus the habit of listening will be formed, and obedience taught to Christ's command, "He that hath ears to hear let him hear."

We cannot gain the children's attention to holy themes by asking for it as a favor, or demanding it by threats, or by scolding them for inattention. Talking or reading may fail to win it, and teaching things they cannot comprehend, or using words that they do not understand must prove a failure. They must first be interested. They will attend to lawn-tennis, or baseball, for hours at a time, for these things interest them. They care nothing whatever for dry talk, or "poky" books. Reverence for the Sabbath comes not by removing all toys and games, and giving nothing in their place, but by making it a day of a different sort of pleasure, not less of delight. Give them sliced or cut maps of Bible lands, and let the little ones put them together. These maps need not be expensive. You can paste them on card-board and cut them yourself for the children to dissect. Praise and encourage their efforts. Point out the place where Jesus lived, where he was born, where he was crucified; add some of the beautiful and touching incidents connected with his home life—his birth and his death for us on the cross. Children taught thus from babyhood will a little later be glad to go with you to the house of God, because they will understand what is said and be interested.

The large family Bible has done much by its illustrations to interest the children. Do not have one too elegant to be used. Let it help to make the Sabbath a delight.

There is the letter game. One of our older girls thinks of a Scripture text, and selects the needed letters for its formation. These are well shuffled and placed in a pile on the table. A younger sister spreads them out, tries to arrange them, in order to guess out the text that is in her sister's mind. In a short time she sees letters that form some word that serves as a clue, and very soon she has the entire text.

When it is too dark to read and too early for a light, sometimes the children guess a Bible name beginning with A., Adam, Absalom, or Ahab. Another beginning with B., Benjamin, Baalim, or Benhadad, and so on through the alphabet. As one and another gives a word, they are asked to tell all they remember about the person, or place, and so an hour flies quickly by.

Make scrap-books of Bible pictures for the little ones, but lay them by for Sunday. Do not let them use them on week days. Keep the beautiful books, the special books for Sunday.

Perhaps you have a blind neighbor, or an invalid, unable to read, who yet loves to hear God's Word, and your son or daughter would gladly spend a half hour of the Sabbath in giving such comfort to an aged or afflicted saint. Children do not want to rest on Sunday. They are not tired; they want to be kept busy. The rest is the very thing that is wearisome to them.

We would watch night and day by the sick-bed of one of our darlings and deem it no hardship. The body is of far less value than the soul. At the longest the most cherished body will soon be food for worms, but the soul will live on eternally. Then spare time and strength from making pastry and creams and sweetmeats; from embroidering, ruffling and plaiting children's garments, that they may look like Paris dolls on their way to church; to devise holy and happy employments for Sunday. Let us not be so busy with earthly cares that there will be no time left, lest we be too weary to study something to make the Ssbbath a delight in our homes. Not merely an amusement, but "the holy of the Lord, honorable." Let us find something interesting, elevating, purifying, ennobling, to tell the children on Sunday. Nothing will make the day a more unfailing source of pleasure than learning lessons that will be of infinite value to them. Lessons of love and wisdom and peace and comfort wrapped up in the leaves of the Bible.

There is no joy ever comes into our own, or our children's hearts, on these Sabbath days like the joy born of the reception of great truths concerning salvation, and love, and service for God. Do not allow secular reading, social calls, afternoon drives, or whatever leads to a worldly spirit and steals away the sanctity of the day.

A little girl became restless on the Sabbath. Her toys were laid away Saturday. It was a question whether the rest and reading and enjoyment of the family should be interfered with by Flora's restlessness. Would it not be better to bring out the toys? Her mother believing so firmly that we are creatures of habit, thought best to sacrifice her own present comfort and quiet reading, and incommode herself for the sake of the child. Toward evening Flora was seen reaching for her doll. Mamma said: "It is the Sabbath." "Oh, I forgot!" she replied. The mother told her a Bible story, undressed her, laid her in her crib, kissed her good night, and thanked God that already had been implanted in her child's heart that principle, that mere reference to it, enabled her to cheerfully practice self-denial and resist a strong temptation.

We gathered always together at the twilight hour, and closed our day with psalm and hymn. Then each repeated a verse, or a promise, or if the sun was not too far in the west, we read a verse alternately from one of the "sweet old chapters," then had our family prayer meeting, each offering a prayer for whatever we desired, or our father offered a simple, earnest, definite prayer for our family needs, mentioning each child by name, and all joined in the Lord's Prayer. The older ones went to evening service, the little ones laid down to rest, hushed to quiet peacefulness, with a feeling of security, as though enfolded by angels' wings.

People who never experienced the keeping of an old-time Sabbath may sneer and scoff at it as Puritanical and against liberty; or if in childhood they felt the restraint of law without the sweetness of love, they may feel bitterness toward the day; but even such have come to recognize the discipline in the formative period of life as a blessed one, and after years of wandering have yearned for the old-time life. We know the Puritan Sunday gave to our land grand, strong, fearless men, who cared for principle as they cared for nothing else. The appreciation of others, or even life itself, weighed nothing in the balance when duty was in the opposite scale.

It is not the fault of the day, or of the One who gave us the day, if it is not the sweetest of all days to us, and Sunday fits the child and the grandfather equally well. No more was the eye made to catch with the aid of light the flecking shadows of the sky, the colors of blossom and sunset, and the faces of dear ones, than was the Sabbath suited to the makeup of body and soul.

An able minister of the Gospel said that his parents came near wrecking his soul on the rock of a gloomy Sabbath. A frolicsome boy could not see the beauty of the Lord in a doleful and gloomy atmosphere, such as was often in his home. But he had an aunt who was all sunshine. The joy of the Lord filled her soul, beamed from her countenance, and flowed like sweet music from her tongue. Sunday was to her a high day of gladness. The little boy spent a year with this aunt and during that time he learned more about God and religion than he had learned in all his previous life. Not religion dressed in mourning robes, but in thanksgiving dress. That cheerful aunt was the means of his conversion and entering the Gospel ministry. In how many homes gloom kills where joy would give life.

We cannot answer the question, how shall I make the Sabbath in my home "a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable," without the aid of the Holy Spirit in answer to prayer. The power of God alone can fit us for the great work, and kindle in our hearts a sufficient glow of enthusiasm, to enable us to present truth in such an attractive and efficacious manner as to win the hearts of the children to the Lord of the Sabbath.

THE FIRST BRICK.

Rap, rap, rap!

It was the hammer of Trounser, the mason, making all this noise. He had just started to cut in Squire Manson's cellar wall a hole for another window.

John Davis was planting potatoes in the squire's garden patch near by. Suddenly a boy's voice rang out: "John! John!"

The potato-planter looked up. He saw Bill Mahoney on the other side of the hedge, and Bill was now beckoning.

"What do you want, Bill?"

"Want to speak to you just a moment, John."

Trounser, the mason, glanced at the two boys and murmured: "Bill seems to be urging John pretty hard to do something, and I judge that John don't want to do it."

The two boys continued this interview some time, Bill evidently pressing some point and John holding back.

"Well," remarked Trounser, the mason, giving his hammer a bit of a rest, "it took some time to put that thing through, John."

"Or rather to not put it through, sir."

"Oh, that's so? What did he want?"

"He wanted me to go over to his barn. Some other fellows were there, he said."

"O, to have a nice little time, I s'pose?"

"Undoubtedly."

"It is my opinion that they will have a pretty noisy time before they get through. I saw a boy going into the Mahoney barn and he had a pail of ale in his hand. Don't like that one bit. But he did not get you?"

"No, sir."

"He worked pretty hard."

Rap, rap, rap!

Well, thought John, he has been asking me a number of questions; guess I will put some to him.

John cleared his throat.

"Ahem! What are you doing?"

"O, I am going to make daylight shine through here. Squire wants a window. That first brick was tough. It is the first brick that always comes hard. Go right along and take down a whole wall after that."

Rap, rap, rap!

"Bill didn't get you. He tried hard, but he is in the barn without you. First brick comes hard. Take it out and to break down a wall is easier then. My, if he don't want you again. There he is."

"John, John!" Bill was shouting.

He had now boldly ventured inside the hedge, seized John, and led him away.

"A moth going into the candle-flame," murmured Trounser, eagerly watching everything and wondering how it would all come out.

Bill led John to the door of the barn. "Come in," shouted a chorus of young voices.

John was pulled and urged, drawn and almost dragged through the barn door, still he did not enter the building; he stubbornly refused. Slowly, alone, he finally walked back to the potato-patch.

"That brick came hard," muttered Trounser.

Rap, rap, rap!

Soon John's planting was all over. "Got through," asked Trounser.

"O, dear, yes. I want a larger job."

John needed the money less for himself than for the mother at home, weary and sick.

"Well," said Trounser, slowly, deliberately: "I will give you a job. I have been around here working three days and the squire expects me to clear it up. I've got to leave for another little matter, and if you'll stay and do the clearing you shall have half a dollar."

"O, I will gladly stay," said John.

"I'll meet you at half after five down at the corner by Smith's."

The two met and a half-dollar went from Trounser's leather pocketbook into John's eager hands.

"That will buy something for mother," was John's welcome thought.

"Why, who is coming?" asked Trounser.

"Somebody in trouble, plain as day."

"There are two somebodies," added John.

"Guess each one wishes that he was a nobody."

A policeman was walking along hurriedly, and he was hurrying also two scared-looking boys. He strode off between them, gripping each one by the arm. Trounser nodded to the policeman, and the policeman nodded to Trounser. John also recognized the two boys and bowed, but they did not seem to care for notice. They stared right ahead. Earth did not appear to have any pleasures for them now.

"O, said Trounser to John as the dismal procession passed by them, "wasn't one of those boys the chap that came for you and tried to coax you off to that barn?"

"Yes, sir. It was Bill Mahoney, and the other was Tim Pritchett. They have been over in that barn."

"Indeed! Well, I am not surprised. I saw a pail of ale going in, and it is not surprising if a policeman should be seen walking out."

"That was about the way of it. I could hear the boys in the barn while I was planting. They grew noisy, got a-quarreling, and I saw a policeman going by, and—he did the rest."

"Well, are you glad you did not go with them?"

"Of course I am, sir."

"Well, don't forget," said Trounser, kindly, laying a hand on the boy's shoulder. "They had hard work inducing you, I could see that. As I said there, when I was a hammering on that cellar wall: 'It is the first brick that always comes hard.' After that one can go right along and take down a whole wall pretty quick. I was some time cutting my first brick out of the wall. After that it was easy. I could have got the whole wall down then. Bill found it hard to get the first brick out. You resisted him right there. My, if he had got out that brick you might—"

"Might have been walking off with that policeman."

"That is it! Look out for the beginnings of evil."

After that, whenever John heard a mason's hammer rapping away, he would also catch Trounser's voice, saying: "It is the first brick that always comes hard, John! Look out for the beginnings of evil."—Zion's Herald.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON VIII.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Nov. 25.

SUBJECT.—Opposition to Christ.—Mark 3: 22-35.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He came unto His own, and His own received Him not."—John 1: 11.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Mark 3: 22-35.—T.—Matt. 12: 22-30. W.—1. John 3: 1-8. T.—Rev. 12: 7-11. F.—Eph. 4: 10-20. S.—Heb. 10: 21-31. S.—Matt. 21: 33-42.

(From the S. S. Lesson Illustrator.)

Compare this lesson and parallel accounts in Matthew 12: 1–14 and Luke 6: 1–10 and see how beautifully they correspond with the thought of Matthew writing of Jesus as the King, and Mark as the Servant, and Luke as the Son of man.

He hath Beelzebub. He and Satan were joined in a kind of incarnation. He did his work by Satan working through him. Beelzebub was an epithet the most horrible and loathsome they could apply. It was the name of the god of Ekronites, 2 Kings. 1: 2, 3, 16, the fly-god, who sent plagues of flies, which communicated horrible and filthy diseases. The name came to be applied to Satan, the loathsome evil spirit, the very extremest opposite of God. They charged Jesus with being one with this foul devil, and of appearing among men but to deceive and to destroy; that all his wonderful works and tender words and claims of fellowship with God were devilish, false and blasphemous. This they would have the people believe of Jesus, and turn from him with loathing, scorn and hatred.—Pentecost.

How can Satan cast out Satan? How can Satan cast out himself? It might be possible that in single cases for malignant effect, Satan would show his power over inferior demons; but the whole work and teaching of Jesus was unmistakably and intensely against the whole kingdom of Satan.—Wakefield. Satan has a kingdom, but being a usurper, he is never called a king. Yet he is called a "prince." Jno. 12:31; Eph. 2: 2. —Clark. Jesus does not teach that the kingdom of Satan is at peace. It is the kingdom of anarchy, conflict, hate. But in its relation to the kingdom of God it stands a unit. Any nation may have contending parties, but unless it stands as one against contending nations, it ceases to be a nation.—Wakefield.

He will spoil. As though he had said: "You see me entering the dominion of Satan and delivering those he has bound. I am taking away his possessions. What does this mean? It means that I am master of Satan and can bind him."—Wakefield.

All sins shall be forgiven. The sins of youth and age; of head and hand and tongue and imagination; against all God's commandments; the sins of persecutors, like Saul; the sins of idolaters, like Manasseh; the sins of open enemies of Christ, like the Jews that crucified him; the sins of backsliders, like Peter; all may be forgiven. —Ryle. Blasphemy among the Jews was a sin against God, the designation of a crime defined by statutes and punishable by death. Under the theocracy Jehovah was king of the Jews. To diminish reverence and allegiance to him was the blasphemy of the Old Testament, a crime answering to treason in our own times. Ex. 20: 1–7; 22: 20; Deu. 13: 1–5: 18: 19, 20; Nu. 16; 20: 7–12; 1 Kings 18.—Peloubet. There is no sin against God but is a sin against the whole Trinity. But as there are attributes proper to every Person of the Trinity, so there are certain sins more directly against the Persons themselves.—Donne. The unpardonable sin is wilfully maligning the Holy Spirit. This seems evident from the context and the accompanying circumstance. The Pharisees had attributed the power of Jesus to Satan, and had used the contemptuous epithet, Beelzebub, and had said, "He has an unclean spirit." v. 30. They were guilty in this of blasphemy against the Son, especially against his divine nature. Matt. 12: 24. He warns them, therefore, that but a step further and their sin would be unpardonable.—Clark. A union of light in the head and hatred in the heart.—Ryle. Not a sin of ignorance, or even of presumption, but of defiance.—Pentecost. This sin is ever attended with two symptoms: absence of all contrition and of all desire of forgiveness. If thou canst truly say that thy sins are a burden, that thou dost desire forgiveness, and wouldst give anything to attain it, be of good comfort; thou hast not committed that unpardonable offense.—Fuller. The unpardonable sin, though it may begin with one act of blasphemy, v. 30, results in a state of sinful activity which continues forever. For this reason it is unpardonable. The punishment is perpetual because the sin is perpetual. The sin excludes pardon because it excludes repentance.—Schaff.

Who is my mother or my brethren? There is nothing contemptuous in the reply, nor any hint that Jesus ignored earthly relationships. We know that he loved his mother by his care for her on the cross. But he would teach them: 1. That his earthly relations had no control over his divine work. It was impossible for them to understand him or to judge correctly as to his duty. Peloubet. The time had come to impress a lesson as to life's truest relationships. He loved and honored domestic life, but there was something which stood above it; he would not make less of the family tie but more of the tie of the Spirit.—Wakefield. Matthew says: "He stretched forth his hand to his disciples." Matt. 12: 49. Both accounts are from eyewitnesses, one noticing the outstretched hand and the other the look.—Alford. How strangely the words must have echoed to the hearts outside, but what a glow of joy, the joy of being tenderly loved, must have come to the little circle within! They knew he had a deep and holy love for his mother and brethren: and it was even so to them.—Wakefield. Nothing is more close than the connection of Christ and his believers. The tie of human relationship is physical and temporal; the tie to Christ is spiritual and eternal.—Whedon. Here Jesus enlarges the circle, and takes in the reverent and dutiful souls of all ages. Whoso shall do the will of God he is the child of God.—Wakefield.

Be certain of this, that no misery can be equal to that which a man feels who is conscious that he has proved unequal to his part, who has deserted the post his captain set him, and who, when men said, "Such and such a one is there on guard, there is no need to take further heed," has left his watch, or quailed before the foeman, to the loss, perhaps the total ruin, of the cause he had made his choice.—J. H. Shorthouse.

"Take cheerful views of things and see them in the light of Christian hope. The cloud has a silver lining; the raindrops make grass and flowers grow; storm and tempest purify the air, and night fades in the light of the evening. After the battle, peace; after this brief life, life eternal!"—Christian Advocate.

TAKE AYER'S the Only Sarsaparilla AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893

IT LEADS ALL OTHER BLOOD Purifiers.

The

PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLd USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Have a Shampoo? When you do, have it with Pearline. It's delightful. Not only cleans your head, but clears your brain. It's good for your hair and scalp, too—invigorates them, just as a bath with Pearline invigorates your body. You're missing half the luxury of bathing, if you're doing it without Pearline. Moreover, you're not getting quite as clean, probably, as you might be. This may surprise you—but it's so.

Beware of imitations. 450 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

FARM NOTES.

THE LARGEST FARM IN THE WORLD.

In the extreme southwest corner of Louisiana lies the largest producing farm in the world. It runs 100 miles north and south, and 25 miles east and west, and is owned and operated by a syndicate of Northern capitalists. Their general manager, J. B. Watkins, gives an interesting account of this gigantic plantation, which throws the great Dalrymple farm in Dakota into the shade completely. "The million and a half acres of our tract," Mr. Watkins said, "were purchased in 1883 from the State of Louisiana and from the United States government. At that time it was a vast grazing land for the cattle of the few dealers of the neighborhood. When I took possession I found over 30,000 head of half-wild horses and cattle. My work was to divide the immense tract into convenient pastures, establishing stations or ranches every six miles. The fencing alone cost in the neighborhood of $50,000.

"The land I found to be best adapted to rice, sugar, corn, and cotton. All our cultivating, ditching, etc., is done by steam power. We take a tract, say half a mile wide, for instance, and place an engine on each side. These engines are portable, and operate a cable attached to four plows, and under this arrangement we are able to plow thirty acres a day with only the labor of three men. Our harrowing, planting, and other cultivation is done in a like manner. In fact, there is not a single draught horse on the entire place. We have, of course, horses for the herders of cattle, of which we now have 16,000 head. The Southern Pacific railway runs for thirty-six miles through our farm. We have three steamboats operating on the waters of our own estate, upon which there are 300 miles of navigable waters. We have an ice-house, a bank, a shipyard, and a rice-mill."—Missouri Republican.

GRAIN CROPS IN EUROPE.

Owing to unfavorable harvest weather only a small part of the wheat in Great Britain is fit for milling purposes. The oat crop is considered excellent. There are about 2,475,648 bushels of last year's wheat crop in first hands. The amount necessary to be imported to meet all demands will be about 189,799,680 bushels, or about 3,646,000 bushels a week.

Commercial Agent Reid, of Dunfermline, Scotland, announces that the year 1894, according to authentic reports, will be one of disappointed hopes to British farmers. Since June heavy storms have injured the hay, damaged the grain, and produced a widespread attack of disease among potatoes.

Official estimates of the crop just gathered in France show the quantity of wheat in excess of the average. The harvest makes France practically independent of outside supplies, but some wheat will probably be imported. The drawback on flours, upon exportation, made from the duty paid on foreign wheat, has already had the effect of stimulating the sale of French flours in the British markets.

The wheat crop in Roumania is the smallest for five years, the rye crop falls below that of last year, and the yield of barley and oats per acre is the lowest for five years. There was about half a crop of corn.

In Germany wheat shows a falling off in quantity and quality from last year, and the potato crop is very disappointing. The Austrian wheat crop is expected to measure 50,000,000 bushels. Barley and oats have an average yield, but corn does not promise as well. Italian grain is reported excellent in quality. The corn crop, damaged by drought, is looked on as lost in many districts. Belgian wheat, harvested under very unfavorable conditions, is injured in quality. Hungary's wheat fields yielded 167,000,000 bushels; rye, 61,000,000.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Nov. 5 to Nov. 10:

T J Williams, H C Caldwell, G A Paddock, A J Townsend, J Emerson, R Gardner, F I Day, Mrs M Good, J Phillips, G H Adams, J M Scott, R C Livesay, S C Truesdale, Rev G M Robb, W F Young, C C Bratt.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	54	@	55
Winter No. 2	55	@	56
Corn—No. 2	50⅜	@	51¾
Oats—No. 2	28¾	@	31½
Rye—No. 2	47¼	@	48
Bran per ton	12 00
Hay—Timothy	9 50	@	11 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24
Cheese	06	@	09
Beans	1 40	@	1 55
Eggs	13	@	15
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 43	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	6 00	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	70 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	40	@	60
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 50	@	5 30
Common to good	2 00	@	4 15
Hogs	4 10	@	4 80
Sheep	1 25	@	3 50

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	57¼	@	59⅛
Corn No 2	48		57
Oats	32⅛	@	36½
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	18		25
Butter	13	@	23½
Wool	19	@	25

FLORIDA and the SUNNY SOUTH VIA
BIG FOUR ROUTE.

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, Pass'r Traffic Mgr. D. B. Martin, Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.

BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

"Chautauqua" Desk FREE.
WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP

Most popular desk ever made. Exceeds in number in use any other one article of furniture and has gladdened a hundred thousand hearts. SOLID OAK throughout, hand-rubbed finish. The drop leaf, writing bed, closes and locks. A brass rod for curtain It stands 5 feet high, is 2½ feet wide and 10½ inches deep.

THE COMBINATION BOX CONTAINS

100 BARS "SWEET HOME" SOAP. Enough to last an average family one full year. For all laundry and household purposes it has no superior.	$5.00
7 BARS WHITE WOOLEN SOAP. A perfect soap for flannels.	.70
9 PKGS. BORAXINE SOAP POWDER. Cannot possibly injure the fabric. Simple-Easy-Efficient	.90
½ DOZ. MODJESKA COMPLEXION SOAP. Exquisite for ladies and children. A matchless beautifier.	.60
1 BOTTLE, 1 OZ., MODJESKA PERFUME. Delicate, refined, popular, lasting	.25
¼ DOZ. OLD ENGLISH CASTILE SOAP.	.30
¼ DOZ. CREME OATMEAL TOILET SOAP.	.25
¼ DOZ. ELITE TOILET SOAP,	.25
¼ DOZ. LARKIN'S TAR SOAP. Infallible preventative of dandruff. Unequalled for washing ladies' hair.	.45
¼ DOZ. SULPHUR SOAP,	.45
1 JAR MODJESKA COLD CREAM. Soothing. Cures chapped skin.	.25
1 BOTTLE MODJESKA TOOTH POWDER. Preserves the teeth, hardens the gums, sweetens the breath.	.25
1 PKT SPANISH ROSE SACHET POWDER.	.25
1 STICK NAPOLEON SHAVING SOAP,	.10
200,000 FAMILIES USE IN A YEAR. THE ASSORTMENT OUR BOX PROVIDES.
THE CONTENTS IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL COST.	$10.00
DESK. WORTH AT RETAIL,	10.00
ALL FOR $10.00 DESK. YOU GET THE DESK GRATIS.	$20.00

YOU USE THE GOODS THIRTY DAYS BEFORE BILL IS DUE.

After trial you pay the retail value of the Soaps alone. All middlemen's profits are returned to you in valuable premiums, so well bought as to save you half the regular retail prices. The Larkin plan saves you half the cost. The manufacturer alone adds VALUE; every middleman adds COST. The publishers of this paper know every claim is sustained by the facts.

Many people prefer to send cash with order—it is not asked—but if you remit in advance, you will receive in addition to all extras named, a nice present for the lady of the house, and shipment same day order is received. The publishers also know that your money will be refunded without argument or comment if the box or DESK does not prove all expected. Booklet illustrating ten other premiums free upon application.

Write your order like this, TODAY—while you think of it, or cut this out and sign it:

"You may ship me, subject to thirty days' trial, ONE COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP, with extras, etc., and the CHAUTAUQUA DESK.

☞ If after thirty days' trial I find the Soaps and the Desk entirely satisfactory and as represented, I will remit you $10.00; if not, I will notify you goods are subject to your order and you must remove them, making no charge for what I have used."

Name, ...

Occupation, ... Street No. .....

P. O. ..... State, .....

ESTAB. 1875. INCOR. 1892. THE LARKIN SOAP M'F'G CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

16 Boils at Once

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purifies the Blood and Restores Health.

Mr. F. W. Stowell
Wilmot, S. Dak.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"About four years ago my wife was troubled with salt rheum. Although we tried nearly everything it got worse instead of better and spread over both of her hands so that she could hardly use them. Finally she commenced to use Hood's Sarsaparilla and when she had taken two bottles her hands were entirely healed and she has not since been troubled. In December, 1892, my neck was covered with boils of a

Scrofulous Nature.

There were sixteen of them at once and as soon as they healed others would break out. My neck finally became covered with ridges and scars. I then commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four bottles the boils had all healed and the scars have disappeared. I recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to all suffering from any disorder of the blood." F. W. STOWELL, Wilmot, South Dakota.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

——THE——

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

HOME AND HEALTH.

DIPHTHERIA AND CROUP CURE.

The new treatment by inoculation for diphtheria and croup as practiced in France is the subject of a special report to the state department by United States Consul C. W. Chancellor at Havre. He says that by this method of treatment only one out of four diphtheria patients succumbs, whereas the figure is double for other methods of treatment heretofore applied.

A trial of the new treatment at one of the largest children's hospitals of Paris resulted in reducing the death rate from diphtheria from 51.70 per cent to 34.33 per cent. In addition it is asserted that children vaccinated with the serum were protected from the disease even while living in close contact with diphtheria patients.

The Chicago city council instructed the city board of health to send to Berlin for a supply of Dr. Behring's diphtheria cure for use in Chicago this winter.

Health Commissioner Reynolds said that the board had already sent to Berlin for a supply of the remedy, but thought that the great demand for it there would delay its arrival for a long time. The board would be glad to have the resolution passed, however. "The city has nothing to do with diphtheria patients at present," continued Dr. Reynolds. "It only handles epidemics like smallpox or cholera, or something like that. The county looks after the lesser diseases. Whether it would care to turn its diphtheria cases over to the city is a question.

"There are 500 or 600 deaths from diphtheria here every year. There are a number of other affections of the throat that simulate diphtheria, and can be distinguished from it only by a microscopical examination of the membrane, which will determine whether the diphtheria bacillus is present or not. If it is not, the patient has not diphtheria, although he may be very ill. The percentage of deaths in cases of true diphtheria is very high, the disease being exceedingly fatal. It is a preventable disease."

TO CLEAN INDIA RUBBERS.

In these days, when India rubber shoes are so often made of shoddy material, it is especially necessary to take good care of them. It is a great mistake to wash an India rubber to free it from mud. Soap always injures them, and even clear water applications are of no special advantage. The best way, as an exchange says, is to allow the overshoes to become thoroughly dry. Then brush them free from all dust and mud, and rub them thoroughly with vaseline. This not only cleans them, but leaves an oil service, which makes the overshoe more impervious to water.—The Watchman.

It is said that the late William H. Vanderbilt was once asked by his wife what he wanted for a gift. He replied, "There is nothing I want so much as a night of good sound sleep." And it is related that the only respite he could get from the cares and annoyances of his vast wealth "was by crossing the ocean, and then immediately recrossing without touching shore. In this way alone he could escape for a week and a half from the pressure of business, which on land through telegrams and letters forever pursued him."

The demand for Ayer's Hair Vigor in such widely-separated regions as South America, Spain, Australia, and India has kept pace with the home consumption, which goes to show that these people know a good thing when they try it.

HOW THEY DO IT?

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., when asked how they can afford to make the offers they do, answer, "by our method and large volume of business." They do not sell goods to the trade, but deal only with the consumer, and thus they avoid the profits paid to the middleman, and in view of this they are enabled to give so much for so little money. They have made the word "Chautauqua" famous during the past few years, but they will not be satisfied until they have placed the Chautauqua Ladies' Desk in many thousand more of homes. Try them, you will not be disappointed.

The hearty reception extended the Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary by the literary public in England is one of the literary surprises of the past year. The eminent English novelist, A. Conan Doyle, now lecturing in this country, recently wrote from London, to the publishers, as follows:

"LONDON, 12 Tennison Road,
South Norwood, Aug. 20, 1894.

GENTLEMEN:—I wrote once before to commend your dictionary, but I feel bound to do so again after a longer experience with it. It has become quite a joke with us that we can not trip it up. We have several times been sure that we would, but have always failed. Within the last week I have had occasion to turn it up for 'gyp,' 'coffle,' and 'coshering,' always successfully. Is the second volume purchasable? Yours faithfully,

A. CONAN DOYLE."

The Standard Dictionary may be purchased through the Cynosure office.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Don't Forget

that when you buy Scott's Emulsion you are not getting a secret mixture containing worthless or harmful drugs.

Scott's Emulsion cannot be secret for an analysis reveals all there is in it. Consequently the endorsement of the medical world means something.

Scott's Emulsion

overcomes Wasting, promotes the making of Solid Flesh, and gives Vital Strength. It has no equal as a cure for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Scrofula, Anaemia, Emaciation, and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50.
(Postage extra)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

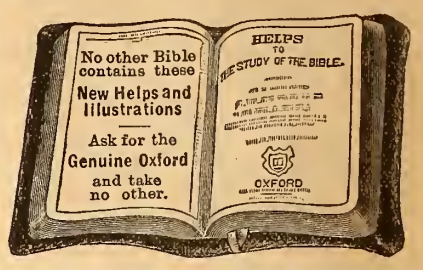
MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1½c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1½c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.



T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

"GENUINE OXFORD"

TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers. 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated" the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2 50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, Full Roan, flap, $2.50

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, pass words, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords &c. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. B. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

In Baking Powders "Royal" Leads.

As the result of my tests, I find the ROYAL BAKING POWDER superior to all the others in every respect. It is entirely free from all adulteration and unwholesome impurity, and in baking it gives off a greater volume of leavening gas than any other powder. It is therefore not only the purest, but also the strongest powder with which I am acquainted.

WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.,
Prof. of Chemistry, Rush Medical College,
Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health.

All other baking powders are shown by analysis to contain alum, lime or ammonia.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

News of the Week.

WASHINGTON.

Brig.-Gen. Alexander McDowell McCook has been appointed major-general of the United States army, vice Gen. Howard, retired, and James W. Forsyth of the 7th cavalry has been promoted to brigadier-general to succeed McCook.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

Two of the Cook gang plundered the town of Lenapah, I. T., and left a bloody trail behind them Friday afternoon. They entered the town in their character of bandits, without attempt at concealment, and terrorized the citizens until they had carried out their plans of robbery. A brave young man who attempted to stop them with a gun when they were riding away, was shot and instantly killed. Another man is reported to have been seriously wounded.

Two children were burned to death at Chassell, Mich., Thursday evening. The mother was milking the cow and had left her little ones in the house. When she returned the building was in flames and no human aid could save the children.

The Spanish coast steamship Fernando foundered Tuesday morning twenty miles north of Bahia Honda. Ten of her passengers and crew were drowned.

On Sunday afternoon a special train on the Wisconsin Central carrying 800 men and women (anarchists and their friends) to Waldheim Cemetery to participate in the anniversary exercises in memory of the executed anarchists of the Haymarket riot, was wrecked at West Fortieth street, and five persons were severely injured. That the others escaped injury and no one was killed is deemed miraculous. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch, and there were allegations that the wreck was caused by a rival faction of anarchists.

COUNTRY.

The Nebraska State Relief Commission met in the governor's room at Lincoln. They say the situation is a grave one and that the amount of destitution in the western part of the State has not been in the least exaggerated.

A call has just been issued by the combined manufacturers of Cincinnati, O. and region inviting a convention to be held Jan. 22, 1895, to form a non-political, non-sectional, national manufacturers' association, to look after wholesome legislation for the encouragement of manufacturing, and to secure favorable trade relations with foreign countries.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, preacher and reformer, was elected an honorary member of the Union League club. There were just a dozen such members, including Gen. Harrison, Gen. O. O. Howard and Governor-elect Morton. Dr. Parkhurst is the only clergyman to be thus honored.

All arrangements have been completed at Cramp's shipyard for the launching of the American line steamship St. Louis. This event has attracted more attention than any similar affair in recent years, because the St. Louis is the first modern ocean passenger vessel built in this country. Mrs. Cleveland is to christen the ship, which is 556 feet long.

A bill has passed both houses of the Cherokee legislature making it treason for a Cherokee citizen to sell real estate of his nation to a non-citizen, naming as a penalty for so doing death by hanging.

Rufus N. Ramsay, State Treasurer of Illinois, is dead.

Mgr. Satolli is to be the treasurer of Roman Catholic contributions to "Peter's pence," which have heretofore been sent directly from this country to the Pope. They often count up into thousands of pounds.

The annual report of the Postmaster General shows that increased expenditures and diminished receipts in his department have caused a deficiency of $9,243,935.

A single tax colony is to be started by ex-Pullman employees, who have secured 2,000 acres of land in Alabama.

Owens, who was elected to succeed Breckenridge as Congressman in the Ashland (Ky.) district, will have his election contested by his opponent, Judge Denny, claiming to have received a majority of the votes cast.

President Cleveland has offered his services as arbitrator in a settlement of the dispute between China and Japan.

Attorney General Olney has decided adversely to Gov. Tillman on the question raised between the United States and the State of South Carolina in the dispensary cases. This brings the South Carolina Dispensary law into direct conflict with the Internal Revenue laws of the United States.

The Chinese Six Companies in San Francisco has issued a notice warning Chinamen throughout the State "not to give evidence for the government in cases involving the exclusion or deportation of Celestials, otherwise they will be boycotted."

The strike commission authorized to be appointed by Congress has completed its labors, and will, not later than the 15th of this month, send its report to the President. The action taken is unanimous.

While the whole world was waiting with ready sympathy for the news of the Czar's death, a dispatch from St. Petersburg says the police, during several days, made a large number of arrests of Nihilists as the result of the discovery of a plot against the life of Czarowich.

Camden, N. J., is fighting the "Sunday" saloon. The Mayor recently fined a saloon-keeper $50 and costs for selling on the Sabbath,

FOREIGN.

A dispatch from Tokio, Japan, states that United States Minister Dun has communicated to the ministry the substance of an important cipher cable proposition received from Secretary Gresham at Washington. It suggests that if Japan will join China in requesting the president of the United States to act as mediator in settling the war he will exercise his good offices in that capacity. A similar proposition has been sent to China. The cable was received by Minister Dun on Friday, and was presented to a special meeting of the ministry. An answer has not yet been sent. It is learned that four days previously France made a proposition to the United States to intervene.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that 3,000 Armenians, including women and children, are reported to have been massacred in the Sassoun region near Moosh, Turkish Armenia, during a recent attack by Kurds. Twenty-five villages were destroyed. The Turkish officials declare that the report is not true and that it grew out of the suppression of a small resing in the region in question. The British ambassador is making inquiries into the matter.

PECULIAR PERILS

Assail our health in the fall, when the season changes and mild weather gives way to chilling winds and cold storms, with dangerous warm waves between. This variable weather taxes the nervous energy, chills the skin and overloads the kidneys. An abundant supply of pure blood is thus necessary to prevent the advance of disease, to nourish the nerves, renew the waste and sustain the health tone. To purify, vitalize and enrich the blood you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the ideal fall medicine.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address
OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T176
344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

THE
LODGE LAMP
A FOUR-PAGE MONTHLY.

It is devoted to the analysis of secret society questions, showing their evils and pointing to their remedies.

20 cents per annum. Sample copies 2 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,
AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle. B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 11. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,282.

Cook E A
316 Washington Boul
3825

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Henry L. Kellogg..... 8
The Story of St. Leger.. 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Virtue..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges..... 2
Society—A Poem..... 2
SELECTED:
The Secularization of the Church..... 2
The Passing of Harvard. 2
The Revolutionary Society..... 3
Secret Societies Criticized..... 3
The Rulers of Europe and China..... 3
The Follies of Secret Societies..... 3
Religious Life in Russia 3
Out of Work..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
IN BRIEF..... 7
REFORM NEWS:
Notes of the Iowa State Anti-secrecy Convention; The New Hampshire State Christian Association; Report of the Secretary of Iowa Convention; Pres. C. A. Blanchard in Illinois; The College Agent in Indiana and Kentucky; The Pacific Coast Agency.....5,6,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
Good Work in Tennessee; The Coming of General Booth..... 6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15

DEATH OF REV. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

Announcement made in the Cynosure last week, referred to the injury of Rev. Henry L. Kellogg while endeavoring to save his property from the fire which destroyed his house at Wheaton on the previous Sunday. At the time, it was supposed that his injuries were but temporary; but later it was ascertained that he had inhaled flames, which resulted in great suffering and, on Thursday morning, terminated his useful existence.

His death, so sudden, so unexpected, in the prime of life, has cast a wide-spread sorrow over the community in which for so many years he resided, and will bring a pang of grief and regret to readers of the Cynosure, which was for twenty years under his personal supervision. As a Christian and talented writer he has ever been a valuable leader in the anti-secrecy reform, and the record of his labors is a fitting monument to his memory.

A life-sketch of the deceased, by a loving hand, and read at his funeral by Rev. Dr. J. E. Roy, will be found on the eighth page of this issue.

Funeral services of an impressive character, attended by a large concourse of personal friends of the deceased, were held in the chapel of Wheaton College on Saturday last, at which the pastor, Rev. W. H. Chandler, delivered an appropriate discourse; after which the remains were laid to rest in the village cemetery.

The widow and children of the deceased are receiving hearty and helpful sympathy from all who knew him in this their hour of heavy affliction.

Reports from the Illinois State Anti-secrecy Convention, at Sparta, on Thursday and Friday of last week, have been partially received and are set aside for publication in next week's issue of the Cynosure. At the present writing we are without sufficient data upon which to found an idea of its character or success.

It is proposed to collect $250,000 from the friends of Prof. Swing and the Chicago (Baptist) University for the erection on its grounds of a chapel in memory of the Professor, who was a Unitarian. The endowment of $6,000,000 of the University was easily obtained from Baptists for the education of young men in the Baptist faith; but this proposition looks like a perversion of the original intent of the institution.

The past week has been peculiarly disastrous to the National Christian Association, which has been called upon to deplore the deaths, almost simultaneously, of Rev. Henry L. Kellogg, editor of the Cynosure, Rev. J. P. Richards, one of its directors, and Elder A. D. Freeman, of Downer's Grove, Ill., an old-time director and supporter of the cause in which the Association is engaged. This triple affliction is to be accepted as a startling dispensation of Providence, to which we must all bow submissively, but which is no less painful to us who survive the loss of these dear friends.

The difference between "opium joints"—places where infatuated beings resort to stupefy their brains with the fumes of opium—conducted by alien Chinese, who cannot become citizens or obtain licenses, and liquor saloons operated by foreign-born men, whom the government licenses to carry on this infamous traffic, is that all foreigners except the Chinese may vote and become lawmakers. The difference is not complimentary to our social and political systems. Rum and opium should be placed in the same category, making both "respectable" by license, or prohibiting both with the same rigor.

A few weeks since it was announced in these columns that the Rev. J. P. Richards and his wife had departed for a protracted journey to the Pacific Coast and California. Mr. Richards, quite advanced in years, had been for some time suffering from the effects of a former attack of the grip, and hoped for relief in the change of scene and climate. They had proceeded as far as the State of Washington, by the Northern Pacific railroad, when, last week, he grew worse and soon entered into rest. His remains arrived here on Monday of this week, and after appropriate services in Chicago, were interred at Wheaton on Tuesday afternoon, President C. A. Blanchard officiating at the grave. Further notice of the life and services of this good brother will appear hereafter.

A writer in a foreign periodical defines Theosophy as psychological religion—literally wisdom of God; not wisdom from God, but of God—a special insight of the divine nature and processes, so that a true Theosoph knows God's plans and purposes through direct intercommunication. It is not Christianity, but heathenism—pantheism—deism—having no knowledge of Christ, by whom alone men may approach the Father and know his will. In short, it is a subtle device of Satan, tinctured with necromancy and man-made philosophy, with a soul-destroying tendency. Every comparison of Theosophy with Christianity only develops the greater breadth of disparity between them.

"The American Knights of Protection" is one of the latest of the "fraternal" lodge organizations, with its home office at Baltimore. It claims to be "absolutely non-sectarian, and its obligation of membership pledges only to the support of those broad patriotic principles to which any citizen who believes in the protection of American institutions and the home can subscribe. It is organized, under the lodge system, into national and local 'Assemblies,' with a ritual and a representative form of government." It has an insurance plan also. On the whole, it is a mild copy of the American Protective Association, ostensibly aiming to "educate its membership and the public to a true devotion to the doctrines of American citizenship." This sounds well; but the evil of this and all other secret, oath-bound societies is the surrender of private judgment to the will of the lodge, under a stringent obligation. We know not what penalty is attached to an infraction of the obligation, nor can those who join the order know until it is fired at them like a snap judgment, when it is too late to recede. Why is it that a true and honest patriotism should lead men to entrap their fellowmen into a political slavery? The lodge rule is supreme in such cases, and the whole scheme is a dangerous burlesque upon the franchises of a free people.

The wage-worker who unites with any of the secret labor unions lifts up his hand in the lodge-room and promises "upon his honor" (so we are told) not to reveal to any person any part of the proceedings in which he is a participant. Yet, if other influences are brought to bear, such men have been known to betray the operations of the lodge to his employer. This is considered the heighth of meanness in lodge circles; yet, it must be confessed, he is not without reasonable excuse for his defection. In the first place the labor union strips from him his right of private judgment, drives him away from profitable employment, keeps him in enforced idleness for months, exacts its dues from him, until by the "protection" which it promised him at his initiation, his family is brought to the verge of starvation. Who will blame him, if to obtain either employment or some other compensation, he parts with the secrets of the lodge which has reduced him to slavery almost as abject as that which kept the Southern Negroes in helpless servitude and persecution in this country for seventy-five years? Yet when the wage-worker dares to assume an independence that befits his manhood in a land of liberty, he is denounced as one "so low that each kindred brute might bid him blush for shame." It is ever thus; secession from any secret oath-bound order is the signal for the direst vilification and abuse from those who have not the spirit to assert their God-given manliness as becomes sentient beings.

VIRTUE.

BY R. L. NETHERTON.

"Add to your faith virtue."—Paul.

Virtue, in its primary significance, means strength. It requires the individual to be pure, chaste and true, in every thought, word and act. This strength is needed to overcome temptation. It calls for the practice of moral duties and abstinence from vice, its opposite.

It has been distinguished from religion, in that it practices moral duties for convenience sake, or by force of circumstance, or for regard for reputation. We will place it on still higher grounds. It dictates the path of purity and chastity, from principle. Virtue, this beautiful sister, has on her brow a crown of shining gold, in which diamonds in their brilliancy are studded, shedding forth the light of purity, indicating the pure thoughts within, her robe of immaculate whiteness an emblem of her chastity. Around her graceful form is a sash of blue, falling in majestic folds—the girdle of truth. She leans on the arm of her strong brother, an invincible knight, who wins the victory over all his foes—if not on the battle-field, he will in retribution.

This brother's name is Justice. If we wear this sister's crown, the brother will step to our defence. If we tear the beautiful girdle. the brother will visit his wrath upon us. If we, through negligence, allow our pathway to become so dusty that the sister's robe is in danger of being soiled; or if we, by carelessness, or willfully cast a stain upon it, we can never get away from the tireless vindictiveness of her brother-knight, who always guards his sister well.

My friends, take this sister by the hand, and lead her along life's pathway with you, and she will sing to you sweet songs of cheer, will bathe your fevered brow, will carry a light through the dark places of earth for you, and will surely place your hand at last in another Hand that will lead you across the mystic river into the region of bliss.

Lawrence, Kan.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

III.—THEY VIOLATE THE MARRIAGE BOND.

When God gave to man the law of marriage, he decreed that husband and wife should be one. "Therefore shall a man leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh." This was God's decree to govern husband and wife, and it is for all time. It has never been modified or abrogated by divine authority. Jesus repeats it and emphasizes it.

How do lodges affect this law of marriage? It is plain to be seen. Man and woman are joined in wedlock. They are equal partners in one of the holiest relations. Lodges destroy this oneness and equality. The moment the husband becomes a member of the lodge he takes a solemn obligation, in the form of a cast-iron oath, that he will never reveal the secrets of the order to anyone, and he can no more divulge the secrets of the lodge to his wife than to any other person. Is this wrong? I believe it to be a most iniquitous thing. What moral right has a husband to enter into an oath-bound secrecy, excluding his wife from a knowledge of his movements and associations? If the truth could be known, I doubt not that the secret club-rooms are at the bottom of very much of the domestic strifes, alienations, separations, divorce suits, and desolate homes which are so alarmingly common in our country.

Surely a man has no right to belong to a society into which his wife may not enter. It may be said, in reply, that this is offset by permitting the women to take the Rebekah degree, or become members of the Eastern Star. True enough; but what are these but a kind of sop, as it were, thrown to the women to hush their opposition to the lodge? They are side-shows into which the women may enter, but they must not go into the big circus!

It has been the history of mankind that any society from which the elevating and softening influence of woman is excluded becomes a corrupt institution. I do not believe it possible for an exception so this rule. Women ought to raise such a "tempest in a tea-pot" that the men would forever abandon the lodge.

Fairfield, Neb.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

(Time, night after election in March. Present—Mayor-elect Mr. Mason, his henchman, Mr. Jolly-fellow, Mr. Beerman, and many others.)

Mr. Mason borne on a chair before the procession.

ALL:—

Hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!
Hurrah for Mason and for victory!

Procession halting at the hotel, Mr. Mason addresses the people from the balcony:

Good citizens, receive my heartfelt thanks
For this expression of your kindly minds.
I am your servant now, and I rejoice
That thus my masters honor me.
Our victory was a close one. There have been Base traitors in the camp; these we must find
And banish from our councils, while the men
Who bore the colors on the battle-day
Will be remembered; and let all men know
I recognize the party and its claims
No mugwump, I, to prate about reform;
The fish for those who bait the lines and fish;
The bones and scales for others. We must watch.
The men who own allegiance to the pope
Menace our public schools and hurl their spleen
To all in the face of our fraternities.
And where the crank bobs up his addled pate,
With noisy clamor seeking to disturb
The gentry of the battle, we must club
Him down again. He shall maintain the peace;
And if with noisy riot labor lifts
His knotted fist and shakes it at the law
We'll break his knuckles. Capital shall have
The just protection of an even law;
And labor being modest and discreet,
Shall have our strong support in what is right.
Citizens, good night.

After supper and a big carouse, there are calls for a song from Jack Jolly-fellow.

MR. MASON:—

Yes, let us have a song.
For we won't go home till morning;
We're jolly fellows all.

SONG—The Merry-go-round.

When I was young I never found
Aught so fine as a merry-go-round;
Round and round, and round it goes,
And all you do is to follow your nose,
And that's good politics, I suppose.
Hurrah, hurrah, for the merry-to-round!

Follow your nose when its scent is fine
For the sirloin steak and the best of wine;
Then the boss is a brick, who remembers well;
Who kills his beeves and who brews his ale.
Then hail to the chief, we sing all hail,
Whose patronage is a merry-go-round.

(To be concluded next week.)

THE SECULARIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

One of the wisest and bravest utterances of our generation came the other day from the chair of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. The speaker was the Rev. Dr. Barrett, a preacher of rare eloquence and spiritual power, who has gathered knowledge in many departments of cul ture, but who has ever subordinated all other knowledge to the knowledge of the power of the cross. In the address he delivered in May of this year he called attention to the secularization that threatened the pulpit in preaching philanthropy rather than faith. His later address is the complement of the one that preceded it, for it deals with the tendencies that threaten the secularization of the church. No more timely topic could be discussed by the recognized leader of a great ecclesiastical organization; and it is safe to say that no other English divine could have discharged the duty with more impressive dignity or with more strenuous fidelity to the sanctities of evangelical religion.

Dr. Barrett dealt with four aspects of the secularization of the church in our day. The first was the danger of allowing the spiritual mission and work of the church to be subordinated to its social and philanthropic activities. The second was the demand made in many quarters that the church should take part in the industrial, economic and political conflicts of the day, "setting the face of the modern crusade against social villanies." The third was that secularization of the church which takes place whenever the artificial and temporary distinctions of the world are brought into the church, special attention being given to that "religious organization of labor into a church of its own," which goes by the name of the Labor church. The fourth and last form of secularization on which Dr. Barrett dwelt was the worldliness of tone among the members of the church. The breadth of outlook was certainly comprehensive and the treatment was wonderfully adequate. Words of wisdom and inspiration were spoken which ought to go a long way in recalling the church of Christ from the petty tasks of reformation assigned her by modern critics to the great, the supreme task of the salvation of the world. Dr. Barrett's central contention, which he urged with stately eloquence and prophetic zeal, was that the church's duty is not to save the world by reforming it, but to reform the world by saving it.

While many of the most difficult problems of the day were faced by Dr. Barrett in his masterly address, the problem to which he seemed to give his strength was the relation of the churches to the social and industrial movements which clamor for recognition. That is emphatically the question of the hour, and it is well that we should have a definite deliverance upon it. Dr. Barrett firmly believes that the Christian church is called to make a new heaven upon earth, but he believes with equal firmness and declares with unhesitating boldness that the churches in their corporate capacity have neither the right nor the qualification to define the exact relations which ought to exist between men in a community. The duty of the church in these matters, he contended, is threefold: First, to educate and inspire individual Christian men who shall become influential factors in society for the establishment of righteousness and peace; second, to support and strengthen the ministries of help and healing which aim at the assistance of men bowed down beneath the burdens of life; and third, to enthrone with jealous persistency the authority of the law of Christ over the conscience of the community. It is not the function of the church to settle the question of wages in any given trade or district, to arbitrate between labor and capital, to provide for the amusements of the people, or to interfere directly in the political and social conflicts which from time to time disturb the harmony of society. Dr. Barrett criticised severely the civic church of Mr. Stead, pointing out the inherent weakness of the scheme, and demanding how the gifted author of that scheme could expect that love for man which is to be the dynamic of the new movement for the redemption of the world, without creed, worship, sacrament or even belief in God. Clearly and fearlessly rang out the emphatic truth: "You must have Christ incarnate, crucified, risen, ascended, glorified, ere you can build any church, civic or otherwise."

The difference between Dr. Barrett's spiritual conception of the church and the conception of the church as a great civic agent of reformation, now becoming so popular, resolves itself into one of the means employed to reach a given end. Social reformers would begin by working with things; spiritual reformers would begin by working upon men. The history of the past ought to be conclusive on this point. Only by making men better can things be made better. Dr. Bushnell's famous epigram speaks a truth which has never been falsified: "The soul of all improvement is the improvement of the soul." Personal regeneration must precede social regeneration. Dr. Barrett makes our generation his debtor when he recalls men, befogged by the specious pleas of social agitators, to that fundamental conception of the church which limits its endeavor to the task of re-making men by the power and grace of Christ. Make men better and you make society better. This is the best, in fact, the only, way. —New York Observer.

THE PASSING OF HARVARD.

An old historic institution of Harvard is in a state of transition from a representative American institution to a papal training ground. President Eliot became notorious a couple of years ago by defending Mormonism; now he is becoming equally notorious by his flirting with Romanism. This movement to Romanize Harvard is in line with the general move in this country to subsidize American institutions generally to Rome, in order that Rome may blind the intelligence of America to the Roman policy. John Harvard was a pronounced Protestant. To subvert the great college he founded to serve Romanism is a piece of strange subversion indeed. At this time weekly lectures are being delivered in the institution in defence of the Roman church.

Sander's Hall is one of the many Harvard buildings. It is repeatedly used for Roman lectures; but no lecture in strong defence of Protestantism would be admitted. The other evening one of the Harvard Board of Overseers gave a lecture on the "Catholic Church in the United States." He boasted of the growing power of Roman Catholics and said that the church "was becoming more and more necessary to the country." The main trend of the lecture was to urge the duties of Roman Catholics to the country. They were exhorted to take an active part in government. The point was urged that Roman Catholics could not hold aloof from participating in matters of government and remain faithful members of the church. To all of this, Harvard's president listened attentively. It is known, only too well, that Roman Catholics when obedient to the priesthood cannot take any part in government merely as citizens and patriots, but first and uppermost as Catholics. The laws of Rome, before those of America, and the will of the pope before the will of the people—this is the spirit which rules the great body of Catholic voters.

This work at Harvard will not commend itself to honest people. The Romanizing of our great institutions of learning is to be watched. Along with this will come a conspiracy against historic facts in the text books, and a one-sided instruction in the class and lecture rooms. Along with it, too, must come a tampering with the college libraries. Then the colleges of our land will become what they were in England in the days of King John—merely recruiting grounds for Roman Catholic societies, organized to run the government in the grooves marked out by the pope of Rome.—Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., in the Associate Presbyterian Magazine.

THE REVOLUTIONARY SOCIETY.

The Protestant Associated Press gives information of the formation of a society in Rome, under the presidency of Cardinal Parochi, with branches all over the world, to propagate the doctrines of the encyclical Novarum Rerum. The director of the society for the United States is Dr. Richard Burtsell. The society wants to be put in correspondence with every workingman's society in the world.

Gen. L C. Frye, the late commander of the Industrial Army of California, was laboring in the interests of this Revolutionary Society; at least circumstantial evidence points strongly in that direction. In an address at Columbus, Ohio, September 22nd, he gave utterance to sentiments most radical, almost revolutionary. Before leaving the city he took into his confidence a few persons whom he told that he was the agent and organizer of a revolutionary party, and was merely using the populist cloak to get in his work.

He said the idea was suggested by the great Chicago railway strike of last summer. Their plan is to await, when well-organized, the coming of a similar condition, and when the laborers of the country are in hot blood over a wrong, and the State and National soldiers are supporting corporate greed, the signal to rise and seize the government will be given, and the organization will act according to an arranged plan.—Christian Nation.

SECRET SOCIETIES CRITICISED.

The Free Methodist Conference of Kansas recently made the following declaration:

We deem the principles and practices of oath-bound or obligated secret societies detrimental to the best interests of the social, religious and political welfare of mankind. Those with religious features are the more dangerous because of their professedly being founded on the Word of God and yet ignoring the fundamental principles of that book.

Freemasonry offers to take men to heaven who have never been made new creatures in Christ Jesus, thus rejecting his atonement; and Masonically men are not allowed to pray in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of God; and thus binding the followers of Christ that are connected with them with Jews, Mohammedans, Hindoos, gamblers, drunkards, adulterers, whoremongers, liars and infidels. We believe Masonry to be the mother of all other secret societies. Therefore we would recommend to our people a careful perusal of Ronayne's "Hand-Book of Masonry" and an exposition by C. G. Finney.

THE RULERS OF EUROPE AND CHINA.

The following from the Herald and Presbyter in reference to the present rulers of Europe and China will doubtless be of interest to our readers:

"It is a significant fact that the present decade has witnessed the disappearance of many of the old sovereigns and the succession of young men. The new Czar is only 26 years of age, and now rules over 126,000,000 subjects. The Emperor of China has just reached his majority and wields his scepter over 400,000,000. The young Emperor of Germany took the reins of government seven years ago at the age of 27. His subjects number 50,000,000. Over the 5,000,000 people of Portugal, reigns King Carlos, who is four years younger than William. King Alexander, of Servia, with its 2,300,000, was born in Philadelphia centennial year. Little Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands, first opened her eyes on 4,700,000 subjects only fourteen years ago, and the babe of all the Old World royalty—King Alfonso, of Spain—was not born until after his father's death, in 1886, and presides, at the tender age of 8, over the destinies of 18,000,000. Thus, at the close of the nineteenth century, 256,000,000 Europeans find themselves under the crown of six rulers whose average years are only 22."

THE FOLLIES OF SECRET SOCIETIES.

A newspaper gives publicity to this remarkable specimen of lodge frivolity:

"A special concatenation of the order of Hoo Hoo has been called to meet in Goshen on November 23. Vicegerent Snark, Jay L. Peck, of Indianapolis, will be present to confer the degree, assisted by J. E. Defebaugh of the Timberman, Chicago, and other officials of the Supreme Nine. There will be thirteen candidates in Goshen who will tackle the Great Black Cat with the Rampant Tail a few minutes after 9 o'clock in the evening. The membership is made up largely of traveling-men, who will concentrate at Goshen from various parts of the United States. The paraphernalia has been ordered from California. The funeral of the newly initiated purblind kittens is to take place at midnight in the Hotel Hascall onion-patch. James A. Arthur has been appointed to purchase all the black cats that can be found in the city for the occasion, and those having them for sale should deliver them at his office at once."

RELIGIOUS LIFE IN RUSSIA.

Word comes from Russia of a peculiar movement—a kind of revival—among a religious sect known as the Dukhoborsti. It seems that they are leaving the fertile lands of Caucasus, where they have had flourishing colonies, and are migrating northward to the frozen regions of the shores of the White Sea.

But little is commonly known about this body of Russian dissenters. The name means "Warriors of the Spirit," and would appear to indicate views somewhat similar to those of the German Pietists. They are described as a sect originally exhibiting much personal faith, although their doctrines were a strange mixture of mysticism and rationalism. In the beginning of their existence they endured much persecution, but as time went on and the persecutors left them in comparative peace, they commenced to adopt customs of the world, which they had formerly denounced. They were also remarkably successful in accumulating wealth and indulged proportionately in the luxuries of life. Their spiritual condition seems to have alarmed their leader, Verigin, and he has now called upon them to give up all their worldly possessions that these may be equally distributed among the people. The young men and women who have been working in neighboring towns and settlements have been called back and counseled not to leave their own people any more. And in order to prevent a relapse into a state of worldliness, Verigin advocates an exodus from the prosperous settlements in the southern parts of Russia to the province of Archangel, where he evidently hopes that the severity of the climate will prevent his followers from falling into the supposed temptations of a more congenial region. The sect numbers about a hundred thousand souls, and it is said that its leading members are generously responding to the calls made upon them.

The movement is noticeable mainly as giving a glimpse of religious life in the vast empire controlled by the iron hands of political and ecclesiastical autocrats. These "Warriors of the Spirit" are but one of the numerous odd sects born of Russian conditions. It is estimated that the various dissenters among the czar's subjects amount to no less than twelve million souls, and probably more than that. Some believe in the divine authority of the clergy, and some do not. The distinguishing mark of one sect is that its members cross themselves with the first and middle finger instead of with three fingers, as is the orthodox custom; some consider it unlawful to shave or cut the hair, that being an "innovation" of which their forefathers were innocent; some refuse to offer prayers for the czar, whom they regard as Anti-christ; others regard baptism invalid as usually administered; among these each one baptizes himself, ordains himself, and their monks and nuns consecrate themselves. Mixed up with these peculiar tenets is, among most of the dissenters in Russia, an undercurrent of disaffection toward the government and the established order of things, occupied with a tendency to communion, all natural in a country where poverty and serfdom are the rule among the vast laboring classes.

In view of such conditions the new czar has great opportunities. He may not be able to give to his people all at once a constitution such as the United States enjoy—the majority of Russians would not know what to do with it—but he might throw down the bars which now prevent education from shedding its light upon the masses. He might give to the people free schools and a free press and liberty of speech. This would in time change the peculiarly Russian conditions and lift the people up to the plane where they could appreciate the blessings of an advanced civilization.

OUT OF WORK.

A valued friend writes with reference to the labor question: "While there are lazy and unreasonable workmen, there are millions in the United States facing starvation, who would be glad of any honorable work that would give them bread. There are mechanics in this town who would work for their board if they could get the chance. I have just seen one, a humble Christian, I know him well, hunting work and getting very little. He expects to lose his house; there are very many like him."

There are several things to be said in this connection. Undoubtedly there are multitudes of honest, deserving people, who are destitute of work and in sore trouble. The reason for this, in many cases, lies far back. God put man originally upon the soil and bade him till the ground, and thus gain his bread. Man is naturally lazy, and hates to do hard work, so he looks about to find an easier way of getting a living. The city offers great advantages; he can earn more there in one day than he can on the soil in two; consequently he leaves the soil and takes to the city, village, or factory, and there he sometimes earns liberal wages, and usually expends all he earns. If he goes into business in the city, in nineteen cases out of twenty he sooner or later fails; he struggles against fate, and dies in the struggle, or finally becomes a mere wage-worker.

Many men are unwilling to take the care that is necessary to raise corn, wheat, oats, calves and chickens. They are unwilling to endure the hard work which is necessary to subdue the soil, and so they go into some factory or shop, where everything is ready to their hand; they work eight or ten hours a day, and then drop everything and go their way. They have their wages at the week's end, and they have nothing else. When work fails, they have nothing laid by, nothing growing, nothing to look for; and the roof over their heads belongs to another.

The man thus situated may, by paying his money, join some labor organization. Then he may be ordered to strike. The labor organization is supposed to secure special privileges to its members and the man who does not belong to that organization must in some way be deprived, not only of these special privileges but of his common rights, or else men will not appreciate the advantages of the association. He must be sworn in to an oath-bound lodge, or else be called a "scab" and cursed and excommunicated and stoned as an enemy if he is willing to do work which other men have refused to do.

When a panic strikes the land, every man living in the city is specially likely to feel the pressure. He needs to buy his daily bread; he has no way of getting it; and if work fails bread fails, unless he has something laid by.

